

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. DISTANCES. Since the consolidation of the Kingdom of Italy the French mètre system has been in use throughout the country, but the old Italian miglio (pl. le miglia) is still sometimes preferred to the new kilomètre. One kilomètre is equal to 0.62138, or nearly  $\frac{5}{8}$ ths, of an English mile. The Tuscan miglio is equal to 1.65 kilomètre or 1 M. 44 yds.; the Roman miglio is equal to 1.49 kilomètre or 1630 yds.

PREFACE.

The objects of the Handbook for Italy, which consists of three volumes, each complete in itself, are to supply the traveller with a few remarks on the progress of civilisation and art among the people he is about to visit, to render him as independent as possible of the services of guides and valets-de-place, to protect him against extortion, and in every way to aid him in deriving enjoyment and instruction from his tour in one of the most fascinating countries in the world. The Handbook will also, it is hoped, be the means of saving the traveller many a trial of temper; for there is probably no country in Europe where the patience is more severely taxed than in some parts of Italy.

The Handbook is based on the Editor's personal acquaintance with the places described, most of which he has repeatedly and carefully explored. As, however, changes are constantly taking place, he will highly appreciate any communications with which travellers may kindly favour him, if the result of their own observation. The information already received from numerous correspondents, which he gratefully acknowledges, has in many cases proved most serviceable.

The sixth edition of Central Italy and Rome, like its predecessor, has been carefully revised and brought up to date. For the description of the antiquities of Rome, the Editor is indebted to Professor H. Nissen of Strassburg. The introductory articles on art by Prof. R. Kekulé of Bonn and Prof. A. Springer of Leipsic have been adapted for the use of English travellers with the kind assistance of Mr. J. A. Crowe, the eminent historian of art. Professor Springer has also contributed many valuable incidental remarks on modern art.

The MAPS and PLANS, on which special care has been bestowed, will abundantly suffice for the use of the ordinary traveller. The Plan of Rome (scale 1:15,000) is divided into three sections with a view to obviate the necessity of unfolding a large sheet of paper at every consultation, and its use will be further facilitated by reference to the small blue-plan inside the cover at the end of the volume.

HEIGHTS are given in English feet (1 Engl. ft. = 0,3048 mètre), and DISTANCES in English miles (comp. p. ii).*

HOTELS (comp. p. xxi). In no country does the treatment which the traveller experiences at hotels vary more than in Italy, and attempts at extortion are perhaps nowhere so outrageous. Besides the modern palatial and expensive establishments, the Handbook also contains a selection of modest, old-fashioned inns, where gentlemen travelling alone will not unfrequently find good accommodation at moderate charges. The asterisks indicate those hotels which the Editor has reason to believe from his own experience, as well as from information supplied by numerous travellers, to be respectable, clean, and reasonable. The value of these asterisks, it need hardly be observed, varies according to circumstances, those prefixed to town hotels and village inns signifying respectively that the establishments are good of their kind. At the same time the Editor does not doubt that comfortable quarters may occasionally be obtained at inns which he has not recommended or even mentioned. Although changes frequently take place, and prices generally have a strong upward tendency, the average charges stated in the Handbook will enable the traveller to form a fair estimate of his probable expenditure.

To hotel proprietors, tradesmen, and others the Editor begs to intimate that a character for fair dealing and courtesy towards travellers forms the sole passport to his commendation, and that advertisements of every kind are strictly excluded.

INTRODUCTION.

'Thou art the garden of the world, the home
Of all Art yields, and Nature can decree;
E'en in thy desert, what is like to thee?
Thy very weeds are beautiful, thy waste
More rich than other climes' fertility,
Thy wreck a glory, and thy ruin graced
With an immaculate charm which cannot be defaced.'

I. Travelling Expenses. Money.

Expenses. The cost of a tour in Italy depends of course on the traveller's resources and habits, but, as already stated in the first part of this Handbook, it need not exceed that incurred in the more frequented parts of the continent. The average expenditure of a single traveller may be estimated at 25 francs per day, or at 12-15 francs when a prolonged stay is made at one place; but persons acquainted with the language and habits of the country may easily restrict their expenses to still narrower limits. Those who travel as members of a party effect a considerable saving by sharing the expense of guides, carriages, and other items. When ladies are of the party, the expenses are generally greater.

Money. The French monetary system is now in use throughout the whole of Italy. The franc (lira or franco) contains 100 centesimi; 1 fr. 25c. = 1s. = 1 German mark = 50 Austrian kreuzers. The precious metals are rarely seen in Italy. In copper (bronzo or rame) there are coins of 1, 2, 5, and 10 centesimi. A piece of 5 c. is called a soldo, or sou, and as the lower classes often keep their accounts in soldi, the traveller will find it useful to accustom himself to this mode of reckoning. See also the Money Table opposite the title-page.

BANKNOTES. Since the introduction of a paper currency during the war of 1866, at a compulsory rate of exchange, gold and silver have entirely disappeared from ordinary circulation, and bundles of small notes have taken their place. For these the purses used in most other countries are quite unsuitable, but one adapted for the purpose may be bought in Italy for 1½-2 fr.; in addition to which a strong pouch for copper will be found useful. The endless variety of banknotes with which the country was formerly inundated has been replaced by the Biglietti Consorziali (½, 1, 2, 5, 10, and 20 lire), issued in common by six banks (the Banca Nazionale, the Banca Nazionale Toscana, the Banca Toscana Inriale e Commerciale, the Banca Romana, the Banca di Napoli, the Banca di Sicilia), to which the right of issuing paper money is restricted. The traveller should be on his guard against the cheap imitations of these notes which are occasionally met with.

EXCHANGE. English circular notes, as well as gold and silver, are worth considerably more than Italian banknotes of nominally the same value. Of late years the gain on the exchange has averaged 10-15 per cent (a napoleon, for example, realising 22-23 fr., and a sovereign  $27\frac{1}{2}$ - $28\frac{3}{4}$  fr.). If the traveller makes a payment in gold he is entitled to decline receiving banknotes in exchange, unless the difference in value be taken into account, but the full rate of exchange is rarely given except by respectable money-changers ('camavaluta'). As a rule, those money-changers are the most satisfactory who publicly exhibit a list of the current rates of exchange. The traveller should always be provided with an abundant supply of small notes (1, 2, and 5 fr.), as it is often difficult to change a large amount. When a railway fare has to be paid it is a wise precaution to be provided with the exact sum beforehand, in order that mistakes or imposition may be prevented. Besides the small notes,  $1-1\frac{1}{2}$  fr. in copper should also be carried in a separate pocket or pouch.

BEST MONEY FOR THE TOUR. Before entering Italy the traveller should obtain a moderate supply of French Gold in France or Germany. Sovereigns are received at nearly the full value (i. e. they are reckoned at 26-28 fr. instead of 25 fr.) by the principal hotel-keepers, but not in out-of-the-way places. Circular Notes, obtainable at the principal English banks, form the proper medium for the transport of large sums, and realise the most favourable exchange. English and German banknotes also realise more than their nominal value.

Money Orders payable in Italy, for sums not exceeding 10*l.*, are granted by the English Post Office at the following rates: not exceeding 2*l.*, 9*d.*; 5*l.*, 1*s.* 6*d.*; 7*l.*, 2*s.* 3*d.*; 10*l.*, 3*s.* These are granted in gold. The identity of the receiver must be guaranteed by well-known residents. The charge for money orders granted in England is 40*c.* per 1*l.* sterling.

II. Season and Plan of Tour.

The season selected for the tour must of course depend on the traveller himself, but the colder months are those usually chosen by most travellers bound for the South cross the Alps in October, and arrive in Rome about the beginning of November. Rome is the favourite winter-residence of strangers till Easter, but most of them leave it in Lent for the gayer scenes of the Carnival, and at Easter it is comparatively deserted, as the chief attractions of the festival are now gone. As summer approaches most travellers prepare to quit the country, but even during the hot season tourists are not unfrequently met with. In this vast and ever-varying influx of travellers the English element is always greatly predominant.

No month in the year can be pronounced absolutely unfavourable for travelling in Italy, but the seasons recommended are from 15th Sept. to 15th Nov., and the months of April and May. The rainy winter months should, if possible, be spent in one of the larger cities, of which Rome is unquestionably the most interesting. June, July, and August are hardly suitable for a tour. The scenery indeed is then in perfection, and the long days are hailed with satisfaction by the active traveller; but the fierce rays of an Italian sun seldom fail to sap the physical and mental energies. This result is not occasioned so much by the intensity, as by the protracted duration of the heat, the sky being frequently cloudless, and not a drop of rain falling for many weeks in succession. The heat generally moderates about the end of August, when the first showers of autumn begin to refresh the parched atmosphere.

Plan. The plan of a tour in Italy must of course be framed in accordance with the object which the traveller has in view. In Central Italy the principal attraction is Rome itself, and of the other towns described in the present volume the next in importance are Siena and Perugia, both of which afford good summer quarters owing to their elevated situations. Two other places of great interest are Orvieto and Assisi, a short visit to which should not be omitted. Arezzo, Cortona, Spoletto, Terni, with its imposing waterfalls, and Chiusi and Corneto, with their Etruscan antiquities, are also interesting points, situated near the railway. Volterra, S. Gimignano, Montepulciano, and Viterbo, though less conveniently situated, are also well worthy of a visit. With regard to the towns lying on the coast of the Adriatic, comp. p. 81. Besides these points of attraction there are many others in the less frequented districts of the interior, which the traveller who desires more than a superficial acquaintance with Italy should not fail to explore; and the farther he diverges from the beaten track, the more he will learn of the characteristics of this delightful country.

III. Language.

The time and labour which the traveller has bestowed on the study of Italian at home will be amply repaid as he proceeds on his journey. It is quite possible for persons entirely ignorant of Italian and French to travel through Italy with tolerable comfort; but such travellers cannot conveniently deviate from the ordinary track, and are moreover invariably made to pay 'alla Inglese' by hotel-keepers and others, i. e. considerably more than the ordinary charges. French is very useful, as the Italians are very partial to that language, and it may suffice for Rome and some of the main routes; but for those who desire the utmost possible freedom, combined with the lowest possible expenditure, a slight acquaintance with the language of the country is indispensable. †

IV. Passports. Custom-house. Luggage.

Passports, though not required in Italy, are occasionally useful. Registered letters, for example, will not be delivered to strangers unless they exhibit a passport to prove their identity. In the remote districts, too, where the public safety demands a more rigorous supervision, the traveller is sometimes asked for his credentials. The Italian police authorities are generally civil and obliging.

Custom-House. The examination of luggage at the Italian custom-houses is usually lenient. Tobacco and cigars are the articles chiefly sought for. At the gates of most of the Italian towns a tax (dazio consumo) is levied on comestibles, but travellers' luggage is passed at the barriers (limite daziario) on a simple declaration that it contains no such articles.

Luggage. If possible, luggage should never be sent to Italy by goods-train, as it is liable to damage, pilferage, and undue custom-house detention. If the traveller is obliged to forward it in this way, he should employ a trustworthy agent at the frontier and send him the keys. As a rule it is advisable, and often in the end less expensive, never to part from one's luggage, and to superintend the custom-house examination in person.

V. Public Safety. Begging.

Brigandage. Italy is still sometimes regarded as the land of Fra Diavolo's and Rinaldo Rinaldini's, and the impression is fostered by tales of travellers, and sensational letters to newspapers; but the fact is, that travelling in Northern and Central Italy is hardly attended with greater hazard than in any of the northern European countries, while Southern Italy is unsafe in its more remote recesses only. The 'Brigantaggio', strictly so called, is a local evil, which may easily be avoided. In Tuscany, Umbria, the Marca, and indeed in the whole of the districts to the N. of Rome, it is quite unknown, and even the Roman Campagna can now scarcely be looked on as less safe than lonely districts in the neighbourhood of other large cities. For information as to the safety of the roads the traveller should apply to the Carabinieri, or gendarmes (who wear a black uniform, with red facings and white shoulder-straps, and cocked hats), a respectable and trustworthy corps, the strength of which was raised in 1874 from 1900 to 3297 men. The traveller should avoid the poorer and less frequented parts of Rome and other towns after nightfall.

† 'Baedeker's Manual of Conversation in English, French, German, and Italian, with Vocabulary, etc.' (Stereotype Edit., Baedeker, Leipzig), which is specially adapted for the use of travellers, with the addition of a pocket-dictionary, will soon enable the beginner to make himself understood. — A few words on the pronunciation may be acceptable to persons unacquainted with the language. C before e and i is pronounced like the English ch; g before e and i like j. Before other vowels c and g are hard. Ch and gh, which generally precede e or i, are hard. Sc before e or i is pronounced like sh; gn and gl between vowels like ny and ly. The vowels a, e, i, o, u are pronounced ah, ā, ee, o, oo. — In addressing persons of the educated classes 'Ella' or 'Lei', with the 3rd pers. sing., should always be employed (addressing several at once, 'loro' with the 3rd pers. pl.). 'Voi' is used in addressing waiters, drivers, etc., 'tu' by those only who are proficient in the language. 'Voi' is the usual mode of address among the Neapolitans, but is generally regarded as inelegant or uncourteous.

Weapons, which for the ordinary traveller are a mere burden, cannot legally be carried without a license, obtainable through the traveller's consul or ambassador. Those of a secret character, such as sword-sticks and stick-guns, are entirely prohibited and are liable to confiscation.

Begging, which was countenanced and even encouraged under the old system of Italian politics, still continues to be one of those national nuisances to which the traveller must habituate himself. The present government has adopted energetic measures for its suppression, but hitherto with only partial success. The average Italian beggar is a mere speculator, and not a deserving object of charity. The traveller should therefore decline to give anything, with the words, 'non c'è niente', or a gesture of disapproval. If a donation be bestowed, it should consist of one of the smallest possible copper coins. A beggar, who on one occasion was presented with 2c. and thanked the donor with the usual benedictions, was on another presented with 50c.; but this act of liberality, instead of being gratefully accepted, only called forth the remark in a half-offended tone: — 'Ma, signore, è molto poco!'

VI. Intercourse with Italians.

In Italy the pernicious custom of demanding considerably more than will ultimately be accepted has long been prevalent; but a knowledge of the custom, which is based on the presumed ignorance of one of the contracting parties, tends greatly to mitigate the evil. Where tariffs and fixed charges exist, they should be carefully consulted. In other cases, where a certain average price is established by custom, the traveller should make a distinct bargain as to the article to be bought or service to be rendered, and never rely on the equity of the other party. Nor should any weight be attached to the representations of waiters, drivers, and guides in matters in which they have an interest, and with whom even the inhabitants of the place often appear to act in concert.

CONVEYANCES.

no appeal to the generosity of the stranger, or to or who, as rarely happens, are offended by the station of distrust, may well be answered in the verb, 'patti chiari, amicizia lunga'. The equanimity own temper will greatly assist him if involved in

VII. Conveyances.

With the exception of the Bologna and Ancona line, railways in Central Italy belong to the Ferrovie

As already remarked in the first volume of the ite of travelling is very moderate, and the trains time. The first class carriages are tolerably com-and are inferior to those of the German railways, English and French, while the third class is e by the lower orders. Among the expressions d railway-traveller will soon become familiar are — partenza' (departure), 'si cambia convoglio' (change uscita' (egress), which are shouted by the officials
c vigour.

to start from a crowded station, the traveller will find it convenient to have as nearly as possible the exact fare ready before taking tickets. In addition to the fare a tax of 5c. is payable on each ticket, and the express fares are 10-12½ per cent higher than the ordinary. It is also very important to be at the station early, as, in accordance with the regulations, the ticket-office closes 5 min., and the luggage-office ¼ hr. before the departure of the train. At the end of the journey tickets are given up at the uscita, except in the case of the very large stations, where they are collected before the passengers alight.

The traveller is recommended to ascertain the weight of his luggage, if possible, before going to the station, in order to guard against imposition. No luggage is allowed free (but see below, international through-tickets), except small articles taken by the passenger into his carriage. Porters who convey luggage to and from the carriages are sufficiently paid with a few sous, where there is no fixed tariff. Those who intend to make only a short stay at a place, especially when the town or village lies at a considerable distance from the railway, had better leave their heavier luggage at the station till their return (dare in deposito, or depositare, 10c. per day for each article).

The best collection of time-tables is the 'Indicatore Ufficiale delle Strade Ferrate', etc. (price 1 fr.), with which every traveller should be provided. The local time-tables of the Tuscan, Roman, and Neapolitan lines, which may be procured at the railway stations for a few sous, are also useful.

THROUGH TICKETS to different parts of Italy are issued in London (at the principal railway stations; by Messrs. Cook & Son, Ludgate Circus; etc.), in Paris, and at many of the principal towns in Germany and Switzerland. They are generally available for 30 days, and each passenger is allowed 56 Engl. lbs. of luggage free. When through tickets are taken from Italy to Switzerland, Germany, etc., that portion of the journey which lies beyond the Italian frontier must be paid for in gold. Travellers about to cross the frontier in either direction are strongly recommended to superintend the custom-house examination of luggage in person.

CIRCULAR TICKETS (viaggi circolari) to the principal towns in Italy, available sometimes for 50 days, may be purchased in London, in France, and in Germany, as well as in Italy, at a reduction of 45 per cent (but usually without a free allowance of luggage). Farther particulars will be found in the time-tables, or at the 'agenzie', or railway-offices in the larger towns. For Central Italy alone there are five different circular tours, for which 10-30 days are allowed. These tickets require to be stamped at the office at each fresh starting-point.

RETURN TICKETS may often be advantageously used for short excursions, but they are generally available for one day only. It should also be observed that if the traveller alights at a station short of his destination he forfeits the whole of the rest of his ticket.

Steamboats. There are now so many different railway routes from N. Italy to Rome that few travellers will care to travel by steamer from Genoa or Leghorn to Civit  Vecchia, or from Trieste to Ancona, although many will still prefer the sea-voyage to the long railway-journey if bound for Naples direct (see vol. iii. of the Handbook). In fine weather, especially in summer, when seasickness need rarely be apprehended, a voyage on the Mediterranean is very enjoyable, but as the steamers generally ply at night the finest parts of the scenery are often missed.

CIVIT  VECCHIA, the seaport of Rome (p. 7), is at present touched by the vessels of A. & L. Fraissinet & Co. (office at Rome at Rosati's, Via Condotti 6) on their way to Naples, and by those of Rubattino & Co. (office at Rome in the Piazza di Monte Citorio, 131) on the voyage to Sardinia.

ANCONA (p. 96) is touched once weekly by a vessel of the Peninsular and Oriental Company and by another of Florio & Co., from Trieste and Venice.

Tickets should be purchased by the traveller in person at the office of the company. The ticket is furnished with the purchaser's name and destination, the fare, the name of the vessel, and the hour of departure. The saloons and berths of the first class are comfortably and elegantly fitted up, those of the second tolerably. Passengers of the second class have free access, like those of the first, to every part of the deck. Officers of the Italian and French armies, up to and including those of the rank of captain, are entitled to second-class berths only.

LUGGAGE. First-class passengers are allowed 100 kilogr. (2 cwt.), second-class 60 kilogr. (135 lbs.), but articles not intended for the passenger's private use are prohibited.

FOOD of good quality and ample quantity is included in the first and generally in the second-class fare. The steward's fee for a voyage of 12-24 hrs. is usually 1 fr.

EMBARCATION, with luggage, generally 1 fr. for each person (comp. pp. 1, 7). The fare should not be paid until the passenger and his luggage are safe on deck. Passengers should be on board an hour before the advertised time of starting.

Diligences. As several of the most interesting places described in the following pages lie at some distance from the railway (such as Urbino, Gubbio, Viterbo, and S. Gimignano), the traveller must visit them by carriage or by diligence. The Corriere, which carries the mails, has seats for 2-3 passengers only, and the fares are high. The Diligenza, or ordinary stage-coach, conveys travellers with tolerable speed, and generally at the same fares as similar vehicles in other parts of the continent. They are in the hands of private speculators, and where several run in competition, the more expensive are to be preferred. When ladies are of the party the coup  (fare one-third higher) should if possible be secured. The drivers and ostlers generally expect a few soldi at the end of each stage. — For a party of two or four persons the expense of a carriage with one or two horses hardly exceeds the diligence fares, while the travellers are far more independent. A carriage with one horse may generally be hired for  $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 fr. per miglio, and a single seat in a carriage may often be obtained.

HOTELS.

Walking Tours. An Italian rarely walks if he can possibly afford pleasure is to him an inexplicable mystery. The remark has frequently been made to the Editor: 'In the more frequented districts, how can you ignore e va a piedi?' In the more frequented districts, however, the natives are accustomed to such as the vicinity of Rome, the natives are accustomed to exploring the Campagna and the Sabine and Alban Mts. on foot. There seems, however, to be a growing taste for walking among the Italians themselves, as a great many stations of the Italian Club Alpino have recently been established for the purpose of rendering the Apennines more accessible to travellers. Cool and clear weather should if possible be selected, and the scirocco carefully avoided. The height of summer is of course unsuitable for tours of this kind.

Riding. A horse (cavallo) or donkey (sommāro), between which the difference of expense is slight, will often be found serviceable especially in mountainous districts. The attendant (pedone) acts as a guide and servant for the time being. Riding is now common among the Alban and Sabine Mts., where animals are provided for the use of ladies also. A previous bargain should be made, tutto compreso so, a gratuity being added if the traveller is satisfied.

VIII. Hotels.

FIRST CLASS HOTELS, comfortably fitted up, are to be found at Rome, Siena, Perugia, and at most of the principal resorts of travellers in Central Italy. Several of those at Rome are kept by Swiss and German landlords. Room 2½-5 fr., bougie 75c. to 1 fr., attendance 1 fr., table d'hôte 5 fr., and so on. Families, for whose reception the hotels are often specially fitted up, should make an agreement with the landlord with regard to pension (8-15 fr. each person ~~per~~ day). Visitors are expected to dine at the table d'hôte; otherwise the charge for rooms is raised, or the inmate is informed that they are required for some one else. The cuisine is a mixture of French and Italian.

The SECOND CLASS HOTELS are thoroughly Italian in their arrangement, and they are rarely very clean or comfortable. There is no charge ~~are~~ little more than one-half of the above. There is no table d'hôte, but there is generally a trattoria connected with the house, where refreshments à la carte or a dinner a prezzo fisso may be procured at any hour. These inns will often be found convenient and economical by the voyageur en garçon, and the better houses of this class may even be visited by ladies. As a rule, it is advisable to make enquiries as to charges beforehand. A dinner, for example at 2-3 fr., may be stipulated for, and in bargaining as to the charge for a room the 'servizio e candela' should not be forgotten. Exorbitant demands may generally be reduced without dif-freely to reasonable limits, and has been made an extortionate bill in disputed, though never without long and vehement.

The best hotels have fixed charges. Attendance, boots and commissionaire, is charged in the bill. This is not the case in the smaller inns, where 1 fr. per diem is usually divided between the waiter and the facchino, or less for a prolonged stay. Copper coins are never despised by such recipients.

HÔTELS GARNIS and PARVUS APARTMENTS are recommended for a prolonged residence. A distinct agreement as to rent should be made beforehand. When a whole suite of apartments is hired, a written contract on stamped paper should be drawn up with the aid of some one acquainted with the language and customs of the place (e.g. a banker), in order that 'misunderstandings' may be prevented. For single travellers a verbal agreement with regard to attendance, linen, stoves and carpets in winter, a receptacle for coal, and other details will generally suffice.

The popular idea of cleanliness in Italy is behind the age, dirt being perhaps neutralised in the opinion of the natives by the brilliancy of their climate. The traveller will rarely suffer from this shortcoming in hotels and lodgings of the best class; but those who quit the beaten track must be prepared for privations. Iron bedsteads should if possible be selected, as they are less likely to harbour the enemies of repose. Insect-powder (polvere di Persia, or Keating's) or camphor somewhat repels their advances. The somniferous, or gnat-repelling, autumn months. Windows should always be carefully closed before a light is introduced into the room. Light muslin curtains (sanzieri) round the beds, masks for the face, and gloves are employed to ward off the attacks of these pertinacious intruders. The burning of insect powder over a spirit-lamp is also recommended, and pastilles may be purchased at the principal chemists' for the same purpose.

IX. Restaurants, Cafés, Osterie.

RESTAURANTS (trattorie) are chiefly frquented by gentlemen travelling alone, but those of a gentler class may be visited by ladies also. Dinner may be sometimes a pranzo fisso, at any hour between 1½ and 7 or 8 p.m., for 2-5 fr.; the waiters expect a gratuity of 2-5 soldi. The diner who wishes to confine his expenses within reasonable limits, should refrain from ordering dishes not mentioned in the bill of fare. Besides the old-fashioned trattorie, a number of 'restaurants' of a better class have recently been opened in Rome. The cookery is generally French, and the charges and arrangements are similar to those in the other European capitals. The waiter is called comm-

rière, but the approved way of attracting his attention is by knocking on the table.

A late hour for the chief repast of the day should be chosen in winter, in order that the daylight may be profitably employed, but an early dinner is preferable in summer when the midday heat precludes exertion.

List of the ordinary dishes at the Italian restaurants: —

Minestra or Zuppa, soup.
Consumè, broth or bouillon.
Zuppa alla Santè, soup with green vegetables and bread.
Gnocchi, small puddings.
Riso con piselli, rice-soup with peas.
Risotto (alla Milanese), a kind of rice pudding (rich).
Maccaroni al burro, with butter; al pomodoro, with tomatos.
Manzo, boiled beef.
Fritto, fried meat.
Frittura mista, a mixture of fried liver, brains, and artichokes.
Frittata, omelette.
Arrosto, roasted meat.
Arrosto di vitello, or di mongana, roast-veal.
Bistecca, beefsteak.
Coscetto, loin.
Testa di vitello, calf's head.
Fegato di vitello, calf's liver.
Braccioletta di vitello, veal-cutlet.
Costoletto alla minuta, veal-cutlet with calves' ears and truffles.
Patate, potatoes.
Quaglia, quail.
Tordo, field-fare.
Lodöla, lark.
Sfoggia, a kind of sole.
Principi alla tavola, or piattini, hot relishes.

Funghi, mushrooms (often too rich).
Presciutto, ham.
Pollo, or pollastro, fowl.
Gallotta, turkey.
Umido, meat with sauce.
Stufatino, ragout.
Erbe, vegetables.
Carciofi, artichokes.
Piselli, peas.
Lenticchi, lentils.
Cavoli fiori, cauliflower.
Fave, beans.
Fagiolini, French beans.
Mostarda, simple mustard.
Senäpe, hot mustard.
Ostriche, oysters (good in winter only).
Giardinetto or frutta, fruit-desert.
Crostata di frutti, fruit-tart.
Crostata di pasta sfoggia, a kind of pastry.
Fragole, strawberries.
Pera, pear.
Melo, or pomo, apple.
Persiche, peaches.
Uva, bunch of grapes.
Limone, lemon.
Arancio or portogallo, orange.
Finocchio, root of fennel.
Pane francese, bread made with yeast (the Italian is made without).
Formaggio, cacio, cheese.

WINE (nero or rosso, red; bianco, white; dolce, sweet; asciutto, dry; del paese, wine of the country) is usually placed on the table in large bottles at the Tuscan restaurants and charged for according to the quantity drunk. At Rome and some other places the visitor is asked if he wishes un mezzo litro or un quinto ( $\frac{1}{5}$ th litre).

Cafés are frequented for breakfast and lunch, and in the evening by numerous consumers of ices.

Caffè nero, or coffee without milk, is usually drunk (10-15c. per cup). Caffè latte is coffee mixed with milk before being served (20-30c.); or caffè e latte, i.e. with the milk served separately, may be preferred (30-40c.). Mischio is a mixture of coffee and chocolate (20-30c.), considered wholesome and nutritious.

The usual viands for lunch are ham, sausages, cutlets, beefsteaks, and eggs (uova da bere, soft; toste, hard; uova al piatto, fried).

Ices (sorbetto or gelato) of every possible variety are supplied at the cafés at 30-90c. per portion; or a half portion (mezzo) may be ordered. Granita, or half-frozen ice (limonata, of lemons; aranciata of oranges), is much in vogue in the forenoon. The waiter, who expects a sou or more, according to the amount of the payment, is sometimes inaccurate in charging money if not narrowly watched.

The principal Parisian cafés, English rarely.

Wine Shops (osterie), especially at Rome, are a favourite haunt of the lower classes, who bring their own eatables from the pizzicarolo, or dealer in comestibles. The rooms are generally dirty and uninviting, but the wine is often good.
Cigars in Italy (Sicily excepted) are a monopoly of Government, and bad; those under 3-4 soldi scarcely smokable. Good imported cigars may be bought at the best shops in Rome for 25-60 c. — Passers-by are at liberty to avail themselves of the light burning in every tobacconist's, without making any purchase.

SIGHTS, SHOPS.

Churches are open in the morning till 12 or 12.30, and generally again from 4 to 7 p.m., while some of the most important remain open the whole day. Visitors may inspect the works of art even during divine service, provided they move about noiselessly, and keep aloof from the altar where the clergy are officiating. On the occasion of festivals the works of art are often entirely concealed by the temporary decorations. The verger (sagrestano, or nonzolo) receives a fee of 1/2 fr. or upwards, if his services are required.

Museums, picture-galleries, and other collections are usually open from 10 to 3 o'clock. By a law passed in 1875 all the collections which belong to government are open on Thursdays at a charge of 1 fr., and on Sundays (and sometimes on week-days also) gratis. They are closed on the Monday and Tuesday during Year's Day, Epiphany (6th Jan.), the Monday and Tuesday during the Carnival, Palm Sunday, Easter Sunday, Ascension Day, Whit-Sunday and Whitsunday (first Sunday, Fête de Dieu (Corpus Christi), the Festa del Statuto (15th Aug.), and on Christmas Day. A good many other days are also sometimes observed as holidays, such as the Thursday before the Carnival and the day sacred to the local patron saint.

Valets de Place (servitori di piazza) may be hired at 5-6 fr. per day. They are generally respectable and trustworthy, but, as they are seldom good judges of what is really worth seeing, the traveller should specify to them the places he desires to visit. Their services may generally well be dispensed with by those who are not pressed for time. Purchases should never be made, nor contracts with veterinari or other persons drawn up, in presence or with the aid of a commissionaire, as any such intervention tends considerably to increase the prices.

Theatres. Performances in the large theatres begin at 8, 8.30, or 9, and terminate at midnight or later, operas and ballets being exclusively performed. The first act of an opera is usually succomposed by a ballet of three acts or more. Verdi is the most popular composer. The pit (platēa) is the usual resort of the men, while the boxes and sometimes the stalls (poltrone or posti distinti) are frequented by ladies. A box (palco) must always be secured in advance. — A visit to the smaller theatres, where dramas and comedies are acted, is recommended for the sake of habituating the ear to the language. Performances in summer take place in the open air, in which case smoking is allowed. — The theatre is the usual evening-resort of the Italians, who never observe strict silence during the performance of the music.

Shops rarely have fixed prices. As a rule, even where prices are professed, two-thirds or three-quarters of the price demanded is a fair offer. The itinerant dealers often ask double and more the value of their wares. With artisans and drivers there is the same necessity for bargaining. On these occasions the expression 'Non volete?' (then you will not?) will generally have the effect of bringing the matter to a speedy adjustment. Purchases should never be made in presence of valets-de-place, as these individuals, by tacit agreement, receive at least 10 per cent of the purchase-money, which of course comes out of the pocket of the purchaser.

XI. Post Office. Telegraph.

Letters (whether 'poste restante', Italian 'ferma in posta', or to the traveller's hotel) should be addressed very distinctly, and the name of the place should be in Italian. When asking for letters the traveller should present his visiting card instead of pronouncing his name. Postage-stamps (francobollo) are sold at the post-offices and at many of the tobacco-shops. — Letters of 15 grammes ( $\frac{1}{2}$  oz., about the weight of three sous) to any of the states included in the postal union (now comprising the whole of Europe) 30c.; post-card (cartolina postale) 15c.; book-packets per 50 grammes 7c.; registration-fee (raccomandazione) 30c.

Letters by town-post 5c.; throughout the kingdom of Italy 20c. prepaid, or 30c. unpaid. Post-card 10c.

In the larger towns the post-office is open daily from 8 or 9 a.m. to 10 p. m. (also on Sundays and holidays); in smaller places it is generally closed in the middle of the day for two or three hours.

Telegram of 20 words to London 9 fr., to other parts of Great Britain 10 fr., France 4, Germany 5, Switzerland 3, Austria 3 or 4, Belgium 5, Denmark  $7\frac{1}{2}$ , Russia 11, Sweden 8, Norway  $8\frac{1}{2}$  fr. — To America 10 words 50 fr.

Within the kingdom of Italy, 15 words 1 fr., each additional word 10 c.; telegrams with special haste (telegrammi urgenti, which take precedence of all others), whether for inland or foreign places, may be sent at five times the above rates.

XII. Calculation of Time.

The old Italian reckoning from 1 to 24 o'clock is now disused in all the larger towns, but is still used by the priests and by the lower classes, especially in Central and Southern Italy. The ordinary reckoning of other nations is called the ora francese. The moment of the sun's disappearance below the horizon is 'half past 23 o'clock, the twilight lasts about half-an-hour, after which it is '24 o'clock, or the close of the day, when 'Ave Maria' is rung. The following hours are usually termed 'un ora di notte', 'due ore di notte', etc. This troublesome mode of calculation would necessitate a daily alteration of every time-piece in the kingdom, but it is thought sufficiently accurate to alter the hour of Ave Maria by a quarter of an hour about once a fortnight. The following table shows the Italian compared with the ordinary hours at Rome.

XIII. Climate. Health.

Climate. Most travellers must in some degree alter their mode of living whilst in Italy, without however implicitly adopting the Italian style. Inhabitants of more northern countries generally become unusually susceptible to cold in Italy, and therefore should not omit to be well supplied with warm clothing for the winter. Carpets and stoves, to the comforts of which the Italians generally appear indifferent, are indispensable in winter. A southern aspect is an absolute essential for delicate persons, and highly desirable for the robust. Colds are most easily caught after sunset, and in rainy weather. Even in summer it is a wise precaution not to wear too light clothing. Flannel is strongly recommended.

Exposure to the summer-sun should be avoided as much as possible. According to a Roman proverb, dogs and foreigners (Inglesi) walk in the sun, Christians in the shade. Umbrellas or spectacles of coloured glass (grey, concave glasses to protect the whole eye are best) may be used with advantage when a walk in the sun is unavoidable. Blue veils are recommended to ladies. Repose during the hottest hours is advisable, and a moderate siesta is often refreshing. Windows should be closed at night.

Health. English and German medical men are to be met with in the larger cities. The Italian therapeutic art does not enjoy a very high reputation in the rest of Europe. English and German chemists, where available, are recommended in preference to the Italian. It may, however, be wise, in the case of maladies arising from local causes, to employ native skill. Foreigners frequently suffer from diarrhoea in Italy, which is generally occasioned by the un-onted heat. Ice and rice are two of the commonest remedies. In such cases, however, thorough repose is the chief desideratum.

Ancient Art.
An Historical Sketch, from the German of
Prof. Reinhard Kekulé.

"As the streams lose themselves in the mightier Ocean, so the history of the peoples once distributed along the Mediterranean shores is absorbed in that of the mighty Mistress of the World".
NIEBUHR.

The traveller who would not wander through the galleries of Rome in mere vacant wonderment may bear in mind these words of Niebuhr. As a preface to the following pages, they will not only help the intelligent observer to a worthy appreciation of the master-pieces presented to him, but enable him to invest them with appropriate historical associations.

Amongst the crowd of statues which fill the galleries and chambers of the Vatican and Capitol of Rome are to be seen the noblest examples of Antique Sculpture. These do not, however, stand in the same relation to Imperial Rome as, for example, the frescoes of Fiesole in the Cloisters of St. Mark, or those of Andrea del Sarto in the Church of the Annunziata to Florence, or as the master-pieces of Raphael and Michael Angelo to mediæval and pontifical Rome. These latter originated, so to speak, with her, were her peculiar attributes, the fitting emblems of her ecclesiastical supremacy. The genius which created them, she inspired, fostered, and rewarded. On the other hand, Rome, the mistress of the World, the Rome of ancient history, though attracting to herself the accumulated treasures of entire epochs of Greek art, though through her interposition names, which otherwise must have remained mere phantom sounds, survive to receive individually the homage due to their transcendent genius, had nevertheless as little influence on the marvellous development of Greek art, as London had upon the Italian Renaissance, on Giotto and Masaccio, on Raphael and Michael Angelo. In fact, those particular works, which, while they fill the mind with a wonder akin to awe, minister to our noblest gratification, and in the presence of whose marvellous perfection all subsequent efforts are dwarfed into insignificance, occupied in Rome ages ago, and still occupy, a place corresponding to that which the master-pieces of the Italian and other schools of painting fill in the galleries of London, Paris, and Dresden. Winckelmann was the first to trace in bold and comprehensive outline the history of Art amongst the Ancients, from its infancy and earlier growth to its maturity and gradual decline. Following in the wake of Winckelmann, unceasing research, patiently and persistently pursued, has served to confirm and extend his survey, and to supply, in addition, a host of particulars pregnant with interest. Those indeed, who have conducted this laborious quest, stimulated and directed by the fortunate recovery of monuments and various relics of antiquity, have been the means of determining the history of Antique Art, so far at least as Sculpture and Architecture are concerned; and this not only in its more salient features, but with an elaboration of detail, so careful and so well authenticated, that the authorship of numerous works is clearly established, and the interest and value of their discoveries in so far unspeakably enhanced. Much indeed remains to be done, and the path of the explorer is beset with doubt and difficulty; but the future promises farther encouragement, if not complete solution.

In Art, the Greeks were content to learn from nations whose civilisation preceded theirs. Long before the first image was graven by Grecian hands, the Egyptians, as far as history acquaints us, had been the first to overcome those difficulties in the choice of a suitable form of expression inseparable from every fresh manifestation of Art. They had established a well defined system, a traditional style, which was exemplified as well in their Sculpture as in their Architecture. On the other hand the richly elaborated Art of the Babylonians and Assyrians, with its sumptuous wealth of decoration, must also of necessity have had its influence on the Greeks of Asia Minor. Grecian Art had, to begin with, not only adopted the method, implements, and workmanship of their predecessors; it had possessed itself of their forms and not unfrequently of the motives of their imagery. Greece did not, however, accept this heritage of art in the spirit of slavish imitation. Architectural models were not adopted in their entirety. Each part separately, each ornament in itself, became the centre of a new conception, and this conception once embodied became a distinct type, the expression of a taste purely Greek. In like manner they treated the conventional rendering of the human form transmitted to them. This, by constant reference to the living model, they continued to manipulate and modify until they attained to that profound and comprehensive grasp of nature, which to this day remains the subject of wonder and delight to our greatest artists. The way thus traversed was long and wearisome. It carries us back through an incalculable succession of ages into the impenetrable past. The oldest Ionian and Doric temples, although well-nigh of prehistoric antiquity, exhibit in all essential particulars a clearly defined architectural system; and, let it be borne in mind, the architecture of the Greeks did not start into being as Athena from the head of Jupiter, fully armed and equipped. Careful observation will detect in the Orders associated in name with the two principal Hellenic races evidences of a very gradual development. Subsequently, to these two, was added a third, known as the Corinthian. It was the practice of Sculpture as well as Architecture which may be characterised as provincialisms; intelligible that as Art in Greece assumed more and more gigantic proportions, these provincialisms should have been less observable.

They were finally obliterated by the glories of a new age. In reference to art, as the Age of Pericles associated with the talismanic names of Phidias in Sculpture, and of Ictinus and Mnesicles in Architecture, a golden age of the Italian Renaissance, when the world with rapturous wonder, can alone be compared to which witnessed the surpassing achievements of the painters of this period, of Polygnotus for example, somewhat earlier, little can be ascertained. That which has perished; and all that we can learn of them is at best fragmentary and tenuous.

The name of Polygnotus belongs to the Peloponnesian painter of his day claimed for him the merit of having represented the human form complete in its minutest details, in proportion, perfect in symmetry. One of his works in the temple of Athena at Athens, a figure of a powerful youth armed with a spear, was upheld as an example of the master's peculiar style, and hence was surnamed the Karion. As a counterpart to the Karion, and in like manner regarded as a type or model, was a youth of distinguished beauty, who with both hands clasped round his head (Diadumenos). Of one of his Amazons, it is said, that it surpassed even the Amazon of Phidias. Finally, especial glory was claimed for his statue of Athena in a temple dedicated to this goddess at Delphi. — Myron delighted to portray the human form in action, but he was, to say the least of it, partial. Thus he represents Diogenes actually doubled up in the act of throwing the diogenes a group on the Acropolis at Athens the same artist has chosen for his subject the incident of Marsyas in the act of seizing the lyre which the Goddess Athena has rejected, and on which he was while dancing with delight. He recoils in terror and bewilderment as the Goddess, suddenly appearing, dashes the pipes from his hands. Finally the Cow of Myron was especially popular. It was of her that so life-like was she that she deceived both man and beast, and lay imposed even on a living calf. But mightiest among ancient sculptors was PHIDIAS. His colossal Statue of Zeus wonder even in Olympia. It was accounted a reproach not to have seen it. His principal works were, however, devoted to the adornment of his native city Athens. The colossal figure of Athens' tutelary deity, the virgin goddess Athena in the Parthenon, was from the hand of Phidias. With him, we may assume, originated those plastic decorations of her temple the remains of which are preserved in Athens and in London; and in all that his friend Pericles undertook with a view to enhance the beauty and glory of their native city, the creative genius, if not always the hand of Phidias was active. So completely indeed had he subjected to his irresistible will the resources of his art, so far had he distanced all competitors, whether in the present or past, that the force of his genius, overstepping the narrow confines of Attica, imposed its sway upon successive generations of artists. Alcamenes and his favourite Agoracritus were his most distinguished and successful pupils. The Statue of a Victor in the pentathlon by Alcamenes was, in a similar way to the Doryphorus of Polycletus, distinguished by the title of 'Enkrinomenus', or 'the classical'.

In the history of Art, as in the history of Poetry, there usually succeeds to what Winckelmann terms the 'lofty style', which delights rather in depicting the sublime and majestic, a reaction in favour of a vein of sentiment more tender, more expressive of beauty in her gentler and more graceful aspects; while at the same time freer and more forcible utterance is given to joy and anguish, and generally to the emotions and passions. Tenderness and grace were the divine attributes of PRAXITELES and the family of whom he was chief. At this time when Athens, weary of conflict with the Hellenic confederacy, longed for peace, one of the family, Cephisodotus (the Elder), produced his Irene and Plutus, the Goddess of Peace bearing in her arms the infantine god of riches, of which there is a copy in the Glyptothek in Munich. Praxiteles himself belongs to a succeeding generation. Above all his Eros in Thespia, his Satyr and the Aphrodite in Cnidus, were the wonder and delight of antiquity. His sons Cephisodotus (the Younger) and Timarchides had also considerable repute. Scopas is usually regarded as the representative of the more pathetic and impassioned expression in Art; and amongst his numerous works a Group of Sea Deities and fantastical Sea Monsters are accounted particularly impressive. — The Niobe and her Children, afterwards carried to Rome, was attributed variously to Praxiteles and Scopas. Leochares, another contemporary of Scopas, is believed to be the author of a group representing Ganymede borne to Olympus on the wings of an eagle. It is said that ALEXANDER THE GREAT would entrust the execution of his portrait to none other than LYSIPPUS of Sycium in the Peloponnesus: and with the name of Lysippus is associated a revolution in taste which culminated in this period. The painter and sculptor Euphranor, a contemporary of Lysippus, but older than he, whose especial delight it was to celebrate heroic exploit, had already with purpose and deliberation modified the recognised rules of proportion. Lysippus moulded the head smaller, and the figure relatively taller than had hitherto been the practice. In posing the figures too, either standing or in movement, as well as in the entire conception and rendering of Nature, he appears to have developed anew and with dazzling effect what hitherto had not been more than suggested. His forms, though of unmistakably Greek character, are more in conformity with modern taste than those of earlier artists. Among the best known works of Lysippus is the Apoxyomenus, the figure of a youth fresh from a struggle in the Palæstra, in the act of using the scraping iron. Gods and heroes, scenes of war and the chase, furnished him with subjects for a host of other works. Among his sons and pupils Laippus, Boëdas, and Euthykrates, the last is most highly esteemed. Not only those of their generation but posterity agreed that Lysippus and the painter Apelles had reached the highest attainable point in the truthful rendering of nature, as well as in the more technical mastery of their art. The influence of Lysippus endured throughout and beyond the end of the following century. His method sufficed for the schools which succeeded him because the new spirit in which they worked had already triumphed in Lysippus.

The conquests of Alexander and all that followed in their train — the glories and treasures of the East unfolded, mighty monarchies founded, stately cities built, and growing into centres of wealth and luxury, new forms of worship consequent upon a more intelligent study of nature — afforded conditions both material and other, which stimulated afresh the arts of Architecture and Sculpture. Henceforward Greek art vied, in the splendour of its colossal proportions, with that of the East. The deeds of victorious monarchs were her favourite theme: she was indefatigable in the contrivance of new forms of luxury and fresh splendour for city, mansion, and palace. Meanwhile, however, the Past was losing its hold upon her. The traditions of the Periclean age, which told how art was content to serve the household Gods with simple piety and to adorn domestic life, were but feebly remembered. Places once instinct with art life were lost in the new and overwhelming growth of cities, now the emporiums of the world's commerce: Alexandria in Egypt, Antioch on the Orontes in Syria, Pergamum, and Rhodes. — As an example of what Greek art was doing about this time in Egypt, we may mention the reclining figure of the River-god of the Nile. Around this colossal personage, so benignant in aspect, play, with true infantine grace, sixteen cherub-like children. These are symbols of the 16 cubits, the measure of that periodical rise in the Nile's waters which annually submerges the land and endows Egypt with perennial fruitfulness. — A pupil of Lysippus, one Eutychides, represented the city of ANTIOCH in a group of considerable grace. The tutelar deity (Tyche) of the city is seated on a rock. In her right hand she holds ears of corn, and on her head she wears a mural crown; while at her feet appears, in the shape of a youth rising out of the earth, the river-god Orontes (the river actually flows underground for some distance).

The sculptors of PANGAKUM celebrated the victories of their kings over the Celts. The statue of the Dying Gaul (the so called 'dying gladiator') in the museum of the Capitol, and the Group of Gauls in the Villa Ludovisi are most impressive examples of the manner in which they were inspired by the theme. The northern barbarian, differing widely as he did in configuration, costume, and habit from the Greek, was a study of engrossing interest to the sculptor, and was reproduced with physiological accuracy. At the same time, that the fame of the victor might be magnified to the utmost, the sculptor sought to embody all that was admirable in the character of the vanquished: his ill-trained but chivalrous valour, his inflexible determination to die rather than suffer disgrace. So late as the 4th century A.D. there was still to be seen on the Acropolis a votive offering of King Attalus in the shape of a group with numerous figures representing the struggles of the gods with the giants, of the Athenians with the Amazons, of the Athenians with the Persians, and Attalus himself with the Celts. Quite recently, figures have been recognised as belonging to these groups in the collections of Venice, Rome, and Naples. — Of the RHODIAN SCHOOL we have examples in the so-called Formese Bull in the museum of Naples, and in the Laocon. The date of the Laocon has not been established. Since the days of Winckelmann, who assigned it to a time of Alexander, and of Lessing, who maintained that it belonged rather to that of Titus, there has been a constantly increasing controversy on the subject. It is, however, highly probable that the Rhodian School retained, as late as the reign of Mark, the vitality necessary for the production of so considerable

From the preceding pages it will be gathered how many crises now varied a development had been experienced by Greek art to the time when Rome herself came to be included within the armed circle of Greek culture. Transplanted to strange lands, subjected to new influences and associations, Greek art extended its distinctive Greek character for one universal and could call her own. The old City-Walls raised in the time of the Romans could in times comparatively remote carry out great works on a grand scale, although principally for utilitarian purposes. The rudiments of Sculpture they probably acquired from the images of the gods in wood and clay. In Atturia, where Greek influence had long been active, considerable proficiency as well as activity prevailed in the pursuit of art. although but scanty traces of the purity and elevation of Greek taste are discernible. In Rome, however, the Greeks of Southern Italy grafted their art on that of the Etruscans. A bronze toilet casket (the so called Ficoronian Cista) found in Palestrina, which was executed in the workshop of Novius Plautius in the 3rd century B.C., exhibits in its tracery a purity of design unmistakably Greek, although differing little in shape and plastic accessories from the very ordinary and often rude vessels of the period. The Romans highly esteemed faithful Portraits. Likenesses of ancestors were preserved in wax masks, and displayed on occasions of ceremony. The plastic art of the Etruscans gives evidence of a certain grasp of portraiture, which, though not profound, was still effective. As Roman rule extended itself over Southern Italy and Sicily, and later to Greece and the Asiatic continent, a constantly increasing number of works by Greek artists found their way to Rome, for the most part, probably, as spoil of war. Presently, too, the wealthy patrician, following the bent of his individual taste or the prevailing fashion, gave commissions for works to be executed in Greece, or in Rome itself, to which necessity had brought many artists. Rome thus became the recognised centre of a taste and fashion which she could call her own. Both stood in close relation, not only in point of time, but in a community of idea and aspiration, to the art of a period immediately following the reign of Alexander. There is no doubt, however, that a vast number of works are accepted as specifically Roman only because all traces of the Greek models have been lost. From these, it may be taken for granted, the artists of Imperial Rome derived the designs or at least the suggestion of works of utility, as well as of buildings devoted to mere display, such as temples, palaces, triumphal arches, and tombs.

The student familiar with the three orders of ARCHITECTURE, viz. the Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian, as they are to be seen in Athens, and comparing these examples with their reproductions in Rome, will have little difficulty in detecting a divergence which cannot be explained by differences either in forms of worship or in the general scope of the design (a conspicuous basement with flights of steps in front). The delicate modelling of the best period of Greek art was in Roman hands either simplified, and so denuded of its true artistic significance — looking in short like the work of the handicraftsman — or so overloaded as to become hopelessly confused. Even in their most admirable buildings a mere profusion of superficial decoration is substituted for that perfect harmony pervading and animating the Greek structure, whether as a whole or in its minutest detail, which we find in the Parthenon for example. The Doric and Ionic orders found comparatively little favour with the Romans, and where they appear, it is rather in the form of mural columns than entire shafts. The exquisite taper of the shaft was thus sacrificed, the capitals were not happily disposed, and the Doric column instead of springing, as with the Greeks, direct from the flooring received a separate base. The favourite style was the more ornate Corinthian; and the Romans thought yet to add to the wealth of ornament by superimposing upon the capital already veiled with the graceful form of the acanthus leaf, the volute and abacus of the Ionic capital. The entablature of the earlier orders is easily distinguished. In the Doric the architrave rests on the column and is unarticulated, while the frieze above the architrave receives the triglyphs at short, regular intervals. The Ionic architrave on the other hand is divided into three horizontal courses, the frieze being without triglyphs. The Corinthian entablature resembles the Ionic, but the cornice is more richly articulated, corbels are substituted for the indentations, and the whole is richly wreathed with acanthus leaves and other ornamentation.

The noblest, happily also the best preserved building of old Rome is unquestionably the Pantheon of Agrippa, built in the time of Augustus. In spite of much disfigurement received in later times, this vast edifice, comprised in its interior within the precincts of one majestic circle, and obtaining the light of heaven from the centre of its wondrous dome, continues to impress the beholder with unfailing, overwhelming effect. Therefore it is that the Pantheon, having survived the period of art's extinction and revival, better presents the solidity, the daring, and the splendour of Roman architecture than the stupendous remains of palace, bath, and circus.

An important innovation which PLASTIC ART experiences in the latter days of the Roman republic may be attributed to PASITELES, a native of Southern Italy. It would appear that he had striven, by way of protest against the unrest and violence apparent in the works of his predecessors of the Rhodian School, to restore to art something of her primitive simplicity, and to combine the excellences of the older schools while he avoided their errors. His aim was to revert to the stern simplicity and thoroughness of the earliest sculptors. At the same time he studied nature independently and carefully; while he was not neglectful of the minor graces of his art. Strophon was his pupil, whose pupil again was Menelaus, from whose chisel we have a group now in the Villa Ludovisi, commonly known as Electra and Orestes. Though the real intention of the author will probably never be known, this work serves to teach us how earnest was the endeavour; and how happy the result of art study in the school of Pasiteles. It is not, however, given to eclectic schools to exercise a powerful or enduring influence. Accordingly we find a comparatively small number of works belonging to the school of Pasiteles.

That school of art, too, which was especially encouraged by the Emperor HADRIAN, adopting as it did not only Greek but also Egyptian models, was eclectic in the most extended sense of the word. Amongst its better known works is the figure of Hadrian's favourite Antinous, in which with undoubted beauty of form is combined a somewhat lugubrious solemnity together with a smooth, glossy and superficial elegance little to the taste of the modern connoisseur. Far more attractive are the bas-reliefs on various public monuments — such as the Arch of Titus and Trajan's Column — celebrating the triumphs of Roman arms. With Greek artists a characteristic mode of representing in relief the triumphs, actual or mythical, of their heroes was to express battle by means of isolated groups of single combatants. And not only are the more stirring incidents of the battle thus signalised. Appeal is made to the gentler emotions: a dying warrior is carried off the field; or the victor spares the life of a prostrate adversary. For plastic purposes this was found to be the most effective mode of representation, serving as it does to awaken the interest and rivet the attention of beholders. The Assyrians had, however, already executed reliefs in which the effect of pitched battle was rendered with more literal accuracy; and that the Greeks, too, could on occasion meet the requirements of this more arbitrary taste, we learn from the friezes of the so-called Nereid monument discovered in Lycia, where the contending hosts close with each other in elaborate order of battle. The painter, favoured by conditions more submissive to his will, had already grouped the combatants in larger and denser masses. How admirably they contrived along with the crowd and confusion of battle, to give effect to traits of individual heroism and to give to single and central figures their appropriate expression, is exemplified in the celebrated mosaic to be seen in Naples of the Battle of Alexander, which, there is no doubt, was copied from a painting of the period. It may be premised therefore that this condensed and elaborated treatment in relief — obviously akin to painting — in which the marches, battles, and triumphs, the operations of Roman armies and their imperial chiefs, were set forth with the utmost attainable accuracy, with all detail of equipment and armament of camp and battle-field, was not the newly gathered fruit of Roman inventiveness, but must rather be ascribed to the age of Alexander and his successors. And the same may be assumed of the architectural form of these monuments. In Portraits, too, whether of full length or only busts, of emperors and empresses, warriors and statesmen, as of persons of less exalted position, there were not wanting impressive examples in Greek art; and here again Roman taste coincides with that of the Diadochan age. It may be conceded, however, that owing to the interest long taken in portraiture by the Romans and to the attention which this branch of art had so long received in Rome and Etruria, it had acquired a more distinctly Roman and Italian character, and so had a perceptible influence on Greek artists resident in Rome. Thus is it that portraits of the Emperors exhibit a degree of power in execution and expression scarcely to be looked for at so late a period. Not unfrequently the Emperors were represented in the costume proper to religious ceremonies; or in fashion like to the gods themselves, and invested with their attributes. Most commonly, however, they appear in the costume and character of a general in the act of haranguing his cohorts. We have striking examples of these imperial portraits in the equestrian statue in bronze of Marcus Aurelius on the Capitol, and in the marble statue of Augustus in the Vatican. This latter gives unmistakable evidence of having been painted. From the reliefs on the richly ornamented armour which set forth with due regard to historical accuracy the more conspicuous and familiar incidents of a reign especially favoured by the gods, we are justified in the conclusion that this figure was executed about the year 17 B.C. In his treatment of the female figure, too, whether seated or standing, the sculptor knew how to impart a distinguished and imposing view by a sumptuous arrangement of the drapery. There is a peculiar gratification in finding, after a careful study of these portraits — many of them of personages famous in history — an exterior so closely corresponding to the picture of the historian. Many of the heads, indeed, which thus impress the beholder have not been identified. In portraiture, the Greek sculptor adopted the Hermean form, while the work of the Roman is recognised almost infallibly in the bust form. The latter largely preponderate, although amongst the collective works of sculpture preserved, the Greek element is considerably in excess of the Roman. An attentive observer will not fail to mark this distinction, and learn also to detect the handiwork of the modern restorer which too often disfigures these antique marbles.

The same tendency which led the wealthy citizens of Rome to adopt the literature and culture of Greece was observable in the taste displayed in the works of art they chose for the decoration of their palaces and villas, whether executed in Rome itself or in Greece. In other respects they appear to have been attracted by the same objects of interest as English collectors of the present day. Antique art taken as a whole would probably fail to interest the average man of rank, unless it were associated with some historical incident, some names of renown, or some startling anecdote. But of such works as the figures of the Three Graces in bas-relief (though rigid in execution) which the ciceroni of the Acropolis shew as the work of Socrates, and the group of Harmodius and Aristogiton, the Tyrant slayers, in the market place of Athens, of archaic antiquity, which had been carried off by Xerxes and restored to its wonted place by Alexander: — of works such as these copies at least would be in request. The powerful development displayed in the figures of Polykleitos, and the action expressed in those of Myron, appear to have possessed greater attractions for the Romans than the works of Phi-dias. Numbers of statues belonging to the Periclean age have come to light in Rome, replicas for the most part of Victors in the Games and of Amazons. Figures of the Gods, with few exceptions, belong to a later period. The most numerous, and also very charming, were the graceful forms of more recent Attic art, represented by Praxiteles and his compeers; also the elegant and animated creations of the Lysippian and post-Lysippian schools. It is hardly conceivable that in the museums of Rome, filled as they are with works of sculpture collected on the spot, no original works are to be found. Assuredly there has been a time when they have not been wanting in Rome: and it seems improbable that one and all should have been lost in the devastation which has more than once made wreck of the Eternal City. Certain it is, however, that the greater part of what we now see are either replicas or copies. This fact is determined by the material. The great statues of Phidias and Praxiteles set apart for the temples were of gold and ivory, while Polycleetus and Lysippus worked in bronze. In Attica, too, this costly material was preferred by the earlier sculptors. It was only by degrees that marble came into use for groups as well as single figures. The 'Discus thrower' of Myron, as well as the groups of Marsyas and Athena were originally in bronze. In the Palazzo Massimi alle Colonne there is to be seen a striking figure readily recognised as that of Myron's 'Discus thrower', but it is in marble. In like manner the Marsyas in the Lateran is of marble, and so also is the Apoxyomenus in the Vatican museum. Just as we moderns delight in the copy or engraving of some celebrated picture, the amateur of old gave his commission for the copy of some favourite statue, to be executed in bronze, or, more frequently, in marble. At any rate comparatively few works in bronze, of importance in point of size, are preserved. It was not enough to have simply repeated the celebrities of sculpture. The artists of the so-called New Attic School, which flourished in the last century B. C., we find reproducing the works of their predecessors very effectively with such departures from the original as are to be seen in a more artificial and highly wrought arrangement of drapery, a more decorative rendering of the detail generally, and an attempt to impart increased animation to the figure as a whole. Such piracies, when tolerably successful, became in their turn models for numerous imitations.

The results of this process are exactly what the connoisseur will be prepared to find, and such as present themselves in the collections of antique art in Rome. He must not expect to find himself in the presence of the simplicity and directness as well as grandeur of aim characteristic of Greek art in her loftiest moods: but rather of her attenuation in the shape of imitations and adaptations, the growth of the Imperial age. Antique art, however, exhibits throughout its career an astonishing vitality and continuity. The spirit of the Greek is mighty even in expiring: and nowhere can the course of her marvellous development be studied with the same completeness as in Rome.

Monumental works, inconspicuous and unfamiliar as they so often are, appeal less powerfully to the imagination than statuary, where dazzling beauty enthral the senses. These monuments, however, will have a charm of their own for the discriminating observer. In the Egyptian department of the Vatican he can contemplate the relics of a primæval antiquity, while in the Gregorian Museum he is reminded of the mysterious Etruscans. It will be interesting to compare the attitude and proportions of EGYPTIAN with Græco-Roman figures, and to discover in the Sphinxes of the Villa Albani, in the Lions by the approach to the Capitol, as well as in the numerous obelisks, to be seen in the piazzas of Rome, evidence of the mastery acquired by the Egyptian in Art. And their works were in the Roman's eye fitting objects wherewith to celebrate his triumphs, and adorn the capital of an empire including within its far reaching bounds people of almost every race and climate.

In the Gregorian Museum the portrait busts in terracotta by the ETRUSCANS exhibit a mode of expressing individuality peculiar to themselves; the bronze vessels display that skill in the working of metals for which they had long been famous; while the large copies of mural paintings which adorned the tombs bring to light the method of painting as practised by the Etruscan as well as, in the choice of subject, their preference for scenes of sensualism and bloodshed.

Here, too, is to be seen a collection of PAINTED GREEK VASES exceedingly rich and beautiful, discovered, it is true, in Etruria, but as is evident from the subjects represented, from the drawing, but chiefly from the inscriptions, imported from Greece — the greater part indeed from Athens. It is not difficult to distinguish those specimens, which, though borrowed from the Greeks, were of Etruscan manufacture. They are inferior in taste and execution, as well as in design and modelling, and are not to be mistaken for the work of artists. But the Greek vases themselves vary in character; those for instance having the black figures on a red ground being of earlier date than those showing the reverse arrangement of these colours. Nevertheless the painters of these vases, mere handicraftsmen as we must suppose them to have been, could render mythological subjects, and scenes of everyday life, with a vivacity and poetry of conception; they knew so well how to draw, and, with means and resources necessarily very limited, were so far masters of expression, that — despised though they may be by the superficial and ignorant — they bear not only remarkable testimony to the quality of workmanship then prevailing in Attica, but afford a glimpse at the art of their day in Athens as seen through the eyes of these unpretending artificers.

Finally there remain to be noticed the SARCOPHAGI, which, variously ornamented with reliefs, are to be seen in museum, in villa, and in palace court. The only specimen preserved to us from the old Roman time is the Sarcophagus of L. Cornelius Scipio Barbatus in the Museum of the Vatican. It resembles an altar both in shape and style of ornamentation, and is almost the counterpart of one still standing in Pompeii. It is only consistent with the then prevailing religious rites that sepulchral monuments should have been thus architectural in character. In Greece itself this was conspicuously the case: all sarcophagi which have been discovered within the confines of Greece proper showing a distinctly architectural treatment. The Roman sarcophagi combine much that is essentially Greek with adaptations from the funeral urns of Etruria. They give signs, however, of an independent development, and although including a diversity of shapes and decoration, have for the most part their bas-reliefs arranged on the front and sides (and, where extraordinary richness of effect was desiderated, on the back also) as a frieze or band. One naturally endeavours to trace in the decoration bestowed on these repositories of the dead, some indication of their purpose. In many instances, however, it is evident, that appropriateness of design, if originally acknowledged as indispensable, was presently lost in a promiscuously lavish decoration. Certainly there is no obscurity in such allusions to the goal of life as we discover in Cupids rowing to the lighthouse tower, or when we see them careering round the goal in the circus. In such symbolical figures as those of the seasons we are taught to reflect on the inevitable course of creation, existence, and decay succeeding to maturity. As Hylas is borne away by the Nymphs, and Ganymede by the eagle, so we may fancy the soul begrudged from its earthly existence. Hippolytus may serve to recal the virtues of such as came to an untimely end, Niobe, the grief of the survivors; sleeping Cupids may symbolise sleep favoured by the Gods, while Ariadne discovered by Dionysus, Endymion visited by Selene present death itself as but sleep in unfamiliar guise. On the other hand scenes of Bacchanalian revelry can hardly be accepted as allusions to the future state; and even in a less degree are Nereids and Medeas, and more of the like, in bas-relief, capable of such interpretation: and rarely, too, does any reference of a distinctly personal character go beyond a mere vague allusion to life and death. It is tolerably certain that these sarcophagi were made in large numbers, in advance of immediate requirements. A somewhat extraordinary expedient for introducing a reference to particular individuals, was that of bestowing the lineaments of the departed upon such heroes of mythology as were made to figure in these reliefs. Thus it is we find portraits of the deceased in such mythical personages as Admetus and Alcestis, in Hippolytus, and, what is more remarkable, in Phædra herself. In a considerable number of cases these reliefs are almost identical, and are evidently made after one model, with such modifications as might be effected by the introduction or omission of single figures or groups, showing nevertheless more or less of artistic intelligence and resource. They form a group displaying the established forms and traditional models, which in respect of means of expression and motive are the worthy inheritance of Greek art at its best. Yet these sarcophagi, regarded even as Roman works, are by no means of early origin. It must not, however, be forgotten in estimating the quality of work bestowed upon the sarcophagus, that it was not intended to be closely inspected by the light of day, but would be consigned to the twilight of the tomb, where a stray gleam of light might but for a moment reveal its detail. Hence, in the execution of these reliefs the object was to give prominence to leading features, without an overscrupulous nicety of finish, and this end has been attained with a success worthy of all admiration. It has been ascertained beyond doubt, that the introduction of the sarcophagus as described above was coeval with a mode of burial which became the fashion in Imperial times; otherwise the artistic merits of these monuments might well have misled us in computing their age. The great majority of Roman sarcophagi belong to the 2nd and 3rd centuries after Christ, and to an even later period.

The Early Christian Sarcophagi simply repeat and perpetuate preceding pagan models. It is a peculiar coincidence that these inconspicuous memorials should have contributed to the revival of art in the middle ages. Niccolò Pisano found a fertile source of inspiration in the Roman sarcophagi of the Campo Santo in Pisa; nor did Peruzzi and Raphael disdain to use them as models.

With this passing glance at the homage thus done by Raphael and his compeers to the art of antiquity, these pages may fitly conclude. The endeavour has not been to fetter the judgment of the reader, but rather so to direct his observation and stimulate his interest as to give him that self-reliance which alone will arouse in him an intelligent interest, and afford him a genuine pleasure in what he sees. To praise the creations of great artists in empty or mere conventional phrase would simply offend. They alone will experience the full measure of delight to be derived from the contemplation of these treasures, who rely upon their own judgment and cultivate to the utmost the delicacy of their perceptions.

Roman Art,

MEDIAEVAL AND MODERN,

Prof. A. Springer of Leipzig.

Rome as Mistress of the world became the centre of contemporaneous culture. Art had found with her a new term: and Greece as fitting tribute to the conqueror laid at her feet the accumulated wealth of ages — the treasures of her art, which long had embodied the loftiest conception of the beautiful.

Her supremacy secured, Rome became the chief resort of artists, and their liberal patron. She dictated the tone, alike in taste and fashion, and determined the destinies of art. Down to mediæval times Rome continued to receive the proud title of 'Caput mundi'. Presently, however, she laid claim to supremacy in another realm than that of art; and this latter, as the ancient traditions were gradually outlived, finally fell into neglect. In more recent, as in former times Rome has failed to create for herself, as the outcome of her individuality, an art peculiar to and a part of herself. Her destiny seems to have been to gather from external sources the wealth in which she revelled, with the difference that while ancient Rome furnished nothing beyond a magnificent arena for the art of her day, in later times the artist found in Rome herself his sources of inspiration, compelled as he was to contemplate perfection reflected in the dazzling mirror of antique art. Ten centuries, however, elapsed ere Rome resumed this proud pre-eminence. A glance may now be directed to the interval between the fall of old Rome and the period when, animated with a new life, Rome drew to herself the foremost representatives of the Renaissance, to whom she afforded inspiration for their grandest efforts. It is not, however, the 16th century, not the distinctive character, but rather the new and imposing exterior which she received at the hand of her architects in the 17th century. The mind must be disenchanted before the veil can be penetrated and the Rome of antiquity adequately comprehended.

The protracted suspension of all activity in art makes it apparent that Roman art has a history distinct from Italian art. For centuries the towns of Tuscany were the principal abodes of rural art life. But just as in Rome Italian art achieved its signal triumphs in the persons of Raphael and Michael Angelo the masters of that period: so in Roman ground we find that Christian art first took root and attained to its most important dimensions. In Rome then we find the strongest inducements as well as the richest opportunity for the study of Early Christian Art. In the 4th century heathendom, long tottering to its fall, was, in appearance at least, absorbed in the younger Christian world. A new era in art is inaugurated. Not that we are to assume the simultaneous extinction of the pagan art of ancient Rome, nor that it was superseded by an altogether new style provided as it were the emergency. The eye and hand are to a greater extent created by the mind. New views and altered conceptions of habit being as well as of the destiny of man found the Supreme to embody them the artist had to resort to the old forms. But then heathen rules were by no means unobtainable. Christianity (the period of bitterest persecution 3rd century A.D.); and that the new doctrine only hostile to expanded and taken root, should have been permitted to have itself in the very midst of heathen society, is evidence As a consequence of these conditions it will be observed that art of the early Christians presents no remarkable contrast to that which precedes it, and that they were content to adopt the traditions of the antique. The Roman Catacombs afford abundant proof of this. Encircling the city as with a subterranean trench, they were originally far from being what we subsequently became — secret, carefully concealed places of refuge for the early Christians; but rather their regularly ordained places of burial (e.g. the Catacomb of Nicomachus and that of Flavia Domitilla), and were first designedly concealed as it was in the midst of Roman paganism, probably did not dream of the Catacombs they retain the types transmitted to them; and that of the antique is closely followed. Christ represented as the Good Shepherd, Orpheus as the symbol of Christ, and evidences of the long and repugnance to any rendering of the Passion-history, afford the most striking evidence of the readiness to accept the art heritage of their precursors. Even the Sarcophagus of the 4th and 5th centuries differs in purpose only, not in the rendering of form, from the typical reliefs found on pagan art. It was only in the latter half of the 6th century that a new style declared itself in painting which like other branches of plastic art had more or less fallen into a state of decay meanwhile. Architecture adapted itself to the exigencies of Christian worship, and in allying itself to the new architectural forms, painting acquires a new character.

ROMAN ART.

The term BASILICA is understood to apply to Christian temples up to the 10th century. The subsequent belief that a more intimate relation than that suggested by a common name subsisted between these early Christian edifices and the forensic Basilica of ancient Rome, was altogether an erroneous one. The latter were in fact the Roman courts of law and places of public meeting. They had a place in most of the towns of the Roman empire and were erected in the forum, but have nothing, whether of origin or form, essentially in common with the early Christian temple or church. These forensic basilicas were not adapted to purposes of Christian worship, nor did the old Roman basilica serve as a model for the building of Christian places of worship. In proof of the one assertion may be adduced the fact that the forensic basilicas at the end of the 4th century have been restored; while the other will be justified by an unprejudiced examination of the various parts of the Christian basilicas, which give evidence of having sprung from another source than that of the old Roman basilica. Neither did the Temple of antiquity furnish the model for churches built by the early Christians. The church of SS. Cosma e Damiano, of the 6th century, is the earliest example of a pagan temple applied to Christian use. The Christian basilica may be said rather to have grown out of the habit dwelling-house, where at first the community was in the habit of assembling. The plan for future ecclesiastical edifices was acquired by simply extending the proportions of the dwelling-house. The church of S. Clemente in Rome is relatively the most perfect example existing of the architectural properties and internal arrangement of the early Christian basilica. A small portico supported by pillars leads to the outer court (atrium), enclosed by a colonnade and having in its midst a fountain (cantharus). The eastern colonnade leads into the interior of the church which was usually divided into three aisles. Two rows of columns divide the side aisles from the loftier one in the centre known as the nave; the nave and aisles abut upon a half circle or apse. At right angles to these aisles, between them and the apse, was sometimes interposed a third space — the transept; the altar stood within the apse and apart beneath a canopy supported by pillars, and in its front, enclosed by rails or cancelli, was the choir for the officiating priests and two pulpits (ambones), one used for reading the Gospel, the other the Epistles. In marked contrast to the temple of antiquity, little care was bestowed upon the external architecture of these early istian basilicas, the most impressive effect being reserved for interior. And to this end, especially in earlier mediæval times, a very expedient for supplying decorative material was adopted in the plunder of the monuments of antiquity. Columns were carried and set up in Christian churches without regard to congruity of material or consistency of style. Thus in the churches of Maria in Trastevere and S. Lorenzo Fuori le Mura are to be seen columns of different material and workmanship. The churches of Suburra, S. Maria Maggiore and others give evidence of similar decorations. Crosses and lustres in metal, tapestries bestowed by royal piety contributed to the ornate effect of these interiors. But the principal decorative feature were the pictures in mosaic which decorated the recess of the apse in particular as well as the arch which connected the apse with the nave (the Triumphal Arch). These MOSAIC PICTURES, as far, at least, as the material was concerned, afforded a novel artistic treatment, massive and monumental in character. In them we find the traditions of antiquity abandoned, giving place to a style which from its harshness as well as austere simplicity of conception has been confounded with the Byzantine style. In reality the art was of indigenous growth; and its salient characteristic may be defined as the substitution of the real for the ideal in general treatment. Now for the first time the popular mind became thoroughly imbued with ecclesiastical sentiment, of which the crucified Saviour was the chief embodiment. The oldest mosaics, composed of glass cubes, are to be seen in the church of S. Pudenziana. They date from the 4th century, as do those in S. Costanza and the Baptistery of Naples; while those in S. Maria Maggiore and S. Sabina belong to the 5th century. The mosaics in SS. Cosma e Damiano in the Forum (526-30) may be pronounced as the most beautiful.

The rudiments of Christian art are to be found in Rome; but further development was promoted in an equal degree by other Italian states. Building was still active in the 9th century, while the Popes, especially Leo III., of the 7th and 8th centuries did good service in church decoration. But during this period there is no evidence either of progress or continuous development in the Mosaic art and as little in architecture itself. The experiment (as seen in S. Prassede, 9th century) of combining piers and the pillars of the nave as a support to the walls and of connecting these with transverse arches was not repeated. Finally it may be said of the Mosaics (S. Prassede, SS. Nereo ed Achilleo, Arco), that, while they bear a superficial resemblance to the mosaics of the 5th and 6th centuries, they show unmistakable signs of decadence and decline. This may be accounted for to some extent by the evil times which had fallen upon Rome since the 9th century, beginning with a conflagration — the work of an incendiary Guisard — which laid waste the entire southern quarter of the city, from the Forum to the Lateran and to the slopes of the Monte Mario. The chief employment of the architect was the construction of fortified towers and places of strength rendered necessary by the ceaseless warring of factions within the city. In 1257 Leo IX demolished 140 of these strongholds, the majority of which had been erected on the ruins of some monument or other of antiquity. The most striking example of the rudeness of early mediæval architecture is to be seen in the Casa di Pilato or di Rienzo. Built by one Nicolao, son of Crescentius (probably in the 12th century), its chief ornamentation consists of marble fragments apparently picked up at random and put together in the wildest confusion.

At the close of the 12th century brighter days dawned for Roman art. 'Magister Romanus' now became a title which the artist was proud to append to his surname. A speciality in decorative art appeared in Rome about this time which did not connect itself, it is true, with the traditions of antique art, though ready to utilise its material, without, however, resort to the depredations of a bygone age. And material was still at hand in richest abundance, in an endless array of shattered marbles. These were divided and subdivided, cut or sawn into minute slabs, arranged in patterns, and enlivened by the introduction of stained glass and gold leaf, presenting as a whole a richly coloured decorative effect. These marble mosaics adorn the flooring of churches, altar sides, episcopal chairs, pulpits, and doorways; they enliven monumental sculpture, they fill the flutings of the elegantly twisted columns which bore the Easter candles or adorn the entablature of cloistered courts. This art became the monopoly of particular families and was regularly transmitted from generation to generation. Such work marbles of this time are generally known as Cosmato Work, a name derived from two members of a family thus privileged. Conspicuous among the is frequently to be met with in Rome. S. Maria in Trastevere, and S. Lorenzo Fuori le Mura (12th century). S. Clemente and S. Giorgio possess altar tabernacles of Cosmato work and S. Paolo the finest example in its pulpit. Of similar work in cloisters (S. Sabina, Lateran) the best specimen is in the convent of S. Paolo (13th century). Cosmato work is not infrequently found elsewhere than in Rome. It is uncertain how far this Roman work is connected with kindred examples to be met with in Southern Italy. On the nical detail some differences are to be detected, such as the more copious use of the glass pastes by the artists of the South. On the other hand we fancy that the identity of pattern in the mosaics of the Cappella Palatina in Palermo with those of S. Lorenzo cannot be accidental.

Along with this decorative mosaic work, the Mosaic Painting of apse and choir - arch had since the 12th century successfully ted itself. That impress of the antique borne by the early stian mosaics is gone; the drawing has lost its incisiveness as as its traditional typical character, and in lieu of this, receives w and more lively impulse from colour and wealth of ornament.

 mosaics in front of the church of S. Maria in Trastevere, in apse of S. Clemente (12th century), those in the altar-tribune of S. Clemente (13th century) and finally those in the apse of S. Maria in Trastevere, the work of Jacobus Torriti in 1295, are examples of mosaic painting. — WALL-PAINTING also came once more into as we see from paintings discovered in 1858 in the lower ch of S. Clemente — that basilica which in 1108 was lost by a new ture being built upon it. — And, if church-architecture was con-to the numerous Basilicas (the best is that of S. in Cosmedin) show an abundant fertility of resource in the tects of that period. They tower aloft, story upon story follow-he cultivation of artistic tastes, Rome was distracted by the sant war of factions and families, or the quarrels of the

 s. Strangers were invited to execute works which were beyond rdinary resources of art as it then existed in Rome. Dominican s introduced Gothic architecture into Rome — Era Ristoro, Risto are probably the builders of the church of S. Maria sopra via — and Giotto (chief of the Florentine school) was summoned me during the pontificate of Boniface VIII., and at the ine of his patron Cardinal Gaetano Stefaneschi, to execute a ic (Navicella) for the Porch of St. Peter's, and to paint a um (in part preserved in the Sacristy of St. Peter's); probably was not until the return of the Popes from their exile at on, when Italians held exclusive possession of St. Peter's and aimed at supremacy amongst the secular powers of the sula; when the Humanists acquired their shortlived ascen-at the Papal court — that Roman art first approaches its

 ity. — To Florence belongs the exclusive and imperishable ssance of this achievement. On the other hand it must not be for-n of how powerful an impression the spectacle of the mighty relics ility must have made upon the receptive minds of the first nists, exciting their emulation and inciting to a more reverent only of the Antique; neither must it be forgotten that by study of the Roman art Brunellesco and Donatello became familiar with those terms in which they were wont to express their artistical thought, and so were led to new and unexplored paths in the realm of art.

Once more Rome occupies a foremost place in the history of art when Pope NICHOLAS V. (1447-1455), a Humanist, vies with Medici in his passion for books and building. He is bent upon a renovation of the Vatican Quarter; his ambition is to erect a palace of surpassing splendour; nay, he entertains designs to demolish the St. Peter's pile itself and contemplate its reconstruction. The most imposing work of this period was the Vatican Palace begun by Pietro Barbo (1455), afterwards Pope Paul II., which, like the Albergo of 1442, was again discovered, is to a great extent mediæval in character. Leon Battista Alberti, who resided in Rome about this time and died there in 1472, is supposed to have furnished the plans for this palace.

So far indeed had the fostering of art become obligatory on the occupants of the papal chair, that they could not neglect this function without forfeiting their individual influence, and impairing the dignity of their office. The right powers were not, however, immediately at hand, which should give effect to the building projects of these Sovereign Pontiffs, enamoured as they were of splendour in every shape. The architect who during the pontificate of Sixtus IV. (1471-1484) was most employed, Baccio Pintelli, was a practitioner of moderate skill, and far behind the great Florentines of his day. The building of S. Agostino and S. Pietro in Montorio, as well as the façades of SS. Apostoli and S. Pietro in Vincoli were from his plans. His most celebrated work is the Popes' private Chapel in the Vatican, called after the Pope Sixtus the Sistine Chapel, which owes its chief attractions far less to its architectural merits, than to the artistic decoration of wall and ceiling.

Abundant employment together with the favour which artists found with dignitaries of the Church had already allured numerous Tuscan and Umbrian PAINTERS to Rome. Amongst those thus engaged in beautifying the churches of Rome and the Vatican Palace we meet such Florentine celebrities as Maestri Sandro Botticelli, Filippino Lippi, Domenico Ghirlandajo, Cosimo Rosselli; and from the Umbrian School the immediate forerunner of Michael Angelo, bold Luca Signorelli, along with Perugino and Pinturicchio. An attempt is made to found an Academy, or Guild of St. Luke at Rome. Amongst its members we find (1494) Melozzo da Forlì, the painter of a fresco (transferred to canvas) in the Vatican Gallery, representing the foundation of the Vatican library. — The execution of the Wall Paintings in the Sistine Chapel, by order of Sixtus IV., was a momentous event in a time prolific in art enterprise. In accordance with the then prevailing point of view the acts of Moses are represented as symbolically parallel to those of Christ. On the left wall are incidents n the life of Moses by Botticelli, Rosselli, Signorelli, on the right wall events in the life of Christ by Botticelli, Rosselli, Ghirlandajo and Perugino. Those lovers of art who are unable to visit Florence before going to Rome are recommended to make these wall paintings their especial study. They will learn from them to appreciate the descriptive power of the Florentines and will be familiarised with the field subsequently occupied by the heroes of Italian Art.

Tuscan SCULPTORS, too, find their way frequently to Rome and are constantly employed either as workers in bronze or marble. Little attention seems, however, to have been paid to the former. The great bronze doors of St. Peter, the joint work of Filarete and Simone, are interesting rather from the wealth of mythological imagery with which they are embellished, than from their artistic pretensions, which will not compare with those of Ghiberti's famous gates. So much the more powerfully does the sculptor appeal to us in marble. A taste for profusion and splendour of monumental decoration in adorning the tombs, which fact declares itself in the 15th century — a result probably of that thirst for fame which is identified with the Renaissance — gave the sculptor unceasing opportunity for the exercise of his art, particularly in its purely decorative phases. There is scarcely a single church of a certain date which does not contain sepulchral monuments from the close of the 15th century. The church of S. Maria del Popolo possesses the largest number. These monuments — perfected in Florence and probably naturalised in Rome by Mino da Fiesole — are nearly uniform, viz. a sarcophagus surmounted by a statue of the deceased, and supported by a pedestal ornamented with a garland of fruit and flowers, and genii. A niche or panelled screen finished with a medallion of the Madonna form the usual background. The majority of these sculptures cannot be traced to any particular artist. It would appear indeed that the sarcophagi, as with the ancient Romans, were rather articles of manufacture than works of art, made wholesale fashion after some favourite pattern and bought 'ready made', a commission being given to the sculptor for a portrait of the deceased to which would be added the armorial bearings with inscription.

Whoever might have visited Rome in the earlier years of the 16th century would have found himself in the presence of an intense movement in the art world; he would have found Architect, Sculptor and Painter alike occupied with projects of more or less grandeur. So far, however, Rome did not in this respect surpass the other chief towns of Italy; so far art had not assumed that particular form of life and direction which only the atmosphere of Rome could sustain, or which the genius of the Vatican alone could quicken — during the Pontificate of JULIUS II. (1503—1513), where the golden era of Roman art began, this consummation was actually achieved.

To Julius belongs the glory of having associated with Rome three

...Bramante, Michael Angelo, Raphael, everlasting beacons in the path of art — three men who in the course of the 16th century raised modern art to its loftiest pitch of splendour. Leo X. (1513—1522) of the house of Medici owes his lineage only that he should have transmitted to posterity so much of a reputation, — that his name should be associated inseparably with the greatest triumphs of art in modern times. Leo X. did not value or to use his inheritance aright. It was not given him to sway the imperious temper of Michael Angelo, nor fully to comprehend the mighty schemes of Bramante. The latter's chief work, the rebuilding of St. Peter's, can be adequately studied only in the collection of original drawings in Florence which set forth the grandeur of Bramante's designs in all their completeness; for so many different hands were employed in giving effect to these, that little remains of the original plan. Happily this little, viz. the dome with the overwhelming impression of vastness it conveys, is of the very best. Bramante contemplated a central structure in the form of a Greek cross, rounded at its extremities, which, crowned by a gigantic dome, should present an ensemble at once simple and majestic. Succeeding generations have failed to embody Bramante's ideal. His career, extending probably from 1444 to 1514, is involved in obscurity. Of his works, Rome possesses numerous examples. The circular chapel in the monastery of S. Pietro in Montorio, the court of S. Maria della Pace, the arcades in the first court of the Vatican (Cortile di S. Damaso), the Palazzo Giraud and above all the Cancellaria are perfect examples of Renaissance.

We are wont to wonder at the profusion and splendour, too, of works to which the cinquecento gave birth. How much richer, how much more splendid would have been this profusion, had only these works been carried out as originally designed by the artist's creative genius!

The same fatality which pursued Bramante's mightiest projects served to mar Michael Angelo's (1475—1564) supreme effort in the realm of PLASTIC ART. The Tomb of Julius II., begun while that pope was still living, was to consist of a large detached edifice with statues of Moses, St. Paul, and other colossal figures at its projecting angles, and ranged along its wall the naked forms of men in chains. The work, however, soon came to a standstill, and at last, 30 years after its commencement (1545), it was placed in the church of S. Pietro in Vincoli where it now stands, deplorably, a mere fragment of the original design. Its most striking feature is the tremendous figure of Moses, rising in wrathful indignation at the worship of the golden calf, to denounce the idolatry of the Israelites. In addition to the Moses, Rome contains two conspicuous works from the hand of Michael Angelo: the Pietà, badly placed in one of the chapels in St. Peter's, and the Statue of Christ in S. Maria sopra Minerva. The former surpasses all other efforts of the great sculptor in the delicacy of its modelling as well as in the force with which it appeals to human sympathies.

As FRESCO PAINTER Michael Angelo figures exclusively in Rome. Tradition tells us how loathe he was to exchange the chisel for the brush, when at the behest of the imperious Julius II. he undertook the decoration in fresco of the ceiling of the Sixtine Chapel. These frescoes are nevertheless the most important of Michael Angelo's contributions to art. They afford a wider field for the exercise of his creative power than sculpture, where plastic forms, unequal as they are to the demands of his prolific genius, betray him into exaggeration. These frescoes of Michael Angelo are closely akin to the wall paintings of Florentine and Umbrian artists at the close of the 15th century, in which the deliverer of the Israelites is made to prefigure the Saviour of mankind. How salvation came to the world, and how proclaimed, is the theme which Michael Angelo undertakes to illustrate. In the centre piece is depicted the Creation, the history of Adam and of Noah; how sin came into the world, but with sin the promise of redemption. Forecasting all this we next see the figures of Prophets and Sibyls. In the marginal pictures we see continued reference to the Redemption, in the various deliverances of the Jewish people (the brazen serpent, David and Goliath, the fate of Haman, and Judith), in conformity with mediæval conceptions, together with symbols of the Redemption. Connecting themselves with the above are the groups occupying the lunettes, portraying expectation, the anguish of suspense, and contrition, which include at once matters of fact and a twofold allusion to the vicissitudes of the Israelites and the events of our Saviour's life (progenitors of Christ and Jews captive in Babylon). The sublimity of the work is to be attributed very much to the skill with which mere matters of fact are everywhere subordinated to the claims of individual action as well as artistic purpose. Moreover Michael Angelo has contrived so to dispose the various portions of his vast work, ascending by figures, single and in groups, from the simply decorative margin to the crowning effort in the centre, so to adapt them to the place they occupy, that the entire work becomes architecturally, so to speak, self-supporting; while the composition as a whole is wielded with a wealth of resources together with a power of organisation such as no other artist has attained to. The thoughtful beholder will not acquiesce in the exclusive study of the central pictures. The figures in monochrome and minor decorations are replete with a beauty peculiar to themselves.

Of the 'Last Judgment', painted by Michael Angelo at a much later period (1541), it is difficult, owing to its dilapidated condition, to form an accurate estimate. The unerring audacity, however, with which figure and group alike are thrown into every conceivable attitude and movement, must command a mute and amazed attention.

With the names of Bramante and Michael Angelo is associated that of Raphael (1483-1520), whose youthful genius had very early declared itself, first in Perugia and later in Florence. In Rome are to be seen interesting mementoes of both these periods. In the Coronation of the Virgin in the Vatican Gallery we see him still in the trammels of the Umbrian School; the effects of his Florentine training are visible in his Entombment of Christ in the Borghese Gallery (belonging to later periods are the so called Fornarina in the Barberini Gallery, the Violin Player in the Palazzo Sciarra, Navagero and Beazzano in the Doria Gallery, the Madonna di Foligno, and the Transfiguration, the master's last work, both in the Vatican Gallery). The majority of Raphael's easel pictures are to be found elsewhere than in Rome.

But in Rome only could Raphael have found a field suited to the exercise of his highest powers in FRESKO PAINTING. The mural paintings in the state apartments of the Popes in the Vatican palace must first be noticed. In order rightly to appreciate these, it must not on the one hand be forgotten that fresco painting never completely loses its decorative character; nor on the other must the peculiar position of the Pontificate in the beginning of the 16th century be lost sight of. In the palace of the Vatican the same courtly tone, the same pursuit of sensuous pleasures, of the mere joys of existence, prevailed as in the courts of the younger Italian dynasties; expressions of national sentiment met with a favorable reception, while an active agitation on the part of the Humanists did not appear to have compromised the dignity of the Papal Court. These conditions are more or less distinctly reflected in the frescoes of Raphael. The courtier repeatedly asserts himself; even a delicate compliment to the patron is not disdained, nor the ceremonial spectacle excluded. Political as well as personal allusions are not wanting, while ample space is devoted to the glorification of the Humanistic ideal. Finally, when it is borne in mind that Raphael was constantly compelled to defer to the exigencies of the allotted space, to study the separate requirements of wall and ceiling, we gain an insight into the nature and extent of the restraints imposed upon the Artist. They beset him indeed on every hand, and constantly compel him to alter or modify his design. Curiously enough these restrictions are to this day interpreted as an act of the Artist's free and daring will. One wonders at the amount of theological learning, of philosophical erudition displayed in the Disputa and the School of Athens, as well as at the inventiveness which could connect subjects so remote from one another as the Heliodorus driven from the Temple, and the expulsion of the French from Italy. Through the entire range of subjects there runs a vein of profound and continuous thought. But especially admirable are alike the discernment which enabled Raphael to select, from apparently the most heterogeneous sources, matter conception of the didactic capabilities of art. It is still of uncertainty how far the erudition displayed by Raphael's acquirement of his own or how far he may have relied on contributions of contemporary scholars, such for example as Castiglione, Bembo, and Ariosto, who would in so far share with him the credit due to fertility of thought. Assuming, however, that Raphael himself supplied the wealth of literary research which the frescoes of the Stanze are said to reveal, he would not as Artist become more intelligible to us. His intellect might thus have been exercised, but not his imagination. Raphael's pictures will not only be more thoroughly enjoyed, but his individuality and purpose will be more perfectly apprehended when the effort is made to understand, how the painter by force of his imagination could out of material for thought, dead in itself, create new and living forms; how he imparted to single figures so distinct a psychological impress that the mere bearers of historical names are made to appear as representative human characters; how subtly he balanced action and repose in his groups, not dwelling too long on mere beauty of outline and contour, but intent on giving harmonious expression to a more profound intellectual antithesis. From this point of view, interest in the works of Raphael will be enlightened and enduring. Numerous problems will present themselves to the amateur for solution: what motive Raphael might have had in treating the Disputa and the School of Athens so differently in respect of colour; how far in the latter picture the architectural character of the background is essential to the collective impression to be conveyed; for what reason the domain of portraiture is here narrowed to the utmost, while there (Jurisprudence) it is extended; what were the grounds for the manifold changes in composition which are accurately traced in his numerous sketches, etc.

The condition of the Stanze frescoes is such, alas, as to afford anything but unqualified gratification, just as in the Loggie we regretfully trace the departed glory of unique examples of decorative art, and with difficulty recognise the summit of Raphael's attainments in the grievously injured Tapestries. These latter, it is true, in the detail of their composition may be studied in the cartoons now in the Kensington Museum; but the subordinate decorations, marginal arabesques and the like are still in part preserved in the original tapestries, and are essential to the festive character of ornamentation originally designed for the Sistine Chapel. To the ten tapestries so long known, an eleventh discovered in the depôt of the Vatican has been added. These tapestries were to have adorned the lower compartment of the chapel walls and to this end they must correspond with the companion pictures: that, while these relate the history of Redemption, they, the former, should portray the power and grace of God abiding with the Church.

Sibyls of Raphael in S. Maria della Pace (1514) we find eting — if the expression may be allowed — in another re he trenches upon the domain of Michael Angelo; not, that he is for a moment betrayed into disingenuousness by th a presence so overpowering, or that is he beguiled into a style foreign to his genius. True to himself, he accepts the scribed by his subject, and combines an air of pleasing sere- finite grace with the expression of prophetic inspiration. l these three Art heroes, Bramante, Raphael, and Michael grouped a brilliant circle of pupils and dependents. The of the School of Raphael are undoubtedly those executed in his lifetime and under his direction. Giulio Romano (1493-1546) and Francesco Penni (1488-1528) had a considerable share in the painting of the Hall of Constantine; the completion of the Loggia paintings was entrusted to them, Perino del Vaga (1499-1547), Raffaello del Colle, and others. For the decorative ornamentation of the Loggie and the Farnesina the master engaged the services of Giovanni da Udine (1487-1564). Romano exhibits himself most clearly as a pupil of Raphael in the Villa Madama Giulio, less so in his Madonnas (Pal. Colonna and Borghese).

The crowd of ARCHITECTS, who appeared in Bramante's time, showed greater independence: Baldassare Peruzzi (1481-1563), who built the Farnesina and Pal. Massimi, Raphael himself and Giulio Romano (Villa Madama), Antonio da San Gallo the younger, with whom originated the Pal. Farnese and a new plan for St. Peter's, and lastly MICHAEL ANGEL, whose influence, gradually deposing Bramante, irresistibly impelled the architecture of Rome into new courses. And just as in Plastic art he scornfully rejects the recognised forms and forces upon them a new construction, in like manner as Architect he concerns himself little about the accurate adjustment of subordinate parts, intent rather upon the effect to be produced by the structure as a whole — usually one of ponderous immensity. The colonnades in the Palazzo Farnese, the conversion of the Baths of Diocletian into the church of S. Maria degli Angeli — a work subsequently spoiled — and the Porta Pia are among his chief works. His chief merit consists in his having reverted to the plans of Bramante for the completion of St. Peter's, which since 1546 had been under his superintendence. The Cupola at least was carried out according to his designs, but the ground-plan, to the injury of the building, was much altered, and the Latin substituted for the Greek Cross.

As long as the 'divine' Michael Angelo lived, Rome was so dazzled by the splendour of his renown that no one suspected the DECLINE OF ART was at hand. In fact, however, it had already declared itself at the death of Raphael. Rome once more captured and pillaged; orthodoxy reinstated; the church recoiling from the taint of Humanism: these were incisive events in the history of art, which now received a more distinctively ecclesiastical direction. The Foreign occupation of Rome expelled a vast number of her artists and laid a chasm in the traditions of her art. As she once more recovered herself and under the pontificate of SIXTUS V. (Felice Peretti, 1585-90) was to all appearance again invested with her pristine grandeur, the encouragement of art was revived, but in a spirit which presently pervaded and brought into subjection every phase of art. To Sixtus V. the Eternal City, which 'forthwith doubled itself', owes her present aspect. The Acqua Felice, the Spanish Staircase, the Via Sistina, the Piazza of St. Peter, the restoration of the Columns of Trajan and Marcus Aurelius are his work. Domenico Fontana of Ticino was foremost in giving effect to

They supplanted the Naturalists, appropriating as much of the latter's method as appeared available, and finally monopolised the favour of the court and aristocracy. Nor was the struggle by any means to the palette and the brush. Personalities arose, and amongst themselves the partisans of Caracci were seldom at peace. The blemishes are in part, at any rate, of the highest excellence. See Caracci's frescoes in the Palazzo Farnese; Guido Reni in the Casino Rospigliosi; the frescoes of Domenichino in the Casino de' Francesi, S. Andrea della Valle, in Grotta Ferrata; these are not mere master-pieces of technical skill, but are replete with artistic beauty and vitality.

The Neapolitan sculptor Lorenzo Bernini (1598-1680) rose up to the close of the 17th century. His works occupy the concluding chapter in the history of Roman Art. It is superfluous to bid the reader beware of being led captive by art essentially flimsy and tricksy; rather perhaps it is necessary, as a set off against the prevailing depreciation of Bernini's works, to plead the importance of their historical significance amidst all their too conspicuous defects; to bear in mind that throughout the course of the 17th century they were regarded as the most brilliant production of that period and were very generally imitated.

Since the 17th century, Rome has not given birth to nor nurtured any distinctive art life, though the past has held Artists of all nations spell-bound, compelling the conviction that Rome is the true High School of Art, whose teaching is indispensable to every true Artist. So late as the close of the 18th and the beginning of the present century, Rome continued to give proofs of the power of her influence. Without the suggestions which Rome alone could furnish, David would never have received that classical impulse which he turned to such admirable account in France. In the absence of such inspiration as the spectacle of Rome's master-pieces alone could afford, Cornelius and his associates would never have had the courage to attempt the revival of fresco painting. Thus is it that Rome rears on the destinies of modern art, though without an art life she can call her own. The statue of the Immacolata shows that the Romans are ignorant of the mere mechanism of casting in bronze, while the frescoes of Podestà in the Stanza dell' Incendio prove that not only painting is a lost art, but Raphael himself is forgotten. Otherwise opinion had not been thus pointedly challenged. But if Rome has ceased to be the home as well as the birthplace of Art, it is above all others the spot where Art at once affords the highest gratification and commands the profoundest reverence.

FIRST SECTION.

S. TUSCANY. UMBRIA. THE MARCHES.

1. From Leghorn or Pisa to Rome by the Maremma.

207½ M. (from Pisa 207 M.). RAILWAY Express in 9 hrs., fares 29 fr. 50 c. (from Pisa 42 fr. 80, 29 fr. 45 c.); ordinary trains in 11 hrs., fares 34 fr. 40, 17 fr. 85 c. (or 38 fr. 65, 25 fr. 35, 17 fr. 40). RAILWAY coincides with the ancient Via Aurea as Scaurus, B.C. 109. During the present century, a road to be constructed here for the benefit of the country it traverses is by no means destitute of picturesqueness, and the traveller who desires to explore it may devote several days to the journey, but, owing to the malaria, this is not practicable at the end of May and the end of October (comp. p. 2), a period when the inhabitants spend in the hill-district of Siena. Even in the whole villages are still deserted. The railway is occasionally interrupted by inundations which interrupt the traffic. It runs inland as far as the point where it approaches the coast, commanding fine views of the sea with its promontories and islands - Views always on the right.

STEAMBOAT. Another route from Leghorn to Rome is by sea as Clivis Vecchia, and thence by railway. Three Italian steamers (Clivis Vecchia, Clivis Vecchia, and one French one (Fraissinet & Co.) ply weekly. The route is somewhat more expensive than the railway journey. The steamers generally weigh anchor towards evening. Arrival at Leghorn in the inner harbour 1 fr., in the outer harbour 1 fr. The steamers generally weigh anchor towards evening. Arrival at Leghorn and Pisa, see vol. i. of this Handbook. — The line at the first station Colle Salvetti, which is 10 M. distant from Leghorn and 9½ M. from Pisa. To the right we obtain a view of Monte Nero, a celebrated place of pious resort, possessing an ancient picture of the Virgin brought from the East and especially revered by seafaring men.

13 M. (from Leghorn) Pauplin; 18 M. Orciano; 24 M. Aquasanta, the station for Rosignano, situated on an eminence to the right. All these villages are of recent origin and contain nothing of interest, they testify, however, to the rapid improvement which has taken place during the present century in this once so dreary district. The train crosses the Cecina, the ancient Caecina. The family that name was once settled in this district, as is proved by numerous inscriptions at Volterra.

32 M. Cecina (halt of 8 min.; poor café), a modern place, where a branch line to Volterra diverges (see p. 9).

The line now approaches the coast. The loftily-situated, ancient Etruscan Populonia becomes visible to the right, on a chain of hills projecting into the sea; beyond it the island of Elba (p. 13).

43 M. Castagneto; then (47 M.) S. Vincenzo, with a small harbour.

54 M. La Cornia; to the left on the height lies the small town of Campiglia, with a ruined castle and Etruscan tombs of no great interest.

FROM LA CORNIA TO PIOMBINO AND POPULONIA. On the arrival of the last train from Leghorn a diligence runs in about 2 hrs. from La Cornia to Piombino (7½ M.), returning thence at noon. A forenoon suffices for a visit to Populonia.

Piombino (poor inn) is a small town with 4000 inhab. situated at the S. extremity of a wooded promontory, which on the land side is bounded by a flat district. A weather-beaten tower on the harbour commands a magnificent prospect of the sea and the neighbouring island of Elba (in front of which rise the cliffs of Cerboli and Palmaiola), of S. Giglio and Stance.

to Pisa, in 1399 became a principality of ed by Spain, and then by the family of m it was wrested by Napoleon in 1805 in Corsican Felice Bacciocchi. In 1816 it was under the Tuscan supremacy. — Steamboat wing morning (p. 13).

at the N. extremity of the peninsula, is the Etruscan Populna. The shorter route e attempted without a guide. The town on a lofty and precipitous eminence, is is. Once a prosperous seaport, it suffered the time of Strabo it had fallen to decay. cient times the iron of Elba was smelted blocks, approached on the side towards the sea; they consist of huge the sea are striking and extensive. Several vaults, erroneously said to be long to an amphitheatre, and a reservoir may also be mentioned as relics of the Roman period. The Etruscan tombs in the vicinity are hardly worthy of a visit.

The district now begins to exhibit the distinguishing characteristics of the Maremma: a world of its own, consisting of forest and swamp, uncultivated, and in summer poisoned by malaria. During the Etruscan period the Maremma were richly cultivated and possessed several considerable towns: Populonia, Vetulonia, Rusellae, Cosa. On the decline of agriculture in Italy and the conversion of the farms into pasture-land, the desolation of the coast-district made rapid progress; for in this flat district, where the water easily becomes stagnant, high cultivation is alone capable of keeping the poisonous exhalations in check. Even Pliny describes this district as unhealthy, and in the middle ages its desolation was still more complete. During the present century,

under the wise administration of the grand-dukes of Tuscany, much was done to counteract the malaria by the drainage and filling up of swamps and the establishment of new farms; but the evil is still very great. Charcoal-burning and in winter cattle-grazing are the chief resources of the inhabitants, all of whom withdraw to the Tuscan hill-country in May, when the malaria begins. A few only of the more densely peopled localities enjoy a tolerably healthy atmosphere. Those of the natives who are compelled to remain suffer severely from fever, and their gaunt and emaciated countenances afford a sad indication of the curse of the district.

65 M. Tollonara, near the sea, a small but industrial place which is deserted in summer, possesses considerable smelting-foundries for the iron from Elba. Beautiful view towards the sea; to the right the promontory of Piombino and Elba, to the left the promontory of Castiglione with a lighthouse, and the small, grotesquely shaped island of Formica. On an eminence to the left rises Massa Marittima, one of the largest towns of the Maremme, with about 13,000 inhabitants. In the vicinity are extensive copper-mines. — The train again quits the coast in order to avoid the Promontory of Castiglione.

74 M. Potassa, station for Gavorrano, situated higher up, to the right. Farther on, likewise to the right, on an eminence, lies Colonna; and in the distance, at the mouth of the river Bruna, the small fortified harbour of Castiglione della Pescaia is visible. Here, as in the other seaports of the Maremme, wood and charcoal form the principal exports.

91 M. Grosseto (**Aquila*), the capital of the Maremme, a cheerful little town with 6300 inhab. The curé Chelli possesses a collection of Etruscan antiquities. Branch-line from Grosseto to Asciano, a station on the Florence, Siena, and Orvieto line (see p. 18).

About 3½ M. to the N. E. of Grosseto (carriage road) are situated the sulphureous Bagni di Roselle, whence the ruins of Rusellæ are reached in ½ hr. (guide necessary). Rusellæ, anciently one of the twelve capitals of the Etruscan confederation, has been deserted since the middle of the 12th cent. and is thickly overgrown with underwood. The walls, which are nearly 2 M. in circumference, and in most places accessible, consist partly of horizontal courses, partly of polygonal blocks (6-8 ft. high, 7-12 ft. long).

Around Grosseto and to the W. in the direction of Castiglione extends a plain of considerable magnitude, in ancient times a lake (the Lacus Prælius of Cicero), which gradually became shallower (Palude di Castiglione and Grosseto), and by its exhalations formed one of the chief sources of the malaria. By means of skilful drainage, and by conducting hither the deposits of the neighbouring rivers, the government has succeeded in almost entirely filling up the morass and converting it into a valuable pasture 12-15 M. in length.

A little beyond Grosseto the Ombrone is crossed. The line skirts the wooded Promontory of Talamone; towards the S. the imposing Monte Argentario (see below) becomes visible.

(105 M.) Talamone a beautiful view of the sea is disclosed. Village lies at the extremity of the promontory and possesses a harbour sheltered by the island of Giglio and the Monte Argentario. The extent of the creek has been much diminished by alluvial deposits. Here, in B.C. 225, the Roman legions landed and completely defeated the Gauls who were marching against Rome. The train crosses the small river Osa, then the more important Arno (ancient Albinia), at the mouth of which are salt-works. Albegna.

14 M. Orbetello (halt of  $\frac{1}{4}$  hr.). On the arrival of the train omnibus (1 fr.) starts for Orbetello (poor inns; the best is the Storia del Buon Gusto, or Saccoccione),  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant, with 10 inhab., situated at the extremity of a promontory, not far from the foot of Monte Argentario, which rises immediately from the sea, and is connected with the mainland by two narrow tongues of land, whereby a large salt-water lagoon is formed. Beyond its remarkable situation the place contains nothing of interest, except a few polygonal walls on the side next the sea, which testify to the great antiquity of the town, although its ancient name is unknown.

From Orbetello an embankment has been constructed across the shallow lagoon, which abounds in fish, to M. Argentario. A carriage-road leads to the harbour Porto S. Stefano (steamboat to Elba, every Thursday at 3 p.m., see p. 13), and to Porto Ercole on the S. side. The Monte Argentario (1087 ft.) culminates in two peaks, on one of which is situated a monastery of the Passionists. The ascent is very interesting, and is accomplished from Orbetello in 2-3 hrs. (with guide). The view embraces the coast of Tuscany and the surrounding district as far as M. Amiata, and the sea with its numerous rocky islands as far as Sardinia. If time is limited, the first and lower eminence,  $\frac{3}{4}$  hr. from Orbetello, commanding a picturesque view of the coast, should be visited.

Orbetello is also the most convenient starting-point for an excursion to the interesting ruins of the ancient Cosa, the present Ansedonia,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant; and also for a visit to the ancient towns of Saturnia and Sovana, 30-35 M. inland. Cosa is an ancient Etruscan town, deserted as early as the 5th cent. The polygonal walls (1600 yds. in circumference) with their towers are admirably preserved. A beautiful prospect of the sea and coast is enjoyed hence.

Beyond Orbetello, on an eminence to the right, are the ruins of Cosa (see above). — The train soon enters the former Papal territory, and traverses the Roman Maremma; scenery unattractive. 127 M. Chiarone. It then crosses the Fiora and reaches (135 M.) Montalto, a poor village.

From Montalto the traveller may ascend by the bank of the Fiora to the ancient Ponte della Badia and the site of Vulci, where very successful excavations have been made since 1828, and thousands of Etruscan vases and other antiquities have been discovered. The ancient Etruscan city itself, the circumference of which is ascertained to have been 5 M., has entirely disappeared with the exception of its tombs.

Beyond Montalto the country is more undulating. The line crosses the small rivers Arrone and Marta, the outlet of the Lake of Bolsena.

144 $\frac{1}{2}$  M. Corneto, situated on a hill (348 ft.)  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. to the left of the station (seat in a carriage 1 fr.), is an antiquated town times the tombs were frequently plundered for the sake of the pretrinkets they contained, and modern excavations have despoiled them every movable object which remained. A visit to them is nevertheless very interesting to those who desire to form an idea of the civilization, art, and religion of the Etruscans; and for this purpose the tombs of Corneto are well adapted owing to the good preservation of their paintings. The decoration of the chambers is in a style that was chiefly prevalent in the towns of southern Etruria, and indicates a close relationship to the Etruscan art. The Tumuli which externally distinguished the tombs have in the lapse of ages been entirely destroyed; the subterranean chambers alone remain, of which the following are the most interesting: —

1. Grotta della Caccia del Cignale (boar-hunt), or Grotta Querciola. The paintings, copied in the Museo Gregoriano (p. 316), are much faded; they represent a banquet with music and dancing, and a boar-hunt. — Opposite to Corneto —

2. Grotta del Convito Funebre, or del Triclinio, also containing the representation of a banquet. The men here, as in all the others, are sketched in outline on the walls in dark red, the women in whitish colours.

3. Grotta del Morto, small; scene of mourning for the deceased, and dancing.

4. Grotta del Tifone, more extensive, supported in the centre by a column, on which are Typhons, or winged genii of death terminating in serpents. The sarcophagi bear Latin as well as Etruscan inscriptions, a proof they belong to a comparatively recent epoch. To the right on the wall are souls escorted by genii; under them is Charon with the hammer.

5. Grotta del Cardinale, the most spacious tomb of Tarquinii, supported by four pillars, opened in the last century; colours almost entirely faded. About  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. from Corneto is the Grotta delle Bighe, discovered in 1827 by Baron Stackenberg. A copy of the paintings is preserved in the Vatican. — In the vicinity: Grotta del Mare, small, with sea-horses. — \**Grotta del Barone*, so called from the Hanoverian ambassador by whom it was discovered, contains warlike games, riders, etc., partly in the archaic style; colours well preserved. — Grotta Francesca, or Giustiniani, with dancers and musicians, much faded; copies in the Museo Gregoriano. — Grotta delle Iscrizioni, so called from the numerous Etruscan inscriptions, with warlike trials and battles. — Several other tombs have been recently discovered. Thus the Grotta dell' Orco: in the anterior chamber, a banquet; in the one beyond a scene from the infernal regions, with Pluto, Proserpine, Geryon, Agamemnon, Memnon, and Theseus; in a niche in this chamber Odysseus blinding Polyphemus. — In the Grotta degli Scudi, banquet and dances. — In the Grotta del Citaredo, men and women dancing.

Toscanella is now best visited from Corneto, from which it is 16 M. distant, by means of the diligence to Viterbo, which runs three times weekly.

Toscanella (669 ft. above the sea; Inn at the Viterbo gate), the ancient Tuscania, a small town with 3900 inhab. whose walls and towers impart a mediæval aspect to the place, contains two fine old Romanesque churches: **S. Pietro*, on the height, with crypt and antique columns, and the exterior fine sculptures; and **S. Maria*, smaller but even more interesting. Both churches are now disused. On the hill of S. Pietro stood the ancient citadel. Etruscan tombs in the vicinity.

Campanari's Garden, situated in the lower part of the town, embellished with sarcophagi and other relics, and containing an imitation of an Etruscan tomb, is an interesting spot. The sarcophagi, with the life-portraits of the deceased, framed in living green, are very impressive, and the traveller will nowhere acquire a more accurate idea of the contents of an Etruscan tomb. Sign. Carlo Campanari, who is obliging and well-informed, has with his father conducted many of those extensive excavations which have filled the museums of Europe with Etruscan vases, bronzes, mirrors, and other interesting relics.

The distance between Toscanella and Viterbo is about  $12\frac{1}{2}$  M. (see p. 8).

The train skirts the foot of the hill of Corneto, which remains visible for a long time. To the right, farther on, we perceive the insignificant Porto Clementino, which is entirely abandoned in summer on account of the malaria. The horizon is bounded inland by the mountains of Tolfa (see below), which yield an abundant supply of alum and sulphur. The line then crosses the small river Mignone, at the mouth of which is situated the Torre Bertaldo, where, according to a legend, an angel refuted the doubts which St. Augustine entertained respecting the Trinity.

Omnibus to the town (within a few minutes' walk) 25 c.; one-horse carriage  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr., two-horse 1 fr.; porter for a box 40 c.

Arrival by Sea. The tariff for landing is  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr. for each person; for a box from the steamboat to the station 1 fr.; travelling-bag or hat-box  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr. Custom-house examination at the railway-station, situated outside the town. All these charges are the same for embarkation. Carriages to the station, see above.

Hotels: **ORLANDI*, to the right at the entrance of the town, a large hotel, expensive; EUROPA, moderate.

Civit  Vecchia, the seaport of Rome, with 11,600 inhab., the ancient Centum Cellae founded by Trajan, and sometimes called Portus Trajani, was destroyed by the Saracens in 828, but in 854 the inhabitants returned into the 'ancient city'. The fortifications, built in the 16th and 17th cent., have recently been restored by the French. The entrance to the harbour, in front of which rises a small fortified island with a lighthouse, is defended by two strong towers. Visitors are permitted to inspect the Bagno, where the galley-convicts are at work. The town contains little that is interesting. The traveller may best spend a leisure hour in walking on the quay.

A good road leads from Civit  Vecchia to the volcanic mountains of La Tolfa (2041 ft.) and the loftily situated village of that name, in the vicinity of which are extensive mines of alum. The scenery is picturesque, and the locality interesting to geologists. Some mineral springs, with the ruins of ancient baths (Aquae Tauri) are situated about 3 M. from Civit  Vecchia.

FROM CIVIT  VECCHIA TO ROME ( $50\frac{1}{2}$  M.; express in 2, ordinary trains in 3 hrs.; fares 12 fr. 30, 8 fr. 25 c. 5 fr. 95 c.; or 9 fr. 20, 6 fr. 45, 4 fr. 60 c.). The best views are on the right till Rome is approached, when a seat on the left should if possible be secured. The line traverses a dreary tract, running parallel with the ancient Via Aurelia near the sea-coast as far as Palo. On clear days the Alban and Volscian mountains are visible in the distance, and still farther off the promontory of Circeii.

168 M. Santa Severa, a picturesque baronial castle, formerly the property of the Galera, afterwards that of the Orsini family, and now belonging to the Santo Spirito Hospital at Rome. Here in ancient times was situated Pyrgos or Pyrgi, the harbour of the one

Volterra, the ancient Volaterrae, Etruscan Velathri, one of the most ancient Etruscan cities, is now an episcopal residence with 13,000 inhab., loftily situated (1602 ft.), and commanding in clear weather charming prospects as far as the heights of Pisa, the Apennines, and the sea with the islands of Gorgona, Elba, Capraja, and Corsica. The environs are dreary and desolate; the effect of the rain on the soft and spongy soil is most prejudicial to agriculture.

Volterra was one of the twelve ancient confederate cities of Etruria, and was so strongly fortified that during the civil wars it withstood a siege by Sulla's troops for two years. It afterwards became a Roman municipium, but gradually fell to decay and was totally destroyed in the 10th cent. It was re-erected under the Othos, but does not now cover one-third of its ancient area. In the middle ages it was a free town, until it became subject to Florence in the 14th century.

Among the ANTIQUITIES the ancient \*Town Walls, once upwards of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  M. in circumference, and nearly three times as extensive as those of Fiesole and Cortona, are especially worthy of notice. Their dimensions (40 ft. in height, 13 ft. in thickness) and construction of horizontal courses of sandstone blocks (panchina) are best inspected outside the Porta Fiorentina and in the garden of the monastery of Santa Chiara. One of the ancient gateways, the \*Porta all' Arco, 20 ft. in height, is also still in existence. The corbels are adorned with almost obliterated heads of lions, or guardian deities of the city. An urn in the museum, representing the battle of Thebes, has a similar gate upon it. The Porta di Diana ('il Portone'), another gateway, outside the Porta Fiorentina, has been much altered. Outside the same gate, below the burying-ground, is situated the ancient Necropolis, about midway on the slope of the hill, at the place which is now called S. Marmi. A number of the curiosities in the museum were found here, but the tombs have all been reclosed.

The Piscina, outside the castle, a reservoir resting on six columns, is only shown by permission of the bishop, and is reached by means of a long ladder.

The Thermae, near the fountain of S. Felice, are of Roman origin. Traces of an Amphitheatre near the Porta Fiorentina.

The Palazzo dei Priori or Palazzo Pubblico (Pl. 19) in the Piazza, a handsome edifice, begun in 1208 and completed in 1257, is unfortunately somewhat modernised; the exterior is adorned with mediæval coats of arms. The Museo Civico formerly kept here has been removed to the Palazzo Tagassi (see p. 11), while its place has been supplied by a collection of pictures, of which the following are the most important: *Luca Signorelli, Madonna and saints. 1491; Dom. Ghirlandajo, Christ in glory (ruined by restoration in 1874), and a Madonna, by the same.

the third story of the building are the Archives and the Library, containing 13,000 vols., ivory carvings, diptychs, etc.

The Citadel consists of two parts, the Cassero or Rocca Vecchia, erected on the ancient town-walls in 1343 by Walter of Brienne, Duke of Athens, and the Rocca Nuova, built by the Mediceans after the capture of the town. At the same time they constructed the prison Il Mastio for the incarceration of political offenders, into which the mathematician Lorenzo Lorenzini was thrown as a suspected individual in 1682 by the Grand-Duke of Tuscany, and where he was confined for 11 years. The citadel has been converted into a house of correction and may be visited on the permission of the Sotto Prefetto.

The Palazzo Maffei-Guarnacci, opposite the church of S. Michele, has three towers, the oldest dating from the 13th cent., contains frescoes and a valuable collection of letters of Salv. Rosa.

The Gothic Palazzo Inghirami contains a small collection of frescoes, comprising a "Portrait of the learned Fedra Inghirami, painted by Mündler to be an original work by Raphael (a replica in the Pitti Gallery at Florence).

The Casa Ducci bears the Roman epitaph of a boy, five years of age, probably a member of the family of the poet Persius, who was born at Volterra in A.D. 34.

The Casa Ricciarelli, Daniele da Volterra, the celebrated sculptor of Michael Angelo, was born in 1509 (he died at Paris in 1560). The house still belongs to the family of Ricciarelli, who is the artist's "Elias".

The neighbourhood of Volterra, in the valley towards the E., is a labyrinth, whence the rocky labyrinth named Le Volte may be visited. — About  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. to the N.W. of the town are the churches of S. Giusta and La Badia. Near a deep ravine which has been comparatively recently formed by the action of the sea and continues to increase in extent. Several buildings have been undermined and destroyed, and the celebrated abbey of the order of Camaldoli, founded in the 11th cent., is threatened with the same fate. It possesses Doric cloisters and a museum of art.

A pleasant excursion may be made to the copper-mines of La Cassa near Monte Catini, 10 M. from Volterra. The road leads to the hill of La Bachelona to Monte Catini on the summit of the Secca, a mountain of volcanic origin. The square tower of the old castle commands an extensive prospect. The mines have been worked since the 15th cent., and the operations were most successful till within the last century. The mineral was found in pockets or clusters, beneath the surface. The whole vicinity is extremely interesting for its variety of peaks, such as Monte dell' Abete, Poggio alla Croce, Monte Catini, Monte Amiata (1910 ft.) or from Poggio alla Croce ( $\frac{1}{2}$  hr. ride). The Monte Amiata extends from the heights near Massa and Carrara to the N. to the Monte Amiata on the S., and embraces the sea with the Capraja, and Corvaja.

FROM VOLTERRA TO SIENA. The high road leads towards the E. through an undulating and attractive district. To the left is seen S. Gimignano (p. 16), to which a road diverges to the left after  $7\frac{1}{2}$  M. (reaching it after 11 M. more; pedestrians may take a short cut, diverging 1 M. farther on, viâ Ranza and S. Donato). To the right of the high road we observe Pomarance (p. 9).

$15\frac{1}{2}$  M. from Volterra lies Colle, where the roads to Siena and Poggibonsi diverge. This town, which is frequently mentioned in the history of the Renaissance, now consists of two parts, Colle Alto and Colle Basso. The first of these contains the palaces of the old, but now greatly impoverished aristocracy; the Cathedral, dating from the 13th cent., with a façade modernised in bad taste, a marble pulpit, of which the lower part belongs to the 13th cent., and the upper part, with reliefs of saints, to the 16th, and handsome carved choir-stalls and episcopal throne of the 17th cent.; and the house of the celebrated architect Arnolfo di Cambio. — At Colle Basso there are now important iron and glass works.

From Colle to Poggibonsi 5 M., see p. 15. To Siena about 15 M., a drive of 2 hrs.

Siena, see p. 21.

3. Elba and the Tuscan Islands.

A visit to Elba, which is strongly recommended to the scientific and to the admirer of the picturesque, is most conveniently accomplished either from Leghorn or from Piombino. Between both these points and Porto Ferrajo, the capital of the island, communication is kept up by the Società Rubattino & Co. FROM LEGHORN every Sunday at 10 a.m., arriving at Porto Ferrajo at 4 p.m., returning every Monday at 8 a.m., and arriving at Leghorn at 2 p.m. — FROM PIOMBINO daily at 4.30 p.m., returning at 9.30 a.m., in 2 hrs. — A steamboat of the same company also makes a trip once weekly to the small neighbouring islands (Linea dell' Arcipelago Toscano). Departure from Leghorn every Wednesday at 8 a.m.; from Gorgona at 10.40 a.m., Capraja 1 p.m., Porto Ferrajo 4.30 p.m.; thence on Thursday at 5 a.m., Pianosa at 8.40 a.m., Porto S. Stefano (harbour of M. Argentario) at 2.20 p.m.; returning at 3 p.m., Porto Ferrajo 9.10 p.m., thence on Friday at 8 a.m., Capraja 11 a.m., Gorgona 1.30 p.m., and Leghorn 4.40 p.m.

Half-an-hour after the harbour of Leghorn has been quitted, the cliff Meloria comes in sight, where on 6th August, 1283, the Pisans were so signally defeated by the Genoese, that they never regained their former supremacy. Farther W. is Gorgona, inhabited by fishermen, a sterile island, affording pasture to wild goats only. Between the latter and Elba lies Capraja ('island of goats', so called by the ancients also), with 2000 inhab., where wine is produced.

Elba, Lat. Ilva, Greek Æthalia, consisting of an imposing mountain-group, is reached from Piombino in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. The Torre di Giove, situated on the highest point, serves as a landmark to sailors. The vessel rounds the Capo della Vita and enters the beautiful bay of Porto Ferrajo, enclosed amphitheatrically by mountains. The island was celebrated in ancient times for its iron or in the middle ages it was subject to the Pisans, then to Genoa, to Lucca, and to the Appiani of Piombino, and was finally presented by the Emp. Charles V. to the Grand-Duke Cosmo I. of Florence, who fortified the harbour of Porto Ferrajo in 1548. As the name of the town indicates, the export and manufacture of iron form the principal occupation of the inhabitants (22,000), others of whom are supported by the tunny and sardine fisheries. Elba has acquired a modern celebrity as the retreat of the dethroned Napoleon, from 5th May, 1814, to 26th Feb., 1815. The small palace occupied by the emperor is still shown at Porto Ferrajo, on the height above the harbour, between the forts Stella and Falcone, which were erected by Cosmo I., and command a view of the bay in front, and of the sea in the direction of Piombino at the back. It is now the residence of the governatore, and contains reminiscences of its former imperial occupant. The cathedral, theatre, arsenal, etc. of which the island boasts contain nothing which requires comment. After the fall of Napoleon in 1815 Elba was restored to Tuscany, in the fortunes of which it has since then participated. Length of the island about 18 M., breadth  $6\frac{1}{2}$  M., area 147 sq. M.; it contains several fertile valleys, but lofty and precipitous mountains predominate. Monte Capanne, the highest point, near the village of Marciana, is 3304 ft. in height. The coast on the side next the mainland is less abrupt, and produces wine and fruit of remarkably fine quality, especially in the environs of Capoliveri, where excellent Aleatico is grown. Most of the villages, such as the picturesque stronghold of Porto Longone, founded by the Spaniards, are situated on the coast. Rio, where the iron-mines are worked, lies more inland. The yield of ore is still abundant, and in ancient times formed a source of wealth to the Etruscans. The ferriferous strata lie on the surface, and are recognised at a distance by the reddish-black appearance of the hills.

Between Elba and the mainland are the two small islands of Palmajola and Cerboli.

To the S. lies the island of Pianosa, the ancient Planasia, which, as its name indicates, is perfectly flat. To this island Agrippa Posthumus, grandson of Augustus, was once banished, and to him are referred the considerable Roman remains which still exist here. Farther S. rises Monte Cristo, consisting of granite-rock, 6 M. in circumference. It contains numerous springs, and the ruins of a monastery destroyed by pirates in the 16th cent. Nearer the coast is Giglio, Lat. Igilium, a considerable island containing a village and vestiges of Roman palaces. The highest point is 1630 ft. above the sea-level.

S. Gimignano (Albergo Giusti, in the Piazza della Collegiata, moderate; good rooms at the Palazzo Pratesi; in both bargain necessary), with 8000 inhab. In the 13th and beginning of the 14th cent. it was a prosperous and independent place, but in 1353, after having suffered terribly in consequence of the dissensions of the leading families of the Salvucci (Ghibellines) and Ardinghelli (Guelphs), it became subject to Florence. Its walls, its gate, the numerous towers (whence the name 'S. Gimignano delle belle torri') and the streets, all carry us back to the middle ages. There is no town in Tuscany which presents so faithful a picture of Dante's time, as S. Gimignano, and nowhere can we obtain a clearer insight into the rich development of Italian art in the 13th-15th cent. Architecture of the Gothic type prevails, and most of the houses are of uniform and symmetrical construction.

In the centre of the town is the PIAZZA DELLA COLLEGIATA, or del Duomo. The principal buildings in this square are: —

The **PALAZZO PUBBLICO* or Comunale, erected in 1288-1323.

The SALA DEL CONSIGLIO contains a **Madonna with saints* and the kneeling donor Podestà Nello dei Tolomei, a fresco by Lippo Memmi of Siena, 1317, remarkable only for elaborate execution, restored by Benozzo Gozzoli in 1467; also pictures from suppressed monasteries in the neighbourhood: 12, 13. Filippino Lippi, Annunciation; 18. Pinturicchio, Madonna with two saints. — The CAPPELLA DEL PRETORE, or della Carcere (now divided by a wall into two parts), contains a **Scene from the legend of St. Yvo*, and allegorical figures of Truth, Prudence, and Falsehood, frescoes in grisaille by Sodoma. There are also many traces of frescoes in other parts of the palace.

Adjoining the palace is the Torre del Comune (160 ft.), the highest of the 13 towers which still exist out of the original number of 50. The largest of its three bells dates from 1328.

The PALAZZO DEL PODESTÀ, on the left side of the piazza, with an imposing loggia, is surmounted by a tower on which is indicated the height beyond which private individuals were prohibited from building. — On the opposite side of the piazza rises the principal church —

**LA COLLEGIATA*, or La Pieve, of the 11th cent., altered in the 15th by Giuliano da Majano, and now entirely modernised. It contains numerous frescoes of the 14th and 15th cent.

On the entrance-wall, **Martyrdom of St. Sebastian*, a fresco of colossal proportions by Benozzo Gozzoli, 1465; Annunciation, two wooden figures by Martinus Bartolomæi of Siena. In the N. aisle, scenes from the Old Testament (badly preserved) by Bartolo di Fredi of Siena, 1356; in the S. aisle. Life of Christ by Barna da Siena, 1380. In the nave, above the arch, Paradise and the Inferno, by Taddeo Butti. — The visitor should particularly notice the decorations in the last side chapel to the right, the **CAPPELLA S. FINA*, designed by Giuliano da Majano; altar-piece by Benedetto da Majano. The two **Frescoes* on the side walls, representing the vision of the youthful saint and her burial, by Dom. Ghirlandajo, are among the finest works of that master, and combine a fresh and life-like style with majestic gravity. — In the choir, centre of the right wall, Coronation of the Virgin, an altar-piece by Piero del Pollajuolo of Florence, 1488; to the left of this, Madonna and four saints, by Benozzo Gozzoli; on the left wall, same subject by Tamari adjacent, **Marquetry* ('intarsia') choir-stalls of

The following churches are also interesting: —

This church owes its fame to the *Frescoes in the CHOIR by Benozzo Gozzoli (1465), where the master has portrayed the life of St. Augustine in 17 scenes from his school-days to his death. Though not all of uniform excellence, nor in equally good preservation, these pictures alone repay a visit to S. Gimignano (the finest are: St. Augustine as teacher of rhetoric in Rome; Death of St. Monica; St. Augustine on the bier). — The CAPPELLA S. GUGLIELMO, to the right of the choir, contains a Nativity of the Virgin, by Bartolo di Fredi, exhibiting several features from real life. — To the left, in the CAPPELLA DEL S. SAGRAMENTO, are frescoes by Vincenzo da S. Gimignano. — On the N. side of the church, St. Geminianus and three worshippers, a fresco by Seb. Mainardi, a pupil of Dom. Ghirlandajo; farther on, St. Sebastian, the deliverer from the plague, the effects of which are symbolised by flashes of lightning, by Benozzo Gozzoli, 1464, of less importance than the frescoes in the choir. To the right of the principal entrance: Altar-piece by Benedetto da Majano, 1494; under the organ are frescoes by Seb. Mainardi, representing Saints in groups.

S. JACOPO, of the 12th cent., the church of the Knights Templar, contains frescoes by a Sienese master of the 14th century.

S. GIROLAMO: at the back of the high altar a Madonna with saints by Vincenzo da S. Gimignano, with a glory above by a later painter.

The principal saloon of the upper floor of the Palazzo Pratesi contains a Madonna with saints, by Tamari.

The LIBRARY, in the Palazzo delle Scuole, Via S. Matteo, consists of 6000 vols. and 100 codices. One of its chief treasures is a copy of Alciati's Emblemata (Lyons, 1564), along with which are bound up a number of interesting autographs, including letters from Luther and Melancthon.

A private garden at the Fortezza, the highest part of the old fortifications (ascend to the left past La Collegiata), commands a fine view of the town and neighbourhood.

We may now drive in  $\frac{3}{4}$  hr. to the venerable church of S. Maria Assunta di Callori, or Celle, situated outside the Porta Matteo, and dating from the 11th, or perhaps from the 10th cent., containing remarkable capitals and curious ornamentation in the apse. Fine view.

Beyond Poggibonsi the RAILWAY begins to ascend considerably. To the right, Staggia with a mediæval château; farther on, to the right, the ancient and picturesque château of Monte Riggioni. The train then passes through a long tunnel (3 min.).

58 $\frac{1}{2}$  M. Siena, see p. 21.

Siena is a terminal station, loftily situated, from which the train backs out. On the journey to Orvieto, the train returns part of the way to Empoli, and then diverges at an acute angle towards the S.E. We traverse the hills which form the watershed between the Ombrone and the valley of the Chiana. Six tunnels; Asciano

In the 13th and beginning of the 14th century it was an independent place, but in 1358, in consequence of the dissensions of Salvecci (Ghibellines) and Ardinghelli against Florence. Siena, the capital of the province of that name, with 23,000 inhab., the seat of a university which was in high repute as early as the 14th cent., and the residence of an archbishop, is picturesquely situated 25 M. due S. of Florence, and 1330 ft. above the sea, on three connected hills (the clayey soil of which is called 'Terra di Siena'). It is now a busy trading and manufacturing place; it also possesses several libraries and scientific societies, and is one of the pleasantest towns in Tuscany. The climate is healthy, the atmosphere in summer being tempered by the lofty situation; the language and manners of the inhabitants are pleasing and prepossessing. Most of the streets are narrow and crooked, but contain many palaces and handsome churches. Next to Rome, Florence, and Venice, Siena is perhaps the most important town in Italy for the study of the art of the 13th-16th centuries.

SIENA, the ancient Sena Julia, or Colonia Julia Senensis, is said to have been founded by the Senonian Gauls and converted into a Roman colony by Augustus, whence it derives its arms, the female wolf and the twins. The only Etruscan antiquities here are a few tombs which were discovered in 1864 near the Porta Camollia. The town attained the culminating point of its prosperity in the middle ages, after it had become a free state at the beginning of the 12th cent., and, having banished the nobility, had united with the party of the Ghibellines. Farinata degli Uberti and the Ghibellines from Florence were then welcomed in Siena, and on 4th Sept., 1260, a great victory over the Guelphs was gained near Monte Aperto (6 M. distant). The nobility afterwards returned to Siena, but the city kept a jealous watch over its privileges, and increased to such an extent that it numbered nearly 100,000 inhab., and vied with Florence in wealth and love of art. At length the supremacy was usurped by tyrants, such as (about 1500) Pandolfo Petrucci, surnamed Il Magnifico (whom Macchiavelli represents as a pattern of a despot), by whose aid the Medici of Florence gradually exercised an influence and finally obtained the sovereignty over the city. During this period, under the Grand-Duke Cosmo I., the savage Count of Marignano devastated Siena with fire and sword, and cruelly massacred the population of the Maremma, in consequence of which the malaria obtained so fatal an ascendancy in that district.

History of Art. The bitter political fate which overtook Siena, and converted the mighty rival of Florence into a quiet provincial town, will strike the antiquarian and the admirer of ancient customs as a very fortunate circumstance; for here are still preserved many monuments and reminiscences of mediæval life comparatively unaffected by the vicissitudes and the progress of subsequent ages. The conservative character of Siena has not, however, been produced, as in the case of Bruges, by the withdrawal of the stream of history; for even when at the height of its power, particularly as compared with Florence, it manifested a preference for old established rules and a dislike for innovations. In the province of Art, despite the abundant supply of artists at their disposal, citizens never seem to have taken the initiative, but adhered with remarkable tenacity to the earlier style. The best period of Siennese art still belongs to the middle ages, when the towns of Italy had begun to pride themselves on their practice of art, but before the pedantic element had given way to the pure sense of the beautiful. There is no town in Italy which presents such instructive examples of the Italian Gothic Architecture of the 13th and 14th centuries as Siena, where we find magnificent stone buildings vying with graceful structures of the citizens, it would be difficult to find according to the intentions of the finest in Italy. In the largest and most imposing churches in existence, the Palazzo Buonsignori is the reduced proportions it is one of the finest in Italy. In the pointed style predominates; the windows are generally divided by small columns, and the motive of the castellated mansion pinnacles. In the 15th cent., when the motive of the Renaissance forms, Siena was not slow to imitate the example of Florence. It is, however, uncertain whether ROSELLINO and the Piccolomini, and Nerucci palaces. The most interesting of the Renaissance churches is the small round church degli Innocenti, adjoined to the Palazzo della Scala.

Siena has produced no independent school of Sculpture, though a liberal patron of foreign masters. As throughout the rest of Tuscany, the development of art did not progress rapidly here till the beginning of the 13th century. NICCOLÒ PISANO, the most famous sculptor of the 13th cent., and his son GIOVANNI were employed at Siena; and the sculptures on the font of the Fonte Gaia are admirable works by Jacopo della Quercia (1374-1438), the earliest representative of the Renaissance style.

Painting was the favourite art of the early Siennese. As early as the 13th cent. they could boast of Duccio di Buoninsegna, a painter whose works far surpass those of Cimabue in beauty and gracefulness. On his completion of the high altar of the 'Majestas', or Triumphant Madonna, for the left of the choir, the picture was carried to the church in solemn procession. An equally important master was SIMONE MARTINI (1283-1344), who has been immortalised by a sonnet of Petrarch, and who, like his contemporary Giotto, practised his art and exercised his influence far beyond the limits of his native city. Works by his hand are, or were, to be found at Naples, Orvieto, Assisi, and Avignon, as well as in the Palazzo Pubblico at Siena. So famous was Simone Martini (1283-1344), usual to attribute to him all the best works of his period. His compositions are of a very primitive character, but he certainly possessed great skill in his rendering of tender sentiment. Closely akin to these two masters was LIPPO MEMMI, who executed large frescoes with the same elaborate care as miniatures in missals. Several painters of the 14th cent. followed in Simone's footsteps, such as BARNABÀ or BERNABÈ, LUCA THOME, and LIPPO VANNI, without however exhibiting much individuality. The easy narrative style and the imaginative allegory were cultivated by the brothers PIETRO and AMBROGIO LORENZETTI (both of whom probably died of the plague in 1348), and the approach of the Siennese school to that of Giotto was thus accomplished. A little later, however, the works of BARTOLO DI FREDI (1330-1409) fell short of those of his predecessors, and this was far more inferior to his Florentine contemporaries. For a time all artists still more inferior to a single master of note. The painters of the 15th cent. the city did not give birth to a single named VECCHIETTA), BEN VENUTO and MATTEO DI GIOVANNI, and others of this period adhered tenaciously to the limited sphere of their predecessors, from whose influence they were unable to emancipate themselves. In the close of the century, owing to contact with Siena, and to the introduction of the study of Florentine, Umbrian, and Lombard masters, a more rapid progress at length began to set in. The most distinguished Adjacent, and only separated from the council-chamber by some benches carved by Domenico di Niccolò (1429), is the CHAPEL, finished with frescoes of the Death and Assumption of the Virgin by to Bartoli. The altar-piece is a Holy Family by Sodoma; tasteful by Giov. Turini of Siena. A beautiful iron railing (1436-45) separates the el from a small VESTIBULE, which also contains frescoes by Tuddeo oli (1441), representing St. Christopher, Judas Maccabæus, and six es of Roman gods and statesmen in quaint juxtaposition. — Another m contains portraits of the eight popes and forty-one cardinals to m Siena has given birth, a Madonna by Matteo da Siena, 1484, and Bernardino preaching in the Campo. by Sano di Pietro, interesting for representation of the piazza at that period. — The adjoining SALA DI IA, or DE' PRIORI, is adorned with frescoes from the history of Emp. nderick I. and of Pope Alexander III. by Spinello Aretino (including a val victory of the Venetians and the Emperor and Doge leading the pe's horse). In the centre of the room are two coffer, one carved by rili, the other adorned with paintings said to be by Fra Angelico. On e other side is the SALA DEL CONCISTORO, with ceiling-paintings by ecafumi, of subjects from ancient history, and a fine marble doorway by acopo della Quercia. — The SALA DEI NOVI, or DELLA PACE, contains fres- oes by Ambrogio Lorenzetti, painted in 1337-39, representing 'Good and ad Government', three pictures which are indispensable to those who lesire an insight into the disposition of the proud citizens of Siena in the middle ages. The allegories and allusions of a more or less ob- scure character which they contain are at least interesting as being of a much more homely kind than those customary in modern times. One of these mural paintings represents the ideal of a state, under the guidance of wisdom, justice, and other virtues, while the two others portray in a realistic style the consequences of good and bad government. The pre- servation is imperfect, but the spectator will not fail to admire the heads of Peace, Justice, and Concord in the first of the series.

At the E. end of the Piazza del Campo is the Palazzo del Go- verno (p. 30; façade towards the Via Ricasoli). In the centre of the piazza, opposite the Palazzo Pubblico, rises the marble **Fonte Gaja*, with bas-reliefs of scriptural subjects by Jacopo della Quer- cia, 1419. (The originals, in a very damaged condition, are now preserved in the Opera del Duomo, see p. 28; the copies substitut- ed for them are by Sarrocchi.) A subterranean conduit, 18 M. in length, supplies the fountain with delicious water, the merits of which were extolled by Charles V.

Ascending by steps through one of the passages beyond the Fonte Gaja, we reach the beginning of the VIA DI CITTÀ, which presents a busy scene, especially in the evening.

To the right, the handsome **Loggia* of the Casino de' Nobili (Pl. 2; D, 5), once the seat of the commercial tribunal. It was built in imitation of the Loggia de' Lanzi of Florence in 1417. The sculp- tures are by Sienese masters of the 15th cent., such as Ant. Fe- derighi (who executed the figures of S. Ansano and S. Savino and the stone bench on the right) and Lorenzo di Mariano (to whom is due the stone bench on the left). — The N. prolongation of this street towards the Porta Camollia is the Via Cavour, see p. 34. Opposite the façade of the cathedral are the church and hospital of S. Maria della Scala (Pl. C, 5), of the 13th cent. Over the high-altar of the church is a Risen Christ, a statue in bronze by Vecchietta. Adjoining the handsome entrance-hall of the hospital is a large sick-room called 'Il Pellegrinajo', adorned with frescoes from the history of the monastery by Domenico Bartoli, 1440-43, and other masters. Pleasing view from the windows (fee 1, 2 fr.). — Descending to the left by a few steps at the N. angle of the Piazza del Duomo, we reach the small round church **Degli Innocenti* (Pl. C, 4), a beautiful building with the ground-plan of a Greek cross.

The above mentioned VIA DEL CAPITANO leads to the quarters of the town situated on the S. and S.W. hills. It soon crosses the small Piazza Postierla, with the Palazzo Chigi, now Piccolomini (Pl. 16), on the right, which contains two saloons adorned with frescoes by Bernhard van Orley, a Fleming who joined Raphael's school. On the left, in the VIA S. PIETRO, the continuation of the Via del Capitano, is the **Palazzo Buonsignori* (Pl. 15; C, 5), a handsome Gothic edifice in brick, with a rich façade, restored in 1848. — At the church of *S. Opposite is the Palazzo Pollini, formerly Celsi (Pl. 21; B, 5), attributed to Peruzzi. — We may now proceed straight on through the Via delle Fosse di S. Ansano (with the R. Istituto Toscano dei Sordo-Muti, or Deaf and Dumb Asylum) either to the Piazza del Duomo, or, by turning a little to the left towards the end of the way, we may reach the Porta Fontebranda (see p. 33).

(Outside the Porta S. Marco (Pl. A, 5) there is a fine view.

The E. angle of the Piazza del Campo is occupied by the **Palazzo del Governo* (Pl. 17; D, E, 5), erected for Giacomo Piccolomini between 1469 and 1500, probably from a design by Bernardo Rossellino. This is one of the most imposing private edifices at Siena. The principal façade with its tasteful decorations in wrought iron (horses' heads, etc.) looks to the Via delle Loggie and the small Piazza Piccolomini. Since 1859 the extensive **Archives* (director, Cav. Banchi), one of the most important collections of the kind in Italy, have been deposited here.

They include works by Diottisalvi, Duccio, and the Lorenzetti.

In the vicinity is the University (see p. 31).

The elegant **Loggia del Papa* (Pl. 11; E, 5), in the Piazza Piccolomini, opposite the Pal. del Governo, was erected in 1460 by the Sienese Antonio Federighi by order of Pius II., and dedicated by the pope 'gentilibus suis'.

Adjacent is the church of S. Martino (Pl. 8; E, 5, 6).

Over the 2nd altar on the right, a Circumcision of Christ by Guido Reni. On each side of the 3rd altar are ornamental sculptures in marble by Lorenzo di Mariano, surnamed Il Marrina; on the left: Nativity of Christ by Beccafumi. The choir contains gilded wooden statues, attributed to Jacopo della Quercia.

The VIA RICASOLI, which begins by the Loggia del Papa, traverses the crest of the S.E. hill and leads to Porta Pispini and Porta Romana, the two S.E. gates.

Immediately to the right in this street is the Fonte di Pantaneto, dating from 1352, recently restored. To the left, a little farther on, the Via di Follonica descends to the Fonte di Follonica, constructed in 1239 and situated in a garden far below.

A few paces beyond the church of S. Giorgio (Pl. E, 6) diverges to the left the VIA DE' PISPINI, in which we first reach the church of —

S. Spirito (Pl. E, 6, 7), with a dome dating from 1508, and portal from 1519, the latter designed by Baldassare Peruzzi.

The 1st chapel on the right (Cappella degli Spagnuoli) contains paintings by Sodoma: in the lunette, St. James on horseback (fresco); on the pillars, SS. Antonius Abbas and Sebastian; in the lunette of the altar, The Madonna presenting the gown of the Order of the Dominicans to St. Alfonso, in the presence of SS. Cecilia and Lucia (the last three oil-paintings). To the right is a Nativity of Christ in terracotta by Ambrogio della Robbia. — Over the door leading to the sacristy, Christ on the Cross, by Sano di Pietro. — Over the third altar to the left, Coronation of the Virgin by Pacchia. — In the CLOISTERS (sagrestano 5-6 soldi): Crucifixion by a pupil of Fra Bartolommeo, probably designed by the great master himself.

The Fonte de' Pispini dates from 1534. The neighbouring Porta Pispini (Pl. F, 8) is embellished with a damaged fresco (Nativity) by Sodoma.

Opposite S. Spirito we enter the Vicolo del Sasso, follow to the right the broad Via S. Girolamo, and passing the column with the wolf, we reach S. Girolamo (Pl. D, 7), belonging to a convent (on the 3rd altar to the left, Madonna with saints by Matteo da Siena, framed in marble by Lorenzo di Mariano). On the left we next come to the church of —

SS. Concezione, or Servi di Maria (Pl. D, 8), erected in 1471, the beautiful interior completed in 1511-33, probably by Bald. Peruzzi.

First altar to the right: Madonna, by Coppo di Marcovaldo, 1281. Fourth altar to the right: Slaughter of the Innocents, by Matteo da Siena, 1491; above, Adoration of the Shepherds, by Taddeo Bartolo. — In the right transept, above the first door leading to the sacristy: 'La Vergine del Popolo', by Lippo Memmi, an able work. — At the back of the high altar, 'Madonna del Manto', ascribed to Matteo da Siena, 1436. The Coronation of the Virgin, by Fungai (1500?), is one of his earlier works.

The Porta Romana (Pl. D, 8) is adorned with a fresco (Coronation of the Virgin) begun by Taddeo Bartoli and finished by Sano di Pietro. — About  $\frac{1}{3}$  M. beyond the gate is the church of Madonna degli Angeli, the choir of which contains a Madonna with saints, by Raffaele da Firenze, 1502.

Opposite the N. side of the Palazzo del Governo (p. 30) the VIA S. VIGILIO leads to the E. to the church of the same name and to the University (Pl. 28; E, 5). The entrance to the latter is in the corner to the right; in the corridor is the monument of the celebrated jurist Niccolò Aringhieri (d. 1374), with a bas-relief representing the professor in the midst of his audience.

The neighbouring church of S. Maria di Provenzano (Pl. 7; E, 5) dates from 1594. — Traversing several streets to the E. we reach the grass-grown PIAZZA DI S. FRANCESCO (Pl. F, 5), in which are situated the church of S. Francesco and the Oratorio di S. Bernardino.

The church of S. Francesco, finished in 1236, contains (in the left transept) frescoes by Ambrogio Lorenzetti, representing the Crucifixion, St. Francis receiving the gown of his order, Martyrs in Asia. The chapel of the Seminary adjoining the church contains a Madonna nourishing the Child by Lorenzetti (wall facing the windows), and a Madonna and saints by Barna (left wall).

The *Oratorio di S. Bernardino (Pl. F, 5; fee 1 fr.) possesses admirable pictures, especially by Sodoma.

LOWER ORATORIO: Scenes from the life of St. Bernardino, of the latter part of the 16th cent. — *UPPER ORATORIO: Presentation in the Temple, Salutation, Assumption, and Coronation of the Virgin; 88. Nativity of the Virgin, Annunciation, and St. Bernardino, by Girolamo del Pacchia, 1518. The visitor should particularly observe the admirable enrichments of the ceiling, the frieze, etc., which are among the most tasteful of early Renaissance works, executed by Giuliano Turapilli after 1496. Altar-piece by Beccafumi, 1537.

The Via dei Rossi leads straight to the VIA CAVOUR, which with its prolongation, the Via Camollia, extends from the Casino de' Nobili (p. 25) to the Porta Camollia, a distance of nearly 1 M. Approaching from the Casino de' Nobili, we first reach a small piazza, named after the Palazzo Tolomei (Pl. 26), a Gothic edifice of 1205, on the left, and also adorned with a wolf. Farther on, the Palazzi Palmieri (1540), Bichi (1520), with a fine loggia with modern paintings, Gori (1677) and **Spannocchi* (Pl. 25), built in 1470 by a Florentine master, and recently thoroughly restored.

To the left next diverges the VIA DELLE BELLE ARTI, which contains the Art Institution and the Library and leads straight to the church of S. Domenico.

The *Istituto delle Belle Arti (Pl. 10; D, E, 4) contains a valuable collection of pictures, principally of the older Sienese school, formed at the beginning of the present century of works procured from suppressed monasteries and from the Palazzo Pubblico, and gradually extended since that period. Admission 9-3 o'clock daily, except on Sundays and holidays, when access may be obtained for a gratuity.

At the entrance, reliefs of little value. The numbering of the pictures is as nearly as possible chronological and begins in the corridor to the left with the early Sienese school. I. CORRIDOR: 1-5. From this street the Via de' Campani verges to the right to the former monastery de' Campani, now the Ricovero di Mendiciti (Pl. F, 2; visitors ring); the cloisters are adorned with a fresco by Matteo Balducci. Handsome rococo church.

We continue our way up the Via Camollia for some minutes, and, opposite a small square, turning to the left under an archway, and descending the Via Fontegiusta, arrive at the little church of—

Fontegiusta (Pl. F, 2), belonging to a brotherhood (if closed, ring the bell to the right). This church was built by Francesco di Cristofano Fedeli and Giacomo di Giovanni in 1479, and possesses a beautiful *high-altar by Lorenzo di Mariano (1517), one of the finest existing sculptures of Raphael's time. The bronze holy-water basin, by Giov. delle Bombarde, is of simple but able workmanship. The 3rd altar to the right is adorned with a Coronation of the Madonna by Fungai; the 2nd to the left with a restored fresco by B. Peruzzi, the Sibyl announcing to Augustus the Nativity of Christ.

Farther up in the Via Camollia, to the right, No. 48, is the house of Baldassare Peruzzi (p. 24), indicated by an inscription.

A pleasant WALK may be taken by a road that skirts the town-walls to the right, outside the Porta Camollia (Pl. F, 1), affording pleasant views of the Tuscan hills. On a height opposite, beyond the railway-station, lies the monastery of Osservanza (see below); in the valley below, outside the Porta Ovile (Pl. F, 4), is the picturesque Fonte Ovile. In about  $\frac{1}{2}$  hr. we reach the Porta Pispini (Pl. F, 8; p. 31). — About  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. beyond the Porta Camollia, on the road to Colle, stands the \**Palazzo dei Turchi*, generally known as the Pal. dei Diavoli, a fine brick building of the close of the 15th century.

The Campo Santo is adorned with sculptures by Dupré, Sarrocchi, and others.

Excursions (most of them best made by carriage). — About  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. to the N.E. of Siena, beyond the railway-station, is situated the suppressed Franciscan monastery of L'Osservanza, erected in 1423. The N. aisle of the church contains a \*Coronation of the Virgin, a relief of the school of Della Robbia; at the back of the high altar, two \*statues, Mary and the Archangel Gabriel, of the same school. Pandolfo Petrucci is interred in this church (d. 1512; p. 22).

Leaving the Porta Camollia, we follow the high road for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. and then diverge to the left by the road passing between two cypresses and descending into the valley. This road leads us to the villa S. Colomba (4½ M.), designed by Bald. Colomba we continue to follow the road by which we arrived, which leads through beautiful woods to Celsa (3¾ M. from Colomba), a castellated villa, also designed by *Bald. as one of the most powerful of the twelve confederate cities of Etruria (like Cortona and Perugia) concluded peace with the Romans in the year of B.C. 310, after which it continued to be an ally of the Consul C. Flaminius constructed the Via Flaminia from Arretium (Bologna), of which traces are still distinguishable. In the year 89 B.C. Arretium was destroyed by Sulla, but was subsequently colonized by Julia Arretina, and again prospered. Its manufactures were of ware vases, of superior quality, and weapons. — In the middle ages it was one of the most powerful cities of Etruria, and at a later date from the party-struggles of the Guelphs and Ghibellines, in which it generally took the part of the latter against the Guelphs of Florence. In the 14th cent. it was for a time subject to the rule of the Tarlati, and in 1337 temporarily, and in the 16th cent. under Cosmo I. finally to that of Florence.

Arezzo was the birthplace of many distinguished men, of whom may be mentioned: C. Cilnius Maecenas (d. 9 A.D.), the friend of Augustus and patron of Virgil and Horace; the Benedictine monk Guido Aretino (1000-1050), the inventor of our present system of musical notation; Francesco Petrarca, the greatest lyric poet of Italy, born of Florentine parents in 1304 (d. 1374); Pietro Aretino, the satirist (1492-1557); several members of the noble family of the Accolti, jurists and historians, in the 15-17th cent.; A. Cesalpini, the botanist and physician (1519-1603); Franc. Redi, the physician and humourist (d. 1698). — Arezzo has also produced several artists: Margaritone (about 1236), a painter and sculptor of no great importance; Spinello Aretino (1318-1410), an able pupil of Giotto, whose style he steadily followed and rendered popular (his best works are in S. Miniato near Florence, in the Campo Santo at Pisa, and in the Palazzo Comunale in Siena); at a later period Giorgio Vasari (1512-74), the painter, architect, and biographer of artists. The town, however, never possessed a school of its own. Its requirements in the province of art, which were at their height in the 13-14th cent., were fulfilled by Florentine and Sienese masters, and Giotto, Lippo Memmi, Lorenzetti, and others were employed here.

Leaving the station, we follow the new VIA GUIDO MONACO leading in 5 min. to the VIA CAVOUR. Here, to the right, in the small Piazza S. Francesco, is a Monument to Count Fossombrone (b. in Arezzo 1754, d. 1844; Pl. 1; p. 42), and the church of —

In the CHOIR: *Frescoes by Piero della Francesca, the master of Luca Signorelli (best light in the evening). They narrate the legend of the Holy Cross, according to which a seed of the tree of knowledge, planted upon Adam's grave, grew up to be a tree. Solomon caused the tree to be felled and a bridge to be constructed of the wood, of which the Queen of Sheba afterwards discovered the origin. At a later period it was used for making the Holy Cross. The Emp. Heraclius rescued the cross in a battle with the Persians, and it was afterwards re-discovered by St. Helena. All these scenes, from the death of Adam down to the finding of the cross, are portrayed by Piero with great technical skill, in which respect, as well as in his appreciation of the nude, he surpassed all his contemporaries. His pictures, however, are stiff and destitute of gracefulness. — The Evangelists on the ceiling have been attributed to Bicci di Lorenzo. — The NAVE, recently freed from whitewash, contains frescoes by Spinello Aretino, sadly injured. The following pictures are also placed here temporarily: Madonna surrounded by numerous saints, a characteristic work of the Sienese master Pietro Lorenzetti, brought from the church of the Pieve (see below); and St. Rochus being invoked during the plague, two pictures by Bartolommeo della Gatta, a master who was influenced by Signorelli.

The Via Cavour forms a right angle with the CORSO VITTORIO EMANUELE, the principal street of the town. Ascending this street, we observe on the right the interesting church of —

S. Maria della Pieve (Pl. 3), which is said to have been built at the beginning of the 9th cent. on the site of a temple of Bacchus; tower and facade of 1216. The latter is very peculiar, consisting of four series of columns, distributed with singular incongruity. Ancient sculptures over the doors. The Interior, now undergoing restoration, consists of a nave and aisles with a dome.

The Via di Seteria diverges here from the Corso to the right and leads to the PIAZZA GRANDE, embellished with a fountain and a Monument of Ferdinand III., erected in 1822 (Pl. 4). On the N.

side of this square are the Loggie (Pl. 5), built by Vasari in 1573. — To the left of the choir of S. Maria della Pieve is situated the — *Museum (Pl. 6) in the cloister of the Fraternità della Misericordia, with a handsome Gothic façade of the 14th cent. On the first floor are the museum and library.

Visitors ring on the first floor opposite the entrance door. Rooms I. and II. contain a rich Palaeontological Collection, chiefly from the vicinity of Arezzo (comp. p. 38). Among the fossils is a stag's head found in the Chiana Valley not far from Arezzo. — Room III. By the wall of the entrance, antique and modern bronzes. Right wall, Roman inscriptions and reliefs. On the wall of egress, antique utensils in bronze. In the centre, a mediæval and antique vase, Combat of Hercules and the Amazons. In the centre an antique vase, Cinerary urns and other vessels in red clay (vasa Arretina, p. 39). — Room IV.: fine majolicas dating from the 16th cent.; in the cabinets, cinerary urns and other vessels in red clay. — Room V.: Etruscan cinerary urns. In the centre several antique vases — on one of them the abduction of Hippodamia by Pelops. To the right a reliquary of the 15th cent., by Forzore, containing the bones of the martyrs Laurentius and Pergentius.

Passing under Vasari's Loggie we now return to the Corso, which we reach just opposite the Palazzo Pubblico (Pl. 7). This edifice, built in 1322, and adorned with numerous armorial bearings of the ancient Podestà, has unfortunately been modernised, and is now used as a prison.

A little farther the Via dell' Orto diverges to the left, near the entrance to which, No. 22, a long inscription indicates the house (Pl. 8) in which Francesco Petrarca was born, 20th July, 1304, his parents, like Dante, the victims of a faction, having been expelled from Florence (p. 39). In the vicinity rises the — *Cathedral, a fine specimen of Italian Gothic, begun in 1177, with later additions; façade unfinished.

The interior, which has no transept and is of handsome and spacious proportions, contains stained glass windows, dating from the beginning of the 16th cent., by the Guillaume de Marseille; the middle window in the choir is modern. In the Right Aisle is the Tomb of Gregory X., by Margaritone (? Pisan school). This indefatigable prelate expired at Arezzo, 10th Jan., 1276, on his return from France to Rome, after having proclaimed a new crusade. — On the High Altar, marble sculptures by Giovanni Pisano 1286: Madonna with SS. Donatus and Gregory, and bas-reliefs from the lives. — In the Left Aisle is the tomb of the poet and physician Redi (d. 1698). Near it is the chapel of the Madonna del Soccorso with two altars of the Robbia school. Farther on, at the E. end of the left aisle, the Tomb of Guido Tarlati di Pietramala, the warlike bishop of Arezzo, the work of Giotto, as Vasari conjectures, in 16 sections, representing the life of this ambitious and energetic prelate, who, having been elected governor of the town in 1321, soon distinguished himself as a conqueror, and afterwards crowned the Emperor Louis the Bavarian in the church of S. Ambrogio at Milan (d. 1327). — Close to the door of the sacristy is a St. Magdalene, al fresco by Piero della Francesca.

In front of the cathedral rises a Marble Statue of Ferdinand de' Medici, by Giovanni da Bologna, erected in 1595. In the cathedral-square (No. 1) is the Palazzo Comunale (Pl. 9), adorned with numerous old armorial bearings.

We now follow the Via Ricasoli, and then turn to the right into the Via Sassaverde, No. 12. in which, the Palazzo Capel di Ferro, contains the small municipal collection of paintings, called the PINACOTECA BARTOLINI (open on week-days 10-3;  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.). Among the ancient frescoes, old and modern oil-paintings, and engravings, there is little that is particularly striking; the most noteworthy objects are a \**Madonna enthroned*, surrounded by saints, by Luca Signorelli (painted about 1520), and several works by Vasari.

The church of S. Domenico (Pl. 10), situated in the Piazza Fossumbrone, is adorned with frescoes by Spinello Aretino and others.

In the Borgo di S. Vito, on the right, is the House of Giorgio Vasari (No. 27), containing works by the master. The street leads back to the W. end of the Via Cavour (p. 40).

In a small piazza adjoining the Via Cavour stands the church of S. Annunziata (Pl. 12), a handsome Renaissance structure chiefly by Antonio da Sangallo; the interior, with its tunnel-vaulting, is very picturesque; stained glass of the 15th cent.

Farther on in the Via Cavour is the Badia di S. Fiore (Pl. 13), also situated in a small piazza, which is now the seat of the Accademia Aretina di Scienze, Lettere ed Arti. The LIBRARY, formerly the refectory, contains the Feast of Ahasuerus by Vasari, 1548.

At the lower end of the Corso, near the Porta S. Spirito, the Via dell' Anfiteatro (to the left) leads to the church of S. Bernardo (Pl. 14); the frescoes in the anterior quadrangle are attributed to P. Uccello. From the corridor to the left are seen the insignificant remains of a Roman amphitheatre in the garden.

About  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the Porta S. Spirito (outside which we take the avenue to the left, and then at the corner, after 3 min., the road to the right), is situated the church of S. Maria delle Grazie, an edifice of the early Renaissance period, with an elegant porch borne by columns, and a handsome altar, by Benedetto da Majano (?).

On leaving Arezzo we obtain a beautiful retrospect of the town, from which the cathedral rises picturesquely. The railway and high-road skirt the chain of hills which separate the valleys of the Arno and Chiana from the upper valley of the Tiber. Beyond a tunnel the train crosses the plain in a straight direction to (63 M.) Frassinetto and (66 M.) Castelfiorentino, the latter situated on a mountain spur. Farther on, to the left, the dilapidated fortress of Montecchio. Somewhat farther, the loftily situated Cortona becomes visible to the left in the distance.

The luxuriant and richly cultivated Valley of the Chiana, which was anciently a lake, was a noisome swamp down to the middle of last century. The level was raised and carefully drained, the brooks being so directed as to deposit their alluvial soil in the bottom of the valley. This judicious system was originated by Torricelli and Viviani, celebrated mathematicians of the school of Galileo, and carried out by the worthy Count Fossombrone, who combined the pursuits of a scholar and a statesman (p. 40). The Chiana, Lat. Clanis, which once flowed into the Tiber, now discharges most of its waters into the Arno by means of a canal, and only one arm, which joins the Paglia at Orvieto (p. 59), reaches the Tiber.

A carriage road ( $\frac{3}{4}$  hr.; omnibus 1 fr.) ascends to Cortona, passing S. Spirito on the right, and reaching the town on the S. side. Pedestrians cut off the windings by following the old road, which passes the Madonna del Calcinajo (a small early Renaissance building by Ant. da Sangallo, with a handsome altar of 1519) and leads to the low-lying S.W. gate of the town (p. 44).

Cortona. ALBERGO DELLA STELLA, at the W. entrance of the town; ALB. NAZIONALE, farther up in the Via Nazionale, both clean and good. (Enquiry as to charges had better be made beforehand.)

Cortona, a small, loftily situated town with 9000 inhab. (with neighbouring villages 26,000), above the valley of the Chiana, and not far from the Trasimene Lake, is one of the most ancient cities in Italy. Its situation and views, its Etruscan antiquities, and the number of good pictures it possesses, render it well worthy of a visit.

It appears that the Etruscans, immigrating from the plain of the Po, wrested the place from the Umbrians, and constituted it their principal stronghold when they proceeded to extend their conquests in Etruria. Cortona was one of the twelve confederate cities of Etruria, and with them shared the fate of being converted into a Roman colony. After various vicissitudes and struggles it came under the dominion of Florence in 1410.

LUCA SIGNORELLI, one of the most distinguished painters of the 15th cent., was born at Cortona in 1441. He has justly been called a precursor of Michael Angelo. Like his master Piero della Francesca (p. 40), he was a zealous student of anatomy; in the embodiment of the nude, in the conception of movement and foreshortening he surpasses all his contem-ry of refined pictorial sentiment pour in his pictures. He there-a suitable field for his abilities of much importance. — Cortona

saler. — In the Sacristy, a Madonna by the same.
oir, an ancient sarcophagus, representing the contest the Amazons, erroneously supposed to be the tomb lus (p. 48).

Opposite the cathedral is the Baptistery, formerly a Jesuit Church. It contains two pictures by Luca Signorelli, the Conception and Nativity, and three by Fra Angelico da Fiesole, the Annunciation and two predelle, representing scenes from the life of the Virgin and S. Domenico.

Passing the colonnades of the theatre in the Piazza Signorelli, we follow the Via Dardano in a straight direction to the Porta Dardano, where we obtain the best survey of the *ANCIENT ETRUSCAN TOWN WALLS, constructed of huge blocks, and for the most part well preserved, which surround the town in a circumference of about 2860 yds., and along the outside of which we may descend.

Ascending the Via S. Margherita from S. Domenico, we reach (20 min.) the hill commanding the town, on which are situated the church of S. Margherita, and a dilapidated fortress (see below). — About halfway up, the Via delle Santucce diverges to the left, and leads in a few minutes to the church of S. Niccolò, with a small entrance court planted with cypresses.

The INTERIOR (1½ fr.) contains a freely restored fresco and an *altar-piece, painted on both sides (in front the Body of Christ borne by angels and surrounded by saints; at the back, Madonna della Seggiola with SS. Peter and Paul), by Luca Signorelli. — The sacristan will point out a direct route, ascending hence by steps to S. Margherita.

The church of S. MARGHERITA, a Gothic building by Niccolò and Giovanni Pisano, possesses a handsome rose window, which has of late been partially renewed and enlarged. In the high-altar is the tomb of the saint (13th cent.); the silver front with the golden crown was presented by Pietro da Cortona. — The visitor should not omit to ascend somewhat higher to the old *FORTezza, 2165 ft. in height (trifling fee), from the walls of which the noble prospect is entirely uninterrupted, except at the back, where it is bounded by the mountain-chain (Alto di S. Egidio, 3432 ft.).

Besides the town-walls, there are several less interesting antiquities: an ancient vault beneath the Palazzo Cecchetti; near S. Margherita, remains of Roman Baths, erroneously called a 'Temple of Bacchus'; outside the gate of S. Agostino, an Etruscan tomb, the 'Grotta di Pitagora'.

The visitor may (by presenting a visiting-card) possibly obtain access to the private collection of Sign. Colonnese in the Palazzo Madama, Via Nazionale 5: beautiful half-length picture of St. Stephen and a Nativity by Luca Signorelli, a picture of the German school, and two Italian works of the 15th century.

76 M. Terontola, an unimportant place near the N.W. angle of the Trasimene Lake, is the junction of the lines to Chiusi, Orte, and Rome (see R. 8), and to Perugia and Foligno. Passengers in the latter direction change carriages here.

The Lago Trasimeno, the ancient Lacus Trasimenus (846 ft.), is 30 M. in circumference, and at places 8 M. in breadth, and is surrounded by wooded and olive-clad slopes, which as they recede rise to a considerable height. The lake contains three Restaurant. Progresso, Piazza Sopramura, near Via Nuova.

Café. 'Baduel', Trasimeno, both in the Corso; Melinski, in the Piazza S. Lorenzo, opposite the Cathedral fountain; also a pleasant Café under the arcades of the Prefettura, with view.
Post-Office: Via Prefettura, 93. — Telegraph Office at the Prefettura, in the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele. — Diligence Office, Corso 38.
 Perugia is well adapted for a summer resort, and apartments are not expensive. — One day, or a day and a half at least should be devoted to the town. As a guide (not indispensable) Giovanni Scicchi is recommended, but dilettanti are cautioned against purchasing his 'antiquities'; also Al. Rotoni.

Perugia, the capital of the province of Umbria, with 16,700 inhab. (including the villages 49,500), residence of the prefect, of a military commandant, and a bishop, and the seat of a university, lies on a group of hills about 1300 ft. above the valley of the Tiber (1707 ft. above the level of the sea). The town is built in an antiquated style, partly on the top of the hill, and partly on its slope. Numerous buildings of the 14th and 15th cent. (when the town was in the zenith of its prosperity), the paintings of the Umbrian school, and the fine and extensive views of the peculiar scenery, render Perugia one of the most interesting places in Italy.

Perusia was one of the twelve Etruscan confederate cities, and not less ancient than Cortona. With which and Arretium it fell into the hands of the Romans, B. C. 310. It became a municipium. In the war between Octavianus and Antony, who in the summer of 41 occupied Perusia, and after an obstinate struggle was compelled by the former to surrender (bellum Perusinum), the town suffered severely, and was finally rebuilt and became a Roman colony. In the 6th cent. it was destroyed by the Goths. In the wars of the Lombards, it was destroyed by the Goths Totila after a siege of nearly three years. It acquired the supremacy over the other cities of Umbria, but in 1370 was compelled to surrender to the Duke of Bracciano, owing to the conflict between the Guelphs, and Ghibellines. In 1416 the Duke of Montone usurped the sovereignty, and in 1420 Pope Eugenius IV. caused him to be executed. Baglioni surrendered the citadel, and was executed at Rome in 1520. Pope Paul III. erected the citadel, and as the inscription, destroyed during the last revolution, recorded. In 1540 Paul III. erected the citadel, and as the inscription, destroyed during the last revolution, recorded. In 1708 the town was captured by the Duke of Savoy, on 31st May 1849 by the Austrians, and in 1860 by the Piedmontese.

Umbrian School of Painting. As early as the time of Dante an Umbrian artist, the miniature painter ODERISI of Gubbio, was celebrated, and art was practised in Gubbio, Fabriano, Perugia, etc. The neighbouring Siena doubtless exercised an influence on the prevailing style of art, which was confirmed by the situation of the towns, the character of their inhabitants, and the religious atmosphere diffused by Assisi and Loreto. Neither dramatic power, nor wealth of imagination is to be found in the Umbrian style, its characteristic features being reverie, tranquillity, and gentleness of sentiment. The men portrayed often appear destitute of individuality and vigour, the female figures, on the other hand, excite our admiration owing to their winning and devout expressions. Technical improvements seem to have been introduced but slowly, but the old style was thoroughly cultivated and rendered more attractive by frequent use of decorative adjuncts.

Setting aside the painters of the 14th cent., who were dispersed among various small towns, we find that Ottaviano Nelli of Gubbio (15th cent.) was the first able representative of this school. Works by this master are preserved both at his native town and at Foligno. Nelli was, however, eclipsed by Gentile da Fabriano (b. about 1360-70), who probably had studied the Sienese masters in his youth, and who afterwards undertook long journeys (e. g. to Venice and Rome), thus establishing his reputation throughout Italy. His style not unfrequently resembles the Flemish. Besides Gubbio and Fabriano, other Umbrian towns possessed local schools of painting, such as Camerino and Foligno. The latter, about the middle of the 15th cent., gave birth to Niccolò Alunno, a man of limited ability, which, however, he cultivated to the utmost. His prevailing theme is the Madonna, to whose features he imparts beauty in happy combination with reverie; and in this department he may be regarded as the precursor of Perugino and Raphael.

Meanwhile PERUGIA, the largest city in this district, by no means remained idle. In this wider and more enterprising field the old conventional styles were soon abandoned as unsatisfactory, and the necessity of adopting the Florentine style was urgently felt. In the latter half of the 15th century Benedetto Buonfigli was the first master who strove to throw aside the local style of painting, and the same effort was made by Fiorenzo di Lorenzo, a younger master and perhaps a pupil of Benedetto.

This improved style was brought to maturity by PIETRO VANNUCCI of Città della Pieve (1446-1524), surnamed PERUGINO, after the chief scene of his labours, a master to whom the Umbrian school is chiefly indebted for its fame. Perugia was, however, by no means the only sphere of his activity. He repeatedly spent years together in Florence, and was employed for a considerable time in Rome. His endeavours to overcome the defects of his native school were crowned with success. In Verrocchio's studio in Florence he was initiated into the secrets of perspective and the new mode of colouring, and in both respects attained consummate skill. Down to the beginning of the 16th cent. his excellence continued unimpaired, as his frescoes in the Cambio, and his Madonna and saints (No. 38) in the Gallery at Perugia sufficiently prove. During the last twenty years of his life, however, his works show a falling off, occasioned, doubtlessly, by his accepting more orders than he could conscientiously execute, whereby his art was degraded to a mere handicraft. He seems, indeed, to have had more studios than one at the same time, as for example in 1502-5 both at Florence and Perugia, in the latter of which the young Raphael was employed.

Another great master of the Umbrian school, vying with Perugino, is BERNARDINO BETTI, surnamed PINTURICCHIO (1454-1513). Although he exercised no considerable influence on the progress of Italian art, and introduced no striking improvements like Leonardo, and others, yet he thoroughly understood how to utilise the traditional style and the current forms, and was marvellously prolific as a fresco painter. The Vatican and Roman churches, the Cathedral library at Siena, and the Collegiate church at Spello, are the chief scenes of his activity. — Amongst the younger contemporaries of Perugino we must next mention Giovanni di Pietro, surnamed Lo Spagna after his native country, whose paintings are hardly inferior to the early works of Raphael, and who, in common with all the Umbrian masters, exhibits great ease of execution.

Other assistants of Perugino, but of inferior merit, were Giannicola di Paolo Manni (d. 1544) and Eusebio di S. Giorgio. The latter was so successful in imitating Raphael in superficial respects, that several of his pictures, amongst others the Adoration of the Magi in the picture gallery at Perugia (No. 8), have been attributed to Raphael himself. Of Sinibaldo Ibi and Tiberio d'Assisi, who flourished during the first twenty years of the 16th cent., little is known, and their works are rare. Gerino of Pistoja seems to have been a good painter of the average class, and the works of Domenico di Paris Alfani, a friend of Raphael, possess considerable attraction. These last masters, however, show little individuality.

At the middle of the 16th century the Umbrian school was completely merged in those of Rome and Florence.

At the entrance to the upper part of the town, on the site of the citadel, which was removed in 1860, extends the PIAZZA VITTORIO EMANUELE (Pl. B, 5), in which rises the Prefettura, a simple and handsome modern building, adorned with arcades on the ground-floor. The garden terrace affords a *superb view of the Umbrian valley. With Assisi, Spello, Foligno, Trevi, and numerous other villages, enclosed by the principal chain of the Apennines extending from Gubbio onwards; the Tiber and part of the lower quarters of Perugia are also visible. (A band plays here twice a week.)

Northwards from the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele runs the Corso to the left, leading to the Cathedral square; and the Via Riarra to the right, leading to the Piazza Sopramura (p. 53).

We follow the Corso to the left, which is the busiest and handsomest street in the town. No. 241, on the right, is the Palazzo Baldeschi (Pl. 21; B, 4), on the 2nd floor of which is preserved a *drawing by Raphael (Pinturicchio?) for the 5th fresco in the library of the cathedral of Siena (p. 28; fee 1/2 fr.).

On the left, farther on, is No. 249, the *Collegio del Cambio (Pl. 31; B, 4), the old chamber of commerce, containing frescoes by Perugino, dating from his best period, 1500. (Custodian 1/2 fr.; best light in the morning.)

These frescoes adorn the *SALA DEL CAMBIO: on the right, Sibyls and Prophets; above, God the Father; on the left, heroes, kings, and philosophers of antiquity; opposite, the Nativity and Transfiguration; on a pillar to the left, the portrait of Perugino; the whole surrounded by admirable arabesques. Raphael is said to have been one of Perugino's pupils who assisted in the execution of these frescoes, and whose handiwork is traceable in the arabesques on the ceiling. Perugino received 350 ducats for his work from the guild of merchants. The carved and inlaid work ('tarsia') of the judicial benches, doors, etc., by Antonio Merello, which are amongst the finest Renaissance works of the kind, also deserve notice. — The adjacent CHAPEL contains an altar-piece and frescoes by Giannicola Manni.

Immediately adjoining the Collegio is the *Palazzo Pubblico (or Comunale, Pl. 22; B, 4), a huge edifice of 1281 and 1333, recently skilfully restored, with its principal façade towards the Corso and a second towards the Piazza del Duomo. It is adorned with fine windows, a handsome portal, and Gothic sculptures (the armorial bearings of the allied town, saints, etc.). In the group of animals over the chief entrance, the griffin represents Perugia, while the wolf, overcome by it, is Siena. The victory gained by the Perugians in 1358 over the Sienese is also commemorated by trophies (chains, bars of gates) on the portal in the Piazza del Duomo. In the Sala della Prefettura (third story, entrance from the Corso) are damaged frescoes from the history of St. Herculaneus and St. Louis of Toulouse by Bonfigli.

In the PIAZZA DEL DUOMO (Pl. B, 4) rises the *Fonte Maggiore dating from 1277, and one the finest fountains of that period

Italy. It consists of three admirably constructed basins, adorned with numerous biblical and allegorical figures in relief, executed by Niccolò and Giovanni Pisano and Arnolfo del Cambio (1280; two of the statuettes are modern substitutes). — The W. side of the piazza is occupied by the Episcopal Palace (Pl. 30), behind which is the so-called Maestà delle Volte (Pl. 32), a relic of the former Palazzo del Podestà, which was burned down in 1329 and again in 1534.

The Cathedral of S. Lorenzo (Pl. 11; B. 4), dating from the 15th cent., is unfinished. Adjoining the entrance from the precious MSS., such as the Codex of St.

On the W. and N. side of the Cathedral is situated the PIAZZA DEL PAPA (Pl. B. C, 3, 4), so named from the bronze statue of Julius III. by Vinc. Danti (1556). — Opposite the W. portal of the Cathedral, Nos. 8-10, is the Palazzo Conestabile; the small gallery which it contained is now dispersed, and the celebrated Madonna by Raphael was sold to the Emperor of Russia in 1871 for 350,000 fr.

From the N. angle of the Piazza del Papa the Via Vecchia descends to the Arco di Augusto (Pl. 2; C, 3), an ancient town-gate with the inscription Augusta Perusia. The foundations date from the Etruscan period, and the upper portion from that subsequent to the conflagration. From this point the direction of the walls of the ancient city, which occupied the height where the old part of the present town stands, may be distinctly traced. Considerable portions of the wall are still preserved.

The small space in front of the Arco di Augusto is called the PIAZZA GRIMANI (Pl. C, 3); to the left is the Palazzo Antinori, dating from 1758. — A little to the N. lies the church of S. Agostino (Pl. 5; C, 2), containing several pictures by Perugino and other Umbrian Masters, and handsome choir-stalls.

From the Palazzo Antinori the Via de' Pasteni leads in a few minutes to the University (Pl. B, 2), established in 1320 in a monastery of Olivetans, which was suppressed by Napoleon. It possesses

School of Mantegna; 220. Fiesole, Miracles of St. Nicholas of Bari; above it, unnumbered, Fiesole, Annunciation; 216, *223, 229. Fiesole, Madonna and saints; 236. Raphael (?), Madonna; 237. Perugino, Circumcision of Christ; 247. Same, Adoration of the Magi; Domenico Bartolo, Altar-piece. Below, an autograph letter of Perugino.

The first floor contains the ANTIQUARIAN MUSEUM. On the staircase and in the passages, Etruscan cinerary urns and Latin inscriptions. Contents of the rooms similar. In the 1st Room the longest Etruscan inscription known, consisting of 45 lines, as yet undeciphered, and ancient Etruscan sculptures. 2nd Room: Mediæval coins and other objects. 3rd Room: Ancient bronzes, among which are bronze and silver plates, found in 1810, appurtenances of a chariot, or, as is now supposed, from a tomb. 4th Room: Terracottas and several painted vases. Lid of a sarcophagus, Death seizing his victims. 5th Room: Cinerary urns of terracotta with traces of painting. In the centre a sarcophagus of terracotta, with sacrificial procession.

The other scientific collections are of little value. Two of the corridors contain casts of ancient and modern sculptures.

Near the Gate of S. Angelo (Pl. A, 1), to which the Via Longara leads from the Piazza Grimani, is situated the architecturally interesting church of S. Angelo, a circular structure with 16 antique columns in the interior, in the style of S. Stefano Rotondo in Rome, probably dating from the 6th cent., with additions of a later period. — On the other (S.) side of the Longara is S. Agnese, adorned with frescoes from the later period of Perugino and his pupils.

Ascending from the Piazza Grimani (p. 50) by the Monte di Porta Sole to the S.E. (or from the Piazza del Papa, p. 50, by the Via Bontempi to the E.), crossing the Piazza de' Gigli, and then taking the first side-street (Via di S. Severo) to the left, we reach *S. Severo (Pl. 14; C, 3), formerly a monastery of the order of Camaldoli, now a college, in the chapel of which Raphael painted his first fresco, probably in 1505, having left Perugino's school the year before, and gone to Florence.

The fresco, which was seriously damaged, and of late has been restored by Consoni, resembles the upper part of Raphael's Disputa in the Vatican; above, God the Father (obliterated) with three angels and the Holy Ghost; below, the Redeemer and the saints Maurus, Placidus, Benedict, Romuald, Benedict the Martyr, and John the Martyr. The inscription (added at a later period) runs thus: Raphael de Urbino dom. Octaviano Stephano Volaterrano Priore Sanctam Trinitatem angelos astantes sanctosque pinxit, A. D. MDV. At the sides, lower down, St. Scholastica, St. Jerome, St. John Ev., St. Gregory the Great, Boniface, and St. Martha, by Pietro Perugino. Inscription: Petrus de Castro Plebis Perusinus, tempore domini Silvestri Stephani Volaterrani a dextris et sinistris div. Christipherae sanctos sanctasque pinxit A. D. MDXXI.

A vaulted passage under the clock of the Palazzo Pubblico (p. 49) leads from the Corso to the VIA DE' PRIORI, the best route to the sights of the W. quarter of the town. The Via Deliziosa, diverging to the left near the small piazza in front of the Chiesa Nuova (Pl. 10; B, 4), contains (Pl. 18) the House of Perugino (?).

We continue to descend the Via de' Priori, passing the mediæval Torre degli Sciri, or degli Scatzi (Pl. 34; A, 4), and the Madonna della Luce (Pl. 4), a pleasing little Renaissance church of 1518, and an open space on the right. Opposite us here rises the —

*Oratorio di S. Bernardino (Confraternità della Giustizia, Pl. A, 3). The façade, executed by Agostino d'Antonio, a Florentine sculptor, in 1459-61, is a magnificent polychromic work, in which both coloured marble and terracotta are employed, while the ground of the numerous and very elaborate sculptures is also coloured. A picture in the interior, representing the festival of the church, contains an admirable view of the façade.

Immediately adjacent is the church of S. Francesco dei Conventuali, or del Prato (Pl. 9; A, 3), a Gothic edifice of about 1230, modernised in the last century.

The interior contains several pictures by the Alfani and other masters of the Umbrian school, and also a copy by Car. d'Arpino of Raphael's Entombment (now in the Borghese Gallery at Rome, p. 187), which was originally painted for this church. — A wooden reliquary in the Sacristy contains the bones of the Condottiere Braccio Fortebraccio, killed during the siege of Aquila, 5th June 1424, a few months after his rival Sforza had been drowned in the Pescara.

Cavaliere Guadabassi's Collection of Etruscan Antiquities, contained in his house near the Teatro Verzaro (Pl. B, 3), is worthy of a visit.

To the E. of the Corso, and parallel with it, stretches the PIAZZA DEL SOPRAMURO (Pl. C, 4), resting on extensive substructions, part of which belong to the ancient Etruscan town walls. — On the E. side of the Piazza rises the Palazzo del Capitano del Popolo, afterwards the Palazzo del Podestà (Pl. 29), dating from 1472; adjoining it is the old University, built in 1483; both edifices are now occupied by courts of justice (Pl. 35). Opposite, at the corner of the Via Nuova, is the Biblioteca Pubblica (Pl. 3; C, 4), containing 30,000 vols., and including MSS. of Stephanus Byzantinus, St. Augustine with paintings, and others.

The Via Riforma leads hence towards the S. to the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele (p. 49). We descend here immediately to the left, passing the substruction of the old citadel, where an ancient gate, called Porta Marzia (Pl. 33; C, 5), with interesting sculptures, and the inscriptions Augusta Perusia and Colonia Vibia, which was removed from its old site to make way for the fortress, has been re-erected. — We turn to the left here, and follow the broad main street with an avenue of acacias, at the end of which, to the left, rises the small Gothic church of S. Ercolano (Pl. 6; C, 5), with an altar consisting of an ancient sarcophagus.

The first side-street, which diverges to the right of the avenue before arriving at S. Ercolano, leads to the Palazzo della Penna (Pl. 27; C, 5), No. 42, to the right, lying a little back from the street. It contains a considerable picture gallery, which boasts of an admirable **Madonna and Child* with SS. Francis and Jerome, by Perugino; several other paintings of the Umbrian school, a round picture (Madonna and saints) by Signorelli, and a number of works by masters of the latter half of the 16th and 17th cent. (Caracci, Guercino, Pameggianino, Caravaggio, Salvator Rosa). Custodian 1/2-1 fr.

S. Domenico (Pl. 7; C, 6), originally a Gothic edifice of the 13th and 14th cent., built by Giov. Pisano in 1304, and almost entirely re-erected by Carlo Maderna in 1614, with a lofty campanile, part of which has been taken down.

In the LEFT TRANSEPT is the *Monument to Pope Benedict XI., who fell a victim to the intrigues of Philip IV. of France, and died in 1304 from eating poisoned figs. It was executed by Giovanni Pisano, and is one of the most famous monuments of its kind; above the recumbent figure of the pope rises a lofty canopy, borne by spiral columns and adorned with mosaics (above is a Madonna between bishops and monks). — The CHOIR, with a rectangular termination, contains a huge Gothic window (220 sq. yds in area), filled with rich stained glass, and the largest of its kind in Italy, executed in 1411 by Fra Bartolommeo of Perugia and recently restored. This window belonged to the original church of Giov. Pisano. — The inlaid Choir Stalls (tarsia) date from 1476.

A few minutes' walk farther on we pass through the Porta S. Pietro, built in 1475, and arrive at the former monastery and church of —

In the NAVE, above, are eleven large pictures by Ant. Vasillacchi, surnamed l'Aliense, of Perugia, a pupil of Tintoretto and Paolo Veronese, executed in 1592-94. — The RIGHT AISLE contains several pictures by Umbrian masters. The chapel of St. Joseph, adorned with modern frescoes, contains, on the left, the *Monumental relief of a Countess Baldeschi, executed in terracotta from a drawing by Fr. Overbeck; on the right, Holy Family, a copy from Andrea del Sarto, by Pontormo. — Then, above the door leading to the monastery, Two saints and a Holy Family by Sassoferrato, copies from Perugino and Bonifazio of Venice. Above the door leading to the Sacristy, Three saints, also a copy from Perugino by Sassoferrato. — In the SACRISTY (shown by the custodian, 5-10 soldi) are *five small half-figures of saints, by Perugino (which formerly surrounded the Ascension by the same master, removed by the French, now in Lyons); Holy Family, by Parmeggianino; *Infant Jesus and St. John, a copy from Perugino, by Raphael(?). — The Missals are embellished with good miniatures of the 16th cent.

The *CHOIR STALLS are in walnut, and are admirably carved and inlaid (tarsia) by Stefano da Bergamo, 1535. — Under the arch of the Choir, on each side, are ambos (pulpits) in stone, ornamented with reliefs on a golden ground, by Franc. di Guido, 1517-21.

The LEFT AISLE, beginning at the upper end by the choir, contains a picture by Buonfigli(?), Mary with the body of Christ and two saints, 1469. In the adjoining chapel is a marble altar with reliefs, partly gilded, by Mino da Fiesole, 1473. In the two following chapels: pictures by Guido Reni, Giorgio Vasari, and others. Between these, on the wall of the aisle: Judith, by Sassoferrato. Farther on: Adoration of the Magi, by Eusebio di Giorgio; Annunciation, a copy from Raphael, by Sassoferrato; Pietà (the body of Christ supported by Mary, St. John, and Joseph of Arimathæa), one of the later works of Perugino, and part of a large dismembered altar-piece from the Church of S. Agostino. Close to S. Pietro, on the opposite side of the street, are the gardens of the Passaggiata Pubblica (Pl. D, 8), extending to the Porta S. Costanzo, and commanding a magnificent *prospect of the valley of Foligno and the Apennines.

Besides the Gallery Penna, the visitor may inspect the following private collections: the collection of Avv. Romualdi, Via del Bufalo, No. 5 (near the Albergo Gran Bretagna), comprising bronzes, coins, cameos, drawings and paintings by An. Caracci, Perugino, etc. — The Galleria Monaldi (Pl. 26; B, 5), in the palazzo of the same name, at the corner of the Via Riaria and the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele, and the Galleria Meniconi (Pl. 25; C, 5), Via di Porta Romana, both chiefly contain works of later masters (end of 16th and 17th cent.).

Outside the Porta del Carmine is situated the pretty Cemetery (Pl. E, 3), containing a monument to the champions of liberty in 1859, erected by Conte Ett. Salvatore.

About 3 M. to the E. of Perugia, on this side of Ponte S. Giovanni, the first station on the route to Foligno and Rome, the ANCIENT ETRUSCAN NECROPOLIS of Perugia was discovered in 1480. Pedestrians, in going, may select the old road, quitting the town by the Porta S. Girolamo (Pl. D, 8, 7) and return by the new road to the Porta S. Costanzo (Pl. D, 8). Carriage there and back, a drive of 1½-2 hrs., 12 fr. — The most interesting of the tombs, and one of the handsomest, though not oldest in N. Etruria, is the 'Sepolcro de' Volunni (the tomb of the Volumnii), close to the road, where it is intersected by the railway. It consists of ten chambers, hewn in the coarse-grained tufa, of which the hill is composed, and bears inscriptions in Etruscan and Latin in front. A number of cinerary urns, with portraits of men and women, and various kinds of decoration, were found here. The tomb is well preserved; the urns, lamps, and other curiosities may be inspected at the neighbouring Villa of Count Baglioni, where the custodian is to be found.

FROM PERUGIA TO THE UPPER VALLEY OF THE TIBER (diligence daily in 4½ hrs. to Città di Castello). The road soon crosses the Tiber and ascends on its left bank to Fratta, or Umbertide, a small town 18½ M. from Perugia. In the church of S. Croce, a Descent from the Cross by Luca Signorelli. — Valuable collection of majolicas at the house of Sign. Dom. Mavarelli. — Farther on, the road crosses the Tiber twice, and then traverses a luxuriantly cultivated district, on its left bank, to — 14 M. Città di Castello (Locanda della Cannoniera), with 6000 inhab. (including suburbs 24,000), occupying the site of Tifernum Tiberinum, which was destroyed by Totila. In the 15th cent. it belonged to the Vitelli family, and afterwards to the Church. The town, which is built in the form of a rectangle, is still surrounded by the ancient walls built in 1518, and contains many interesting small buildings of the early Renaissance period, but few mediæval monuments.

All that remains of the old Cathedral of S. Florido, founded in 1012, is the campanile and the N. portal; the present building, an admirable specimen of the Renaissance style, was begun in 1482, and completed in 1522. Bramante has been frequently named as the builder, but Elia di Bartolommeo Lombardo is mentioned in the records as the architect. S. Domenico (containing a St. Sebastian by Luca Signorelli) is the only church that has preserved a Gothic character, and the Palazzo Com-nale the only secular edifice; the latter was built in the 14th cent. by a certain Angelus of Orvieto, in the style of the Florentine palaces.

The Vitelli, the lords and masters of the town, were like most of the magnates of the Renaissance period passionately addicted to building. The oldest of the four palaces of the 15th and 16th cent., which bear their name, is the Palazzo di Alessandro Vitelli; the handsomest is the Palazzo Vitelli a S. Giacomo, and the largest the Palazzo Vitelli a Porta S. Egidio. The small summer-house (Palazzino) connected with the latter is specially worthy of inspection.

Raphael, it is well known, painted his first independent works for churches in Città di Castello, but they have since disappeared, or (like the Sposalizio in the Brera at Milan) have been carried elsewhere. The only work of the master now here is a church banner, with the Trinity and Creation painted on linen, but in a deplorable condition. It was executed for the church of S. Trinità, and is now in the Palazzo Berlioli della Porta(?).

The church of S. Cecilia contains a Madonna by Luca Signorelli, and the Palazzo Mancini a *Nativity by the same master, as well as several other valuable pictures.

From Città di Castello to Arezzo, 22½ M., see p. 42.

About 10 M. to the N. of Città di Castello lies Borgo S. Sepolcro, a small and cheerful town. The churches contain several pictures by Piero della Francesca and Raffaello dal Colle, both of whom were born here. In S. Antonio Abbate, a fine Crucifixion by Signorelli.

From Borgo S. Sepolcro a road crosses the Central Apennines to Urbania (31 M.) and Urbino (p. 88). — The Source of the Tiber, near the village of Le Balze, may be visited from Borgo S. Sepolcro.

FROM PERUGIA TO NARNI BY TODI, about 56 M. (diligence). This road, formerly the scene of very brisk traffic, but now of merely local importance, descends rapidly into the valley of the Tiber, which it crosses and then remains on its left bank. The scenery presents no great attractions. About half-way between Perugia and Narni, and 19 M. to the E. of Orvieto lies —

Todi (Posta, at the gate), the ancient Umbrian Tuder, a loftily situated town (1496 ft.) with 5000 inhab.; the hill is so abrupt that the upper part of the town is not accessible to carriages. Its ancient importance is indicated by the fragments of walls and the extensive ruin of a Temple, or Basilica, usually styled a temple of Mars. Although poor in treasures of art, the town boasts of several interesting edifices, among which are the Cathedral and the Town Hall in the Piazza. The church of S. Fortunato possesses a handsome portal. The finest building of all, however, is the pilgrimage church of *S. Maria della Consolazione, in the form of a Greek cross and covered with a dome. The arms of the cross are also surmounted with domes, and are polygonal in shape with the exception of the choir, which is semicircular. The exterior is remarkable for its simple and massive style, and the interior for its symmetrical proportions and the delicately graduated ornamentation of its pillars. Being one of the noblest creations of the Renaissance period, this edifice was naturally attributed to Bramante. Documents, however, name Cola di Matteo da Caprarola (1508) as the architect, and Baldassare Peruzzi as his adviser. The progress of the building was remarkably slow, and it was not completed till 1604. — Todi was the birthplace of Jacopone da Todi (d. 1306), author of the 'Stabat mater dolorosa'.

From Todi to Narni 28 M., by the villages of Rosaro, Castel Todino, and San Gemine. About 1½ M. from the last, on the ancient, now abandoned Via Flaminia, are the interesting ruins of the once prosperous Carsulae. From San Gemine (7½ M. from Narni) two roads descend gradually to the beautiful valley of the Nera, one leading S.E. to Terni (see p. 78), and the other S. to Narni (p. 81).

8. From Florence by (Arezzo) Terontola and Chiusi to Rome.

198 M. RAILWAY. This is the most direct route from Florence to Rome. Express in 8 hrs., fares 38 fr. 5, 26 fr. 40 c.; ordinary train in 11 1/2 hrs., fares 34 fr. 50, 23 fr. 70, 16 fr. 55 c.; no change of carriages. The recently completed line from Terontola to Chiusi now connects the two railways of E. Tuscany, and greatly facilitates a visit to the interesting towns of this district. The main line to Rome diverges to the right (S.) from the branch line to Perugia, Assisi, and Foligno, and at first skirts the Trasimene Lake (comp. p. 45).

82 M. Castiglione del Lago, with 10,600 inhab. (incl. suburbs), lying to the left of a promontory extending into the lake, possesses an old palazzo of the Duchi della Cornia. On the right rise the hills which separate the valley of the Chiana from the sea.

87 M. Panicale, a small place with unimportant frescoes in its churches by Perugino and his school. The line takes a W. direction and joins the line from Siena in the valley of the Chiana (R. 4).

91 M. Chiusi. — Carriage with one horse to the town, lying to the right on a hill (3/4 hr.), 1 fr. Lion d'Oro, a mediocre inn, hardly to be recommended to ladies, bargaining necessary. — Trattoria Giul. Giometti, Via Porsenna, the landlord of which also provides rooms. The landlord of the Lion d'Oro keeps a collection of Etruscan antiquities for sale at exorbitant prices. Travellers are cautioned against making purchases of factured here. Chiusi, as 'antiquities' from Etruscan tombs are large (below) is obvious, who should be services of

A ticket of admission (1 fr.) to the Etruscan Museum, which is situated at the Municipio; the keys are kept by the be consulted as to the time required (8-4 fr. per day). Any other attendant should be declined.

Chiusi, the ancient Clusium, one of the twelve Etruscan capitals, frequently mentioned in the wars against Rome, and as the headquarters of Porsenna, was fearfully devastated by malaria in the middle ages but under the auspices of the grand-dukes of the House of Lorraine the Val di Chiana was gradually drained, and the town recovered from these disasters. It now numbers 4600 inhab. The walls are mediæval; a few relics of those of the Etruscan period may be distinguished near the cathedral, outside the Porta delle Torri. A walk thence round the town to the Porta Romana affords pleasing views of the S. portion of the Chiana Valley, Città della Pieve, the mountains of Cetona, to the N. the lakes of Chiusi and Montepulciano, and the latter town itself.

Under the town extends a labyrinth of subterranean passages, the precise object of which is unknown (inaccessible); they are believed to have belonged to an elaborate system of drainage, as the ancient Etruscans are known to have excelled in works of this kind, and were indeed, in this respect, far in advance of many modern nations.

The interesting **Museo Etrusco*, founded a few years ago, contains a valuable collection of objects found in the Etruscan tombs around Chiusi, such as vases (including several curious polychromic urns), dishes, bronzes, mirrors, sarcophagi, and especially cinerary urns, most of them of terracotta, and a few of alabaster and travertine.

The Cathedral of S. Mustiola consists almost entirely of fragments of ancient buildings; the eighteen columns of unequal thickness in the interior, and the tomb of S. Mustiola are derived from a similar source. The sacristy contains a mass-book illuminated with admirable miniatures of the 15th cent., chiefly by artists of the Siennese school. The walls of the arcades in the cathedral square bear numerous Etruscan and Roman inscriptions.

The great attraction of Chiusi are the ETRUSCAN TOMBS (tickets of admission and guide, see above), situated in isolated hills at some distance from the town. The most important are the following: to the N.E. the Deposito del Granduca, 2 M.; near it, the **Deposito della Scimia*, with mural paintings representing gladiatorial combats. The Deposito del Poggio Gajelli, which is supposed, but without authority, to be the Mausoleum of Porsenna mentioned by Pliny and Varro, is 3 M. distant and much dilapidated. To the N.W., the Deposito delle Monache, 2 M.; then, to the S.E., the Deposito del Colle, with mural paintings, 1 M. from the town.

Near S. Caterina, on the way to the station, are small catacombs, dating from the early Christian period, and near them a Roman tomb.

A diligence runs from the Chiusi station in 1 hr. to the (5 M.) loftily situated town of Città della Pieve (1011 ft.), with 6000 inhab., the birth-place of Pietro Vannucci (1446-1524), surnamed Perugino after Perugia, which was the chief scene of his labours (comp. p. 48). The town possesses several of his pictures, but they are works of his later period, hastily painted and chiefly done by his pupils, as the master apparently deemed his native place not capable of appreciating works of a more elaborate kind. — The oratory dei Disciplinati, or S. Maria dei Bianchi, contains an Adoration of the Magi, one of the largest pictures by Perugino; two letters of the artist from Perugia (1504) are shown with regard to the price of this fresco, reducing it from 200 to 75 ducats. — In the Cathedral (interior modernised) is the Baptism of Christ (first chapel to the left), and in the choir a Madonna with SS. Peter, Paul, Gervasius, and Protasius, 1513. The picture of St. Antony with St. Paulus Eremita and St. Marcellus, now (since 1860) in S. Agostino, belonged originally to the church of S. Antonio. All these pictures are by Perugino. — Outside the gate, which leads to Orvieto, is the Church of S. Maria dei Servi, containing remains of a Crucifixion by Perugino, dating from 1517.

Before the construction of the Terontola and Chiusi line, the road leading from Città della Pieve in an E. direction to Perugia (31 M.) was much frequented.

About 7½ M. to the S.W. of Chiusi, reached by carriage in 1¼ hr., and at the same distance to the W. from Città della Pieve, lies the small town of Cetona, commanded by a mediæval castle. The Palazzo Terrosi contains a small collection of antiquities found in the neighbourhood (visitors generally admitted on presenting their cards), such as polychromic and richly gilded urns; an elephant's tooth with carvings from the Odyssey, etc. — At the back of the palace are picturesque pleasure-grounds, with handsome archaic pictures.

The RAILWAY descends through the Chiana valley. 104½ M. Stat. Ficulma 2½ M. from the village which lies on a hill to the right. Near Orvieto the Chiana falls into the Paglia, a turbulent tributary of the Tiber, which causes great damage in rainy seasons. The formation here consists of tertiary sandstone, while at Orvieto the volcanic district begins, of which the central point is the lake of Bolsena (p. 65). 138 M. Stat. Orvieto, at the base of the hill occupied by the town, to which a winding road ascends; omnibus in 40 min. (returning in 20 min.), 1 fr., box 20 c. A shorter footpath leads in 15 min. to the Fortezza (p. 62).

Orvieto.

ALBERGO BELLE ARTI, in the Corso Cavour, the halting-place of the omnibus, well spoken of, but enquiry as to charges advisable; R. 2-2½, D. 3 fr. — AQUILA BIANCA, Via Garibaldi, behind and upwards, pension 6 fr. — Caffè Benedetti, in the Piazza Vittoriosa the Palazzo Comunale, unpretending. — Caffè Benedetti, The Wine of Orvieto Emanuele.

Orvieto is a small town and episcopal residence, situated on an isolated tufa rock, 735 ft. above the sea-level, the Urbis Vetula, called Urbs Vetula in the 8th cent., whence the name. In the middle ages it was the principal stronghold of the Guelphs, and often served the popes as a place of refuge.

From the E. entrance to the town, which we reach in coming from the station and where the old castle mentioned below is situated, runs the Corso, the principal street of Orvieto. Two medieval towers rise in this street; opposite the first of these is the Via del Duomo, which leads us straight to the far-famed —

Cathedral (p. 1), a magnificent example of the Italian Gothic style, and one of the most interesting buildings in Italy. founded in consequence of the 'Miracle of Bolsena' (comp. p. 65). The first stone was solemnly laid by Pope Nicholas IV. on 13th Nov. 1290, and the edifice begun under the supervision and according to the plans of Lorenzo Maitani of Siena. The work progressed so rapidly that in 1309 Bishop Guido di Farnese was able to read the first mass in the church. It consists of a nave and aisles, with transept and rectangular choir. It is 114½ yds. long and 36 yds. wide, and like the cathedrals of Florence and Siena is constructed of alternate courses of black and white marble. This cathedral, like those in other towns, once constituted a great arena for the display of artistic skill. The guardians of the building were unwearied in providing for its ornamentation, and like the curators of modern museums who are zealous in their endeavours to secure works by the best artists, they did all in their power to obtain the services of the first masters of the day for the embellishment of their church. — Th

Above the doors and in the three pointed pediments are MOSAICS on a golden ground, of various periods (14th-19th cent.): Annunciation, Nuptials of the Virgin, Baptism of Christ, Coronation of the Madonna; the latter, the principal picture, is the highest.

The Interior is constructed, as at Siena, of alternate layers of dark and light-coloured stone (black basalt and greyish-yellow limestone from quarries in the vicinity). On each side are four columns and two pillars, separating the nave, which is 131 ft. in height, from the lower aisles. Above the round arched arcades is a gallery adorned with rich carving. The windows are pointed, and the upper parts filled with stained glass. The frame-work of the roof is visible and was formerly richly ornamented.

in the NAVE, to the right, a fine marble holy water basin in the style of the columns, the statue of the Twelve Apostles, by Mosca, Scalsa, Totti, Annunziata and Archangel, by Mocchi. — On the high altar the life of the Virgin by Ugo da Mantova and the Visitation of Mary, executed by Mocchini when 15 years of age. The beautiful inlaid stalls in the choir are by artists of the 14th and 15th cent.; altars on either side with reliefs in marble: from the left, Visitation of Mary, executed by Mocchini when 15 years of age. From the right, Adoration of the Kings, by Mosca.

CHapel of the Madonna di S. Maria Nuova. This chapel occupies an important page in the annals of art. The superintendent of the cathedral mosaics having heard of the famous painter and monk Fra Angelico da Fiesole was not content to secure his services for the decoration of the chapel. In the summer months he worked here, but for three months only, and executed the panels of the diagonally divided wall, which time he executed the Virgin and the Apostles on the left, above the altar, the right, the Virgin and the Apostles on the left, and prophets to the right. These "Mural Paintings" are those which were done till 1499, when the work was continued and completed by Luca Signorelli. The first fresco to the left of the entrance is the Descent into Hell, who is represented in the fore-ground, arrest our attention. In the corner to the left, are said to be the overthrow of Antichrist, who is represented in the fore-ground, the two devout figures, the Fall of the Condemned. — Next in order are the Resurrection of the Dead and the Descent into Hell, and (left) Ascent into Heaven, and lastly, adjoining the first picture, Paradise — Below these are a series of scenes from Dante's Divine Comedy, and mythological subjects. On the ceiling: Apostles, signa judicium indicantia, peccata, martyrs. — These paintings are the most important work produced during the 15th cent. in the mastery of form, the boldness of motion and foreshortening, and in the acquaintance with the nude, Signorelli is by no means unworthy of comparison with Michelangelo, who, according to Vasari, borrowed several motives from these works for his last Judgment in the Sixtine Chapel. — On the right wall, in a niche behind the Pieta of Scalsa, is an Entombment of Christ. is the CAPPILLA DEL CORPORALE, where, under a marble canopy enriched with mosaic, which is preserved the blood stained cloth with the Miracle of Bolsena. The reliquary, connected with the Miracle of Siena in 1838, and resembling in form the 'Miracle' are represented on its sides. The Passion shown on Corpus Christi and on Easter but it is only shown the 'Miracle of Bolsena by Ugolino di Vieri' and the 'Miracle of Bolsena by Ugo-secos representing with a Madonna by Filippo Memmi.

The left is adorned with the 'Opera del Duomo (Pl. 2), cathedral, No. 3, is the 'Opera del Duomo (Pl. 2), works of art worthy of inspection (if closed, apply the cathedral).

The first story are preserved 'Designs on parchment he first story and for a pulpit, which was never com- cathedral, and inlaid reading-desk; a prechius 'Bell-ly carved and inlaid by Simone Martini, a "St. Magda-ene; a Madonna by Simone Martini, a "St. Magda-ene; two specimens frescoes by Signorelli, represent-erials Niccolò; a "Madonna, a statue by Giov. Pisano d a number of Etruscan terracottas.

The collection of Etruscan antiquities, belonging to Conte Fuina, opposite the cathedral, contains numerous objects derived from recent excavations.

The Corso leads to the Piazza Maggiore, now Vittorio Emanuele, with the church of S. Andrea (Pl. 3), of early origin, probably built on the site of an ancient temple, and the Palazzo Comunale (Pl. 4), dating from the end of the 13th cent. and remodelled in the middle of the 16th cent. (pictures in the interior of the 14th and 15th cent.).

S. Giovinale (Pl. 5), at the N.W. angle of the town, a basilica with open roof, contains fragments of old frescoes (1312 and 1399). In the S. transept of S. Domenico (Pl. 6) is the monument of Cardinal di Brago, by Arnolfo, 1282.

The Fortress, constructed by Cardinal Albornoz in 1364, and situated at the N.E. entrance of the town (p. 59), has been converted into a public garden with an amphitheatre for public performances; a fine view is obtained here of the valley of the Tiber and the Umbrian mountains. — The custodian of the garden keeps the key of the famous adjacent fountain, Il Pozzo di S. Patrisio, which was begun by Sangallo in 1527, and completed by Mosca in 1540. It is partly hewn in the tufa rock, partly built of masonry, and is 203 ft. deep, and 43 ft. wide. Two separate spiral staircases wind round the shaft; the traveller may descend by one, and ascend by the other (fee  $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr.).

On the N.W. slope of the hill on which the town stands, below the ancient town-wall, an extensive \**Necropoli Etrusca* (comp. Plan, p. 60) has recently been discovered. Some of the tombs, which are arranged in groups and rows, were found intact. Their façades, as elsewhere, are constructed of three large stones, two of which, placed nearly upright, are roofed by the third. Adjoining the entrance is inscribed the name of the deceased in the ancient Etruscan character. The inner chamber is square in form, and covered with the primitive kind of vaulting in which the stones are laid horizontally and each overlaps the one below it. Almost all the cinerary urns found in the tombs are black in colour and embellished with patterns impressed on them. — Since 1863 a number of similar tombs have been discovered  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. to the S.W. of Orvieto, near the suppressed Capuchin monastery (comp. Plan). Two of these contain paintings. The route to them is somewhat rough. The custodian must be enquired for in the town.

The line to Orte and Rome now traverses the wooded valley of the Tiber, whose broad, stony bed bears traces of numerous inundations. Two tunnels are passed. On the height, to the left, lies Baschi. 127 M. Castiglione; the river is crossed; 131 M. Alviano. 137 M. Attigliano, 130 M. Bassano, on a hill to the right.

The small Lake of Bassano, formerly Lacus Vadimonis, now much diminished in extent, was famous in ancient history for the great victories the Romans gained here over the Etruscans, B. C. 309 and 283. Pliny the Younger (Ep. viii. 20) has described the lake with its 'floating islands'. — About 3 M. farther to the W. is Bomarzo, picturesquely situated on a precipitous rock, not far from the ancient Polimartium, where extensive excavations have been made.

The train passes through several tunnels, and afterwards skirts the right bank of the Tiber, till it approaches Orte which becomes visible on the height to the left. It then traverses a longer tunnel and reaches the station of Orte, where the railway from Foligno (Perugia and Ancona) unites with the main line (R. 10). 145 M. Orte, loftily situated about 2 M. to the N., the ancient Horta, presents no object of interest beyond its situation. — Diffference from Orte to Viterbo, see p. 65.

The train continues to descend the valley of the Tiber on the right bank, affording pleasant glimpses of both banks. To the right, the lofty and indented ridge of Mount Soracte (p. 64) becomes visible. On the left, on the other side of the river, lie S. Vito and Otricoli, the latter a small place 6 M. distant from Orte, near the site of the ancient Otricoli, where numerous antiquities, including the celebrated Bucula of Jupiter in the Vatican, have been excavated. 150 M. Gallese. Farther on, high above the left bank, lies the small town of Magliano.

153 M. Borghetto, with a ruined castle on the height to the right. The Tiber is crossed here by the handsome Ponte Felice, constructed by Augustus, and restored in 1589 by Sixtus V., over which most of the traffic between Rome and the N.E. provinces formerly passed.

About 5 M. to the S.E. of Borghetto (carriages at the station) lies Civita Castellana, picturesquely situated 502 ft. above the sea (Posta, Speranza, in the market-place). This was the site of Falerii, the town of the Palatini, which was captured by Camillus in B.C. 398. A lofty bridge, erected in 1712, and recently restored after having been damaged by an earthquake, carries the road into the town across a ravine, 120 ft. in depth. The Cathedral of S. Maria dates from 1210. The Citadel, erected by Alexander VI. in 1500 from a design by Sangallo, and enlarged by Julius II. and Leo X., was last employed as a state-prison. Civita Castellana contains nothing to interest the traveller except its picturesque situation. The deep ravines by which it is enclosed testify to vast volcanic convulsions. They contain a few fragments of ancient walls and numerous Etruscan tombs hewn in the rock, especially near the ruins of Castellum.

Interesting excursion to the ruins of Castellum distant. Near the citadel the Ponte del Terreno honeycomb the rocks on all sides, this being the site of Castellum Novum or Colonia Junonia, founded in the plain, 3 M. to the N. of Civita Castellana. — are here seen side by side. The town was nearly square, 1 1/2 M. in circumference; the well preserved walls are preserved by strong square towers and penetrated by gates, one of which (Gloves) is still in good condition. Another gate toward the Bove, is also worthy of a visit; near it is the theatre, the placina and what is regarded as the forum, at the Porta di Gloves, within the walls, is the theatre of the 12th cent. In the nave, antique columns; in the building contains inscriptions, statues, etc., the result of excavations made here. An amphitheatre has also been recently discovered.

Civita Castellana is the best starting point for the Soracte; there and back about 7 hrs. — A good road (one-horse carriage 6-7 fr.) leads to (7 1/2 M.) Porta, the birthplace of Cesare and Lucrezia Borgia, the child of Alexander VI., and Cardinal Rodrigo Borgia (afterwards Pope Alexander VI.), and of a few Roman antiquities. Here we may obtain horses and (or a light conveyance to carry us half-way up the mountain).

to S. Oreste; guides are superfluous. — Pedestrians may leave the carriage about 2 M. to the N. of Rignano and make the ascent in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr.

\**Soracte*, mentioned by Horace (Carm. i. 9: Vides ut alta stet nive candidum Soracte) and Virgil (Æn. vii, 785: Summi deum sancti custos Soractis Apollo), is now called Monte di S. Oreste, the word Soracte having been erroneously written S. Oracte, and thence corrupted to S. Oreste. It is a limestone-ridge, descending precipitously on both sides, extending 3-4 M. from N.W. to S. E., and culminating in several peaks of different heights. On the central and highest summit (2260 ft.) stands the church of S. Silvestro. On the slope which gradually descends towards the S. E. is situated the village of S. Oreste. Leaving the miserable village to the right, the path ascends gradually to the left, and in  $\frac{1}{2}$  hr. reaches the monastery of S. Silvestro (2119 ft.), founded in 746 by Charleman, son of Charles Martel and brother of Pepin. The summit, with the church and a small disused monastery, may now be reached in a few minutes. In ancient times a celebrated Temple of Apollo occupied this site. The view, uninterrupted in every direction, embraces: E. the valley of the Tiber, the Sabina, in the background several snow-clad peaks of the Central Apennines, among them the Leonessa; S. the Volscian and Alban Mts., then the broad Campagna, Rome, the sea; N. the mountains of Tolfa, the Lake of Bracciano, the Ciminian forest, the crater of Baccano, and numerous villages.

Pedestrians may descend to Rignano by a direct path, which, although somewhat steep, is considerably shorter than that by S. Oreste.

The road from Cività Castellana next leads to Nepi,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  M. — A shorter route (for pedestrians only) passes Castel S. Elia, a resort of pilgrims.

Nepi, the ancient Etruscan Nepete or Nepet, afterwards Colonia Nepensis, is a picturesquely situated little town, and an episcopal residence, surrounded by mediæval walls and towers. Venerable Cathedral; the Town Hall is adorned with Roman sculptures and inscriptions. It was anciently a place of importance, but is now in a dilapidated condition, chiefly owing to its destruction by the French in 1799. — From Nepi to Monterosi (p. 69) 5 M.

Beyond Borghetto, to the right, Cività Castellana (see above) becomes visible for a short time. The train crosses to the left bank of the Tiber. 161 M. Stimigliano, and 166 M. Montorso, both situated in the mountainous district of the Sabina, where olive-trees abound. 173 M. Passo di Correse. The name is a corruption of Cures, the ancient Sabine town, where Numa Pompilius was born, the ruins of which are in the vicinity. A diligence runs daily from Passo di Correse to Rieti by Poggio Mirteto, see vol. iii. of this Handbook.

The line continues on the left bank of the Tiber to (180 M.) stat. Monte Rotondo; the town, situated to the left  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. higher, possesses an old castle of the Orsini, now the property of the Piombino family. The village was stormed by Garibaldi on 26th Oct. 1867; about 1 M. to the S.E. is Mentana (p. 350), where he was defeated on 3rd Nov. by the Papal and French troops, and forced to retreat.

From Monte Rotondo to Rome, a journey of  $\frac{3}{4}$  hr. — The line follows the direction of the ancient Via Salara (to the right, on the hill, once lay the ancient Antemnæ, p. 350) and crosses the Anio (p. 350); to the left the Sabine and Alban mountains, then Rome with the dome of St. Peter, become visible. A wide circuit round the city is described, near the Porta Maggiore (p. 184) the so-called temple of Minerva Medica (p. 183) is passed, and the central station entered near the Thermæ of Diocletian.

9. From Orvieto to Rome by Bolsena, Montefiascone, and Viterbo.

78 M. HIGH ROAD. To Viterbo 31½ M.; from Orvieto to Bolsena, 12 M., Bolsena to Montefiascone, 9 M., thence to Viterbo 10½ M.; no regular communication; carriage in 5½ hrs., 25-30 fr. The railway station ORTE (p. 63), with which it is in regular communication (distance 18½ M.). VITERBO alone may best be visited from the ordinary morning and evening trains (not the express) to Rome, takes 4 hrs. (fare 3 fr.); a party had better order a carriage to the station by post-card, addressed to the Impresa F. Garinei in Viterbo (two-horse carriage 10-15 fr.).

Most travellers will prefer to return from Viterbo to Orte. The drive from Viterbo to Rome (46½ M.) takes 10 hrs. (about 40 fr.). The high-road from Orvieto to Montefiascone traverses a somewhat longer route, passing at some distance from the Lake of Bolsena, which is almost entirely concealed from view by the surrounding crater-wall.

A far more beautiful though somewhat longer route diverges to the W. from this road, about 8½ M. from Orvieto, and unites at Bolsena with the old road from Siena via Torrenieri, Radicofani, and Acquapendente to Rome (p. 18).

About 4 M. beyond the above mentioned bifurcation, a road diverges to the left from the direct Orvieto and Montefiascone road to (3 M.) Baginorea (the ancient Balneum Regis), picturesquely situated on a hill surrounded by ravines, and interesting to geologists.

Bolsena (Hotel in the Piazza), with 2600 inhab., is situated below the Roman Volsinii, the birthplace of Sejanus, the favourite of Tiberius. It was one of the twelve capitals of the Etruscan League, and after various vicissitudes was at length conquered and destroyed by the Romans. The spoil is said to have included 2000 statues. Its wealth has been proved by the discovery, in the vicinity, of numerous vases, trinkets, and statues. The present town contains inscriptions, columns, and sculptures of the Roman municipium which replaced the Etruscan city. The ancient site is reached in a few minutes by an antique causeway of basalt. Among the ruins is an amphitheatre, worthy of special attention, now converted into a vegetable-garden. Beautiful views of the lake.

The façade of the church of S. Cristina is embellished with ancient relics and a sarcophagus with the triumph of Bacchus.

The 'Miracle of Bolsena', the subject of a celebrated picture by Raphael in the Vatican, occurred in 1263. A Bohemian priest, who was somewhat sceptical as to the doctrine of transubstantiation, was convinced of its truth by the miraculous appearance of drops of blood on the host which he had just consecrated. In commemoration of this, Pope Urban IV. instituted the festival of Corpus Christi and projected the erection of the superb cathedral of Orvieto (p. 59).

The Lake of Bolsena, the ancient Lacus Vulsiniensis, 994 ft. above the sea-level, a circular sheet of water, 28 M. in circumference, is the vast crater of an extinct volcano, which formed the central point of a wide sphere of volcanic agency, extending as far as Orvieto. The lake abounds in fish (its eels are mentioned by Dante, Purg. 24, 24); but the banks, especially on the W. side, are bleak and deserted, owing to the malaria confined in the basin.

VITERBO.

to Rome.

Close to Viterbo is situated Bulicame, a warm sulphureous spring, mentioned by Dante (Inf. 14, 79), still used for baths. — Viterbo (*Angel-o, R. 11½ fr.; Tre Re, both in the Piazza. — Photographs sold by Leonardo Primi, Vicolo della Ficunaccia), an episcopal residence with 20,000 inhab., surrounded by ancient Lombard walls and towers, is situated in the plain on the N. side of the Ciminius Forest, 1211 ft. above the sea-level. It was the central point of the extensive grant called the 'patrimony of St. Peter', and as made by the Countess Matilda of Tuscina to the papal see, and is frequently mentioned in history as a residence of the popes, and the scene of the papal elections in the 13th century. Viterbo is termed by old Italian authors the 'city of handsome fountains and beautiful women', but its objects of interest need not detain the traveller long.

The Cathedral of S. Lorenzo, occupying the site of a temple of Hercules, dates from the 12th cent. The INTERIOR contains the tombs of the Popes John XXI., Alexander IV., and Clement IV., and in the sacristy a Madonna with four saints by Lorenzo di Viterbo. — At the high-altar of this church, in 1279, Count Guido de Montfort, the partisan of Charles of Anjou, assassinated Henry, son of Count Richard of Cornwall, King of the Germans and brother of Henry III., in order thereby to avenge the death of his father who had fallen at the battle of Evesham in 1265 when fighting against Henry III. Dante mentions this deed and places the assassin in the seventh region of hell (Inf. 12, 120).

In the piazza in front of the cathedral is the spot where in July, 1155, Pope Hadrian IV. (Nicholas Breakspear, an Englishman) compelled the Emp. Frederick I., as his vassal, to hold his stirrup.

Adjacent is the dilapidated Episcopal Palace of the 13th cent., in which, by order of Charles of Anjou, the Conclave elected Gregory X. pope in 1271, John XXI. in 1276, and Martin IV. in 1281.

The church and monastery of S. Rosa contain the blackened mummy of that saint, who was born here in the 13th century. She urged the people to rise against the Emp. Frederick II., and was expelled by the Ghibellines.

S. Francesco, a Gothic church, contains in the N. transept a *Descent from the Cross by Sebastiano del Piombo (design by Michael Angelo) and, to the right, the *Tomb of Adrian V. (de' Fieschi of Genoa, elected 11th July, died 16th Aug. 1276 at Viterbo), with recumbent effigy.

S. Maria della Verità contains the *Marriage of the Virgin, with numerous portraits, al fresco by Lorenzo di Giacomo of Viterbo (1469). Fine monastery-court.

In front of the *Palazzo Pubblico is a Roman sarcophagus with the Hunt of Meleager, bearing an inscription in memory of the beautiful Galiana (1138), on whose account, like Helen of old, a war was once kindled between Rome and Viterbo, in which the latter was victorious. The Court contains an elegant Fountain and five large Etruscan sarcophagi with figures and inscriptions.

the Museum are Etruscan and Roman antiquities and paintings; also the 'decree of Desiderius, king of the Lombards', and the Tabula Cibellaria, forgeries of the notorious Annius of Viterbo, a Dominican monk who died at Rome in 1502.

The Fontana Grande in the market-place, begun in 1206, and the fountain in the Piazza della Rocca, of 1566, ascribed to Vignola, are also worthy of notice.

EXCURSIONS. About 1½ M. to the E. of Viterbo, towards Orte, is situated the suppressed Dominican monastery of the Madonna della Quercia, the church of which is said to have been built by Bramante, with handsome courts. — About 1½ M. farther is the small town of Bagnaia, with the charming **Villa Lante*, built at the end of the 15th and beginning of the 16th cent., the summer-residence of the ducal family of that name (adm. granted on application).

Several expeditions through picturesque scenery, and interesting to antiquarians, may be made from Viterbo to the surrounding ruins of ancient ETRUSCAN CITIES. The volcanic nature of the district, indicated by the profound ravines and fissures of the rock, and the dreary desolation which prevails, combined with the proximity of the graves of 2000 years' antiquity, impart an impressive sadness to the scene. — The farther the traveller deviates from the main route, the more miserable do the inns become.

From Viterbo to Toscanella, 12½ M., diligence thrice weekly (see p. 6).

Castel d'Asso, popularly known as Castellaccio, 10 M. to the W. of Viterbo, may be visited on horseback or on foot (guide necessary; lights should not be forgotten by those who intend to explore the tombs). Passing the Bulicame (p. 67), the road traverses a moor and leads to the valley, which contains a succession of Etruscan Tombs, hewn in the rock. The fronts of these are architecturally designed, and bear some resemblance to the rock-tombs of Egypt; numerous inscriptions. On the opposite hill are the picturesque ruins of a mediæval castle and the scanty remains of an ancient village, probably the Castellum Axia of Cicero.

The traveller may from this point proceed to Vetralla, 9 M. to the S.W. of Viterbo (diligence), situated near the Roman Forum Cassii. At Vetralla the road from Viterbo divides: that to the S.E. leads to (11 M.) Sutri (see p. 69); that to the W. by Monte Romano to Corneto (diligence on certain days), see p. 5.

From Vetralla a bridle-path, traversing a bleak moor, leads in 1½ hr. to the **Necropolis of Norchia* (with guide), similar to that of Castel d'Asso, but more imposing. Two of the tombs manifest a bias to the Hellenic style. Adjacent are the picturesque ruins of a Lombard church. In the 9th cent. the village was named Orcle, but the ancient name is unknown.

A similar locality is Bieda, the ancient Blera, a miserable village, 4½ M. from Vetralla, with rock-tombs and two ancient bridges. Scenery very imposing.

FROM VITERBO TO ROME, 46½ M. The road gradually ascends the wooded height of Mons Ciminius, now generally called the Monte di Viterbo (highest point 3460 ft. above the sea-level), once considered the impregnable bulwark of central Etruria, until the Consul Q. Fabius, B.C. 308, successfully traversed it and signally defeated the Etruscans. The culminating point of the pass (2850 ft. above the sea), on which lies the old post-station of —

5 M. L'Imposta, commands an admirable *survey of the plain towards the N., and W. as far as the sea. A more imposing view is soon disclosed of the vast Campagna di Roma, surrounded by the long chain of the Umbrian and Sabine Apennines as far as Paestrina and the Alban Mts.; the isolated Soracte (p. 64) stands boldly on the foreground; below lies the small, round Lago di Vico, the Lacus Ciminius (1703 ft.), an extinct crater surrounded by woods the E. bank of which is skirted by the road. To the N. of the lake, but inside the ancient crater, rises the beautifully wooded Monte Venere (2897 ft.). According to an ancient tradition, a town, submerged by the lake, may still be distinguished beneath the surface.

About 3 1/2 M. from l'Imposta a path to the left leads through wood to the Château of Caprarola (1 1/2 M.). The once greatly renowned, but now seldom visited Château of Caprarola, of pentagonal shape, surrounded by a rampart and fosse, is one of the most important works of Vignola, who erected it for Cardinal Alexander Farnese, nephew of Paul III. (1534-49). The saloons and other apartments are adorned with frescoes of scenes from the history of the Farnese family, allegories, etc., by Federigo, Ottaviano, and Taddeo Zuccherò. Tempesta, and Vignola. A magnificent prospect is enjoyed from the upper terrace of the Palazzuolo, a tasteful structure by Vignola, situated in the grounds.

At the S. E. end of the lake, 2 M. farther, lies the miserable village of Vico, beyond which we soon reach — 12 1/2 M. Ronciglione, a beautifully situated little town, with a ruined castle the height (1369 ft. above the sea-level), on the margin of the Campagna di Roma.

About 2 1/2 M. to the S. of Ronciglione, on the road from Vetralla (p. 68), picturesquely situated on the crest of an isolated volcanic hill, is Sutri, the ancient Etruscan Sutrium, frequently mentioned in history as the ally of the Etruscans, from whom it was wrested by Claudia Etruriae, becoming a Roman colony in the wars against the numerous Etruscan tombs, and, on the S. side, Camillus, B.C. 389 (Claudia Etruriae), becoming a gates are ancient. The deep ravine contains walls. Three of the five (said to be so named because once entered by M. Furius Camillus), now built up. Outside the Porta Furia on the N. side Villa Savorelli an admirably preserved Amphitheatre is situated on an eminence, near the regarded by some as Etruscan (axes 55 and 44 yds. respectively). The rocks above contain numerous tomb-chambers, one of which has been converted into a church, where, according to the various local traditions, the early Christians used to celebrate divine service. A legend attaching to the Grotta d'Orlando, near the town, describes it as the birthplace of the celebrated paladin Charlemagne.

A bridge-path leads in 2 hrs. from Sutri to the Lake of Bracciano and Trevignano (p. 379).

On the left, 7 1/2 M. from Ronciglione, our road is joined by that from Borghetto, Civita Castellana and Nepi, see p. 64. About 2 M. farther on, near — 22 M. Monterosi, we join the road coming from Vetralla (p. 68) and Sutri (5 1/2 M., see above), the ancient Via Cassia, which we now follow to Rome. We next pass (2 1/2 M. from Monterosi) the **Sette Vene* inn, an somewhat unhealthy village of Baccano (3 1/2 M. farther reach the brink of an ancient crater; in the vicinity is a mephitic pond; to the W. lie the two small lakes of Stracciacqua and Martignano (Lacus Alsietinus). says of him that he rose like a sun and illumined everything.
ached the town, we proceed to the left to the former
OF THE FRANCISCANS, which, erected in the first half cent. upon massive substructions on the brow of the 1, has long attracted our attention. The monastery, which after suppression in 1866 was for several years uninhabited, has recently been converted into a school for the sons of teachers. Besides several frescoes of the 16th and 17th cent. in the refectories, the *choir-stalls by Domenico da S. Severino, recently brought from the upper church, dating from 1450, and adorned with admirable carving and inlaid figures of saints, are particularly worthy attention. From the external passage a magnificent *view of the suriant valley is enjoyed.

The two CHURCHES, erected one above the other, are objects far greater interest. A third, the Crypt, with the tomb of the Ant, was added in 1818, when his remains were re-discovered. The lower church was erected in 1228-32, the upper in 1253, and consecrated by Innocent IV. The Northern Gothic style, introduced by the German master Jacob, appears here in Italy for the first time, though not without incipient traces of Italian modifications. The architect of the tower was the monk Fra Filippo da Campello.

The *Lower Church, used for divine service, is always accessible; entrance by a side-door on the terrace, in front of which is a vestibule of 57. The interior is low and sombre. To the right a tomb, above it a vase of porphyry, said to be that of John de Brienne, King of Jerusalem, who entered the order of St. Francis in 1237. Opposite the entrance is the chapel of the Crucifixion.

To the right in the NAVE, the chapel of St. Louis, with frescoes by Luca Signorelli (1560). On the vaulted ceiling prophets and sibyls, by Andrea Mantegna of Assisi. The chapel of S. ANTONIO DI PADUA, with frescoes by Luca da Faenza (14th cent.), is modernised and partly whitewashed. — The CAPPELLA S. MADDALENA is adorned with frescoes, representing scenes from the life of the saint and of Maria Ægyptiaca, which were formerly attributed to Buffalmacco (about 1320). It is, however, certain that they were executed by a pupil of Giotto, a Florentine artist, who did not scruple to bring copies here of his master's pictures at Padua. — The CAPPELLA S. TERESA, or DEL CROCEFISSO, contains inferior compositions of the latter half of the 14th cent.

The S. TRANSEPT contains on its E. and W. walls three series of scenes from the life of Jesus, the *Resuscitation of a child of the Spinners, and over the doorway a Portrait of Christ, all by Giotto (probably an advanced age). The master may have been assisted in these works by his pupils, but the style seems to indicate that they were chiefly executed by his own hand.

The HIGH ALTAR occupies the spot where the remains of St. Francis once reposed. Above it are four triangular spaces on the groined vaulting, containing the famous *Frescoes of Giotto, illustrative of the vows of the mendicant order: poverty, chastity, and obedience; the fourth painting is an apotheosis of St. Francis. The first picture represents the nuptials of St. Francis with poverty in rags. In the next, a monk, a nun, and a lay brother are represented taking the vow of chastity; the foreground is enlivened by penitents, scourgers, and votaries of pleasure. Chastity herself is guarded in a tower by purity and severity. Obedience is symbolised by the laying of a yoke on a monk. Each scene, moreover, is replete with allegorical allusions (chiefly from Dante), most of which will be readily understood by those, who are versed in the fanciful combinations of the period.

At the end of the S. Transept is the CAPPELLA DEL SACRAMENTO, with frescoes from the life of St. Nicholas, generally attributed to Giottino, but more probably executed by Agnolo da Siena, in the first half of the 14th cent. On the entrance-wall: Resuscitation of a child killed by a fall from a house.

The N. TRANSEPT contains Scenes from the Passion, of the Sienese School, formerly attributed to Cavallini and Puccio Capanna, a pupil of Giotto, perhaps by Pietro Lorenzetti; these paintings are in a very damaged condition. — To the right of the entrance to the Sacristy, in which the treasures and the relics belonging to the church were formerly preserved, is a Madonna with St. Catharine and other saints (1516), by Lo Spagna. Over the door is a portrait of St. Francis, said to have been painted by Giunta Pisano, soon after the death of the saint. — To the left of the entrance to the church is the Pulpit, adorned with a Coronation of the Virgin by Simone Martini of Siena, and further on St. Francis receiving the stigmata, a fresco by Giotto. — The last Chapel to the N. is dedicated to *Scenes from the life of St. Martin, by Simone Martini (beginning of 14th cent.); this work, though only partially preserved, still remains valuable as one of the ablest productions of the Sienese school, and in many respects bears comparison with the style of Giotto and the Florentines.

The stained windows of the lower church are by Angeletto and Pietro da Gubbio and Bonino d'Assisi; those of the upper church are more than a century later.

The CRYPT was constructed in 1818, after the remains of St. Francis had been discovered in a rude stone coffin. It is approached by a double staircase, and is lighted with candles when visited by strangers. — Behind the tomb stand colossal statues of Popes Pius VII. and IX.

The *Upper Church, the frescoes of which are undergoing restoration, has recently been converted into a museum of Early Tuscan Frescoes. It is entered either by the principal portal, or (by applying to the sacristan) from the lower church. The church is in the form of a Latin cross, with Gothic windows. The W. side possesses a splendid rose-window and handsome pediments. — In the N. TRANSEPT, as we enter from the lower church, are remains of Scenes from the Apocalypse, by Cimabue. The middle of the ceiling is adorned with frescoes of the four Evangelists, in the style of Cimabue and Jacopo Torriti, the mosaicist. — The S. TRANSEPT contains the remains of a large Crucifixion, Transfiguration, Crucifixion of St. Peter, and Scenes from the life of Simon Magus, by Giunta Pisano. — In the CHOIR: Christ in a glory, and Assumption and Death of the Virgin, both by Cimabue. — NAVE. In the upper section of the S. wall are sixteen scenes from the Old Testament history, from the Creation of the world to the Recognition of Joseph by his brethren; on the N. side, sixteen scenes from the New Testament, from the Annunciation to the Descent of the Holy Ghost, by pupils of Cimabue, showing gradual improvement in execution. The lower section contains twenty-eight Scenes from the life of St. Francis, illustrative of the farther development of the early Florentine School (Filippo Rusutti, and Gaddo Gaddi), of the close of the 13th cent. The first and the five last of these frescoes are certainly by the hand of Giotto. On the ceiling of the nave are four Angels and four Fathers of the Church, executed in the earlier mosaic style.

Quitting the upper church and emerging on the space in front of it, we may follow the street ascending thence in a straight direction, which will lead us to the PIAZZA. Here is situated the beautiful portico of a *TEMPLE OF MINERVA, with six columns of travertine, converted into a church of S. Maria della Minerva. Ancient inscriptions immured in the vestibule. Adjacent to the church is the entrance to the ancient Forum, which corresponded to the present Piazza, but lay considerably lower. In the forum a Basement for a statue, with a long inscription (fee 1/2 fr.).

The Chiesa Nuova (Pl. 7), reached by descending to the right, near the S.E. angle of the Piazza, occupies the site of the house in which St. Francis was born.

74 Route 10.

The CATHEDRAL OF S. RUFINO (Pl. 4), in the upper part of the town, named after the first bishop (240), dates from the first half of the 12th cent., the crypt from 1028. The ancient façade is adorned with three fine rose-windows. The interior modern. Entrance to the right, before reaching the church.

From the cathedral a broad, unpaved road to the right leads in a few minutes to the Gothic church of S. CHIARA (Pl. 2), near the gate, erected by Fra Filippo da Campello in 1253, afterwards altered, and recently restored. Beneath the high-altar are the remains of S. Clara, who, inspired with enthusiasm for St. Francis, abandoned her parents and wealth, founded the order of Clarissines, and died as first abbess. A handsome crypt of different coloured marbles has recently been constructed about her tomb. On the arch above the high-altar, frescoes by Giotto; those in the right transept are attributed to Giotto. — The piazza in front of the church commands a fine view of the fertile valley.

In a ravine of the lofty Monte Subasio (3612 ft.), at the back of Assisi, is situated the hermitage delle Carceri, to which St. Francis was wont to retire for devotional exercises.

From Assisi to Spello a very beautiful drive of 5 M. (one-horse carr. 4-5 fr.). By train it is reached in 13 min. To the right of the road as the town is approached are the ruins of an amphitheatre of the imperial period, but they are not visible from the railway. 22 M. — Spello, with 4000 inhab., picturesquely situated on a mountain-slope, is the ancient Hispellum (Colonia Julia Hispellum). The Gate by which the town is entered, with its three portrait-statues, as well as the Porta Urbana, the Porta Veneris, and portions of the walls are ancient.

The Cathedral of S. Maria Maggiore contains some good paintings. To the right of the entrance, an ancient cippus serves as a basin for consecrated water. To the left the Cappella del Sacramento with *frescoes by Pinturicchio (1501): on the left, the Annunciation (with the name of the painter), opposite to us the Adoration, Christ in the ceiling, the Sibyls. — The Choir contains a magnificent early Renaissance style. On the left of the high-altar a right a Madonna by Perugino, 1521. — Above the altar a Madonna by Pinturicchio.

Other antiquities the 'House of Propertius' is shown. It is certain that the poet was not born here (pp. 70-71). The upper part of the church-wall of S. Lorenzo are Roman inscriptions. The upper part of the town commands an ex-massive view of the plain, with Foligno and Assisi. Numerous ruins occasioned by the earthquake of 1831 are still observed. The train crosses the Topino and reaches — 25 M. Foligno, the junction of the Ancona line (R. 14).

 Halt of  $\frac{1}{4}$  hr.; good Refreshment-Room. — One-horse carriage to the town ( $\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the station) 40 c. — Inns: Posta, close to the gate; Leon d'Oro; Trattoria Falcone, all three in the main-street, the Via della Fiera.

Foligno, near the ancient Fulginium, an industrial town with 10,000 (incl. suburbs 21,000) inhab., and an episcopal residence, is situated in a fertile district. In 1281 it was destroyed by Perugia, and in 1439 annexed to the States of the Church. The earthquake of 1831 occasioned serious damage; others in 1839, 1853, and 1854 were less destructive.

At the entrance to the town, a marble statue was erected in 1872 to the painter Niccolò del Liberatore, surnamed l'Aluano, the chief master of the school of Foligno (p. 48).

The Via della Fiera leads straight to the Market-place, where the Cathedral of S. Feliciano is situated, erected in the 12th cent. (of which the Romanesque façade of the transept is still extant), but entirely remodelled in the 16th cent. The handsome dome is attributed, but without authority, to Bramante. — The Palazzo del Governo, in the same square, contains frescoes by Ottaviano Nelli in an old chapel.

Following the Via Montogli to the left, and then the Via S. Niccolò, a side-street to the right, we reach the church of S. Niccolò. The 2nd Chapel to the right here contains an altar-piece with numerous figures, the centre being formed by an Adoration of the Infant Christ by Niccolò Alunno. The chapel to the right of the high-altar is adorned with a Coronation of the Virgin with a predella by the same master.

The church of S. Anna, or delle Contesse, formerly contained the celebrated Madonna di Foligno by Raphael, now in the Vatican. — S. Maria infra Portas contains frescoes by Nic. Alunno, and La Pietella a fresco of the Baptism of Christ by Pietro Perugino. — Via de' Monasteri, there is a small public he slope of the hills, is situated built in 1229, resembling those of

ct 7 M.) the traveller may visit several churches containing fine s by Benozzo Gozzoli (1452). The and the chapel of St. Jerome a a life of the saint. In the other chapels are good frescoes by Tiberio d'Assisi and Lorenzo da Viterbo. The church of S. FORTUNATO ( $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from the town, on the road to Trevi) contains interesting frescoes by Benozzo (1449). Charming views of the plain from the height.

The RAILWAY traverses the luxuriant, well-watered valley of the Clitumnus, whose flocks are extolled by Virgil, to — 133 M. Trevi. The small town, the ancient Trebia, lies picturesquely on the slope to the left. The church of the **Madonna delle Lagrime* contains the Adoration of the Magi, one of Perugino's latest frescoes, and a Descent from the Cross by Lo Spagna. The church of S. Martino, outside the gate, contains a Madonna in fresco by Tiberio d'Assisi, and a Coronation of the Virgin by Lo Spagna.

The small village of Le Vene, on the Clitumnus, is next passed. Near it, to the left, we obtain a glimpse of a small ancient \**Temple*, usually regarded as that of Clitumnus mentioned by Pliny (Epist. 8, 8), but probably not earlier than Constantine the Great, as the Christian emblems, the vine and the cross, on the façade testify. The temple, now a church of S. Salvatore, lies with its back towards the road, about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. from Trevi. Near Le Vene the abundant and clear Source of the Clitumnus, beautifully described by Pliny, wells forth from the limestone-rock. On the height to the left is the village of Campello. On the way to Spoleto, to the left, in the village of S. Giacomo, is a church with frescoes by Lo Spagna, of 1526; beautiful road through richly cultivated land.

LA POSTA, in the lower part of the town, near the railway-gate. — ALBERGO & REST. DEL TEATRO NUOVO, in the upper part of the town, near the theatre, well spoken of. — Trattoria della Ferrovia, to the right of the town gate.

Spoleto, the ancient Spoletium, said to have been an episcopal residence as early as A.D. 50, now an archiepiscopal see with 20,700 inhab. (incl. surrounding villages), is a busy town, beautifully situated, and containing some interesting objects of art.

In B. C. 242 a Roman colony was established here, and in 217 the town vigorously repelled the attack of Hannibal when on his march to Picenum after the battle of the Trasimene Lake, as Livy relates (22, 9). It subsequently became a Roman municipium, suffered severely during the civil wars of Sulla and Marius, and again at the hands of the Goths, after the fall of the W. Empire. The Lombards founded a duchy here (as in Benevento) in 570, the first holders of which were Faroald and Ariolf. After the fall of the Carolingians, Guido of Spoleto even attained the dignity of Emperor, as well as his son Lambert, who perished while hunting in 898. Innocent III. and Gregory IV. incorporated Spoleto with the States of the Church about 1220. The Castle of Spoleto, erected by Theodoric the Great, restored by Narses, and strengthened with four towers by Cardinal Alborno, now a prison, fell into the hands of the Piedmontese on 18th Sept., 1860, after a gallant defence by Major O'Reilly, an Irishman.

The town is built on the slope of a hill, the summit of which is occupied by the old castle of La Rocca; the church-spire most to the left when seen from the station is that of the cathedral. — Entering by the town-gate and following the main street which traverses the lower part of the town, we reach (5 min.) a gateway of the Roman period, called the Porta d'Annibale, or Porta della Fuga, in allusion to the above-mentioned occurrence.

We may now continue to follow the Strada Umberto, which ascends the hill in a wide curve, or we may take one of the direct but steep side-streets. Inclining towards the left, near the top, we come to the — *CATHEDRAL OF S. MARIA ASSUNTA, erected by Duke Theodelapius in 617, but frequently restored. In front of the façade (13th cent.) is a Renaissance portico, consisting of five arches with antique columns, a frieze with griffins and arabesques, and at each extremity a stone pulpit; above, a large mosaic by Solsemanus (1207) of Christ with Mary and John.

To the right of the vestibule is a BAPTISTERY, containing frescoes in the style of Giulio Romano; the travertine font, with sculptures from the life of Christ, is of the 16th cent.

The INTERIOR of the cathedral was restored in 1644, and has been recently whitewashed. — The CHOIR contains frescoes by Fra Filippo Lippi, completed after his death by Fra Diamante in 1470, Annunciation, Birth of Christ, and Death of Mary; in the semicircle her Coronation and Assumption (unfortunately damaged). At the entrance to the chapel, on the left of the choir, to the left, is the Tomb of Fil. Lippi, who died here in 1469 of poison administered by the family of Spinetta Buti, a noble Florentine. Although a monk, he had succeeded in gaining the affections of this lady and abducting her from a convent. The monument was erected by Lorenzo de' Medici; the epitaph is by Poliziano. Opposite is the monument of an Orsini. — The WINTER-CHOIR, in the left aisle, contains good carving from the 15th cent., and a Madonna by Lo Spagna. — In the CHAPEL to the right of the entrance are fragments of frescoes by Pinturicchio.

In the Piazza del Duomo, in front of the cathedral, probably stood the palace of the Lombard Dukes. — On leaving the cathedral we proceed in a straight direction, slightly ascending, to the Palazzo Pubblico, containing several inscriptions and a small picture gallery, in which a Madonna with saints, by Lo Spagna, deserves notice.

The other churches are of inferior interest. S. Domenico contains a copy of Raphael's Transfiguration, attributed to Giulio Romano. S. Pietro, outside the Roman gate, is a Lombard edifice; façade adorned with sculptures.

Some of the churches contain relics of ancient temples; thus in that del Crocefisso, outside the town, near the cemetery (now under repair), fragments of a temple of Concordia(?); columns, etc. in S. Andrea and S. Giuliano; remnants of a theatre; a ruin styled 'Palace of Theodoric', etc. None of these, however, claim special attention.

Travellers should not omit to extend their walk beyond the cathedral and the Palazzo Pubblico as follows. Continuing to ascend, after a few minutes we cross the Piazza Brignone in a diagonal direction, where a memorial slab commemorates the capture of the fortress in 1860. Passing the fountain, we leave the upper part by a street to the right, which passes immediately below entrance of the fortress of La Rocca, now a prison. A road, near a gate which here forms the entrance to the river, to the left, polygonal foundations, being remains of an old castle-wall. Outside the wall is a profound ravine, the imposing aqueduct **Ponte delle Torri*, built of brick, used as a viaduct, uniting the town with Monte Luco. It has 13 arches, and is 290 ft. in height, and 231 yds. in length. Construction is attributed to Theodelapius, third duke of Spoleto (504). A window midway affords a view. To the left on the river is perceived the monastery of S. Giuliano; below is S. Maria delle Grazie (above), above which stands the former Capuchin monastery, shaded by beautiful trees. Beyond the bridge we turn to the right, generally following the direction of the aqueduct. After a short distance a more unbroken prospect is obtained, embracing the town, and the spacious valley.

From Monte Luco, 1½ hr., is somewhat fatiguing. Towards the east, a lofty cross, whence an unimpeded panorama is obtained to the west of the valley of the Clitumnus with Trevi, Foligno, Spello, Assisi, Perugia and the Central Apennines near Città di Castello. In the other directions the view is intercepted by the hills of the vicinity. Towards the E. these are overtopped by the Monte Sibilla, snow-clad until late in the summer. — Return- ing we pass the former Capuchin monastery of S. Maria delle Grazie, a famous resort of pilgrims.

THE RAILWAY ascends during 1 hr. on the slopes of Monte Luco (3 ft.) to the culminating point of the line (2231 ft.). At 4½ M. Giuncano, it passes through a long tunnel, TERNI. — The town is ¾ M. from the station; one-horse carriage, 20 c. A seat in a carriage as far as the hotel, 40 c., at night 20 c.

RAILWAY, near the piazza, R. 3 fr.; EUROPA, in the piazza, R. 1½ fr. — ITALY, well spoken of.

TERNI is situated in the fertile valley of the Nera, with 15,000 inhabitants (including the surrounding villages) and several manufactories, the most important being at Interamna, where, it is believed, the historian Tacitus and Florianus were born. Remains of the theatre (erroneously styled a 'Temple of the Sun') in the episcopal palace, Roman inscriptions in the Palazzo of the Umbrian nobility, etc. are objects of interest. Pleasant walk on the ramparts, whence the beautiful view of the valley is surveyed: to the left Collescipoli, to the right Cesi, to the north Assisi, to the south Narni.

FALLS OF TERNI may be reached on foot in 1½ hr.; on horseback, including stay, requires about 4 hrs.

1 person 5, 2 pers. 7, 3 pers. 9 fr., etc., according to the hotels 7, 10 and 15 fr. respectively, besides which is expected. — GUIDE (quite unnecessary) 3 fr. — There is a good view abundantly provided with copper-coins. At the falls of view contributions are levied by the custodians.

the ~~lake~~, intersects ~~the~~ ~~lake~~, large new government manuwhich is to be driven by the water of the Nera. We now ap-reach the stream, the valley of which contracts. On each side lower lofty rocks, to which the luxuriant vegetation of the slopes forms a beautiful contrast. — The Old Road is reached from the Piazza at Terni by passing the Albergo Europa and descending the Strada Garibaldi. We at first follow the Rieti and Aquila road (see Baedeker's S. Italy), which crosses the Nera just outside the gate, traversing gardens and olive-plantations; after 2 M. (near a small chapel on the right), a broad road to the left descends into the valley of the Nera, while the high-road continues to ascend gradually to the right. The former descends in windings past the village of Papigno, picturesquely situated on an isolated rock, ( $\frac{3}{4}$  M.)
crosses the Nera, and on the right bank, near the villa of Count Castelli-Graziani, reaches the new road mentioned above ( $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. to the falls).

The celebrated falls of the Velino (which here empties itself into the Nera), called the Cascate delle Marmore, are about 650 ft.
in height, and have few rivals in Europe in point of beauty and volume of water. The rivulet is precipitated from the height in three leaps of about 65, 330, and 190 ft. respectively, the water falling perpendicularly at some places, and at others dashing furiously over rocks. The spray of the falls is seen from a considerable distance.

The Velino is so strongly impregnated with lime that its deposit continually raises its bed; and in consequence of this the plain of Rieti (1397 ft.) is frequently exposed to the danger of inundation. In ancient times Manius Curius Dentatus endeavoured to counteract the evil by the construction of a tunnel (B. C. 271), which, although altered, is to this day in use. The rising of the bed of the river, however, rendered new measures necessary from time to time. Two other channels were afterwards excavated, the Cava Beatina or Gregoriana in 1417, and the Cava Paolina by Paul III. in 1546; these, however, proving unserviceable, Clement VIII. re-opened the original 'emissarius' of Dentatus in 1598. In 1787 a new cutting was required, and another has at the present day become necessary. The regulation of the Velino-fall has long formed the subject of vehement discussions between Rieti and Terni, as the unrestrained descent of the water in rainy seasons threatens the valley of Terni with inundation.

The finest views of the falls are commanded by the new road itself. Or, before reaching the falls, we may ascend a path to the left, leading in 10 min. to a small summer-house, affording the finest view of the upper and central falls, which are exactly opposite to us. — We now return to the road, and retracing our steps to the first path on the left, cross the Nera by a natural bridge, below which the water has hollowed its own channel. (Footpaths, following the course of the Nera and passing two small waterfalls, lead in 30 min. to Papigno.) Where the path divides, the gradual ascent to the left is to be selected. The surrounding rocks (in which there is a quarry) have been formed by the incrustations of the Velino. The channel on the right (Cava Paolina) is full in winter only. In 12-15 min. we come to a point, where the division of the cascade is surveyed; the central fall, in the spray of which beautiful rainbows are occasionally formed, may be approached more nearly. A farther steep ascent of 10-15 min. leads to a small pavilion of stone on a projecting rock, affording a beautiful view of the principal fall and the valley of the Nera. We next ascend a flight of steps (4 min.), and turning to the left, reach another point of view in the garden of the small cottage situated here (20 c.). — Following the same path for a few minutes more, we turn to the right and come to a small house; passing through its garden (10-15 c.), and between several houses, we reach in 10 min. the road to Rieti and Aquila (see above), not far from a good osteria (No. 153). The road back to Terni (4 M.) commands a fine view.

If time permit, the excursion may be extended from the upper fall to the beautiful **Lake of Piedilugo*, 3 M. further. Following the above mentioned road, we cross the Velino, reach the lake in 1/2 hr., skirt its indentations, and arrive at the village of Piedilugo, with its ruined castle, in 1/2 hr. more. Boats may be hired at the inn; the opposite bank, where a fine echo may be awakened, is generally visited by water.

Cesi, loftily situated, 5 M. to the N.W. of Terni, to the right of the road to Gemine and Todi (p. 56), possesses remains of ancient polygonal walls and interesting subterranean grottoes of considerable extent, from which a current of cool air in summer, and of warm in winter issues.

67 M. Narni (Angelo, tolerable), the ancient Umbrian Narnia (originally Neguunum), birthplace of the Emperor Nerva, Pope John XIII. (965-72), and of Erasmus of Narni, surnamed Gattamelata, the well-known 'condottiere' of the 15th century. It is picturesquely situated,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from the station, on a lofty rock (1191 ft.) on the Nar, now Nera (whence its name), at the point where the river forces its way through a narrow ravine to the Tiber. The old castle is now a prison. — The Cathedral, erected in the 13th cent., with a vestibule of 1497, and dedicated to St. Juvenalis the first bishop (369), is architecturally interesting. — The Town Hall contains the Coronation of Mary by Lo Spagna (formerly in the monastery of the Zoccolanti, and for a long time attributed to Raphael), one of that master's finest paintings, but lately spoiled by retouching.

From Narni to Perugia by Todi, see p. 56.

From Narni a road leads to the N.W. to the (6 M.) ancient and beautifully situated Umbrian mountain-town of Amelia, Lat. Ameria (inn outside the gate), mentioned by Cicero in his oration Pro Roscio Amerino, with admirably preserved walls in the Cyclopean style and other antiquities (1388 ft.)

The train turns towards the narrowing valley of the Nera, and passes close to the **Bridge of Augustus* (on the left), which spanned the river immediately below Narni in three huge arches, and belonged to the Via Flaminia (p. 85), leading to Bevagna (p. 75). The arch next to the left bank, 60 ft. in height, alone is preserved, while of the two others the buttresses only remain.

The train continues to follow the valley of the Nera, with its beautiful plantations of evergreen oaks, passes through two tunnels, and then (not far from the influx of the Nera) crosses the Tiber, which 1860-70 formed the boundary between the Kingdom of Italy and the Papal States. — Near —

11. From Bologna to Rimini, Falconara (Rome), and Ancona.

127 M. RAILWAY in 5-8 hrs.; fares 23 fr. 10, 16 fr. 15, 11 fr. 55 c. — Beautiful views of the sea between Rimini and Cattolica, and beyond Pesaro. A seat on the left should therefore be secured. — From Bologna to Rome, 300 M., express in 14½-15 hrs. (viâ Florence in 13 hrs.); fares 56 fr. 75, 39 fr. 50 c. This train diverges to the S.W. at Falconara, the last station before Ancona.

The towns on the coast of the Adriatic are far inferior in attraction to those in the W. part of the peninsula (Tuscany and Umbria); but without a visit to them the traveller's acquaintance with Italy would be incomplete.

BAEDERER. Italy II. 6th Edition.

but imperfect. The views of the Adriatic to the E., and of the Apennines to the W. are often charming, and the situation of some of the towns, especially Ancona, is strikingly beautiful. Rimini, an ancient Roman colony and frontier fortress, possesses several fine monuments of antiquity, and its church of S. Francesco is an admirable work of the Renaissance period. Roman triumphal arches are also preserved at Ancona and Fano; and Loreto can boast of valuable sculptures in the Renaissance style (p. 99). Urbino, too, the birthplace of Raphael, lies within a short distance of this route. Many of the towns now possess picture galleries, formed from works taken from the suppressed monasteries, but generally of second-rate importance.

Bologna, see vol. I. of this Handbook. The line runs parallel with the high-road in the direction of the ancient Via Æmilia, which extended from Placentia to Ariminum, and as far as Forli traverses fertile plains in nearly a straight direction; in the distance to the right are the spurs of the Apennines. 4½ M. S. Lazzaro (in summer only); 7 M. Mirandola, 10½ M. Quaderna, and 15 M. Castel S. Pietro, on the Sillaro, with a castle erected by the Bolognese in the 13th cent.

22 M. Imola (S. Marco), on the Santerno, the Roman Forum Cornelii, an ancient town with 28,400 inhab. (incl. the surrounding villages) and seat of a bishop since 422, annexed to the States of the Church in 1509, was the birthplace of St. Petrus Chrysologus, archbishop of Ravenna (d. 449), whose tomb is in the cathedral of S. Cassiano, where the remains of the saint of that name also repose. The painter Innocenzo da Imola (Francucci, b. 1506) and the anatomist Vassalva were also natives of Imola.

The line crosses the Santerno and reaches (26 M.) Castel Bolognese, an ancient stronghold of the Bolognese, constructed in 1380. Branch-line hence to Ravenna, see Baedeker's N. Italy. — We then cross the river Senio, the ancient Sinnus, to — 31 M. Faenza (Corona, in the Piazza Maggiore; Tre Mori), a pleasant town with 14,280 inhab. (with the suburbs 36,300), on the Amone (ancient Anemo), the Faventia of the Boil. In the middle ages it was witness of numerous feuds, and in 1509 it was annexed by Pope Julius II. to the States of the Church. The town was celebrated in the 15th cent. for its pottery, the manufacture of which has recently been revived ('faïence'), and contains considerable silk and weaving factories. Faenza was the birthplace of Torricelli, the inventor of the barometer in 1643, to whose memory a monument near the church of S. Francesco has recently been erected.

The cathedral of S. Costanzo, named after Constantius, the first bishop of Faventia in 313, contains a Holy Family by Innocenzo da Imola, and bas-reliefs by Benedetto da Majano, 1472.

In the Piazza Maggiore, which is surrounded by trees, are situated the Palazzo Municipale and the Torre dell' Orologio; the fountain in the centre of the square, embellished with bronzes, dates from the 17th cent.

The Library contains 26,000 vols. and a statue of John the Baptist by Donatello. Here, too, is a Pinacoteca. with numerous works of native artists, such as Bertucci; a Madonna by Guido Reni, etc.

In the Commenda (in the Borgo) is a handsome fresco, Madonna and saints, by Girolamo da Treviso (1533).

Beyond Faenza the train intersects the plain in a straight direction. It crosses the Amone, then the Montone, which, united with the Ronco, falls into the Adriatic not far from Ravenna.

40 M. Forlì (Posta), the ancient Forum Livii, founded by M. Livius Salinator after the defeat of Hasdrubal, is a well-built provincial capital with 15,300 inhab. (including suburbs 38,480).

Forlì, where in 410 the marriage of Athaulf, king of the Visigoths, with Galla Placidia, sister of the Emp. Honorius was solemnised, was long an independent state in which the Guelphs retained their ascendancy down to 1315. The Ordelaffi then usurped the supreme power, and at length, in 1504, Pope Julius II. annexed the city to the States of the Church. — Forlì was the birthplace of the poet Cornelius Gallus (d. B.C. 27), of the historian Flavio Biondo (15th cent.), and of the talented painter Melozzo da Forlì (end of 15th cent.), who was closely allied to Piero della Francesca, and afterwards engaged at Rome.

The principal piazza (comp. Plan, p. 84) is enclosed by handsome palaces. Here, too, is situated the church of —

S. Mercuriale (so named after the first bishop of Forlì), which possesses a painting by Innocenzo da Imola, sculptures of 1536, and several good pictures by Marco Palmezzano, a native of Forlì and pupil of Melozzo. Lofty campanile.

We next proceed to the *Cathedral of S. Croce, containing the Chapel of the Madonna del Fuoco, the dome of which is adorned with frescoes by Carlo Cignani of Bologna (1686-1706), representing the Assumption of the Virgin, a work in which he was engaged during 20 years. The painter is buried in the chapel. A reliquary of the 14th cent., and the sculptures of the principal door of the 15th cent. are also worthy of notice.

S. Girolamo contains a Madonna with angels by Guido Reni, and in the first chapel on the right *frescoes by Melozzo and Palmezzano.

The *Pinacoteca in the Ginnasio Comunale in the Piazza S. Pellegrino contains good pictures by Melozzo (including a fresco by the master, called the 'Pestapepe', originally a shop sign-board, representing a youth vigorously plying a pestle and mortar), Palmezzano, Rondinelli, Cignani, Fra Angelico, Lor. di Credi, Francesco Francia (Adoration of the Child), and others.

The monument of the Child, the anatomist (d. 1771), was inaugurated in 1875.

The Citadel, constructed in 1361 by Cardinal Albornoz, and enlarged by the Ordelaffi and Riarii, is now used as a prison.

A diligence route leads from Forlì through the Apennines by Rocca S. Casciano and S. Benedetto to Florence.

The line to Rimini crosses the Ronco and passes (45 M.) Forlimpopoli, the ancient Forum Popilii; to the right, on the hill. B tinoro, with its productive vineyards. It then passes Polenta and crosses the Savio (the ancient Sapis).

52 M. Cesena (Leon d'Oro, R. 2½ fr.; Cappello), with 10,000 inhab. (incl. villages 35,000), surrounded by beautiful meadows and hills, and boasting of numerous palaces.

Cesena is one of the most ancient episcopal sees in Italy, where St. Philemon is said to have held the office as early as the year 92. During the middle ages it was at first an independent state, then became subject to the Ghibelline family of Montefeltro, and shortly afterwards to the Malatestas, who were partizans of the Guelphs. This rapid change of rulers is alluded to by Dante, Inf. xxvii, 52:

Tra tirannia si vive e stato franco.*

On 1st Feb., 1377, the town was cruelly sacked by Cardinal Robert of Geneva, and subsequently by Cesare Borgia, after which it was incorporated with the States of the Church.

In the Piazza is the handsome Palazzo Pubblico with a statue of Pius VI., who was born here in 1717, as well as his successor Pius VII. in 1742. In the picture-gallery a Presentation in the temple, by Francesco Francia. — The Cathedral contains two marble altars of the 15th and 16th cent. — The Library, founded in 1452 by Domenico Malatesta Novello, contains 4000 MSS., many of them executed by order of the founder, and afterwards employed by the learned Aldus Manutius in the preparation of his celebrated editions of the classics.

On an eminence, ¾ M. distant, stands the handsome church of **S. Maria del Monte*, a work of Bramante. Productive sulphur-mines in the vicinity, towards the S.

The line crosses the stream Pisciatello, the upper part of which, called Urgone, is identical with the Rubicon of the ancients, the boundary between Italy proper and the province of Gallia Cisalpina, and memorable for its passage by Cæsar at the beginning of the civil war between him and Pompey, B.C. 49.

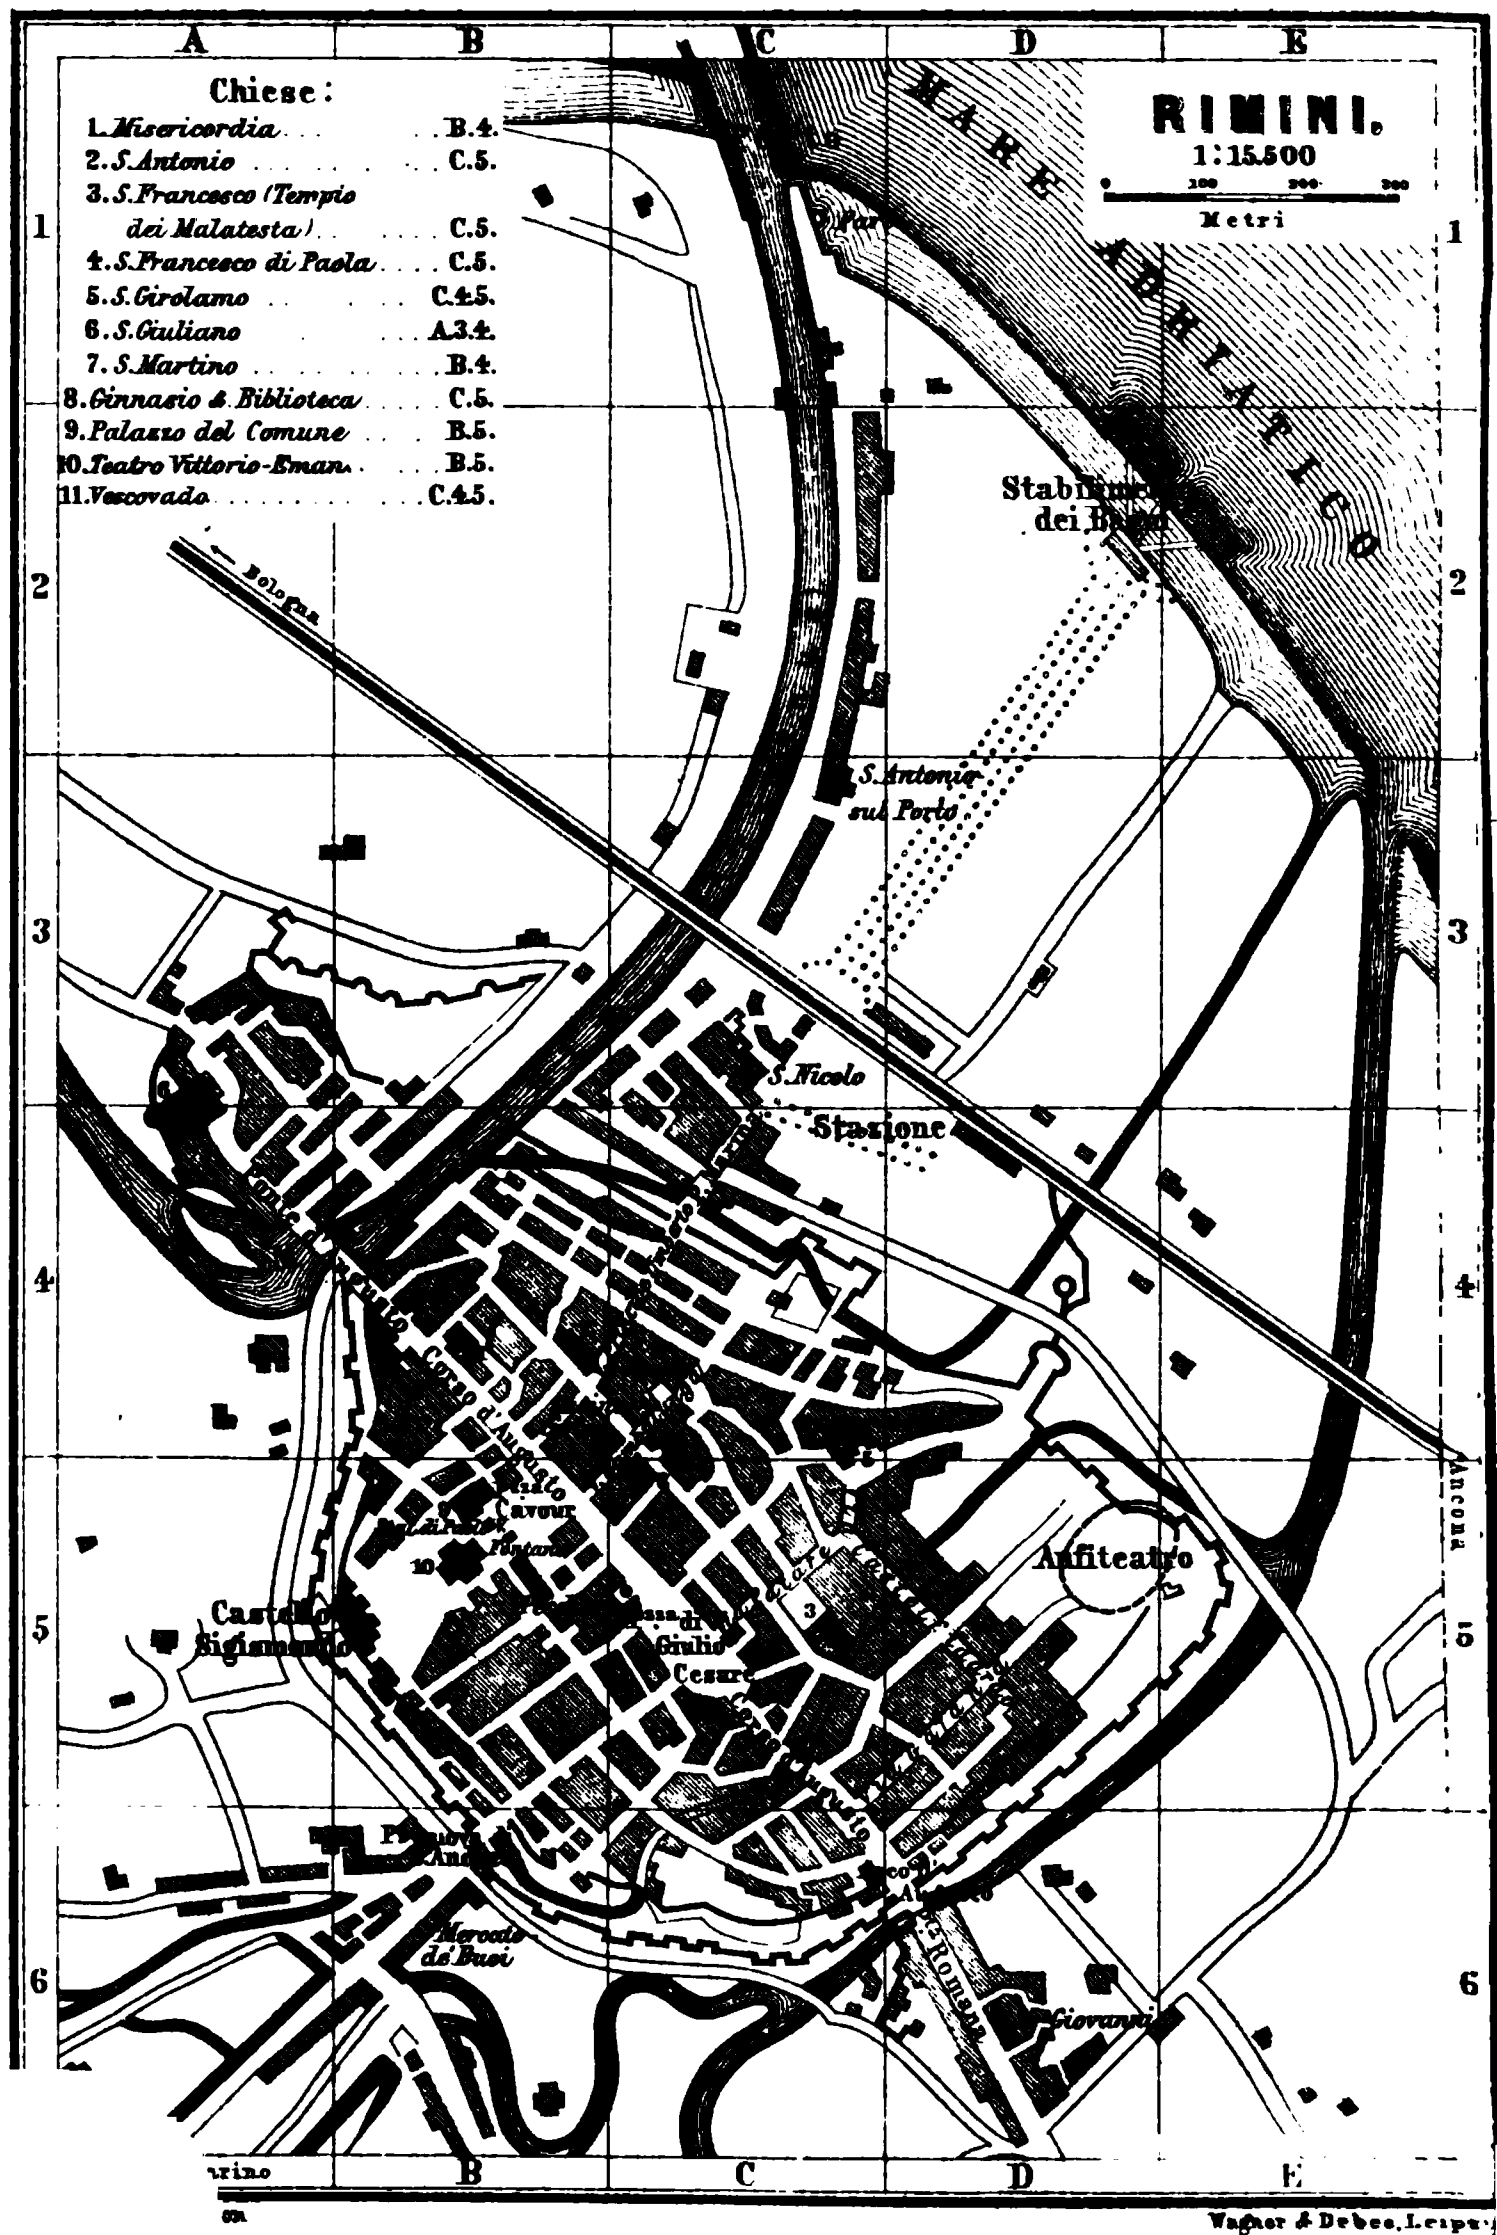

The most recent investigations tend to show that the Rubicon has entirely quitted its ancient course. It appears originally to have fallen into the Fiumicino, farther S., while at the present day its upper part (Urgone) unites with the Pisciatello. Most of the towns and villages of this district have in turn laid claim to the distinction of possessing the Rubicon within their territory. Nor did they rest satisfied with a mere literary feud in order to gain the object of their ambition. An action involving this question was instituted at Rome, and in 1756 the 'Rota' decided in favour of the claim of the Uso (see below), beyond the small town of Savignano, and near S. Arcangelo (birthplace of pope Clement XIV. Ganganelli in 1705).

On the road between Cesena and Savignano stands a column bearing a decree of the Roman senate, threatening to punish those who should without authority trespass beyond the Rubicon. Montesquieu regarded this as genuine, but it is an obvious imposition and not the only one connected with the interminable dispute on the subject of the Rubicon.

69½ M. Rimini. — AQUILA D'ORO in the Corso. — Trattoria d'Europa, in the Piazza Cavour; Caffè della Speranza, in the Piazza Giulio Cesare. — Railway Restaurant, good wine of the country.

Carriage from the station to the Piazza, with one horse 1 fr., with two 1 fr. 20 c.; from the Piazza to the bathing-place 80 c. or 1 fr. 40 c.

Rimini, beautifully situated on the Adriatic at the mouth of the Ausa and Marecchia, with 10,000 inhab. (incl. surrounding villages 34,000), and extensive fisheries and silk manufactories, has of late come into notice as a sea-bathing place. Handsome public rooms with a café and restaurant, and numerous lodging-houses have been erected on the pleasant promenade along the sea.

Rimini, the ancient Ariminum, a town of the Umbrians, became a Roman colony in B. C. 269, and formed the frontier fortress of Italy in the direction of Gaul, and the termination of the Via Flaminia from Rome, which was constructed in 220, and afterwards extended and embellished by Julius Cæsar and Augustus. During the Exarchate, Rimini was the most northern of the Pentapolis Maritima, or 'Five Maritime Cities', which were under the jurisdiction of one president. The other four were Pesaro, Fano, Sinigaglia, and Ancona. In 260, Ariminum became an episcopal see, and in 360 a council against Arianism was held here. The town afterwards belonged to the Lombards. In 1200 it was given by Otho IV. to the Malatestas, who were at first vicegerents of the emperor, but subsequently hereditary princes. In 1503 they surrendered the town to the Venetians, from whom it was finally wrested by the Pope. Insurrections broke out here in 1845 and 1853. — It was from the history of the Malatestas that Dante derived the episode of 'Francesca da Rimini' in the 5th canto of the Inferno.

A broad road leads from the station to the Porta Marina, beyond which it is called the Via Principe Umberto. After about 4 min. the Via al Tempio Malatestiano diverges to the left, and leads to the principal church of —

*S. FRANCESCO (Duomo, Tempio dei Malatesta; Pl. 3), built in the 14th cent. in the Italian Gothic style, but magnificently remodelled in 1447-50 by Sigismundo Malatesta from designs by Leo Battista Alberti in the early Renaissance style. It is one of the principal works of the master, but unfortunately the lower part only of the façade has been completed. On the coping round the church are the arms of the Malatesta and other families allied with them (the elephant and rose being the armorial bearings of Sigismundo and his wife Isotta). The seven vaults on the S. side contain sarcophagi of the poets, orators, philosophers and warriors whom Sigismundo Malatesta (d. 1468), the illustrious enemy of Pope Pius II., entertained at his court.

The interior, which is destitute of aisles, has an open roof and a series of spacious lateral chapels. The massive pilasters with their rich ornamentations were designed by Alberti. To the right of the entrance is the monument of Sigismundo. Between the first and second chapel on the right is the entrance of the chapel of Relics (Santaario, shown by the sacristan), containing a fresco by Piero della Francesca ('Petri de Burgo opus 1451'), representing Sigismund Malatesta kneeling before his patron St. Sigismund, king of Hungary. In the Cappella di S. Michele, the 2nd to the right, is the tomb of Isotta (d. 1450), the wife of Sigismund. — The first chapel to the left, destined by Sigismund Malatesta for the reception of his ancestors and descendants, as the inscription on the sarcophagus of the left testifies.

From the small piazza in front of the church, the Via Patara leads S. to the Piazza Giulio Cesare, the ancient forum. A stone Pedestal here bears an inscription of 1555, according to which Cæsar harangued his army from it after the passage of the Rubicon.

con (?). Near it is a chapel, built on the spot where St. Anthony once preached, and another on the canal where the saint is said to have preached to the fishes because the people refused to hear him. — The Corso d'Augusto, which intersects this piazza, leads to the left to the Porta Romana, and to the right to the Piazza Cavour and the bridge of Augustus.

The *PORTA ROMANA (Pl. D, 6) is a triumphal arch of travertine, of simple design, erected to Augustus in B.C. 27 out of gratitude for the restoration of the Via Flaminia, as the inscription records (which, however, has been inaccurately restored; the letters to the right outside the gate also belong to it). Above are medallion figures, on the outside those of Jupiter and Minerva, on the inside those of Neptune and Venus. — The scanty remains of an Amphitheatre (to which the Via dell' Anfiteatro, the second side-street of the Corso from the Porta Romana, leads) do not merit a visit.

The PALAZZO DEL COMUNE (Pl. 9), in the Piazza Cavour, contains a small picture-gallery comprising an *altar-piece by Domenico del Ghirlandajo, and a Pietà by Giovanni Bellini (about 1470). — In front of it rises a bronze Statue of Pope Paul V. (inscription on the pedestal obliterated). Beyond the Teatro Vittorio Emanuele (Pl. 10), erected in 1857, is the ancient Palace of the Malatestas ('Castello Sigismondo'; Pl. B, 5), now a prison, and in a very dilapidated condition. Their arms are still to be seen over the entrance. The townwall, to the right of the palace, commands a fine view of the mountains.

The Library, founded in 1617 by the jurist Gambalunga, contains Piazza Cavour, and several MSS. An arcade in a court to the left, 23,000 vols. built up, contains Roman inscriptions and sculptures, among which are a female figure in relief, with thin, close-fitting drapery; a fine female head, etc. At the end of the Corso is the five-arched *PONTE D'AUGUSTO, the highest of the bridges by which the Marecchia (the ancient Ariminus) is crossed at Rimini, and one of the finest ancient structures of the kind. It leads to the Borgo S. Giuliano, where the Via Emilia united with the Via Flaminia, which led to Rome. Here, too, is situated the church of —

S. Giuliano (Pl. 6), containing the Martyrdom of St. Julian, an altar-piece by Paolo Veronese, and an old picture by Lattanzio della Marca (1357), the Life of the saint. In the Castello di S. Leo, 18 M. to the W. of Rimini, the notorious impostor Cagliostro (Giuseppe Balsamo) died in confinement in 1794. From S. Leo a bridge-path, much frequented by fishermen, leads by Camaldoli and Vallombrosa to Florence.

About 12 M. from Rimini is situated the ancient republic of San Marino, the smallest in the world (8000 inhab.), said to have been founded in an inaccessible wilderness by St. Marinus at the time of the persecutions of the Christians under Diocletian. This diminutive state braved all the storms of mediæval warfare, and even the ambition of Napoleon. It retained its ancient constitution till 1847, when its senate was converted into a chamber of deputies. The precipitous rock in a bleak district on which the town (Albergo Bigi) is situated is reached by one road only from Rimini. The village of Borgo at the base is the residence of the wealthier inhabitants. The celebrated epigraphist and numismatist Bartolommeo Borghesi, born at Savignano in 1781, was from 1821 until his death in 1860, a resident at S. Marino, where he arranged and described his admirable collections, and received visits from foreign savants.

Beyond Rimini the line skirts the coast, passes (75½ M.) Riccione, crosses the streams Marano and Conca (the Crustumius Rapax of Lucan), and reaches (81 M.) La Cattolica, so called from having been the residence of the Roman Catholic bishops during the Council of Rimini in 359. A chain of hills descends here to the sea; the train ascends for some distance, and then passes through them by means of a long tunnel. It crosses the Tavollo and passes the Villa Vittoria, situated on the left, on the road to Rimini, the residence of Queen Caroline of England when Princess of Wales.

We then cross the Foglia, the ancient Isaurus or Pisaurus, to — 90½ M. Pesaro. — ALBERGO ZONGO, in a narrow street, indifferent, starting-point of the diligence to Urbino at 9 a.m. — Caffè della Piazza, in the piazza, next door to the Urbino diligence office, p. 88). — Carriage from the station to the town, one-horse 80 c., two-horse 1 fr.; one-horse carr. to Urbino about 12 fr.

Pesaro, with 10,500 inhab. (with suburbs 19,700), the ancient Pisaurum, is the capital of the united provinces of Pesaro and Urbino, and formerly belonged to the Pentapolis Maritima.

Of the provinces of the former States of the Church situated on the Adriatic, the four southern are called the MARCHES ('Le Marche'), viz. Pesaro-Urbino, Ancona, Macerata, and Ascoli, comprising an area of 3750 Sq. M. with 915,500 inhab. In the Roman period the S. part as far as Ancona was called Picenum, whereas the N. part belonged to Umbria. — Pesaro, a Roman colony as early as B.C. 184, was destroyed by Totilas, and rebuilt by Belisarius. It was subsequently ruled over by the Malatesta family, then by the Sforza, and later by the Rovere, dukes of Urbino, under whom, chiefly through the influence of Lucrezia d'Este, it became a great centre of art and literature, and was visited by Bernardo and Torquato Tasso. In 1631 the town was annexed to the States of the Church. — The fgs of Pesaro are excellent.

Pesaro was the birthplace of the celebrated composer Gioacchino Rossini (b. 1789, d. at Paris 1868), the 'swan of Pesaro', to whom a bronze statue (on the right as the station is quitted) was erected in 1864 by his admiring friends, Baron Salamanca of Madrid and G. Delahante of Paris.

The route from the station to the town leads to the right, past the back of Rossini's monument, and enters the gate from which the old diligence road issues. To the left is the Teatro Rossini, and in a straight direction the PIAZZA, in which rises the handsome and massive Prefettura, the ancient palace of the dukes of Urbino. The great hall, which is about 44 yds. long and upwards of 16 yds. wide, still contains a coffered wooden ceiling with its original painting. — Opposite to it is a façade, erected in 1848, with statues of Rossini and Perticari in marble, behind which is the former church of S.

amongst which are under the dukes, the court, and the stairs (as in the Doric column). Here, too, is preserved an admirable Majolica Collection, chiefly from the famous manufactory of Urbino. None of the churches possess much merit. S. Francesco contains a "Coronation of the Virgin by Giovanni Bellini, S. Cassiano a St. Barbara by Simone da Pesaro, S. Spirito a "Christ on the Cross by Luca Signorelli, and S. Giovanni Evangel. a Pieta by Zoppo. Opposite the spacious Lunatic Asylum (Manicomio or Ospizio degli Incurabili) are the small Orti Giuli, where a bastion of the townwall commands a fine view of the Foglia and Monte S. Bartolo. — A memorial tablet near it records that the house once stood here where Bernardo and Torquato Tasso lived and wrote their poetry whilst at the court of the Rovere.

Near Pesaro is Monte S. Bartolo, where the Roman dramatist L. Attius is said to have been born and to be interred. Beyond it lies L'Imperiale, once a favourite villa of the dukes, erected by Leonora Gonzaga, praised by Bernardo Tasso, and adorned with frescoes by Raffaello del Colle, but abandoned to decay since the 18th cent. In the vicinity is the church of the Urbinate, with an unfortunately damaged picture of St. Jerome by Giovanni Santi. One of the finest prospects in the environs is obtained from an eminence behind the monastery.

An EXCURSION to Urbino is most easily accomplished from Pesaro. Diligence daily, ascending in 5, and descending in 4 hrs.: departure from Pesaro at 9 a.m., from Urbino at 3 1/2 p.m. (4 fr., comp. p. 87). The road leads through the valley of the Foglia, which falls into the sea at Pesaro, and then gradually ascends, passing several unimportant villages. At the inn 'del Cappone', half-way, the horses are changed. Beyond Moline the road ascends in long windings. The diligence stops in the main street, flanked on the left by arcades, in which the inn and several cafés are situated. Urbino (Albergo dell'Italia, tolerable), the ancient Urbium Hortense, celebrated as the birthplace of the greatest painter of all ages, Raphael Santi (b. 28th March 1483, d. at Rome, 5th April 1520), lies on an abrupt hill, surrounded by barren mountains. The town, with 18,000 inhab. (incl. villages), boasts of a university with as many professors as students, and merits a visit as well for its picturesque situation, as for its monuments and historical associations. In the 18th cent. (1722-1808) attained to the height of its splendour, and under Pope Pius VI. (1775-1800) was raised to the rank of a kingdom. The court of the Rovere, which was regarded as the most brilliant of the 16th cent., married the nephew of Sixtus IV., and he himself was regarded as the prince of that period.

the possession of the Montefeltro (1444-82) and his son Guidobaldo, who entirely eclipsed the neighbouring and the Sforza at Pesaro. He himself was a condottiere in the service of the Duke of Urbino, and he created the princely court of that period.

It was visited for shorter or longer periods by numerous scholars and artists, amongst whom the prince was pre-eminent for learning. His son, Guidobaldo, in spite of ill health and other misfortunes, zealously followed his example, with the able assistance of his beautiful and talented wife Elizabeta Gonzaga. A famous description of the court of Urbino under Guidobaldo, depicting it as the most refined social school of the day, is given by Count Baldassar Castiglione in his 'Cortigiano', the ideal of a courtier. In 1497 Guidobaldo was expelled by Cesare Borgia, the son of Alexander VI., after whose death, however, he returned to Urbino in 1503. He died in 1508 and bequeathed his dominions to his nephew Francesco Maria della Rovere, the favourite of Pope Julius II. In 1628 the duchy was incorporated with the States of the Church, when Urban VIII. persuaded the last and childless Duke Francesco Maria II. to abdicate.

Amongst the most distinguished ARTISTS employed at the court of Urbino, during the zenith of its splendour under Federigo and Guidobaldo, were Paolo Uccello, Piero della Francesca, and Melozzo da Forli. Even foreign painters, like Justus van Ghent, a picture by whom is still preserved in the gallery (see below), were attracted to the court. The peculiar bond of union which existed here between the interests of science and art is chiefly exhibited in the library pictures or ideal portraits of scholars painted by Melozzo da Forli and others, but which have been removed from Urbino together with the library. Timoteo Viti, or DELLA VITE, of Ferrara (1467-1523) the best pupil of Francesco Francia, spent the greater part of his life in Urbino; he was the first painter who exercised an influence on Raphael, but at a later period he himself became subject to that great master's magic spell. — The master, however, in whom we are now specially interested, is GIOVANNI SANTI of Urbino (? 1450-94), the father of Raphael, whose frescoes at Cagli (p. 94) and Fano (p. 91) show considerable power and a keen sense of the graceful. As Giovanni died when Raphael was in his 11th year, the latter can hardly have had the benefit of his instruction. After his father's death, Raphael remained in Urbino till 1500, but under the tuition of what master is unknown. Another native of Urbino was FEDERIGO BAROCCIO (1528-1612), some of whose works are able, while others display the customary affectation of the post-Raphaelite period.

In the centre of the town is the PIAN DEL MERCATO, or market-place, where the street in which the inn is situated terminates. — The Via Pucinotti ascends hence to the right in a few minutes to a larger, but somewhat dull piazza, in which on the right are the cathedral and the ducal palace.

The Cathedral contains some interesting pictures. In the Chapel of St. Sebastian by Federigo Baroccio. In the Chapel of St. Martin and Thomas à Beckett, also by Fed. Baroccio. In the high altar, the Lord's Supper, with a portrait of Duke Guidobaldo, by Timoteo Viti. In the sacristy is a Scourging of Christ by Piero della Francesca, a most elaborately executed work in the miniature style. — The Crypt (entered from the right corner of the small piazza between the cathedral and the palace) possesses a Pietà by Giov. da Bologna.

The DUCAL PALACE, erected by Luciano Laurana of Dalmatia in 1464 by order of Federigo Montefeltro, was completed by Baccio Pontelli. A desire for solidity, coupled with the unevenness of the ground, has given rise to the irregularity of the building, but at the same time has enhanced its picturesqueness. The palace has been much admired ever since its erection, and was regarded by the contemporaries of the founder as an embodiment of their ideal of a princely residence. According to modern standards, however, its dimensions are not grand, and even the court by Baccio, the e trance to which is opposite the cathedral, is pleasing rather than imposing. The ornamentation of the apartments, the coloured friezes, the pillars and chimney-pieces (by Francesco di Giorgio of Siena and Ambrosio Baroccio, an ancestor of the painter), are all in the best Renaissance style. On the staircase is a statue of Duke Federigo, by Girol. Campagna. The celebrated library of the palace, founded by Federigo, and the other collections have been transferred to Rome. The upper corridors contain a well-arranged collection of inscriptions from Rome and the Umbrian municipia, established by the epigraphist Fabretti. The palazzo is now used as a 'Residenza Governativa', and contains the archives.

Opposite the palace rises an Obelisk, facing which is the church of S. Domenico, with a pleasing portal and reliefs in terracotta above the door.

We pass the Palazzo Ducale and proceed in a straight direction. The street contracts; the corner house to the right, opposite the palace, is the University, with armorial bearings over the door. Farther on, descending a little, we come to the entrance (standing back from the street to the right) of the — \**ISTITUTO DELLE BELLE ARTI NELLE MARCHE*, which contains gallery of pictures, recently collected from suppressed churches and monasteries (custodian's fee  $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

PRINCIPAL SALOON. To the right and left of the door: Lorenzo da San Severino, Crucifixion (repulsive). On the principal wall to the right: Timoteo Viti, St. Rochus; 76. Justus van Ghent, Holy Communion, interesting from its numerous portraits (including those of Duke Federigo, and, to the right of the table, Caterino Zeno, the Persian ambassador), 1474; 79. Timoteo Viti, Tobias; *82. Giovanni Santi, Madonna with St. John the Baptist, SS. Sebastian, Jerome, Francis, and three kneeling figures of the donors, members of the Buffi family; 93. Timoteo Viti, Madonna and Child with St. Joseph; 101. Antonio Alberti of Ferrara, Madonna with twelve saints, on a golden ground on wood, 1439; 102. Giov. Santi, Pietà; 114, 115. Early Venetian School, Madonna and saints. On the principal wall to the left: Titian, 140. Holy Communion, 158. Resurrection.

The GROUND FLOOR contains casts, chiefly of ornaments from the Palazzo Ducale, several original monuments of Dukes of Urbino from S. Francesco, and some fine majolicas.

In the CONTRADA RAFFAELLO, leading to the left from the market-place to the Fortezza, No. 275-278 on the left, is the house in which Raphael was born, indicated by an inscription. It was purchased in 1873 on the suggestion of Count Pompeo Gherardi, aided by a donation from Mr. Morris Moore, and is now the property of the 'R. Accademia Raffaello'. Visitors knock at the door of No. 278 ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

The rooms are adorned with engravings from Raphael's pictures. In the room to the right is a Madonna with the sleeping Child, long regarded as an early work of Raphael, but ascertained to have been executed by his father Giovanni Santi. It is proposed to erect in his native town a monument worthy of the great master, for which purpose a committee was constituted some years ago.

A little farther up the Contrada Raffaello we turn to the right to the side-street of S. Lucia, which leads to the church of S. Spi- rito, containing a Crucifixion and Descent of the Holy Ghost, originally a church banner, of 1495.

Returning to the market-place, and descending the Via Anconina, we follow the Via della Posta Vecchia, the first side-street to the right, and then the Via S. Giovanni, the first street to the left, which leads straight to the Oratorio della Confraternità di S. Giovanni. The walls of the interior are covered with scenes from the history of the Virgin and St. John the Baptist, by Lorenzo de' Severino and his brother, of the school of Giotto, dating from 1416.

In the Theatre, formerly celebrated for its decorations by Giamo Genga, the first Italian comedy was performed. This was Calandra of Cardinal Bibbiena (1470-1514), the friend of Leo X. and Patron of Raphael.

From the height of the old Fortezza (ascend the Contrada Rello, at the top take the Via dei Maceri to the left, and knock No. 1461; fee 25-50 c.), an interesting survey of the barren slopes of the Apennines is obtained. A powder magazine now stands at the top.

About 1 M. to the E. of Urbino, to the left of the Pesaro are situated the conspicuous old monastery and church of S. Bernardino, with the new cemetery of Urbino. This spot commands a fine view of the town. The church contains the tombs of the I Federigo and Guidobaldo, with their busts.

FROM URBINO TO FOSSOMBRONE (p. 93) 11½ M.; no regular connection (carriage 10 fr.). The 'Corriere del Furlo' passes through Fossombrone at 11 a.m. Carriage from Urbino to Gubbio 40 fr. (comp. From Urbino to Urbino, the ancient Urbium Metaurense, later Durante, which was probably the birthplace of Bramante, diligently at 3 p.m., corresponding with others to S. Angelo, Città di Castello

The RAILWAY FROM PESARO TO ANCONA skirts the coast occasionally approaching close to the sea, of which a pleasant view is afforded.

98 M. Fano (*Albergo del Moro, R. 1½, B. ½ fr. Fanum Fortunae of antiquity, is indebted for its origin to a statue of Fortune, a fact commemorated by a modern statue of the public fountain. It afterwards prospered, and is now a little town, surrounded by ancient walls and a deep moat. The celebrated harbour is now unimportant. As a sea-bathing place Fano is less expensive than Rimini.

In the centre of the town is the PIAZZA, in which the Theatre, erected by Torelli, a native architect, and decorated by Bibbiena, but recently almost entirely rebuilt. A room in the Theatre contains a David with the head of Goliath, much injured by thieves in 1871.

The S. side of the Piazza, which is enlivened by a fountain flowing water, is skirted by the Corso. Following the latter to the right, we reach the Via dell' Arco d'Augusto, the second cross-street to the left. In a small piazza here rises the CATHEDRAL OF S. FORTUNATO, the four recumbent lions in front of which formerly supported the pillars of the portico.

In the INTERIOR the chapel of S. Girolamo (the 2nd to the left) contains a monument of the Rainalducci family; nearly opposite (4th to the right) is a chapel adorned with sixteen frescoes by Domenichino, once admirable, now disfigured by restoration. — In the chapel of the sacristy, a Madonna with saints, by L. Caracci.

Farther on we come to the *TRIUMPHAL ARCH OF AUGUSTUS, which spans the street, a structure of simple design, to which a second story was added in the 4th cent., when it was re-dedicated to Constantine. It once had three arches, as is shown by a view of it on the adjacent church of S. Michele.

Adjoining the arch towards the town is the Spedale degli Esposti, a pleasing edifice adorned with loggie.

Returning to the piazza, we follow the Via Boccaccio opposite the fountain, and then take the Via Bonaccorsi, inclining to the left, to the church of S. MARIA NUOVA, with portico.

INTERIOR. 1st chapel on the left: Giovanni Santi, Salutation; 2nd chapel: Pietro Perugino, Annunciation, 1498. 3rd chapel on the right: Perugino, Madonna and saints, 1487.

S. Croce, the hospital-church, contains a *Madonna with four saints, by Giovanni Santi. — S. Paterniano, dedicated to the first bishop of Fano, a handsome structure, possesses a Betrothal of the Virgin, by Guercino. — S. Pietro, an imposing and richly decorated church, is embellished with frescoes by Viviani; in the chapel of the Gabrielli (1st on the left) an Annunciation by Guido Reni. — In the vestibule of S. Francesco (closed) are several monuments of the Malatesta of 1488.

Pope Clement VIII. (Aldobrandini) was born at Fano in 1536. The first printing-press with Arabic types was established here in 1514 at the expense of Pope Julius II.

From Fano to Fossato by Fossombrone and the Furlo Pass, see p. 93.

Beyond Fano the train crosses the river Metaurus (see below), celebrated as the scene of Hasdrubal's defeat (B.C. 207); then the Cesano, near (105 M.) stat. Marotto.

112 M. Sinigaglia (Locanda della Formica), the ancient Sena Gallica, with 22,000 inhab. (incl. villages), most of whom are occupied in the fishing trade. The town was destroyed by Pompey during the Civil War between Marius and Sulla; it was an episcopal see as early as the 4th cent., but was afterwards frequently devastated by fire and sword, so that it now presents quite a modern appearance. Pope Pius IX. (Conte Mastai-Ferretti) was born here on 13th May, 1792, and the celebrated singer Angelica Catalani in 1784 (d. at Paris, 1849). A fair, instituted in the 13th cent., is held here from 30th July to 8th Aug. annually; it was once the most resorted to in Italy, but has long since lost its importance.

119½ M. Casa Bruciate. Pleasant view of the promontory of Ancona, rising from the sea. The train crosses the Esino and reaches (122 M.) stat. Falconara, where the line to Rome diverges (passengers in the latter direction change carriages; see R. 14). The town lies on the hill to the right.

12. From Fano through the Furlo Pass to Fossato. Gubbio.

The high-road which connects Rome with the Valley of the Po traverses the Umbrian plains of Terni and Spoleto, and then ascends the valley of the Topino and the Chiascio, until it reaches its culminating point on the Apennines. Descending on the E. side of that range, it follows the course of the Metaurus to its mouth at Fano, after which it skirts the coast and leads N. to Bologna and the valley of the Po. It is identical with the ancient Via Flaminia, constructed in B.C. 220 by the Censor C. Flaminius (who afterwards fell at the Battle of the Trasimene Lake, see p. 46), in order to secure the possession of the district of the Po which had been at that time wrested from the Gauls. This road is still one of the most important channels of local traffic in Central Italy, but since the completion of the Apennine Railway from Bologna to Florence, and the line recently opened from Ancona to Rome (R. 14), has been little frequented by tourists. It is, however, replete with natural attractions, and affords the traveller an opportunity of becoming acquainted with several towns which merit a visit on account of their monuments and historical associations.

CORRIERE daily from Fano to Fossato in 11½ hrs.; dep. from Fano at 8.30 a.m., arr. at Fossombrone 11 a.m., at Cagli 3 p.m., at Schieggia 6.30 p.m. and at Fossato 9 p.m. — Those who desire to make the interesting circuit by Gubbio must hire a carriage at Schieggia. — The most attractive plan of making the whole tour is to combine it with a visit to URBINO: 1st day, from Pesaro to Urbino; 2nd day, 'one-horse carriage to Fossombrone (in 2½ hrs., 10 fr.), corriere to Schieggia, one-horse carriage to Gubbio; 3rd day, by diligence or carriage to Fossato, and thence by train to Foligno and Rome.

The road, the ancient Via Flaminia, quits Fano by the Arch of Augustus and the Porta Maggiore, and skirts the N. bank of the Metaurus, the fertile valley of which is well cultivated. About 1 M. from Fossombrone, near the church of S. Martino al Piano, was once situated the Roman colony of Forum Sempronii, of which but scanty remains now exist. After its destruction by the Goths and Lombards, the modern Fossombrone sprang up.

15½ M. Fossombrone (Tre Re; Pavone) was long under the dominion of the Malatesta family, but under Sixtus IV. accrued to the States of the Church. It is now a prosperous little town with 9000 inhab. and important silk-factories, prettily situated in the valley, which here contracts, and commanded by a castle on the height above. Ancient inscriptions on the cathedral, in the Seminary, etc. may be inspected. — From Fossombrone to Urbino, see p. 91.

The Via Flaminia about 2 M. from Fossombrone crosses the Metaurus, which descends from the valley near S. Angelo in Vado from the N., and follows the left bank of the Candigliano, which at this point empties itself into the Metaurus. The valley soon contracts; to the right rises the hill of Pietralata, occasionally named Monte d'Asdrubale. Here, according to the popular tradition, was fought the memorable battle of the Metaurus in which, B.C. 207, Hasdrubal, whilst marching to the aid of his brother Hannibal with 60,000 men, was signally defeated and slain by the consuls Livius Salinator and Claudius Nero. This was the great event which decided the 2nd Punic War in favour of Rome.

The valley now becomes still more confined and is bounded by precipitous slopes. At the narrowest part, where the rocky walls approach so near each other as to leave space for the river only, is the celebrated **Furlo Pass* (Furlo from forulus = passage, the ancient petra intercisa), a tunnel 17 ft. wide, 14 ft. high, and about 32 yds. in length. The founder of the work was the Emp. Vespasian, as the inscription preserved at the N. entrance records (Imp. Caesar. Augustus. Vespasianus. pont. max. trib. pot. VII. imp. X.VIII. cos. VIII. censor. faciund. curavit).

A short distance beyond it stands the small church Badia del Furlo. At the confluence of the Candigliano and Burano, 9 M. from Fossombrone, is situated the village of Acqualagna. The road crosses the Candigliano and thenceforward follows the left bank of the Burano. At the foot of the hill on which Cagli is situated, an antique bridge, consisting of huge masses of rock, crosses a tributary brook.

31 M. Cagli (Posta, in the Piazza, charges according to bargain), with about 10,000 inhab., occupies the site of the ancient borough of Cales, or Calle. S. Domenico contains one of the most important works of Giovanni Santi, Raphael's father, a Madonna with saints, al fresco. The angel on the right of the Madonna is said to be a portrait of the young Raphael. There is also a Pietà with St. Jerome and Bonaventura, by the same master. S. Francesco and S. Angelo Minore also possess several pictures.

Travellers beyond Cagli are generally conveyed in smaller carriages. About 6 M. beyond Cagli is Cantiano, with 3000 inhab.; the church della Collegiata contains a Holy Family by Perugino. — The road ascends rapidly, and reaches the height of the pass, 2400 ft. above the sea. A little before arriving at Scheggia the road crosses a ravine by the curious Ponte a Botte, constructed in 1805.

43½ M. Scheggia, an insignificant place, lies at the junction of the Fossato and Foligno, and the Gubbio roads. On Monte Petraro, in the vicinity, stand the ruins of the celebrated temple of Jupiter Apenninus, whose worship was peculiar to the Umbrians. Several bronzes and inscriptions have been discovered in the environs. Picturesque oak-plantations in the neighbourhood.

The main road continues to descend the green valley of the Chiascio, and leads by Costacciaro and Sigillo (stalactite caves) to — 55 M. Fossato, a station on the Ancona and Rome line, see p. 102.

FROM SCHIEGGIA TO

Between Schieggia and communication; one-horse carriage the charge is 6 fr. from the Fossato station (p. 102) with which it communicates three times daily by diligence (2 1/2 hrs. from Fossato; carriage 10 fr.).

The hilly road between Schieggia and Gubbio ascends towards the S.W. The highest mountains visible are the Monte Cucci and the Monte d'Ansciano. After a good hour's drive we reach the summit of Monte Calvo (2970 ft.). The road then descends rapidly in a ravine, bounded by precipitous rocks, at the end of which lies Gubbio (a drive of 25 min. from the pass); to the left is the ancient aqueduct of Gubbio.

Gubbio (Leon d'Oro, in the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele, R. 1 1/2-2 fr., good wine of the country), with 5000 inhab., is situated at the foot and on the slopes of Monte Calvo. The town presents an entirely mediæval aspect, and the proximity of the Apennines imparts to it a more severe character than that of most Italian towns. Conspicuous amongst the houses is the huge Palazzo dei Consoli, and high above them towers the church of S. Ubaldo.

Gubbio is the ancient Iguvium or Eugubium, mentioned by Cicero and Cæsar. It was destroyed by the Goths, was besieged in 1155 by the Emp. Frederick I., then became an independent state, afterwards belonged to the duchy of Urbino, and with it finally accrued to the States of the Church.

Gubbio was the native place of Oderisi, a famous miniature painter (d. about 1300), who is called by Dante in his Purgatorio (xi, 80) 'l'Onor d'Agobbio'; but no authentic work by his hand now exists. In the 14th and 15th cent. a branch of the Umbrian school flourished here, and among its masters, whose renown extended even beyond their native place, among Guido Palmerucci (1280-1345?) and several members of the Nelli family, particularly Ottaviano Nelli (d. 1444). — Gubbio occupies a still more important page in the history of artistic handicrafts. Like Umbino, Pesaro, and Faenza, it was noted for the manufacture of Majolica, or earthenware vases and tiles which were covered with a white coating of colour before being baked. One of the most distinguished majolica painters was 'MAESTRO Giorgio' of Gubbio, who is said to have invented, or rather re-discovered and perfected, the metallic, ruby-coloured glazing for which the Italian majolicas are remarkable.

At the bottom of the spacious Piazza Vittorio Emanuele stands the church of S. Francesco. We ascend hence by mediæval streets to the PIAZZA DELLA SIGNORIA, situated on the slope of the hill, and supported by massive vaults, where the most conspicuous building is the —

PALAZZO PRETORIO, now 'Residenza Municipale', containing several collections recently united here (fee 1/2-1 fr.).

On the first floor are the so-called Eugubian Tablets, which were discovered in 1440 near the ancient theatre. They are of bronze, and bear inscriptions, four in Umbrian, and three in Latin characters, which long

Ancona, the capital of a province, with 28,000 inhabitants (suburbs 45,700), of whom upwards of 6000 are Jews, and ing an excellent harbour, is beautifully situated between promontories of Monte Ciriaco and Monte Conero or Monte Since 1860 the harbour has been considerably improved by ment, and the trade of the place has increased in consequen-port is now entered by upwards of 700 steamers and 1300 vessels annually. Silk and oil are largely manufactured here Ancona is celebrated for the beauty of its women, and de-visit on account of its picturesque situation.

Ancona is supposed to have been founded by Doric Greeks from cuse, and was thence named Dorica Ancon (i. e. 'elbow', from the the promontory). It was afterwards a Roman colony, and the har-enlarged by Trajan. In the middle ages it repeatedly recovered ravages of the Goths and others, and in 1532 came into the poss-Pope Clement VII. through the instrumentality of Gonzaga. A town was the scene of many excesses, and on 18th June was re-by the Austrians. On 20th Sept., 1860, eleven days after the Castelfidardo (p. 99), it was finally occupied by the Italians.

 BAEDKER. Italy II. 6th Edition.

It contains ten beautiful columns which once belonged to an ancient temple. The church, like St. Mark's at Venice, is in the Lombard and Oriental style of architecture, and is in the shape of a Greek cross, each of the arms being flanked with an octagonal dome over the centre of the cross is one of the finest in Italy. The façade, which is said to have been designed by Margheritone d'Arezzo in the 13th cent., has a beautiful portico, the foremost columns of which rest on red lions.

THE RIGHT TRANSEPT contains the **Sarcophagus of Titus* Prætor of Ancona, with scenes from the life of Christ (the Adoration, Baptism, Entry into Jerusalem, Christ before Pilate, Judgement, Christ and the apostles with Gorgonius and his wife at his feet), and other Christian antiquities (Mary and two saints, Christ of 1213, Entombment in painted terracotta, etc.). — THE LEFT (modernised) TRANSEPT contains the tombs of SS. Cyriac and Liberius, in the rococo style.

Strada delle Scuole descends thence to the left, to the church of S. Francesco (Pl. 9; D, 3; now a barrack), resting on a substructure, with a very rich Gothic *portal. — The street leads (r.) to the Prefettura. In front of the fine Renaissance gateway leading into the court we turn to the right (Contr. de' Servi) to the church of S. Maria della Piazza (Pl. 11; C, 3), with a peculiar Romanesque-Lombard *façade of the 12th cent. and a projected portico. — We now return through the court (with fine pointed arcades to the left in the court) to the church of S. Maggiore, or di S. Domenico (Pl. D, 3), surrounded by lofty walls and adorned with a statue of Clement XII (Corsini, 1730-40). Leaving the street quitting the piazza on the side opposite the statue we reach the **Loggia dei Mercanti* (Exchange, Pl. 14; C, 3), an early Renaissance edifice with Moorish touches, by Tibaldi; over the door is a classical statue. — The street to the left leads to the PIAZZA DEL TEATRO (Pl. C, 3), the centre of business, beyond which rises the church of S. Agostino (Pl. 4; C, 4) with a late Gothic portal and a Renaissance tendency.

From the Piazza del Teatro the new and well-paved Corso Vittorio Emanuele (Pl. C, D, 4) ascends towards the E., into the new quarters of the town. At the end is the spacious Piazza del Lavoro, in the centre of which rises a colossal statue of the Victory (Pl. 21; E, 4), erected in 1868.

From the height above the railway station affords a pleasing survey of the town and harbour.

EXCURSIONS FROM ANCONA.

The province of Ancona, the ancient Picenum, is a remarkably fertile and complete with beautiful scenery. The Apennines send forth a series of spurs towards the sea, forming a number of short, but picturesque valleys. The towns and villages are invariably situated conspicuous on the heights. To the W. the view is bounded by the Central Apennines, which here attain their greatest elevation in several continuous ranges, from the Montagna della Sibilla to the Gran Sasso d'Italia (8817 ft. and are covered with snow till July. Towards the E. glitters the blue Adriatic, on which numerous sails are visible in clear weather.

On the coast, 10 M. to the S. of Ancona, rises the \**Monte Conero* (1763 ft.), with a venerable Camaldulensian monastery commanding a superb panorama. The pedestrian follows a tolerable road traversing the coast hills nearly to (7 M.) Sirolo (200 inhab.), and diverges to the left by a path ascending to the top of the hill in  $\frac{3}{4}$  hr. A carriage (see p. 97) may be taken as far as the foot of the hill.

The ANCONA-FOGGIA RAILWAY (to Loreto, 15 M., in 54 min. fares 2 fr. 70, 1 fr. 80, 1 fr. 45 c.; to Porto Civitanova, 27 M., 1 hr. 5 min. to  $1\frac{3}{4}$  hr., fares 4 fr. 85, 3 fr. 40, 2 fr. 45 c.), penetrates the heights enclosing Ancona by means of a tunnel. To the left rises the Monte Conero (see above).

10 M. Osimo (Albergo della Corona, in the market-place; omnibus from the station to the town,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant, 60 c.), the ancient Auzimum, colonised by the Romans B.C. 157, and mentioned by Caesar, is now a country-town with 5000 inhab., situated on a hill in a naturally strong position. The greater part of the \**Town Wall* dating from the 2nd cent. B.C., is still standing. A walk round it is recommended for the sake of the beautiful view it affords. The Palazzo Pubblico in the spacious Piazza contains inscription and statues of celebrated natives of the place, dating from the imperial period, but barbarously mutilated on the occasion of the capture of the town in the 16th cent. One of the inscription mentions Pompey, who was settled for a time in Picenum. — From Osimo to Loreto in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. by carr. (one-horse 5 fr.).

Proceeding hence by railway, we perceive, to the right, Castel d'Adaro, where on 18th Sept. 1860, the papal troops under Lamarmora were totally defeated by the Italians under Cialdini.

15 M. Loreto (Campanella, or Posta, in the principal street Pace; omnibus to the town 60 c.), situated on a hill at some distance from the line, and affording admirable *views of the sea, the Apennines, and the province of Ancona, is a celebrated resort of pilgrims (nearly half a million annually). It consists of little more than a single long street, full of booths for the sale of roses, medals, etc., and is much infested by beggars.

Legend, the house of the Virgin at Nazareth became venerated after the year 338, when the emperor of Constantine, made a pilgrimage thither, and erected over it. Owing to the incursions of the fell to decay, and after the loss of Ptolemais the alously transplanted by the hands of angels to this precise spot being between Fiume and Tarento), it was again removed by angels during the night.

The train runs on the rails of the Bologna line, which old road skirts the coast (to the right a retrospect of the harbour), as far as (5 M.) Falconara (p. 93).

Here the train diverges to the S.W. into the valley of Esino (Lat. Æsis), which it soon crosses at (10 M.) Chiusi, a small town with a Cistercian monastery.

17 M. Jesi, with 18,900 inhab. (incl. villages), now the most prosperous manufacturing towns of the province, was ancient Æsis, where the Emp. Frederick II., the illustrious Henry VI. and Constantia of Sicily, and grandson of Frederick barossa, was born on 26th Dec. 1194. Hence Jesi bears the name of the 'royal city'. The cathedral is dedicated to the martyr Septimius, who was the first bishop of the place in 308. It is also the birthplace of the composer G. Spontini (b. 1778, d. 1845).

The valley gradually contracts; the train crosses the river — 26 M. Castel Planio. Beyond (30 M.) Serra S. Quirico and Monte Rosso, the mountains approach so near each other as ### High Road from (Ancona) Civitanova to Foligno (Rome).

Before the completion of the Ancona and Rome line, the mails were forwarded by the Ancona and Brindisi line as far as Porto Civitanova (p. 101) from which they were sent by carriers to Foligno in about 10 hrs., but there is now regular communication by this route.

The railway is quit at Civitanova. The road ascends the fertile valley of the Chienti, affording views of the rocky summits of the Central Apennines, which are covered with snow until late in summer. The Sibilla (Gili) group first becomes visible. The country is well cultivated, and the villages are prosperous.

16 M. Macerata (Pace, Poste), a flourishing town with about 20,000 inhab., capital of the province of Macerata, picturesquely situated on the heights between the valleys of the Chienti and Potenza, possesses a university, an agricultural academy, etc. It was the birthplace of the erudite Giovanni Crescimbeni, the founder of the Roman academy of Arcadians (1693, d. in Rome 1758), and also of Matteo Ricci, the missionary (d. at Pekin 1610). In the Cathedral a Madonna with St. Francis and St. Julian, ascribed to Perugino, is a Giovanni an Assumption of the Virgin by Lanfranco. The Palazzo Municipale and the Palazzo Riccio (p. 101), after the destruction of which the modern town of Macerata sprang up. Macerata also possesses a public library and a triumphal arch, called the Porta Pa. Outside the gate, 3/4 M. from the town, is the church of the Madonna della Vergine ascribed to Bramante.

(About 8 M. to the S.W. of Macerata (S. E. of Tolentino) is the village of Urbisagium, the Roman Urbs Salvia, with extensive ruins, amphitheatre, walls, baths, etc.)

The road continues to traverse a fertile tract on the bank of the Chienti. 20 M. Tolentino (Corona), the ancient Tolentinum Picenum, on the Chienti, with 6000 inhab., possesses a remarkable Gothic gateway, and was formerly strongly fortified. The town hall in the Piazza contains a few antiquities. The cathedral of S. Niccolò de Tolentino is entered by a Gothic vestibule. In the interior, rich carving on the ceiling and fresco from the life of St. Nicholas, by Lorenzini and Jacopo da San Severino. The chapel of the saint contains two paintings, the Piro at St. Mark's at Venice, and the Plague in Sicily, ascribed to Pintoretto and Paolo Veronese (?) respectively. The ceilings are picturesque, and command fine views of the mountains. — The learned Francesco Philippi, one of the first scholars who studied and disseminated classical literature, was born here in 1588.

(San Severino, 6 M. to the N.W. of Tolentino, in the valley of the Potenza, arose from the ruins of the ancient Septempeda. It is now the chief town of the province, with 6000 inhab., a university, and a bishopric (founded in 262). The cathedral of S. Severino occupies the site of a temple of Jupiter; in front of it stands a bronze Statue of Pope Sixtus V. of 1587. The painter Carlo Maratta was born here in 1625 (d. at Rome in 1713). — From Camertes to (8 M.) La Mucella, on the Roman road, see below

The Roman road leads from Tolentino on the left bank of the Chienti, through a pleasant district and numerous plantations of oaks, to Belforte, the post-stations Valcimara and Ponte della Trave, and (18½ M. from Tolentino) —

47 M. La Muccia (Leone), the usual halting-place of the vetturini. The mountain slopes are studded with small villages on both sides. At Gelagno the road begins to ascend, the district becomes barren and bleak (the vetturini here procure the aid of oxen). The passage of the Apennines from La Muccia to Foligno occupies about 6 hrs. by carriage. Serravalle lies in a narrow ravine; above it rise the ruins of an old castle. 1½ M. farther are the sources of the Chienti (p. 103). The road now ascends to the grassy table-land of Colfiorito (Locanda di Bonelli), 2903 ft. above the sea-level, skirts a small lake, traverses a grove of oaks, and descends somewhat abruptly by Casa Nuove and Pale to Foligno. Above Pale towers the lofty Sasso di Pale, one of the last spurs of the Apennines. In descending, the road affords a beautiful *view of Foligno and the charming valley of the Clitunno. The road follows the course of the brook, and ½ M. from Foligno reaches the Via Flaminia (p. 93).

Macbean*, consul, Corso 378. AMERICAN CONSULATE: MacMillan, consul, Piazza di Spagna 26; Dumaresq, vice-consul, Piazza di Spagna 81.

Hotels (comp. pp. vi, xxii). The best, and the most expensive, are in the Strangers' Quarter, between the Porta del Popolo, the Piazza di Spagna, and as far as the railway-station. For a prolonged stay an agreement should be made beforehand. Visitors are expected to dine at the table d'hôte. French is spoken almost everywhere. Many hotels are closed during the summer months.

*COSTANZI (Pl. I, 23, p), Via S. Nicola di Tolentino 14, R. 4-6, D. 5, B. 1½ fr.; *QUIRINALE (Pl. I, 25, h), Via Nazionale, a large establishment belonging to M. Baur of Zürich (pension 12 fr. and upwards); RUSSIA (Pl. I, 18, b), Via Babuino 9; LONDRA (Pl. I, 17, c), Piazza di Spagna 13; EUROPA (Pl. I, 20, d), Piazza di Spagna 35; HÔTEL DU LOUVRE (Pl. I, 23, y), Via S. Nicola di Tolentino; BRISTOL (Pl. I, 22, x), Piazza Barberini, expensive; INGHILTERRA (Pl. I, 17, f), Via Bocca di Leone 14; SERNY, Via S. Sebastiano 3; ALBERGO DI PARIGI, Via S. Sebastianello; AMERICA (Pl. I, 17, g), Via Babuino 79; NUOVA YORK (Pl. I, 17, u), corner of the Via Carrozza and the Via Bocca di Leone; *ROMA (Pl. I, 17, i), Corso 128, D. 6 fr.; ALLEMAGNA (Pl. I, 17, k), Via Condotti 88; DELLA CITTÀ (Pl. I, 18, o), Via Babuino 198. Charges at all these about the same: R. from 3, D. 5-6, B. 1½, A. 1 fr.; pension for those who make a prolonged stay 10-12 fr. and upwards per diem.

Somewhat less expensive are: ANGLO-AMERICANO (Pl. I, 17, t), Via Frattina 128; MOLARO (Pl. I, 19, w), Via Gregoriana 56, well spoken of; ITALIA (Pl. I, 23, aa), Via Quattro Fontane 12; VITTORIA (Pl. I, 19, l), Via Due Macelli 24; SUD (Pl. I, 19, v), Via Capo le Case 56; CAVOUR, at the corner of the Via del Viminale and Via Principe Umberto, near the railway-station; LA PACE (Pl. I, 19, z), Via Sistina 8.

In the interior of the city: MINERVA (Pl. II, 16, m), Piazza della Minerva 69, large and much frequented, D. 4 fr. 70 c., pens. without lunch 9 fr.; MILANO (Pl. I, II, 13, 16, ac), Via Santa Chiara 5, at the back of the Pantheon, R. from 2½-3, B. 1¼, A. ¾, D. 4 fr.; HOTEL AND PENSION CENTRALE (Pl. I, 16, ad), Via della Rosa.

Hôtels Garnis. The traveller of moderate requirements will find it less expensive to procure apartments at one of the following houses, and to take his meals at a café or restaurant: ORIENTE AND SCANDINAVIA (Pl. I, 19, ab), Via del Tritone 6, well spoken of; ALIBERT (Pl. I, 17, q), Vicolo d'Alibert; CESARI (Pl. I, 16, n), Via di Pietra, near S. Ignazio; TEMPIO DELLA PACE, Via del Tempio della Pace 14, at the back of the Basilica of Constantine, in a sunny situation. Enquiry as to charges should always be made beforehand.

Pensions. *MME. TELLENBACH, Piazza di Spagna 51, 10-12 fr.; MISS SMITH, in the same Piazza 93; INGLESE, Via Condotti 56; BELLEVUE DI PINCIO, Via di Porta Pinciana 18, English hostess, pension 8-10 fr., well spoken of; FRANCESE, Via Mercede 51; SUEZ, Via S. Nicola di Tolentino 21; MME. MASSON, Via del Tritone. Arrangements for pension may also be made at most of the above mentioned hotels. The average charge is 10-12 fr. daily, but less for a prolonged stay.

Private Apartments. The best are situated in the quarter bounded by the Corso and the Via del Babuino on one side, and by the Piazza di Spagna and the Via Due Macelli on the other side, and also in the Via Capo le Case, Via Sistina, Piazza Barberini, and other streets on the Pincio. The most expensive, and often the least sunny, are those in the Corso, the Piazza di Spagna, and the Via del Babuino. A northern aspect should be studiously avoided, and a stipulation made for stove, carpet, and attendance (stufa, tappeti, servizio). Rent of two well-furnished rooms in a good locality 100-150 fr., one room 40-70 fr. per month; for a suite of 3-5 rooms 200-500 fr. Artists generally reside in the Via Sistina, Quattro Fontane, and that neighbourhood. In the Forum of Trajan, and the adjoining streets, apartments may be obtained with a sunny aspect and conveniently situated with regard to the old part of the town. Rooms may be procured in almost every street in the strangers' quarter, where notices and placards are frequently observed; but, as they are seldom removed when the rooms are let, the traveller must be prepared for a number of fruitless enquiries. Those who engage apartments in the Corso should come to an understanding with regard to the windows for the Carnival. — Firewood at *Ficchelli's, Piazza di Spagna 87, 11-12 fr. per mezzo passo.

Rome does not yet possess a complete DIRECTORY; but much information is afforded by the Guida Commerciale della Città di Roma, published by Tito Monaci, 4 fr. An unknown address may be ascertained at the Ufficio di Anagrafe on the Capitol, under the arches of Vignola, above the stairs leading to the Monte Caprino (p. 214).

Restaurants (those of more moderate pretensions are called Trattorie). Handsomely fitted up and expensive: Nazzarri, Piazza di Spagna 81, 82; Spillmann Frères, Via Condotti 10; Spillmann Aîné, Via Condotti 13 (at all of these D. 6 fr. and upwards); Café di Roma (p. 107).

Second class, with good French cuisine: Corradetti, Via della Croce 81; Roch, Piazza di Spagna 27; Lisi, Via Erattina 121 (these establishments also supply families with dinners at their own apartments, for 2 pers. 4-6, 3 pers. 6-8 fr.). — The Café del Parlamento, di Venezia, and the Birreria Morteo & Co. (Vienna beer), Corso 197, are also good restaurants. — Restaurant Cavour, Via della Mercede (Pl. I, 16, 17); Lepre, Via Condotti 80.

The TRATTORIE are recommended to those who have some acquaintance with the language and customs of the country: *Tratt. di Roma, Palazzo Marignoli, Via S. Claudio 90; Rosetta, Via Rosetta 1, opposite the Pantheon to the left; Falcone, Piazza di S. Eustachio 58, near the Pantheon (Roman cuisine); Posta, Via Colonna 38, near the post-office, B. D. 2½-4 fr.; Trattoria Piemontese, Piazza Trevi 10 (Piedmontese); Rebecchino, Via Bocca di Leone 7; *Carlin, Via Quattro Fontane (beer); Degli Artisti, Via della Vite 68. The following are unpretending: Gabbione, Via del Lavatore 40, by the Fontana Trevi; Tre Re, Via S. Marco 5; Torretta, Via della Torretta 1, near the Palazzo Borghese; Genio, Via Due Macelli 12, moderate.

Attempts at imposition may be checked by asking for a written account (conto scritto). The best restaurants contain a lista or bill of fare; but the waiter generally enumerates the viands verbally. The following are a few of the average charges: Zuppa 4-6 soldi; maccaroni 10-12s.; fritto 10-12s.; pork (majale), wild boar (cinghiale), or other meat 'in umido' (in sauce), arrosto di abbacchio (roasted lamb), or di capretto (kid) 15-16 s.; beefsteaks (bistecca), roast-beef (costata di manzo), cutlets (costoletta), and arrosto di mongana or vitello (veal) 18-20s.; cake or pudding (dolce, paste) 6-12s.; wine 6-8 soldi per mezzo litro. The waiter expects a gratuity of 2-3s. or more from each person.

The Osterie (wine-houses, comp. Introd.) may be visited by those who wish to observe scenes in humble life. The most popular are those outside the gates, on Monte Testaccio (p. 252), etc., which attract a motley assemblage of customers on Sundays and holidays. — Among the best houses of the kind are the Palombella, Via della Palombella, at the back of the Pantheon to the right (with a better room on the first floor), good Montefiascone 'Est-Est', Monte Pulciano, Orvieto, and Aleatico; Osteria del Ghetto (Jewish tavern), Via Rua 111 (Pl. II, 17); Campanella, near the Theatre of Marcellus, Via di Monte Savelli 78, a side-street of the Via Montanara; the Osteria opposite the Fontana Trevi 95; the Osteria Via della Pietra 67 (good Genzano); Cantina Limiti, Via Mercede 8. In Trastevere: Cucciarella, Via dell' Arco dei Tolomei 23, a cross-street on the W. side of the Lungaretta (coming from the Ponte S. Bartolommeo to the right, then to the left); the Osteria, Via dei Sabini 19 (good Montefiascone). — The ordinary wines of the environs of Rome (Vino dei Castelli Romani) are generally served in clear bottles containing one, a half, or a fifth litre (mezzo litro 6-10s.), and the better qualities in smaller bottles (fiaschetti). Amongst these last are Velletri, Genzano (8-10s. per mezzo litro), Orvieto (18s.), Montefiascone ('Est-Est', comp. p. 66; 30s.), and Aleatico (25s.). — Among the TUSCAN WINE-HOUSES are the Cantina Toscanelli, Via della Colonna 27, the Fiaschetteria Mellini, Piazza S. Lorenzo in Lucina 34 and Via di Tritone 10, and the Fiaschetteria del Barile, Vicolo di Monte Catini 12; Tuscan and Piedmontese wine also in the Via dell' Archetto. The Tuscan wine is generally served in large bottles (fiaschi) covered with reeds, and payment is made according to the quantity consumed (6-10s. per mezzo litro).

Foreign wines are sold at the first-class restaurants (p. 106), and by Morin, Via Due Macelli 62; Presenzini, Via della Croce 32; Burnel & Guichard Aîné, Via Frattina 116. — French wines are sold by Boudrant, Corso 477, and also by the LIQUORISTI: **Aragno*, Corso 237, Piazza Sciarra, and Piazza Monte Citorio 118-120 (good Roman wine); Giacosa, Via della Maddalena 17-19; Vinc. Attili, Via del Tritone 13 A; Morteo (see p. 106; good vermouth).

Beer (birra). The best is sold at the **Birreria Morteo & Co.*, Corso 197, entrance to better dining-room by Via S. Claudio 79 (Vienna beer and good cuisine), see p. 106; branch-establishment, Via delle Vergini 6, adjoining the Teatro Quirino, near the Fontana Trevi; Carlin, see p. 106. — Roman beer is brewed and sold by Germans: Via de' Due Macelli 74; Via di S. Giuseppe, Capo le Case 24; also at the cafés and by the 'liquoristi'.

Cafés. **Parlamento*, Corso 203; degli Specchi, in the Piazza Colonna, near the post-office; Italia, Corso 154; Roma, Corso 426-33; Venezia, Corso 289-290; Nazionale, corner of the Corso (179) and Via delle Convertite; Greco, Via Condotti 86, and Artisti, Via Due Macelli 91, both frequented by artists. Other cafés in almost every street; coffee generally good; sent, if desired, to private apartments. — Ices at the **Sorbetteria Napoletana*, Via dell' Impresa 22-23, to the N. of the Piazza Colonna.

Viennese, 11; Corso Gangarati, Custode 53.
Via del Foro Traiano 24. - Groceries: Donnell, Via della Croce 98 A; Lowe, Piazza di Spagna 76 (good tea). - Frory-Sworn, Piazza S. Lorenzo in Lucina 19; Posidoro, Via dell' Angelo
Tobacco Sciarras; foreign cigars 26 c. and upwards.
Gratuities. As the demands made on strangers in this respect are generally exorbitant, the following averages are given. In the galleries for 1 pers. 10 soldi, for 2-3 pers. 15s., for 4 pers. 1 fr.; regular frequenters 5 soldi. To servants and others who open doors of houses, churches, gardens, etc., 5s.; for other services (guidance, explanations, light, etc.), 1/2 fr. It is also usual to give a trifle (1-2s.) to the waiters at the cafés.
 the hotels; also Via Albert 1. Via also usual to give Baths at the hotels; also Via Alibert 1, Via Belsiana 64, Via Babuino 90, Via Ripetta 116. Bath 1½-2 fr., gratuity 6s. — Hydropathic Establishments:

Piazza Trinità de' Monti 15; Piazza del Plebiscito (Pl. I, 10).
HAIRDRESSERS: Giardini, Corso 423; Lancia, Via Condotti 11; both with ladies' rooms. — Perfumer, Corso 890.
LIBRAIRIE D'ASIANCE (10 c.): Vicolo del Sdruciole, near the Piazza Colonna; Piazza dei Cappuccini, near the Piazza Barberini; Passaggiata di Ri- petta; in the colonnade of the Piazza of St. Peter, on the side next the Porta Angelica; and of the Via Belsiana, near the Piazza Margana; on Pincio.
Climate (comp. summer being about 100° F., falls rarely, 22° F.). The mean temperature at the end of the summer is about 100° F., falls rarely, 22° F.

Climate (comp. Intro.). The mean temperature at Rome is 60° Fabr.; the greatest heat in summer being about 100° in the shade, and the greatest cold about 21°. Snow falls rarely, and does not lie long. The average temperature in January is 45°, in July 75°. The pleasant season is the beginning of October to the end of May. In summer when the sirocco or north wind, which generally brings clear and bracing weather, prevails, all the inhabitants who can afford it leave the city. The pleasant winds are the Tra- and the Scirocco, or south wind, which is relaxing and rainy. As the temperature usually falls rapidly after sunset, and colds are very common, the traveller should not dress too lightly. A proverb: "the traveller will do well to remember his medico," is very applicable to the climate of Rome.

The CARNIVAL, which begins on Saturday before Ash-Wednesday to Shrove-Tuesday, extends from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. in a daily procession in the Corso, accompanied by the throwing of bouquets and comfits, excepting on Sundays and Fridays, when a 'gala corso' generally takes place, and concluding with a horse-race. The last evening is the Moccoli (taper) evening, the tapers being lighted immediately after sunset. A window in the Corso is the best point of view. The most animated scene is between the Piazza Colonna and S. Carlo. Balconies are in great request and dear (as high as 600 fr.); single places are let on the balconies fitted up for the occasion.

The top of the Scala di Spagna (Pl. I, 20) and the favourite haunts of artists' models, chiefly Neapolitans, whose figures form one of the most singular apparitions in the streets of Rome, are less frequently seen than formerly. They pass a great part of their lives on horseback, while tending their herds of oxen and horses. Their equipment usually consists of a low felt-hat, wide, grey mantle, leathern leggings, and spurs; and they carry a 'pungolo', or iron-pointed goad, for driving their cattle. The peasants of remote mountain-districts, wearing sandals (whence termed ciocciari), and with swathed feet and ankles, also present a grotesque appearance. — The favourite haunts of the country-people are in front of the Pantheon (Pl. II, 16; especially on Sundays), the Piazza Montanara (Pl. II, 17) below the Capitol, and in the market-place of the Campo de' Fiori (p. 204).

The Garrison of Rome consists of 2 regiments of Granatieri, or Grenadier Guards; 6 regiments of Infantry (with dark blue coats, grey trousers, white leather belts, and caps); 1 regiment of Bersaglieri or riflemen with dark blue coats and red facings, large plumed caps worn on one side, forming an élite corps like the Austrian Kaiserjäger; 1 regiment of Cavalry (dark blue coats, and light grey trousers); 1 brigade of Field Artillery (dark blue coats and yellow collars); and 1 brigade of Engineers. To these we may add the Carabinieri, or gendarmes, who wear black uniforms with red facings and cocked hats.

ORIENTATION. An idea of the topography of Rome is best obtained by visiting the principal points of view, and at the same time reading the following description of them. The accompanying panorama will also materially aid the traveller in ascertaining his bearings. The first afternoon at Rome should therefore be spent in visiting S. Pietro in Montorio, the ascent of which should be made at least half-an-hour before sunset.

PRELIMINARY DRIVE. The traveller should engage a cab for 2-3 hrs. (tariff, p. 112) and drive down the Corso as far as the Piazza Venezia, through the Via di Marforio to the Forum, past the Colosseum, through the Via di S. Giovanni in Laterano to the Piazza in front of the church, commanding a fine view of the Alban Mts.; then through the Via Merulana, passing S. Maria Maggiore, through the Via di S. Maria Maggiore, Via di S. Lorenzo in Panisperna, Via Magnanapoli, across the Forum of Trajan, through the Via di S. Marco, Via delle Botteghe Oscure, across the Piazza Mattei, with its handsome fountain, through the Via de' Falegnami, Piazza S. Carlo, Via de' Pettinari, by Ponte Sisto to Trastevere, through the Longara to the Piazza di S. Pietro; then through the Borgo Nuovo, across the Piazza del Plebiscito, past the Castle of S. Angelo, over the Ponte S. Angelo, and through the Via Tordinona, etc. in a straight direction back to the Corso.

History of the City of Rome†.

† Works on the history and topography of Rome, especially of the ancient city, are extremely numerous. (In the revival of sciences many scholars devoted themselves with the utmost zeal to antiquarian research; thus Poggio (1440), Flavio Biondo, and Lucio Fauno. The most important of the earlier works is that of Nardini ('Roma antica', 1680; 4th ed. by Nibby, 1818). The following are the most eminent Roman writers on the subject of the present century. C. Fea, 'Nuova Descrizione di Roma Antica e Moderna', 1820; Canina, 'Indicazione Topografica', 3rd ed. 1841; also Nibby, 'Roma nell'anno 1838', 3 vols., 1843. — The most exhaustive German work on the subject, and one which has generally formed the basis of all subsequent investigations, is that begun under H. von Paenzer, Bunsen, Gerhard, Rostell (42). Subsequent discoveries have been made by L. Preller, and article on 'Ancient Rome' in Smith's Geography by F. Dyer (also published as intelligent view of the subject; but it has been made since it was written. One of the standard works on the subject is Jordan's 'Topographie der Stadt Rom im Alterthum' (Berlin, 1871). — Medieval Rome has been treated of far less frequently. The standard work on the subject is that of Gregorovius (8 vols., Stuttgart, 1874).

manifold vicissitudes which it has undergone, the naturally desire to form some acquaintance with the ancient centre of Western civilisation, the city of the Empire, on the ruins of which the seat of a vast jurisdiction was afterwards founded, and now the important and steadily progressing modern state. tread, our thoughts are involuntarily diverted from of the present to the contemplation of the past; and mass of pleasure-seekers will find it difficult to with- liar influence of the place. The following sketch is d to put the traveller in the way of making farther himself, and deals exclusively with those leading and ith which he ought to be acquainted before proceed- the city in detail.

The remote history of Italy is involved in much ob- the origin of the city of Rome is to a great extent a conjecture. devehantur, quo maritimi commeatus accipiantur, mare vicinum ad commoditates nec expositum nimia propinquitate ad pericula classium externarum, regionum Italiae medium, ad incrementum urbis natum unice locum'. The Tiber was navigable for sea-going ships as far as Rome, whilst its tributaries, such as the Anio, Nera, Chiana, and Topino, contained sufficient water for the river vessels which maintained a busy traffic between Rome and the interior of the peninsula. The state of these rivers has, however, in the course of ages undergone a complete revolution, chiefly owing to the gradual levelling of the forests on the mountains, and at the present day the lower part only of the Tiber, below Orte, is navigable.

Whilst the origin of the capital of the world is traditionally referred to Romulus, its extension is attributed with something more of certainty to Servius Tullius. Around the twin settlements on the Palatine and Quirinal, extensive suburbs on the Esquiline and Caelius, as well as on the lower ground between the hills, had sprung up; for not only were numerous strangers induced to settle permanently at Rome on account of its commercial advantages, but the inhabitants of conquered Latin towns were frequently transplanted thither. Out of these heterogeneous elements a new civic community was organised towards the close of the period of the kings, and its constitution commemorated by the erection of the Servian Wall, considerable remains of which are still extant. This structure, which was strengthened by a moat externally and a rampart within, is of great solidity. It enclosed the Aventine (p. 251), the Caelius, Esquiline, Viminal, Quirinal (p. 163), and Capitol (p. 210), and is computed to have been about 7 M. in circumference. Whilst care was taken thus to protect the city externally, the kings were not less solicitous to embellish the interior with handsome buildings. To this period belongs the Circus in the valley between the Palatine and the Aventine (p. 251), and above all the Cloaca Maxima (p. 249), which was destined to drain the swampy site of the Forum, and is still admired for its massive construction. This energetic and brilliant development of the city under the kings of the Tarquinian family in the 6th cent. B. C. came to a close with the expulsion of the last king Tarquinius Superbus (509).

During the first century of the REPUBLIC the united efforts of the citizens were directed to the task of establishing themselves more securely in the enjoyment of their new acquisitions; and in this they succeeded, although not without serious difficulty. It was a hard and bitter period of probation that the nation had to undergo in the first period of its new liberty, and it was not till the decline of the Etruscan power that Rome began to breathe freely again. After protracted struggles she succeeded in conquering and destroying her formidable rival Veii (396), a victory by which the Roman supremacy was established over the south of Etruria as far

ian Forest. Shortly afterwards (390) the city, with the Capitol, was taken and entirely destroyed by the Gauls. Though this catastrophe occasioned only a transient loss to the city, it produced a marked effect on the external appearance; the new streets were narrow and crooked, the city was small and unattractive, and down to the time of Augustus, Rome was far from being a handsome city. Her steadily increasing power, however, could not fail in some degree to influence her architecture. During the contests for the supremacy over Italy, the Via Appia and the first high road were constructed at Rome by Appian in 312 (Aqua and Via Appia, p. 343); in 272 a temple (Anio Vetus) was erected. Down to the period of Augustus Rome had not extended beyond the walls of Servius Tullius, after the overthrow of Carthage had constituted her the first city of the world, the city rapidly increased. The wall was at length demolished to make room for new buildings, so that at the time of Augustus it was no longer an easy matter to find the city in its former position, and new quarters now sprang up everywhere. Speculation in houses was extensively carried on, and this means that the Triumvir Crassus, among others, became very rich; for rents were high, and the houses of a slight and expensive construction. These insulae, or blocks of houses, which were fitted up with the utmost magnificence, contrasted strikingly with the domus, or palaces of the aristocracy. Thus, for example, the tribune Clodius, the well-known enemy of Cicero, purchased his house for the sum of 130,525*l.*. During the last century the city began to assume an aspect more worthy of its position as capital of the civilised world. The streets, hitherto narrow and ill-kept, were now converted into the massive lava-causeways which were visible on many of the ancient roads (e. g. Via Appia). The highest ambition of the opulent nobles was to perpetuate their names by the erection of imposing public buildings. M. Porcius Cato erected the first court of judicature in the Forum, and others followed his example. The founder of the first theatre in stone (p. 207). Generally, the structures of the republic were far inferior to those of the imperial epoch, and owing to this circumstance but few have been preserved (Tabularium of B. C. 78, p. 221; Curia, p. 160, and Caecilia Metella, p. 344).

Introduction of a new architectural period also. Usurpers, with a view to direct their energies to the construction of new buildings, went to direct their energies to the construction of new buildings, with a view to obscure the lustre of the older ones, and to obliterate the associations connected with them. They had formed the most extensive plans of this nature, but their execution was reserved for his more fortunate nephew. Of all the ruins of ancient Rome those of the buildings of Augustus occupy by far the highest rank, both in number and importance. The points especially worthy of note are the Campus Martius with the Pantheon (p. 195) and the Thermae of Agrippa (p. 197), the Basilica Julia (p. 227), and the Forum of Augustus with the Temple of Mars (p. 238). No fewer than 82 temples were restored by Augustus ('templorum omnium conditorem ac restitutorem' as he is termed by Livy), who might well boast of having transformed Rome from a town of brick into a city of marble. During the republican period the ordinary volcanic stone of the neighbourhood was the usual building material, but the marble from the quarries of Carrara (discovered about 100 B. C., but not extensively worked till the time of Augustus) and the beautiful travertine from the vicinity of Tivoli were now employed. The administration and police-system of the city were also re-organised by Augustus, who divided Rome into 14 quarters (regiones), adapted to its increased extent (p. 126). A corps of watchmen (vigiles), who also served as firemen, was appointed to guard the city by night. These and other wise institutions, as well as the magnificence attained by the city under Augustus, are depicted in glowing terms by his contemporaries. His successors followed his example in the erection of public edifices, each striving to surpass his predecessors. The conflagration of the year 54, which reduced the greater part of Rome to ashes, having been ignited, it is said, at the emperor's instigation, afforded him an opportunity of rebuilding the whole city in the most modern style and according to a regular plan. For his own use he erected the 'golden house', a sumptuous palace with gardens, lakes, and pleasure-grounds of every description, covering an enormous area, extending from the Palatine across the valley of the Colosseum, and far up the Esquiline (p. 178). These and other works were destroyed by his successors, and well merited their fate; the fragments insignificant.

The FLAVIAN DYNASTY, which followed the Julian, has on the other hand perpetuated its memory by a number of most imposing works, above all the Colosseum (p. 233), which has ever been regarded as the symbol of the power and greatness of Rome, the Baths of Titus on the Esquiline (p. 236), and the Triumphal Arch (p. 222) erected after the destruction of Jerusalem. Under Trajan, architecture received new impetus, and indeed attained the highest development of which the art was capable at Rome. To this the Forum of Trajan (p. 238), with the column, and the reliefs afterwards employed to decorate Constantine's arch, bear the most eloquent testimony. Under Trajan, indeed, the culminating point both of art and of political greatness was attained. Thenceforward the greatness of the empire began gradually, but steadily to decline. Although under the next emperor Hadrian this downward tendency was apparently arrested, yet the monuments of his reign, such as the Temple of Venus and Roma (p. 232) and his Mausoleum (p. 276), begin to exhibit traces of degeneracy. The same remark applies also to the time of the Antonines. These monarchs were remarkable for their excellent qualities as sovereigns, and their peaceful sway has frequently been regarded as the period during which mankind in general enjoyed the greatest prosperity. There is even a tradition that 'the good old times' will return when the equestrian statue of the worthy Marcus Aurelius, the gilding of which has almost entirely disappeared, shall resume its costly covering. This, however, was but the lull preceding a storm. The great plague under the latter emperor was the first of a series of fearful calamities which devastated the empire. Throughout an entire century civil wars, incursions of barbarians, famine, and pestilence succeeded each other without intermission. Although Rome was less affected by these horrors than the provinces, it is computed that the population of the city, which at the beginning of the 2nd cent. was about 1½ million, had dwindled to one-half by the time of Diocletian. A constant decline in architectural taste is still traceable; but, as building always constituted an important feature in the policy of the emperors, the number and extent of the ruins of this period is considerable. To this epoch belong the Column of Marcus Aurelius (p. 148), the Triumphal Arch of Septimius Severus (p. 226), the magnificent Baths of Caracalla (p. 257), the Temple of the Sun of Aurelian (p. 158), and the extensive Thermae of Diocletian (p. 175).

After the Punic War the walls of the city had been suffered to fall to decay, and during nearly five centuries Rome was destitute of fortification. Under the emperor Aurelian, however, danger became so imminent that it was deemed necessary again to protect the city by a wall against the attacks of the barbarians. This structure is to a great extent identical with that which is still standing. The latest important ruins of antiquity bear the name of CONSTANTINE THE GREAT, viz. the Basilica (p. 231), Baths (pp. 158, 170), and Triumphal Arch (p. 235). The two former were, however, erected by his rival Maxentius. Constantine manifested little partiality for Rome and ancient traditions, and the transference of the seat of empire to Byzantium (in 330) marks a decided turning-point in the history of the city, as well as in that of the whole empire. Rome indeed was still great on account of its glorious past and its magnificent monuments, but in many respects it had sunk to the level of a mere provincial town. No new works were thenceforth undertaken, and the old gradually fell to decay.

The city was still divided, in accordance with the AUGUSTEAN SYSTEM, into fourteen regions, in enumerating which we shall name the principal ruins belonging to each = — 1. Porta Capena, Via Appia, within the city (p. 236); 2. Caelimontium, Caelius (p. 280); 3. Isis et Serapis, Colosseum (p. 233); 4. Templum Pacis, Venus et Roma (p. 232); 5. Exquiliae, Basilica of Constantine (p. 185); 6. Alla Semita, Baths of Constantine (p. 170) and garden of Sallust (p. 165); 7. Via Lata, the modern Corso (p. 146); 8. Forum Romanum, the republican and imperial Fora (pp. 222, 236) and Pompey (p. 207), portico of Octavia (p. 209), Pantheon (p. 195), column of Marcus Aurelius (p. 148); 9. Circus Flaminius, Theatres of Marcellus (p. 209) and Pompey (p. 207); 10. Palatium, Palatine (p. 240); 11. Circus Maximus, temple in the Forum Boarium (p. 249); 12. Piscina Publica, Baths of Caracalla (p. 257); 13. Aventinus, Pyramid of Cestius (p. 252); 14. Transtiberim, Trastevere and the Borgo. According to the statistics of this period, Rome possessed 37 gates, from which 28 high roads diverged, and 19 aqueducts; and although four only of these last are now in use, there is probably no city in the world which can boast of such an excellent supply of water as Rome. The banks of the Tiber were connected by 8 bridges. There were 423 streets, 1790 palaces, and 48,602 dwelling-houses. Among the public structures are mentioned 11 Thermæ, 856 bath-rooms, 1352 fountains in the streets, 423 temples, 36 triumphal arches, 10 basilicas, etc. When the grandeur and magnificence suggested by these numbers is considered, it may appear a matter of surprise that comparatively so few relics now remain; but it must be borne in mind that the work of destruction progressed steadily during nearly a thousand years, and was not arrested till the era of the Renaissance, but for which even the monuments still existing would ere now have been consigned to oblivion.

The Catacombs, the earliest burial-places of the CHRISTIANS, illustrate the gradual progress of this interesting community, in spite of every persecution, from the 1st century downwards. At the beginning of the year 313 Constantine issued his celebrated decree from Milan, according to Christianity equal rights with all other religions. This was the decisive step which led to the union of the church with the state. In 324 the first œcumenical council was held at Nicæa, and in 337 the emperor caused himself to be baptised when on his deathbed. Tradition attributes the earliest ecclesiastical division of Rome into seven diaconates to St. Clement, the fourth bishop, and St. Peter is said to have founded the first place of worship in the house of the senator Pudens, now the church of S. Pudenziana (p. 177). To Calixtus I. (217-22) is ascribed the foundation of the church of S. Maria in Trastevere (p. 329), and to Urban, his successor, that of S. Cecilia (p. 330). About the beginning of the fourth century S. Alessio and S. Prisca on the Aventine are supposed to have been founded. Of these churches, however, and also of the edifices erected by CONSTANTINE, no trustworthy record has been handed down to us. To that monarch tradition attributes the foundation of the following churches — the Lateran, St. Peter's, S. Paolo Fuori, S. Croce in Gerusalemme, S. Agnese Fuori, S. Lorenzo Fuori and S. Pietro e Marcellino at Torre Pignattara (p. 349), — but probably erroneously, with the exception of the first, which was styled 'omnium urbis et orbis ecclesiarum mater et caput'. It is, however, noteworthy that the oldest and most important churches were generally outside the gates, or at least in their immediate vicinity; and this is accounted for by the fact that the Roman aristocracy at first clung tenaciously to the old traditions, and for a long period the city preserved its heathen character. The state at length overcame this antagonism. In 382 the altar of Victoria was removed from the senate-hall, and in 408 the ancient religion was at length deprived by a law of Honorius of all its temporal possessions, and thus indirectly of its spiritual authority also. The destruction of the ancient temples, or their transformation into Christian places of worship now began, and the churches rapidly increased in number. At this early period Rome possessed 28 parish churches (tituli), besides numerous chapels, and among them arose the five PATRIARCHAL CHURCHES, presided over by the pope, and forming a community to which the whole body of believers throughout the world was considered to belong. These five were S. Giovanni in Laterano, S. Pietro, S. Paolo, S. Lorenzo, and the church of S. Maria Maggiore founded by Liberius. Besides these, S. Croce in Gerusalemme and S. Sebastiano, erected over the catacombs of the Via Appia, enjoyed special veneration. These formed the 'Seven Churches of Rome' to which pilgrims flocked from every part of western Christendom. The number of monasteries now steadily increased, and at the same time the inroads of poverty made rapid strides.

In the 4th CENTURY the cultivation of the Roman Campagna began to be seriously neglected, and in an official document of the year 395 it is stated that upwards of 500 square miles of arable land had been abandoned and converted into morass. The malaria at the same time extended its baneful sway from the coast into the interior of the country. The storms of the barbarian irruptions greatly aggravated the misery. Although the Vandals and Goths are often erroneously held responsible for the destruction of all the great monuments of antiquity, which, on the contrary, Theodoric the Great did his utmost to protect, Rome doubtless suffered terribly from having the city was a scene of their battles and pillagings. In 410 in 537 it was sacked by Alaric, and in 445 by the Vandals, and they laid waste the Campagna and cut off all the supplies of water brought to the city by the walls, particularly those of the Castle of S. Angelo, effectually repelled their attacks on the city. In March 538 they were at length compelled to abandon their designs, after having beleaguered the city for upwards of a year. In December 546, Totilas, the king of the Goths, entered Rome, and is said to have found not more than 500 persons within the walls which had been partially destroyed, and in 547 he sustained a second siege. In 549 the city again fell into the hands of Totilas, but in 552 it was recaptured by Narses and again united with the Byzantine empire. About this period the city was reduced by war, pestilence, and poverty to a depth of misery which was never again paralleled, except during the absence of the papal court at Avignon. No thorough restoration was possible, for the Byzantine emperors cared nothing for Rome, and in the Lombards arose new enemies to their dynasty in Italy. In 663 Constans II. visited Rome, an interval of 306 years having elapsed since it had been entered by a Byzantine emperor, and availed himself of the opportunity to carry off the last remains of the bronze with which the ancient monuments were decorated. In 755 the Lombards under their duke Aistolf besieged Rome for two months and ruthlessly devastated the Campagna, which during the preceding interval of peace had begun to wear a more smiling aspect. A lamentation of that period begins thus: —

Subdita nunc servis, heu male Roma ruis;
Deseruere tui tanto te tempore reges,
Cessit et ad Græcos nomen honosque tuus’.

Lucan terminates with the words: —

‘Nam nisi te Petri meritum Paulique foveret, Tempore jam longo Roma misella fores’.

It was in fact the tradition, indelibly attaching to Rome, of the great struggles and victories of Christianity which preserved the city from total destruction. The transformation of heathen into Christian Rome was accompanied by the gradual development of PAPACY as the supreme ecclesiastical power in the West. Leo the Great (440-461) and Gregory the Great (590-604) may be regarded as the chief originators of this scheme of aggrandisement. These prelates and their successors were indefatigable in their efforts to realise their project, and under their auspices, notwithstanding the poverty and misery into which Rome had sunk, new churches and monasteries were constantly springing up among the ruins of the monuments of antiquity, and the last feeble spark of artistic taste which still survived was devoted to the decoration of these buildings. The objects at which they chiefly aimed were independence of Byzantium, the subjection of the Eastern church to the court of Rome, and the conversion of the heathen Germans, the accomplishment of which would materially pave the way for their ulterior ambitious schemes. In 727 the Lombard king Luitprand presented Sutri, which had been captured by him, to the pope, this being the first instance of a town being presented to the church, and this gift constituted a basis for the subsequent formation of the States of the Church. In 755, on the invitation of the pope, the Frankish king Pepin proceeded to Italy and practically put an end to the Byzantine supremacy. It is not known whether that monarch absolutely made over the Exarchate of Ravenna and the other towns to the representative of St. Peter, or whether he granted them to him as a fief; but it is certain that the temporal power of the popes and their supremacy over Rome dates from the grants made by Pepin to the church. On Christmas Day, in the year 800, Charlemagne was crowned by Leo III., and from that period dates the career of the 'Holy Roman Empire' and the MEDIEVAL HISTORY of the Roman Catholic Church.

A characteristic of this period is to be found in the numerous, many-storied towers of red brick which contrast so strongly with the monuments of ancient Rome. This style of architecture was developed in the Carlovingian epoch, although most of these towers now extant were not erected before the 12th or 13th century. In still greater numbers sprang up towers of a defensive character, a few only of which, such as the so-called Torre di Nerone (p. 172), are still preserved. The forest of towers, belonging to numerous different owners, which reared themselves over the ruins of the mistress of the world, affords at the same time a clue to the character of the whole epoch; for, in spite of the nominal sway exercised over the greater part of Europe by the pope and the emperor, continual feuds raged both at Rome and elsewhere between the temporal and spiritual powers, and between the nobility and the populace. The great monuments of antiquity were now doomed to utter destruction, and their fate is thus described by the historian Gregovorius (iii, 565): — 'Charlemagne had already set the example of carrying off ancient columns and sculptures to adorn his cathedral at Aix-la-Chapelle, and the popes, who regarded the greatest monuments of Rome as the property of the state, possessed neither taste, nor time, nor ability to take measures for their preservation. The plundering of ancient buildings became the order of the day. The priests were indefatigable in transferring antique columns and marbles to their churches; the nobles, and even the abbots, took possession of magnificent ancient edifices which they disfigured by the addition of modern towers; and the citizens established their workshops, rope-walks, and smithies in the towers and circuses of imperial Rome. The fisherman selling his fish near the bridges over the Tiber, the butcher displaying his meat at the theatre of Marcellus, and the baker exposing his bread for sale, deposited their wares on the magnificent slabs of marble which had once been used as seats by the senators in the theatre or circus and perhaps by Cæsar, Mark Antony, Augustus, and other masters of the world. The elaborately sculptured sarcophagi of Roman heroes were scattered in every direction and converted into cisterns, washing-vats, and troughs for swine; and the table of the tailor and the shoemaker was perhaps formed of the cippus of some illustrious Roman, or of a slab of alabaster once used by some noble Roman matron for the display of her jewellery. For several centuries Rome may be said to have resembled a vast lime-kiln, into which the costliest marbles were recklessly cast for the purpose of burning lime; and thus did the Romans incessantly pillage, burn, dismantle, and utterly destroy their glorious old city'.

other useful structures, which indicate a renewed period of prosperity; but the ravages of the Saracens in the city and its environs soon prevented farther progress. When at length these barbarians were finally subdued by John X., the city was repeatedly besieged and captured by German armies during the contest for the imperial supremacy; and subsequently, in consequence of incessant civic feuds, the whole city was converted into a number of distinct fortified quarters, with castellated houses, in the construction of which numerous monuments of antiquity were ruthlessly destroyed for the sake of the building materials they afforded. Every temporary re-establishment of peace was invariably followed by new scenes of devastation, as when the senator Brancaleone dismantled no fewer than 150 of the strongholds of the warlike nobles.

The constantly increasing civic and national dissensions at length compelled Clement V. in 1309 to transfer the seat of the Pontifical government to Avignon, where it remained till 1377, whilst Rome was successively governed by Guelphs and Ghibellines, Neapolitans and Germans, Orsini's and Colonna's, and for a brief period (1347) Cola di Rienzi even succeeded in restoring the ancient republican form of government. This was an epoch of the utmost misery, when poverty, war, and disease had reduced the population to less than 20,000 souls.

A more happy era was inaugurated by the return of Gregory IX. to the city. After the termination of the papal schism (1378-1417), the new development of the city progressed rapidly, aided by the vast sums of money which flowed into the papal coffers, and by the revival of taste for art and science promoted by Nicholas V., Julius II., Leo X., and others. In 1527 the city was fearfully devastated by the troops of Charles of Bourbon; but it gradually recovered from the blow, its population again increased, and many churches and palaces were restored or re-erected by the popes, their cardinals, and favourites, especially during the pontificate of Sixtus V. (1585-90), to whom modern Rome is chiefly indebted for its characteristic features. In 1798 a republic was established for a short period at Rome, and from 1809 to 1814 the city was under the supremacy of France. A republican form of government was again declared in 1849, in consequence of the events of the previous year, but on 12th April, 1850, Pius IX. was restored by the French. The city was then garrisoned by 15,000 French troops, who were withdrawn in December 1866, in accordance with the convention of 15th Sept., 1864; but they were recalled after the Garibaldian hostilities of 1867, and were quartered in the environs until the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. On 20th Sept. of that year the Italian troops marched into the city, after a bombardment of five hours. The States of the Church are now incorporated with the kingdom of Italy, of which Rome is once more the capital.

Rome is situated (41° 53' 54" N. lat., 12° 29' E. longit., meridian of Greenwich) in an undulating volcanic plain, which extends from Capo Linaro, S. of Civit  Vecchia, to the Promontorio Circeo, a distance of about 85 M., and between the Apennines and the sea, a width of 25 M. The city is built on both banks of the Tiber, the largest river in the Italian peninsula, 14 M. from its influx into the Mediterranean. The prospect from one of the hills of Rome — and no city is more replete with ever-varying and delightful views — is bounded towards the E. by the unbroken chain of the Apennines, which rise at a distance of 10 to 20 M. In the extreme N. towers the indented ridge of Soracte (2260 ft.), occupying an isolated position in the plain, and separated by the Tiber from the principal range of the Apennines. Farther E., and still more distant, is the Leonessa group (7257 ft.), which approaches the Central Apennines. Considerably nearer lies the range of the Sabine Mts. The summit at the angle which they form by their abutment on the Campagna is M. Gennaro (4163 ft.), the Lucretilis of Horace; the village at the base is Monticelli (1295 ft.). Farther off, on the slope of the hill, lies Tivoli, recognisable by its villas and olive-gardens. More wards the S., on the last visible spur of the Sabine Mts. (2513 ft.), is situated Palestrina, the Præneste of antiquity. A depression 4 M. in width only, separates the Apennines from the volcanic Alban Mts, above which a few peaks of the distant Volscian Mts. appear. On the E. spur of the Alban Mts. lies the village of Colonna (1180 ft.). The following villages are Rocca Priora (2352 ft.) and Monte Porzio (1529 ft.); then the town of Frascati (2218 ft.), below the ancient Tusculum. The highest peak of the Alban Mts. is M. Cavo (3130 ft.), once surmounted by a temple of the Alban Jupiter, now by a Passionist monastery. On its slope lies the village of Rocca di Papa (2647 ft.), loftily and picturesquely situated, below which, towards the plain, is the town of Marino (1322 ft.). The village, with the castle farther to the W. on the hill, is Castel Gandolfo; the mountain then gradually sinks to the level of the plain. Towards the W. the sea is visible from a few of the highest points only. On the N. the eye rests on the Janiculus (282 ft.), a volcanic chain of hills approaching close to the river, beyond which the horizon is bounded by mountains also of volcanic formation: towards the sea, to the left, the mountains of Tolfa (2040 ft.), then the heights around the lake of Bracciano with the peak of Rocca Romana (2018 ft.), the Ciminian Forest (now generally called the mountains of Viterbo, 3464 ft.); the nearest point to the right is the crater of Baccano, with the wooded bill of M. Musino (1319 ft.). The plain enclosed by this spacious amphitheatre of mountains, and intersected by the Tiber and the Anio, which descends from Tivoli and falls into the former  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. above Rome, contains a sprinkling of farms and villages, but is far more replete with witnesses of its former greatness and present desolation in the innumerable and extensive ruins which cover it in every direction.

The WALL by which MODERN Rome is surrounded is 14 M. in length, constructed of brick, and on the outside about 55 ft. in height. The greater part of it dates from 271 to 276, having been begun by the Emp. Aurelian, completed by Probus, and subsequently restored by Honorius, Theodoric, Belisarius, and several popes. The city is entered by TWELVE GATES (several of earlier date being now walled up). Of these the most important is the Porta del Popolo, whence the grand route to N. and E. Italy issues, afterwards crossing the Tiber by the Ponte Molle,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the city. Receding from the river, follow: Porta Salara, Porta Pia, Porta S. Lorenzo (road to Tivoli), Porta Maggiore (to Palestrina), Porta S. Giovanni (to Frascati and Albano), Porta S. Sebastiano (Via Appia), Porta S. Paolo (to Ostia). Then, on the right bank of the Tiber: Porta Portese (to Porto), Porta S. Pancrazio, Porta Cavaleggieri, and Porta Angelica.

The Tiber reaches Rome after a course of about 216 M., and intersects the city from N. to S. The water is turbid (the 'fluvius Tiberis' of Horace), and rises to a considerable height after continued rain. The average width of the river is about 65 yds. & its depth 20 ft., but it sometimes rises as much as 30-35 ft., as was the case during the great inundation of 1871. The construction of an artificial channel for the river is projected. The navigation of the river, by means of which the commerce of imperial Rome was carried on in both directions, with transmarine nations as well as with the Italian provinces, is now comparatively insignificant. The Tiber enters the city not far from the base of M. Pincio, and describes three curves within its precincts: the first towards the S.W., skirting the quarter of the Vatican, the second to the S.E., bounding the Campus Martius and terminating at the island and the Capitol, and the third to the S.W., quitting the city by the Aventine.

On the RIGHT BANK of the Tiber lies the more modern and smaller portion of the city. This part is divided into two halves: on the N. the Borgo around the Vatican and St. Peter's, encircled with a wall by Leo IV. in 851 and erected into a separate town; on the S., lying on the river and the slopes of the Janiculus, Trastevere, which from a very remote period has formed a tête-de-pont of Rome against Etruria, and was a densely populated suburb in the reign of Augustus. These two portions are connected by the long Via della Longara, constructed by Sixtus V. — The banks of the Tiber are connected by means of FIVE BRIDGES: the Ponte S. Angelo near the castle of that name, below which the Ponte Leonino, a new suspension bridge, crosses from the Longara; then from Trastevere the Ponte Sisto; another traverses the island, the portion from Trastevere to the island being called Ponte S. Bartolommeo, and thence to the left bank the Ponte de' Quattro Capi; finally, below the island, is the Ponte Rotto.

The more ancient portion of the city, properly so called, lies on the LEFT BANK, partly in the plain which extends along the river, the ancient Campus Martius, and partly on the surrounding hills. Modern Rome is principally confined to the plain, whilst the HEIGHTS on which the ancient city stood are now to a great extent uninhabited, but have recently again begun to be occupied by houses. These are the far-famed Seven Hills of Rome. The least extensive, but historically most important, is the Capitoline (161 ft.), which rises near the Tiber and the island, and at the present day forms to some extent the barrier between ancient and modern Rome. It consists of a narrow ridge extending from S.W. to N.E., culminating in two summits, separated by a depression: on the S.W. point, towards the river, stands the Palazzo Caffarelli, and on that to the N.E., towards the Quirinal, the church of S. Maria in Araceli. Contiguous to the Capitoline, in a N.E. direction, and separated from it by a depression which the structures of Trajan considerably widened, extends the long Quirinal (170 ft.). On the N. a alley, in which the Piazza Barberini is situated, separates the Quirinal from the Pincio (164 ft.), which, as its ancient appellation

Population.

'collis hortorum' indicates, was occupied by gardens, and not regarded as a portion of the city. To the E. of the Quirinal, but considerably less extensive, rises the Viminal (177 ft.). Both of these may be regarded as buttresses of the third and more important height, the Esquiline (246 ft.), which, forming the common basis of these two, extends from the Pincio on the N. to the Cælius. Its distinguishing feature with regard to modern Rome is the conspicuous church of S. Maria Maggiore; with regard to ancient Rome, S. Pietro in Vincoli and the ruins of the Thermae of Titus, where it approaches the Quirinal, Palatine, and Cælius. To the S. E. of the Capitoline, in the form of an irregular quadrangle, rises the isolated Palatine (165 ft.), with the ruins of the palaces of the emperors, and on the low ground between these hills lies the ancient Forum. Farther S., close to the river, separated from the Palatine by the depression in which the Circus Maximus extended, is the Aventine (151 ft.), with the churches of S. Sabina, S. Balbina, etc. Finally, to the E. of the latter, the long-extended Cælius (161 ft.), with S. Gregorio and S. Stefano Rotondo; in the low ground between the Cælius, Palatine, and Esquiline is situated the Colosseum; farther E., by the city-wall, between the Cælius and Esquiline, is the Lateran.

By far the greater portion of the area enclosed by the walls, which was inhabited during the imperial period by  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 million souls, is now untenanted. On the Palatine, Aventine, Cælius, Esquiline, and the whole of the region immediately within the walls, streets once densely peopled are now replaced by the bleak walls of vineyards. The MODERN CITY is divided into two halves by the Corso, or principal street, which runs from N. to S., from the Porta del Popolo to the Piazza di Venezia in the vicinity of the Capitoline. The E. half, at the base and on the ridge of the Pincio and Quirinal, presents a modern aspect, and is the principal resort of strangers. The W. half, on the bank of the Tiber, consists of narrow and dirty streets, occupied by the humbler classes.

Population. According to the last census, 31st Dec. 1871, Rome contained 244,484 inhabitants (now about 285,000), of whom 29,000 were temporary Italian residents and 5687 soldiers. Of these 115,767, including children, could neither read nor write. There were 1428 secular clergymen, 2175 monks (of whom 179 only were natives of Rome), 1824 nuns; 232,665 Roman Catholics, 3798 Protestants, 4619 Jews, and 3402 professors of other creeds. The monasteries covered one-seventh of the area occupied by buildings, and one-eighth of the remainder of the area of the city also belonged to them. One-third of the area in secular hands belonged to various corporations, one-third was held by the municipality in trust for public purposes, and the remaining third was the private property of individuals.

The following description of Rome is arranged in accordance with a division of the city into five principal quarters, the extent of which is marked on the clue-map at the end of the Handbook. Each of these quarters possesses monuments which in many respects impart to it a distinctive character of its own, though of course numerous monuments of all periods are scattered throughout the city.

I. Strangers' Quarter and Corso, which constitute modern Rome, and are the chief centre of business.

II. The Quirinal, Viminal, and Esquiline Hills, to the E., covered with houses in ancient times, but until recently quite uninhabited.

III. Rome on the Tiber, the closely packed and tortuous city of the middle ages, the abode of the poorer classes.

V. The Right Bank of the Tiber, including the Vatican, St. Peter's, the Longara, and Trastevere.

I. Strangers' Quarter and Corso.

The N. entrance to Rome is formed by the Porta del Popolo (Pl. I, 15), not far from the Tiber, through which, before the construction of the railroad, most visitors approached the Eternal City. The gate was constructed in 1561 by Vignola, and the side towards the town embellished by Bernini in 1655, on the occasion of the entry of Queen Christina of Sweden. Two side-portals are at present being added. The gate is named after the adjoining church of S. Maria del Popolo (see below), opposite to which are the Barracks of the Carabinieri. — Outside the gate, on the right, is the Villa Borghese, see p. 161. — Within the gate extends the handsome **Piazza del Popolo* (Pl. I, 15, 18), adorned with an Obe-  lisk between four water-spouting lionesses, which was brought by order of Augustus from Heliopolis, after the defeat of Antony, placed in the Circus Maximus, and, according to the inscription, dedicated to the Sun. It was removed to its present position by order of Sixtus V. in 1589. The shaft is 78 ft. in height, and the whole monument with the pedestal and cross 118 ft.

Towards the W. the Piazza is bounded by an arched wall with figures of Neptune and Tritons, opposite which is a similar structure adorned with Roma between the Tiber and the Anio. On each side of the latter is an approach to the Pincio (p. 142).

Three streets diverge from the piazza on the S.: to the right the Via di Ripetta (p. 187), parallel with the river; in the centre the Corso (p. 146); and to the left the Via del Babuino, leading to the Piazza di Spagna (p. 144). — Between the two latter streets stands the church of S. Maria in Monte Santo, adjacent to which, on the right, is that of S. Maria de' Miracoli, both dating from the latter half of the 17th cent., with domes and vestibules, designed by Rinaldi, and completed by Bernini and Fontana.

*S. Maria del Popolo, said to have been founded by Paschalis II. in 1099 on the site of the tombs of the Domitii, the burial-place of Nero which was haunted by evil spirits, was entirely re-erected by Baccio Pintelli under Sixtus IV. in 1477, and the interior afterwards decorated by Bernini in the rococo style. It consists of nave, aisles, transept, and octagonal dome, and contains numerous works of art, in particular several handsome monuments of the 15th cent. (The sacristan shows the choir and chapels; fee 1/2 fr.)

RIGHT AISLE. The 1st Chapel, formerly della Rovere, now Venuti, was painted by Pinturicchio: *altar-piece, Adoration of the Infant Christ; in the lunettes, life of St. Jerome. On the left, the tomb of Cardinal della Rovere, right, that of Cardinal di Castro. In the 2nd Chapel: Assumption of Mary, altar-piece by C. Maratta. 3rd Chapel, painted by Pinturicchio: above the altar, Madonna with four angels; on the left, Assumption of the Virgin; in the lunettes, scenes from the life of Mary; in the predelle representations of martyrs in grisaille; on the right, tomb of Giov. della Rovere (d. 1483); on the left, recumbent bronze figure of a bishop. In the 4th Chapel marble-sculptures of the end of the 15th cent. above the altar: St. Catharine between St. Antony of Padua and St. Vincent; right, tomb of Marcantonio Albertoni (d. 1485); left, that of the Cardinal of Lisbon (d. 1508).

RIGHT TRANSEPT. On the right, tomb of Cardinal Podocatharus of Cyprus. Near it is a door leading into a passage, at the end of which is the sacristy, containing the former *canopy of the high-altar of Alexander VI. of the year 1492, with an ancient Madonna of the Sienese school and the beautiful monuments of (l.) Archbishop Rocca (d. 1482), and (r.) Bishop Gomiel.

In the CHOIR *ceiling-frescoes by Pinturicchio: Madonna, the Four Evangelists, and the Four Fathers of the church, Gregory, Ambrose, Jerome, and Augustine. Beneath are the *tombs of the cardinals Girolamo Basso and Ascanio Sforza by Andrea Sansovino, erected by order of Julius II. The same pope is said to have caused the two fine stained glass windows to be executed by Claudius and William of Marseilles.

The church gives a title to a cardinal. In the adjacent Augustinian monastery Luther resided during his visit to Rome.

If we ascend the Pincio by the approaches above named (the gates are closed one hour after Ave Maria), we observe in the first circular space two columns (columnae rostratae), adorned with the rowned by Leo III, and from that period dates the career of the Holy Roman Empire' and the MEDIEVAL HISTORY of the Roman Catholic Church.

A characteristic of this period is to be found in the numerous, many-storied towers of red brick which contrast so strongly with the monuments of ancient Rome. This style of architecture was developed in the Carolingian epoch, although most of these towers now extant were not erected before the 12th or 13th century. In still greater numbers sprang up towers of a defensive character, a few only of which, such as the so-called Torre di Nerone (p. 172), are still preserved. The forest of towers, belonging to numerous different owners, which reared themselves over the ruins of the mistress of the world, affords at the same time a clue to the character of the whole epoch; for, in spite of the nominal sway exercised over the greater part of Europe by the pope and the emperor, continual feuds raged both at Rome and elsewhere between the temporal and spiritual powers, and between the nobility and the populace. The great monuments of antiquity were now doomed to utter destruction, and their fate is thus described by the historian Gregorius (iii, 565). — 'Charlemagne had already set the example of carrying off ancient columns and sculptures to adorn his cathedral at Aix-la-Chapelle, and the popes, who regarded the greatest monuments of Rome as the property of the state, possessed neither taste, nor time, nor ability to take measures for their preservation. The plundering of ancient buildings became the order of the day. The priests were indefatigable in transferring antique columns and marbles to their churches; the nobles, and even the abbots, took possession of magnificent ancient edifices which they flattered by the addition of modern towers, and the citizens established their workshops, rope-walks, and smithies in the towers and circuses of Imperial Rome. The fisherman selling his fish near the bridges over the Tiber, the butcher displaying his meat at the theatre of Marcellus, and the baker exposing his bread for sale, displayed their wares on the magnificent slabs of marble which had so been used as seats by the senators in the theatre or circus and perhaps by Cæsar, Mark Antony, Augustus, and other masters of the world. The elaborately sculptured sarcophagi of Roman heroes were scattered in every direction and converted into cisterns, washing-vats, and troughs for swine, and the table of the tailor and the shoemaker was perhaps formed of the clippings of some illustrious Roman, or of a slab of alabaster once used by some noble Roman matron for the display of her jewellery. For several centuries Rome may be said to have resembled a vast lime-kiln, into which the costliest marbles were recklessly cast for the purpose of burning lime; and thus did the Romans incessantly pillage, burn, dismantle, and utterly destroy their glorious old city'.
Leo IV. encircled the 'LÆONINE CITY' with a wall, and erected

other useful structures, which indicate a renewed period of prosperity; but the ravages of the Saracens in the city and its environs soon prevented farther progress. When at length these barbarians were finally subdued by John X., the city was repeatedly besieged and captured by German armies during the contest for the imperial supremacy; and subsequently, in consequence of incessant civil feuds, the whole city was converted into a number of distinct quarters, with castellated houses, in the construction of which numerous monuments of antiquity were ruthlessly destroyed for the sake of the building materials they afforded. Every temporary re-establishment of peace was invariably followed by new scenes of devastation, as when the senator Brancaleone dismantled no fewer than 150 of the strongholds of the warlike nobles.

The constantly increasing civic and national dissensions at length compelled Clement V. in 1309 to transfer the seat of the pontifical government to Avignon, where it remained till 1377, whilst Rome was successively governed by Guelphs and Ghibellines, Neapolitans and Germans, Orsini's and Colonna's, and for a brief period (1347) Cola di Rienzi even succeeded in restoring the ancient republican form of government. This was an epoch of the utmost misery, when poverty, war, and disease had reduced the population to less than 20,000 souls.

A more happy era was inaugurated by the return of Gregory IX. to the city. After the termination of the papal schism (1378-1417), the new development of the city progressed rapidly, aided by the vast sums of money which flowed into the papal coffers, and by the revival of taste for art and science promoted by Nicholas V., Julius II., Leo X., and others. In 1527 the city was fearfully devastated by the troops of Charles of Bourbon; but it gradually recovered from the blow, its population again increased, and many churches and palaces were restored or re-erected by the popes, their cardinals, and favourites, especially during the pontificate of Sixtus V. (1585-90), to whom modern Rome is chiefly indebted for its characteristic features. In 1798 a republic was established for a short period at Rome, and from 1809 to 1814 the city was under the supremacy of France. A republican form of government was again declared in 1849, in consequence of the events of the previous year, but on 12th April, 1850, Pius IX. was restored by the French. The city was then garrisoned by 15,000 French troops, who were withdrawn in December 1866, in accordance with the convention of 15th Sept., 1864; but they were recalled after the Garibaldian hostilities of 1867, and were quartered in the environs until the breaking out of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. On 20th Sept. of that year the Italian troops marched into the city, after a bombardment of five hours. The States of the Church are now incorporated with the kingdom of Italy, of which Rome is once more the capital.

Virgins, and Return of the Prodigal, an altar-piece by Seitz. — RIGHT, 3rd Chapel: Assumption of the Virgin, Dan. da Volterra. 5th Chapel: Presentation in the Temple, Adoration of the Magi, Adoration of the Shepherds, a work of the school of Raphael. 6th Chapel: Resurrection, Ascension, Descent of the Holy Ghost, school of Perugino. — In the TRANSEPT, which is supported by Gothic arches, paintings by Perino del Vaga and F. Zuccaro.

The convent connected with the church has been occupied by the Dames du Sacré Cœur (teachers of girls) since 1827.

We quit the piazza to the left by the Via Sistina, which leads in 5 min. to the Piazza Barberini (p. 164), and in 20 min. more to S. Maria Maggiore (p. 178). To the right is the small Via Gregoriana, which after 3 min. is intersected by the Via Capo le Case (p. 163).

No. 64 in the Via Sistina, immediately to the right, is the Casa Zuccari, once the property of the family of the artists of that name (marked by a memorial tablet in 1872; paintings by Federigo Zuccaro on the ground-floor). At the beginning of the present century the house was occupied by the Prussian consul Bartholdy (whence it is frequently named Casa Bartholdy), who caused one of the apartments to be adorned with *FRESCOES from the history of Joseph by the most celebrated German artists then at Rome. (The house being a private dwelling, the hour for seeing the frescoes is frequently changed. Enquiry should therefore be made of the porter; 1 fr.)

On the long window-wall: left, Overbeck, Joseph sold; right, Veit, Joseph and Potiphar's wife. On the short window-wall: Cornelius, Recognition of the brethren. In the lunette above: **Overbeck*, The Seven lean Years. On the second long wall: left, Joseph's interpretation of the dreams in prison; right, the Brethren bringing Jacob the bloody coat, both by W. Schadow. On the second short wall: Cornelius, Joseph's interpretation of Pharaoh's dream; in the lunette above, **Veit*, The Seven Years of Plenty. The two allegorical representations are among the finest creations of modern German art.

The long Scala di Spagna, which descends from S. Trinità by 125 steps, was constructed by Specchi and de Sanctis in 1721-25, and was formerly a favourite resort of beggars, who are now dispersed over the whole city. Models for artists with their picturesque costumes frequent its vicinity, especially towards evening.

The Piazza di Spagna (Pl. I, 17; 82 ft.), the centre of the strangers' quarter, is surrounded by hotels and attractive shops. At the foot of the steps is La Barcaccia (barque), a tasteless fountain by Bernini. Towards the N. the Via del Babuino, in which there are also many hotels, leads to the Piazza del Popolo (see p. 140). In the S. prolongation of this long piazza rises the Column of the Immacolata (Pl. I, 20, 1), erected by Pius IX. in honour of the 'Immaculate Conception of the Virgin', a doctrine promulgated for the first time in 1854; on the summit of the cippoline column stands the bronze statue of Mary; beneath are Moses, David, Isaiah, and Ezekiel.

At the S. extremity of the piazza is the Collegio di Propaganda Fide (Pl. I, 19, 16), founded in 1662 by Gregory XV., and extended by his successor Urban VIII. (whence 'Collegium Urbanum'), an establishment for the propagation of the Roman Catholic faith, in which pupils of many different nationalities are educated as missionaries. The printing-office of the college was formerly celebrated as the richest in type for foreign languages. — On the right is the palace of the Spanish ambassador, whence the piazza derives its name. Near the column of the Immacolata, to the left, is the small Piazza Mignanelli.

Immediately opposite the Scala di Spagna is the VIA DE' CONDOTTI, with its numerous shops of jewellery, mosaics, antiquities, photographs, etc. It terminates in the Corso, opposite the spacious Palazzo Ruspoli (p. 147).

From the Piazza di Spagna, in a S.E. direction, to the left of the Propaganda, runs the Via de' Due Macelli, and to the right the VIA DI PROPAGANDA. If we follow the latter, we reach the church of S. Andrea delle Fratte (Pl. I, 19) at the corner of the Via di Capo le Case, the next transverse street (p. 163). It was erected under Leo XI. by La Guerra; the unsightly dome and campanile are by Borromini; the façade was added in 1826 by Valadier in consequence of a bequest by Cardinal Consalvi.

The pictures in the INTERIOR are poor works of the 17th cent.: the two angels by the tribune, by Bernini, were originally destined for the bridge of S. Angelo. In the 2nd Chapel on the right is (on the right side) the monument of Lady Falconet by Miss Hossmer; on the last pillar to the right, in front of the aisle, the monument of the artist R. Schadow by E. Wolff. In the 3rd Chapel to the left, by the right wall, is the tomb of Angelica Kauffmann. The Danish archaeologist Zoëga and a converted prince of Morocco are also interred in this church.

At the extremity of the Via di S. Andrea delle Fratte we enter the narrow VIA DEL NAZZARENO to the left. On the left is the Collegio Nazzareno (in the court several ancient statues), founded by Card. Tonti (1622) for the education of destitute boys. Opposite is the Pal. del Bufalo. Then, to the left, the Via dell' Angelo Custode (in which, immediately to the right, is the small church of SS. Angeli Custodi) and the Via del Tritone lead direct to the Piazza Barberini (p. 164).

We turn to the right into the VIA DELLA STAMPERIA, so called from the ex-papal Printing-Office situated in it (right). Adjacent to the latter is the extensive royal Engraving Institute (Regia Calcografia, p. 110), with warehouse, where the office of the Minister of Commerce is also now established. No. 4 is the entrance to the German Artists' Association.

We now reach the **Fontana di Trevi* (Pl. I, 19), which vies in magnificence with the Acqua Paola. It is erected on the side-wall of the Palazzo Poli, and was completed from a design by Niccolò Salvi in 1762; in the central niche Neptune, by Pietro Bracci, at the sides Health (left) and Fertility (right); in front of these is a large stone basin.

The ancient Aqua Virgo, now Acqua Vergine, which issues here, was conducted by M. Agrippa from the Campagna, chiefly by a subterranean channel 14 M. in length, to supply his baths at the Pantheon (p. 187), in B. C. 27. It enters the city by the Pincio, not far from the Porta del Popolo. Tradition ascribes the name to the fact of a girl having once pointed out the spring to a thirsty soldier. The fountain was restored by Hadrian I. and Nicholas V. among other popes. In 1453 the latter conducted hither the main stream of the aqueduct, and the fountain then exchanged its ancient name for its present name of Trevi (a corruption of 'Trivio'), which it derives from its three outlets. This aqueduct yields per day upwards of 13 million cubic feet of water, which is according to many the best in Rome. The fountains in the Piazza di Spagna, the Piazza Navona, and the Piazza Farnese are also supplied from the same source. At ancient arch of this aqueduct, with an inscription to the effect that it was restored by the Emp. Claudius, is still to be seen at No. 12, Via del Nazareno, in the court.

(On quitting Rome, the superstitious partake of the water of this fountain, and throw a coin into the basin, in the pious belief that their return is thus ensured.

Opposite to this fountain is the church of SS. Vincenzo ed Anastasio (Pl. I, 19, 3), erected in its present form, with a degraded façade, by the well-known Card. Mazzarini.

The Via di S. Vincenzo terminates in the Via della Dataria (left), which leads to the Quirinal (p. 170). The busy Via delle Muratte leads to the right from the Fontana Trevi to the Corso.

The Corso.

The **Corso*, which corresponds with the ancient Via Flaminia leading from the Capitol, extends from the Piazza del Popolo (p. 140), between the Via di Ripetta and Via del Babuino, to the Piazza di Venezia, and is now the principal street of Rome, with numerous shops, and enlivened, especially towards evening, by crowds of carriages and foot-passengers. The Carnival is celebrated here, and the whole street is then thickly strewn with puzzolana earth for the horse-races, the horses starting from the Piazza del Popolo. From the Piazza del Popolo to the Via Condotti is a distance of 750 yds., thence to the Piazza Colonna (p. 148) 520, and thence to the Piazza di Venezia 610 yds., i.e. a total distance of 1880 yds., or upwards of a mile. From each side diverge numerous streets and lanes, which to the right lead to the crowded purlieus on the bank of the Tiber, and to the left to the now partially uninhabited hills of the city.

The first part of the street as far as the Piazza S. Carlo is less frequented than the other portions. No. 518, to the right between the first and second transverse streets, is the Pal. Rondinini (Pl. I, 17, 18), the court of which contains an unfinished Pietà by Michael Angelo. No. 18, the house opposite the palace, was once inhabited by Goethe; inscription: 'In questa casa immaginò e scrisse cose immortali Wolfgango Goethe. Il Comune di Roma a memoria del grande ospite pose 1872'.

On the right, beyond the third transverse street, stands the church of S. Giacomo tra Augusta, or degli Incurabili (Pl. I, 17, 2), with a façade by C. Maderna. It belongs to the adjoining surgical hospital, which extends as far as the Via Ripetta and accommodates 340 patients (founded 1338, enlarged 1600). Nearly opposite, on the left, is the small Augustinian church of Gesù e Maria (Pl. I, 17, 4), with façade by Rinaldi. — In the Via de' Pontefici, a third transverse street from this point to the right, is the Mausoleum of Augustus (p. 187).

The PIAZZA S. CARLO is next reached. Here, on the right, is S. Carlo al Corso (Pl. I, 17), the national church of the Lombards and the resort of the fashionable world, with a tasteless façade. It was erected in the 17th cent. by the two Lunghi and Pietro Cortona.

The ceiling-paintings of the INTERIOR are by Giacinto Brandi. At the high-altar is one of the finest works of Carlo Maratta: the Virgin recommending S. Carlo Borromeo to Christ (the heart of the saint is preserved under the altar). The chief festival of the church is celebrated on 4th Nov.

On the opposite side, the Via Carrozza, and farther on the Via de' Condotti diverge to the left to the Piazza di Spagna (p. 144) while the prolongation of the latter to the right, the Via della Fontanella di Borghese, leads to the Palazzo Borghese (p. 188) and the bridge of S. Angelo (p. 276).

Farther on in the Corso, on the right, No. 418 A, is the spacious Palazzo Ruspoli (Pl. I, 16), built in 1586 by Ammanati, and now containing the Banca Nazionale.

To the left the Via Borgognona and Via Frattina diverge to the Piazza di Spagna. In the small piazza which lies opposite the entrance of the Via Frattina, to the right of the Corso, rises on the left S. Lorenzo in Lucina (Pl. I, 16), a church of very ancient origin, but frequently restored. The campanile, the upper part of which is modern, is now the only old part of the building. The church, with the adjoining monastery, has since 1606 belonged to the Minorites, who have given it its present form.

The PORTICO is supported by four columns; at the door are two half-immured mediæval lions. — In the INTERIOR, by the 2nd pillar to the right, is the tomb of Nic. Poussin (d. 1665), erected by Chateaubriand; above the high-altar a Crucifixion by Guido Reni.*

A new Protestant Church is also situated in this piazza. — Omnibus hence to the Piazza of St. Peter, see p. 113.

Farther on, to the right, standing a little back from the street and concealed by other houses, is the uncompleted Pal. Fiano (Pl. I, 16, 8). In front of it, in the Corso (see inscription on opposite house, No. 167, which records that Alexander VII. levelled and widened the Corso in order to afford space for the horse-races) a triumphal arch of M. Aurelius stood until 1662; some of the reliefs are now preserved in the palace of the Conservatori (p. 214). Opposite to it the house. The entrance court has been preserved, but the clif has been frequently rebuilt. The head of John the said to have been preserved here since the 13th cent. 31st Dec.), whence the addition to the name 'in capite'.

On the right is the Pal. Teodoli (No. 385). Via delle Convertite leads to the Piazza di S. Silvestro, in which rises the venerable church of S. Silvestro in Capite (Pl. I, 16), erected, together with a monastery, by Paul I. (757-67) on the site

right is the Pal. Verospi (No. 374), now Torlonia, erected by Verospi, and restored by Alessandro Specchi. A loggia

right, farther on, at the corner of the Piazza Colonna, is the Pal. Chigi, begun in 1526 by Giac. della Porta, and by C. Maderna. It contains a few antiques and a small collection of pictures, but is not open to the public. Applicants for admission to the Bibliotheca Chisiana, which possesses valuable books, must be provided with an introduction from their ambassador.

On the left of the Piazza Colonna (Pl. I, 16) is bounded on the by the Pal. Chigi, opposite which is the Pal. Ferrajoli (Pl. I, 17), and the Corso is situated the Pal. Piombino (Pl. I, 16, 22), and the Corso the old Post-Office, with ancient Ionic columns and a fine façade, brought from Velletri (p. 377).

In the centre of the piazza, to which it gives its name, stands the Column of Marcus Aurelius, embellished like that of Trajan from the wars of the emperor against the Marcomannian German tribes on the Danube. It consists of 28 blocks, base and capital, being altogether 95 ft. in height, reached by steps. Sixtus V. caused it to be restored in 1586, and inscribed it, according to the then prevalent opinion, to Pius, by whose name it is still frequently designated. In front of it is a statue of St. Paul.

Large candelabra are of recent date. The piazza is very beautiful in the evening. The band, which usually plays on the terrace here in the height of summer (p. 142).

On the left of the Piazza Colonna (beyond the post-office) is the Fontana di S. Pietro, on the right side of which stands the Pal. de' Deputati (Pl. I, 16, 24), formerly the post-office. The design of the building by Bernini was afterwards completed by C. Fontana. The court in the interior was covered in 1871, fitted up for the sittings of the Italian parliament, and inaugurated on 27th Nov. of that year. Visitors obtain admission at the office. The rising of the piazza towards the Colosseum is to the buried ruins of the vast amphitheatre of Nero, erected B.C. 31, and the only amphitheatre at Rome. The construction of the Colosseum. Rows of seats have been discovered here at a depth of 88 ft. below the present level.

In the Piazza di Monte Citorio are the Railway Office (p. 113) and to the left the Telegraph Office. — The Obelisk is like that in the Piazza del Popolo (p. 1) by Augustus, and was used as the indic till the 9th cent., was afterwards overth erected here in 1789 under Pius VI. In the 7th cent. B.C. by Psammetichus I. ing the globe and the pedestal, is 84 ft.

Turning to the right at the foot of and crossing the small Piazza Capranica Pantheon, see p. 195; to the left we pro TRA, in which is the *Dogana di Terra (the façade are eleven Corinthian column possessed fifteen in its length and eight is mediocre, and not earlier than the 2nd ally, but without authority, called the an ancient Triclinium Chair, inlaid with silver. In Cabinets 25-30 (left) a Etruscan bronze mirrors, some of them delicately engraved, mirrors, utensils of all kinds, chains, and bells. On the wall above, the wall paintings are continued. Scenes with sitting female figures, of unknown import. Building of Alba Longa, Battle on the Numicus between Latins and the Rutuli, Ascanius crowned by Victory after his defeat Turnus, who lies dead on the ground, Battle, and Building of Lavinium. Cabinets 31-34 (left) Bronze vessels, ladles, pans, brooches, clasp, and clasps, strigile neck rings, and horse decorations. The following, somewhat dark room contains numerous bronze vessels, candelabra with aging lamps, helmets, granves, and weapons. To the right, on the upper part of the wall, is a beam from the bridge of Tiberius, found in the Lago Nemi (p. 303).

We next reach the Pre-Historic and Ethnographical Collections, arranged in parallel rows of rooms. Though still in their infancy, these collections are already pretty extensive. (The origin of the objects is given on the printed labels attached.)

The rooms first entered which extend along the whole length of the Museo del Collegio Romano are fitted up for the collection of the earliest, and, of course, Italian period (Museo Italiano), and for that of Ancient Inscriptions (Museo Lapidario). The contents of the Museo Italiano are at present listed in number. The very valuable Treasures of Praeneste was found at Praeneste about two years ago and purchased by the Italian Government, after the fine Collection of Etruscan Wall Paintings was discovered in tomb of Vulci (p. 4) in 1867 and presented to the Museum by Prince Grigoris. Copies of these pictures are to be seen at the Vatican (see p. 310). In the first room is a large antique vessel of copper plates with static figures of animals, which has been freely patched and repaired. —

The next room contains the most important articles of the Praeneste treasure. Cabinet in the centre. No. 16 Bronze (or head) decorations, with 131 lions, horses, and various fantastic animals attached to it in rows, the details of which are most elaborately executed in granular workmanship, at the ends are two cylinders terminating in heads of lions, and embellished with the Greek pattern in a similar style. Of three adjacent golden cylinders the finest is No. 13, embellished with two rows of figures of animals and an extremely delicate Greek ornamentation. The small rod found in the cylinder lies alongside it. No. 2 Golden fibula, 31 Two ivory folding lids with traces of hair in the lacunae or cavities, 28 Silver dagger, with an electrum hilt, embellished with amber fastened on by electrum wire, adjacent are the fragments of the silver sheath, 24. Large iron dagger, with silver sheath richly ornamented with figures of animals, the point of the sheath now broken off, consists of an open lotus flower in silver with 16 pellet ornamentation, 42 Two bronze handles, each adorned with six very lions, and belonging to a large pitcher (amphora), the broken pieces which lie around. 45 Fragments of an ivory carving, with delicately acuted figures. On the higher part of the case are 32 Blue glass bowl, Golden vessel of a graceful form with two sphinxes on each handle.

Large globular vessel of silver gilt, with six snakes forming the handles. The bowl of the vessel is ornamented with rows of figures of men, wild beasts and birds. The Cupboard at the window contains the following noteworthy articles. No. 19 Silver-gilt dish, the interior of which is embellished with two rows of horses, oxen, birds, and trees, and when discovered adhering to an oxydized iron disc (No. 81), which has taken an impression of part of the pattern, 20. Elegant silver bowl, the interior adorned with a central figure and two rows of various animal hunting scenes, horses, and birds, 21 Fragments of a silver vessel, with representations of four lions, Egyptian symbols and figures and a Nile scene (in the centre), and inscribed with a Phœnician name in small characters (above the wing of a hawk). This room also contains Etruscan wall paintings. In the following room are the more fragmentary portions of the Praeneste treasure trove, chiefly bronze articles. No. 64 Fragment of a large caldron with griffins' heads as handles, Several bowls and flat dishes; 68. Iron tripod, with bronze bowl, the margin of which is embellished with three animal figures, in a primitive style. On the wall is one of the chief scenes of the series of Etruscan mural paintings: Achilles sacrifices a young Trojan to the god of Patroclus in the background is the bluish-gray Charon, who is shown to conduct the soul of the victim to the spot by Greeks. — The following rooms contain more Etruscan wall paintings. The chief picture represents three human sacrifices and the preparation for a fourth. The motives are probably borrowed from Etruscan legends. The Cabinets of these and the next rooms hold a few early Italian terracottas, and small Roman antiquities, chiefly lamps, bone implements, pots, and excavations on marble, and truncated columns.

On the right is the small church of S. Maria in Via Lata, men-ent main street of the city, which nearly corresponded with present Corso. Below this church is a reminiscence of the a, are situated ancient walls of considerable extent, which belonged to the Septa Julia, an edifice begun by Caesar completed by Agrippa, originally used for taking the votes of national assembly, but, after this practice had fallen into disuse, was converted into a market-place.

Joining S. Maria in Via Lata is the Palazzo Doria, formerly Pamphili (Pl. II, 16), an extensive pile of buildings, and one of most magnificent palaces in Rome, façade towards the Corso by Valvasori, that towards the Coll. Romano by P. da Cortona and another towards the Piazza di Venezia by P. Amati. The handsome court, surrounded by arcades, is entered from the Corso (No. 305). To the left is the approach to the staircase ascending to the \*PICTURE GALLERY on the 1st floor (visitors admitted on Tuesdays and Fridays, 10-2; during the Easter fortnight, daily; catalogues in each room; fee  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

The Doria Gallery resembles all the other Roman galleries in being devoted to no particular school, and in possessing examples of every different style, but on the whole the founders seem to have shown a preference for works of the 17th cent. The ante-chambers are badly lighted, so that the pictures are not seen to advantage, but most of the works here are hardly above mediocrity. The visitor should, however, note the predella of a now lost altar-piece by Peselli (II. Room, 23, 29), a good specimen of early Florentine painting, and the Madonnas of Niccolò Rondinelli (II. Room, 12, 43), a little known master, who has happily imitated the golden colouring of the old Venetians, and is one of Giov. Bellini's ablest followers.

The gems of the collection are in the three galleries and in the corner cabinet. Raphael, the prince of cinquecentists, is represented by the portraits of two Venetian scholars, Andrea Navagero and Agostino Beazzano (in the corner cabinet); but their authenticity has been questioned and their touch indeed is somewhat different from Raphael's usual style. The vigorous tone and breadth of colouring may, however, have been occasioned by his habit of fresco painting. Johanna of Arragon's a copy only (II. Gall. 53), and so too is Titian's Periods of Life (II. Gall. 20). Pordenone's Herodias (II. Gall. 40), and Lor. Lotto's portrait of himself (II. Gall. 34), on the other hand, are admirable Venetian works. The portrait of Andrea Doria by Sebastiano del Piombo is not Venetian in character, but is interesting from the faculty displayed by the master of imparting an air of grandeur to a repulsive subject (corner cabinet). With this work the visitor should compare the portrait of Pope Innocent X., by Velasquez, in the same room. The colouring of the latter is strikingly rich, completely eclipsing Piombo's massiveness of style. The skilful manner in which the three shades of red are blended should be particularly noticed.

Garofalo, though not a master of the highest rank, has produced a most admirable work in his Nativity of Christ (II. Gall. 61). The landscape painters of the 16th cent. are also well represented. In the landscapes of Annibale Caracci (III. Gallery) we observe a conflict between historic and scenic imagination, and the obtusion of the former at the expense of harmony of effect. The pictures by Salvator Rosa (VI. Room) are not among his best works, but Claude Lorrain's landscapes (III. Gall. 5, 12, 23) are justly much ad-nired His 'mill', and the landscape with the temple of Apollo, may be regarded as models of ideal landscape; the effect is produced by the skilful gradations of distance: the foreground is enclosed by trees on both sides, the middle distance gently softened off, and the background formed by serrated mountain outlines. — The Netherlands School is represented by a few pictures only, some of which, however, such as Memling's Descent from the Cross (Corner-Cabinet), and Lieven's Sacrifice of Isaac (Il. Gall. 26), are worthy rivals of their Italian neighbours.

I. Room also copying-room, to which the finest pictures in the collection are frequently brought, almost always including Bonaccini's Holy Family and Madonna Antiquities: four Sarcophagi with the hunt of Meleager, history of Narcissus, Diana and Endymion, and procession of Bacchus. Two fine circular altars, duplicates of the so-called Diana of Gabii in the Louvre, archaic statue of the bearded Dionysus, and a number of statuettes. Pictures 19, 20, 21. The IV. GALLERY contains statues of no great value, most of them greatly modernised.

The side-street adjoining the Pal. Salviati, as well as the preceding and the following, lead to the PIAZZA DI SS. APOSTOLI (Pl. II, 19). This piazza is bounded on the E. side by the church of that name and the Pal. Colonna. At one end is the Pal. Valentini, containing a few antiquities. On the other side are the Pal. Ruffo (No. 308) and the Pal. Odescalchi (No. 314), the latter with a façade by Bernini.

*SS Apostoli, originally founded by Pelagius I. in honour of St. Philip and St. James, and re-erected under Clement XI. in 1702, was much injured by a fire in 1871, and is now undergoing repair. The vestibule by Baccio Pintelli, the only part of the building of earlier date than 1702, contains (on the left) the monument of the engraver Giov. Volpato by Canova (1807), and (on the right) an ancient *eagle with chaplet of oak-leaves, from the Forum of Trajan. Chief festival on 1st May.

INTERIOR. Right Aisle, 3rd Chapel St. Antony by Luti. In the Left Aisle, 2nd Chapel Descent from the Cross by Franc. Manno. At the end, to the left, over the entrance into the sacristy, *Monument of Clement XIV. by Canova, on the pedestal Charity and Temperance. In the tribune, with altar-piece by Muratori (said to be the largest in Rome), are the monuments erected by Sixtus IV. to his two nephews, the Cardinals Riario, that of Pietro (d. 1474) on the left, and that of Alexander behind the altar, and partly concealed by the organ. On the vaulted ceiling of the tribune, Fall of the Angels, a fresco by Giov. Oddesi, in the rococo style, but of striking effect. The older church was decorated by Melozzo da Forlì, a fine fragment of whose frescoes is now in the Quirinal (p. 171), and others are in the sacristy of St. Peter's (p. 286).

The adjoining monastery is now the War Office. The passage adjacent to the church contains a monument to Mich. Angelo and the tomb of Card. Bessarion (d. 1472).

27 Jan 6th
 The Palazzo Colonna, begun by Martin V., and afterwards much extended and altered, is now in great part occupied by the French ambassador, and a number of rooms on the ground-floor, containing interesting frescoes, are therefore closed to the public. The *PICTURE GALLERY, situated on the first floor (daily 11-3, except Sundays and holidays), is entered from the Piazza SS. Apostoli by the gate No. 53. We turn to the left in the court, and ascend the broad staircase.

At the top of the staircase, opposite the entrance to the saloons, is the painted cast of a colossal Medusa head. Traversing a large hall containing family-portraits, we turn to the right into three ante-rooms adorned with Gobelins, in the second of which are four ancient draped statues; in the third a small ancient statue, belonging to a group of playing girls. We then ring at the entrance to the Gallery (fee of  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr. on leaving). — The chief objects of interest are eleven water-colour landscapes by Gaspar Poussin in the 4th Room. They represent a mountain road close to a profound ravine, a bleak plain lashed by a storm, a calm lake enclosed by majestic trees, a riven rocky landscape with waterfall, and various other subjects. Notwithstanding the simplicity and uniformity of the materials used, these works will not fail to interest the spectator owing to the excellence of the composition and drawing. — The portraits of the ancestors of the Colonna family also are deserving of attention, e. g. that of Isabella Colonna by Novelli, a Sicilian painter of the 17th cent. The following pictures also may be mentioned: Lorenzo di Credi, Madonna; Bonifazio, Madonna and saints; Tintoretto, Saints; Rubens, Assumption of Mary. The two early Flemish Madonnas, surrounded by small circular pictures (1st Room), are remarkable for their delicate and miniature-like execution. — All the pictures bear the names of the masters.

I. Room On the wall of the entrance: Fil. Lippi, Madonna; same by Luca Longhi and S. Botticelli. On the left wall: Luini, Madonna (much damaged); *Giov. Wall of the egress: Parmeggianino, Holy Family; Innoc. da Imola, same subject; **two Madonnas* surrounded by smaller circular pictures (erroneously attributed to Van Eyck), of the later Dutch school.

morphosis of Daphne; a large cabinet with ivory carving by Frans. and Dom. Steinhard.

V. GALLERY with ceiling-paintings by Celli and Gherardi (Battle of Lepanto, 8th Oct. 1571, which Marcantonio Colonna at the head of the papal army assisted in gaining). On the walls mirrors painted with flowers (by Mario de' Fiori) and gnomes (by C. Maratta). Statues here of no great value, most of them modernised. Reliefs built into the wall under the windows (right) Head of Pallas; Wounded man, borne away by his friends; Selene in the chariot (archaic style). On the left wall **Rubens*, Assumption of the Virgin, **Sustermans*, Fed. Colonna; Crist. Allori, Christ in hell; Salviati, Adam and Eve; **Van Dyck*, Don Carlo Colonna, equestrian portrait; Guercino, Martyrdom of Emmerentia; S. Gaetano, Family-portrait of the Colonnas. Right wall Tintoretto, Double portrait; N. Poussin, Pastoral scene; Niccolò Alunno, Madonna rescuing a child from a demon.

A staircase, on which is placed a cannon-ball fired into the city during the bombardment of 1849, leads to Room VI. From left to right, Lor. Lotto, Card. Pomp. Colonna; Moroni, Portrait; Tintoretto, Narcissus; **Palma Vecchio*, Madonna with St. Peter and the donor, Chirlandajo, Rape of the Sabine women, and opposite to it the Reconciliation; Benifante, Madonna with saints; Van Dyck, Lucretia Colonna; Hiéron. Bosch, Temptation of St. Antony; **Tintoretto*, Angels in glory, with four busts; Moretto da Brescia, Portrait; Ag. Carracci, Pompeo Colonna; Giorgione, Giac. Sclavina Colonna; Pourbus, Franc. Colonna. In the centre a column of red marble with scenes from a campaign in relief (Renaissance).

The beautiful Garden (entered through the palace, or by Via del Quirinale 12) contains several antiquities, fragments of a colossal architrave, said to have belonged to Aurelian's temple of the sun, and considerable portions of the brick-walls of the Thermae of Constantine (p. 170) which once extended over the entire Piazza di Monte Cavallo. The terrace commands a good survey of the city.

Towards the S. the Corso is terminated by the PIAZZA DI VENEZIA (Pl. II, 16, 19; 48 ft. above the sea-level), immediately to the right in which, at the corner, rises the Pal. Bonaparte, formerly Rinuccini, erected by De Rossi, where Madame Letitia, mother of Napoleon I., died on 2nd Feb. 1836. The piazza derives its name from the **Palazzo di Venezia*, which consists of the large palace, and a smaller one of later date, built in the Florentine style, and is of imposing dimensions. The building was formerly attributed to Giuliano da Majano, but existing documents record that it was erected by Francesco del Borgo di S. Sepolero for Pope Paul II. about 1455. To what extent Bernardo di Lorenzo participated in the work is uncertain. The palace was presented in 1560 by Pius IV. to the Republic of Venice, with which it subsequently came into the possession of Austria, and is still the residence of the Austrian ambassador, as it was before the cession of Venetia. The extensive court with arcades is little more than begun; and so also is a second and smaller court to the left of the other. Many of the stones used in constructing this building are said to have been obtained from the Colosseum.

occupying the block as far as the Piazza SS. Apostoli, and the erty of the banker Prince Torlonia, Duke of Bracciano. It is la decorated, and contains among other works of art Canova's E Hercules, but is not shown to the public. Permessi for the Albani may be procured on the ground-floor, to the left.

From the Piazza Venezia we proceed in a straight direction through the narrow RIPRESSA DEI BARBARI, so named because 'Barbarian' horses formerly used in the races of the Carnival stopped here. On the left (No. 174) is the Pal. Nipoti. The cross-street to the left leads to the Forum of Trajan (p. 238). On the right the Via S. Marco, passing under an arch of the pass which leads from the Pal. di Venezia to S. Maria in Araceli, brings us to the PIAZZA DI SAN MARCO (Pl. II, 16), laid out in procession. Here, on the right, lies — Pal. di Venezia, a ch

S. Marco, incorporated with the Pal. di Venezia, a church of very ancient origin, said to date from the time of Constantine, erected in 833 by Gregory IV., adorned in 1455 by Giuliano da Majano with a fine vestibule and probably with the coffered ceiling of the nave, and finally embellished in modern taste by Card. Quirini in 1744. Festival on 25th April.

25th April.

VESTIBULE. Roman walls. St. Mark in relief, and ancient Christian inscriptions, built into the walls. St. Mark is approached by a descent of several steps. With the exception of the Tribune and the beautiful ceiling, all the older parts have been replaced. The Tribune, with its handsome pavement lies a few steps higher than the rest of the church. It contains the saints Mark, Agapetus, and Agnes; Christ; left, the saint Gregory IV.) date from the period of the art (about 893) and have been justly celebrated. In the RIGHT AISLE, 1st Chapel: altar-piece of the Magdalen. 3rd Chapel: Adoration of the Kings. 4th Chapel: Resurrection. *Pope Mark, an admirable old fresco. In the LEFT AISLE, 2nd Chapel altar-piece of the Madonna Lactans. 4th Chapel distributing alms, by Ant. d'Este. 4th Chapel is the so-called [Madonna]

In the front of the church, is the so-called Madonna (pr ressa, the mutilated marble bust of a colossal female statue of Isis) which carried on conversations with the Abbate Marforio (comp. p. 201), similar to those of Pasquin the Marforio (comp. p. 201). the Via di S. Marco terminates in the Via Araceli, which to the left leads to the Piazza Araceli (p. 211) and the Capitol, and to the right to the Piazza del Gesù (see below). from the Piazza Venezia the Ripresa de' Barberi and its con- tinuation the Via Macel de' Corvi (in which No. 88 is marked by a memorial tablet as the house where Giulio Romano was born), and beyond it the VIA DI MARFORIO, lead by the N. E. slope of the Capi- toline to the Forum and the Arch of Severus (p. 226). The name is derived from Forum Martis (otherwise Forum of Augustus). The

Beyond the second transverse street (the Via della Pedacchia, now Giulio Romano, which connects the Piazza Araceli with the Forum of Trajan), is situated on the left the Monument of C. Publorius Bibulus (now entirely built over), to whom the ground was granted by the senate as a burial-place for himself and his family in recognition of his merits ('honoris virtutisque causa', as the inscription records) towards the end of the republic. This point must accordingly have lain outside the walls of Servius, which ran immediately below the Capitol, interments within their precincts having been prohibited.

Leaving the Piazza Venezia, we follow the broad VIA DEL PLEscetto, formerly del Gesh, to the right, past the Pal. di Venezia. On the right we observe the palazzi Bonaparte (p. 158), Doria (p. 153), and Grassioli. We next come to the Pal. Altieri, with its extensive façade, erected in 1670, bounding the N. side of the small PIAZZA DEL GESÙ (Pl. II, 16) which is called after the church of that name.

**Gesh*, the principal church of the Jesuits, is one of the most gorgeous in Rome. It was built by Vignola and Gias. della Porta by order of Card. Alessandro Farnese, 1568-77.

In the NAVE is a ceiling-painting by Baccioto, by whom the dome and tribune were also painted, one of the best and most life-like of the modern works of that period. The walls were covered with valuable marble at the cost of the Principe Alessandro Torlonia in 1880. On the high-altar, with its four columns of giallo antico Christ in the Temple, by Capella; on the left the monument of Card. Bellarmine with figures of Religion and Faith, a relief; on the right the monument of P. Pignatelli, with Love and Hope.

In the TRANSEPT, to the left Altar of St. Ignatius with a picture by Vassi, under which a silver-plated relief, representing St. Ignatius surrounded by angels, is said to be concealed. The original silver statue of the saint, by Le Gros, which was formerly here, is said to have been removed on the suppression of the order in the previous century. The columns are of lapis lazuli and gilded bronze, on the architrave above are two statues of the Father, by B. Ludovisi, and Christ, by L. Ottom., behind which, encircled by a halo of rays, is the emblematic Dove. Between these the globe of the earth, consisting of a single block of lapis lazuli (said to be the largest in existence). Beneath the altar, in a sarcophagus of gilded bronze, repose the remains of the saint. On the right and left are groups in marble; on the right the Christian Religion, at the sight of which heathen shrink, by Le Gros; on the left Faith with the Cup and Host, which heathen king is in the act of adoring, by Théodon. Opposite, in the transept, on the right, the altar of St. Francis Xavier.

The church presents a most imposing sight on 31st Dec., on the festival of St. Ignatius, on 31st July, and during the Quarant'ore (two last days of the Carnival), on which occasions it is brilliantly illuminated in the evening. During Advent and Lent, and generally at other seasons also, sermons are preached here at 11 a. m., often by priests of great ability.

Immediately adjoining the church is the former Casa Professa of the Jesuits, now used as a barrack, opposite which is the Palazzo degnetti (Pl. I, 16, 3). — Passing the monastery, and following the Via di Araceli, we come in 5 min. to the Piazza di Araceli, at the foot of the Capitol (see p. 211).

From the opposite angle of the Piazza del Gesù, the Via del Gesù leads to the right in 5 min. to the Piazza della Minerva (p. 197); while the busy Via de' Cesarini (p. 201) to the left leads to S. Andrea della Valle (p. 201) and thence to the bridge of S. Angelo, forming the shortest and most frequented route to the Vatican, and sometimes called 'Via Papale'. The Via del Governo Vecchio, see p. 202. From the church of Gesù to the bridge of S. Angelo (p. 276) 18 min.; omnibus thither, starting from the Piazza di Venezia, see p. 113.

VILLA BORGHESE.

On the right, just outside the Porta del Popolo, rises the — **Villa Borghese* (Pl. I, 21), founded by Card. Scipio Borghese, nephew of Pius V., and subsequently enlarged by the addition of the Giustiniani gardens and the so-called villa of Raphael, which last, with a great part of the plantations, was destroyed during the siege of 1849. The beautiful and extensive grounds are open to the public four times weekly (carriages admitted; comp. p. 117); the Casino with the collection of antiquities is shown on Saturdays only, 1-4 o'clock in winter, 4-7 in summer. The Villa Borghese is justly a favourite promenade, and was formerly the scene of popular festivities in October. The gardens contain a number of ancient statues and inscriptions.

On entering, we select the footpath which skirts the carriage-road on the right, and leads to an Egyptian Gateway (8 min.); thence in a straight direction, passing a grotto with antique fragments (left). After 4 min. the road divides (for the branch in a straight direction, see below). Following the left branch, which leads through an artificial ruin with two Doric columns, we observe on the left the private gardens of the prince, and farther on reach an imitation of a Ruined Temple. Turning to the right here, we come in 10 min. to a circular space with a Fountain. (Or this spot may be reached by the first broad path to the right beyond the Doric columns, leading through an avenue of evergreen oaks to a small temple, and thence to the left, through another similar avenue.) From this point the carriage-road leads to the Casino in 5 min., whither also beautiful, shady footpaths lead from the left of the fountain.

If we proceed in a straight direction from the above-mentioned bifurcation of the path, we observe on the left, after 3 min., the remains of Raphael's Villa, and in 3 min. more an arch with a Statue of Apollo, whence the road turns to the left and leads to the Casino. The CASINO formerly contained one of the most valuable private collections in existence, which was purchased by Napoleon I. and transferred to the Louvre. In consequence, however, of recent excavations, especially near Monte Calvi in the Sabina, Prince Borghese has again established a Museum here, which contains several objects of great interest. Visitors are provided with catalogues by the custodians ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

Ground-Floor. I. VESTIBULE: Two candelabra; on the narrow walls two reliefs, probably from the triumphal arch of Claudius which once stood in the Corso near the Pal. Sciarra. Several sarcophagi; one of them, to the left by the wall of the egress, with a harbour, lighthouse, and ships.

II. SALOON ('Salone'), with ceiling-painting by Mario Rossi. On the floor, mosaics, discovered in 1835 near the Tenuta di Torre Nuova, with gladiator and wild beast combats. Left wall: 3. Colossal head of Isis; 4. Dancing Faun, under it a Bacchic relief; 5. Colossal head of a Muse (?). Long wall: 7. Tiberius; 8. Meleager; 9. Augustus; above, a raised relief of a galloping rider (M. Curtius?); *10. Priestess; 11. Bacchus and Ampelus. Right wall: 14. Hadrian; 16. Antoninus Pius (colossal busts); under No. 15 a Bacchic relief. Entrance-wall: 18. Diana.

III. Room (1st Room to the right). In the centre: *Juno Pronuba, found near Monte Calvi. Left wall: 4. Ceres; 5. Venus Genetrix. Opposite the entrance: 8. Relief, Sacrificial prayer (of Hesiod?) to Cupid; *11. Relief of the Rape of Cassandra. Right wall: 16. Statue with drapery. Entrance-wall: 20. Greek relief from a tomb.

IV. Room. In the centre: Amazon on horseback contending with two warriors. Entrance-wall: 2. Pan; 4. (and 17, opp.) Sarcophagus with the achievements of Hercules; on the cover, Reception of the Amazons by Priam; 6. Head of Hercules; 7. Pygmææ. On the left wall: 9. Statue of Hercules. Wall of the egress: 15. Hercules in female attire. Window-wall: 21. Venus; 23. Three-sided ara with Mercury, Venus, and Bacchus.

V. Room. In the centre: Apollo. Left wall: 3. Scipio Africanus; 4. Daphne metamorphosed into a laurel. Following wall: 7. Head of a Mænas or Bacchante; 8. Melpomene; 9. Genre-group; 10. Clio. Right wall: *13. Statue of Anacreon in a sitting posture, perhaps a copy from a celebrated work of Cresilas at Athens; 14. Lucilla, wife of L. Verus. Entrance-wall: 16. Terpsichore; 18. Polyhymnia.

VI. Room: 'Gallery' with modern busts of emperors in porphyry. In the centre a porphyry bath, said to have been found in the mausoleum of Hadrian; 3. Diana, restored as a Muse; 8. Diana; 22. Bacchus; *29. Statue of a Satyr in basalt; 32. Bronze statue of a boy. (The second door of the entrance-wall leads to the upper story.)

VII. Room, with columns of giallo antico and porphyry, on the floor ancient mosaics. Left wall: *2. Boy with bird; 3. Bacchus; *4. Captive boy. Wall of the egress: 7. Recumbent Hermaphrodite; 9. Sappho (doubtful); 10. Tiberius. Entrance-wall: *13. Roman portrait-bust (said to be Domitius Corbulo); *14. Head of a youth; 15. Boy with a pitcher, a fountain figure; 16. Female bust.

IX. Room. In the centre: *Satyr on a dolphin, a fountain-figure; 3. Isis; 4. Paris; 8. Female statue, improperly restored as Ceres; 10. Gipsy woman (17th cent.); 13. Venus; 14. Female figure (archaic); *16. Bacchante; 18. Satyr; 19. Hadrian; 20. Satyr.

X. Room. *1. Dancing Satyr, erroneously restored (he originally played on the flute); 2. Ceres; 3. Mercury with a lyre; 4. Dancing Satyr; 8. Satyr, after Praxiteles; 9. Pluto with Cerberus; 14. Periander; 19. Bacchus enthroned. The beautiful ceiling-paintings in this room by Conca should be observed.

Upper Floor. A large saloon (fee  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.) contains three early works of Bernini: Æneas carrying Anchises; Apollo and Daphne; David with the sling. The ceiling-paintings are by Lanfranco, the five \*Landscapes on the left wall by Phil. Hackert. In one of the following rooms the recumbent statue of Pauline Borghese, sister of Napoleon I., as Venus, by Canova. Other apartments contain modern sculptures and numerous pictures, which with a few exceptions (e.g. Portrait of Paul V. by Caravaggio in the 2nd room) are of little value. The balcony commands a fine VIEW of the gardens.

II. The Hills of Rome.

Quirinal. Viminal. Esquiline.

The following description embraces the E. part of Rome, which extends over the three long, parallel hills of the Quirinal, Viminal, and Esquiline, and adjoins the Corso and Strangers' Quarter, the greater part of which is as yet occupied by vineyards and gardens, especially towards the walls. Since the Italian occupation, however, buildings are springing up here in every direction, and on the Esquiline, in particular, whole quarters are being erected.

On the Quirinal at a very early period lay a Sabine town, from the union of which with that on the Palatine was formed the city of Rome. The Servian wall ran from the Capitol along the N.W. side of the Quirinal, and then to the E. behind the Baths of Diocletian and the church of S. Maria Maggiore, thus enclosing the Quirinal, Viminal, and part of the Esquiline. According to the new division of the city made by Augustus, this quarter comprised two districts, the Alta Semita (Quirinal) and the Exquiliae (Esquiline). The construction of the wall of Aurelian shows that this quarter was afterwards extended. According to the mediæval division these districts formed a single region only, named the Rione Monti, the most spacious of all the fourteen quarters of the city, as it extended from the Porta Pia to the now closed Porta Metronia, below the Lateran, and to the Forum Romanum. Its inhabitants, who were called Montigiani, differ, like those of Trastevere, in some of their characteristics from the other Romans. The hill was provided with water by Sixtus V., by whom the long main street from the Pincio to S. Maria Maggiore was also constructed. The second street in importance, intersecting the main street, and leading from the Piazza del Quirinale to the Porta Pia (Via del Quirinale and Via Venti Settembre), was constructed by Pius IV.

From the Piazza della Trinità on the Pincio (p. 143), crossing the heights of the Quirinal and Viminal, a street 1 M. in length intersects this quarter of the town in a S. E. direction as far as the church of S. Maria Maggiore on the Esquiline, the first part of which is called Via Sistina and the remaining portion Via delle Quattro Fontane. This street with its offshoots is at first well peopled, both with citizens and visitors, but beyond the Quirinal it becomes deserted, and building operations have only recently been begun here.

The VIA SISTINA (Pl. 1, 20) descends gradually from the Pincio to the Piazza Barberini (5 min.). The first cross-street descending to the right is called Via di Capo le Case (p. 145); its prolongation to the left is the Via di Porta Pinciana, which ascends to the gate of that name (closed in 1808), and in which (left) is situated the Villa Malta, once the property of King Lewis I. of Bavaria, and now inhabited by German artists.

Passing S. Francesca on the left, and S. Ildefonso on the right, we reach the Piazza Barberini (Pl. I, 19, 22). In the centre the *Fontana del Tritone, by Bernini, a Triton blowing on a conch. On the upper (N.E.) side is the Hôtel Bristol. On the right, one side of the Palazzo Barberini (p. 168) is visible. Ascending the Piazza, we come to the Via di S. Nicola di Tolentino, with several new hotels, which leads to the church of that name, and then, under the name of Via di S. Susanna, turns to the right to the Fontanone dell' Acqua Felice and the Piazza delle Terme (p. 175). — The second street to the left, on the N. side of the Piazza Barberini, is the Via di S. Basilio, which leads to the Villa Ludovisi (see below), and through the Porta Salara to the Villa Albani (p. 165; 1 M.).

Adjoining the Piazza Barberini on the left rises the Piazza de' Cappuccini, in which is situated the Church of S. Maria della Concezione (Pl. I, 23), or dei Cappuccini, founded in 1624 by Card. Barberini.

In the INTERIOR, over the door, a copy of Giotto's Navicella (in the vestibule of St. Peter's, p. 283) by Beretta. In the 1st Chapel (right) St. Michael, a celebrated picture by Guido Reni; in the 3rd, remains of frescoes by Domenichino. At the high-altar a copy of an Ascension by Lafranco, now destroyed. Beneath a stone in front of the steps to the choir reposes the founder of the church, Card. Barberini ('hic jacet pulvis cinis et nihil'); on the left the tomb of Alex. Sobiesky, son of John III. of Poland, who died in 1714. The last chapel contains (left) an altar-piece by Sacchi; in the first, one by Pietro da Cortona.

Beneath the church are four BURIAL VAULTS (shown by one of the monks, if desired), decorated in a ghastly manner with the bones of about 4000 Capuchins whose remains are deposited here. Each vault contains a tomb with earth from Jerusalem. In the case of a new interment the bones which have longest remained undisturbed, are used in the manner indicated. On All Souls' Day (2nd Nov.) the vaults are lighted up, and visited by numbers of people.

A little to the N.W. is the church of S. Isidoro, founded in 1622.

Leaving the Piazza Barberini, and following the VIA DI S. BASILIO, the first part of which only is inhabited, in a straight direction for 5 min., we reach a corner from which the street to the right leads to the gate, and that to the left to the entrance of the Villa Ludovisi.

The **Villa Ludovisi (Pl. I, 23) was erected during the first half of the 17th cent. by Card. Ludovisi, nephew of Gregory XV., and afterwards inherited by the princes of Piombino. The villa is usually shown on Thursdays after one o'clock to visitors provided with a permesso (p. 118). The grounds were laid out by Le Nôtre.

From the gateway ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr. on leaving) we proceed to the right to the —

I. CASINO, containing a \*collection of valuable ancient sculptures. Catalogues may be purchased of the custodian ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

I. VESTIBULE: 1, 3, 7, 42, 46, 48. Statues; by the entrance-wall, to the right 20, Head of Juno, very ancient; 18. Candelabrum in the form of a twisted tree; 15. Sitting statue of a Roman, by Zenon. To the left of the entrance: 25. Female draped figure; 31. Tragic mask, mouth of a fountain in rosso antico. — II. Room X *28. Group of a barbarian, who, having killed his wife, plunges the sword into his own breast (right arm improperly restored), a work of the Pergamenian school (the 'Dying Gaul' in the Capitol also belongs to this group; see Introd., p. xxxv). To the right of the entrance: *55. Warrior reposing (Mars?), probably destined originally to adorn the approach to a door; 51. Statue of Athene from Antioch; 47. Cast of the statue of Æschines at Naples; 46. Bust, name unknown; above it, *45. Head of a Medusa, of the noblest type; 43. Rape of Proserpine, by Bernini; above it, 42. Judgment of Paris, a relief, the right side restored according to Raphael's design; **41. The so-called 'Juno Ludovisi', the most celebrated, and one of the most beautiful heads of Juno; 30. Mercury, in the same position as the so-called Germanicus in Paris. Left of the entrance: *1. Mars reposing, of the school of Lysippus; *7. Theseus and Æthra (or Telemachus and Penelope, commonly called Orestes and Electra), by Menelaos, pupil of Stephanos; *9. Youthful Satyr; 14. Dionysus with a satyr; 15. Head of Juno; 21. Bronze head of Marcus Aurelius.

II. CASINO (dell' Aurora; fee 1/2 fr.), which on the ground-floor contains a ceiling-fresco of *Aurora by Guercino, and on the first floor a *Fama by the same. We next ascend (on the staircase an interesting ancient relief of two Cupids dragging a quiver) to the upper balconies, whence a magnificent *VIEW OF ROME and the mountains is enjoyed.

The garden with its beautiful avenues of cypresses and other evergreens extends to the city-wall. Ancient sculptures are distributed over the grounds; e. g. by the city-wall a large sarcophagus with representation of a battle, possibly that of Alex. Severus against Artaxerxes, A. D. 232.

The prolongation of the Via S. Basilio mentioned at p. 161 is the VIA DI PORTA SALARA, which leads in 8 min. from the Villa Ludovisi to the Porta Salara. Here in ancient times, on the site of the present Villa Massimi (closed to the public), lay the magnificent Gardens of Sallust, the historian, which afterwards became the property of the emperors. They included a circus, occupying the hollow between the Pincio and Quirinal, which are united farther up near the gate. Where the view is unintercepted to the right, considerable remains of the enclosing walls are observed on the Quirinal opposite.

The Porta Salara (Pl. I, 27), which was seriously injured by the bombardment of 20th Sept., 1870, is now restored. The removal of its two towers brought to light a well preserved ancient monument in 'peperino', resembling that of Bibulus (p. 160) in style.

The Via Salara leads from the gate (comp. map, p. 339) in 8 min. to the —

*Villa Albani (shown on Tuesdays, in winter from 10, and in summer from 11, till dusk, except in wet weather and in June, July, and August; by permesso, see p. 117), founded in 1760 by

At the right end of the arcades a winding staircase (18 steps, then to the right) ascends to the PICTURE GALLERY (open daily, 12-5, except Sundays and Thursdays; on Thursdays 2-5; generally closed in winter about dusk). Catalogues for the use of visitors. This is the gallery of disappointment. In Raphael's Fornarina we except to find a beauty radiant with the charms of youth, whereas her features present an almost haggard appearance, to which the ill-preserved condition of the picture further contributes. In Guido Reni's Beatrice Cenci we expect to see a countenance Judith-like, and characterised by stern resolve, instead of which we encounter a pale, delicate face. Lastly, when we inspect Dürer's Christ among the Scribes, we are almost tempted to doubt its authenticity; the numerous heads are ungrouped, some of them resemble caricatures, and it is in the execution of the hands alone that the

of the palace, embellished with of the Saloon of the Sculptures, containing, among a number of ancient and modern works, an admirable *statue by a Greek master, near the wall opposite the entrance, representing a woman with one arm akimbo. It was formerly supposed to be a nymph, a Dido, or a Laodamia; but it more probably represents a suppliant for protection at an altar. A twig formerly grasped by the right hand has been broken off.

On the highest floor is the Biblioteca Barberina (Thursdays, 9-2 o'clock) which contains 7000 MSS., among which are those of numerous Greek and Latin authors, of Dante, etc., a number of del Quirinale, see below; to the left, Via Venti Settembre, p. 173) extends from the Piazza del Quirinale to the Porta Pia. At the four corners formed by the intersection of these two main-streets, are Four Fountains (Pl. I, 22) erected by Sixtus V., the builder of the former street, which derives its name from these fountains.

We now enter the VIA DEL QUIRINALE to the right. At the corner on the left is the small, unattractive church of S. Carlo. Farther on, to the left, S. Andrea, by Bernini, with the former Noviciate of the Jesuits. To the right are some buildings connected with the royal palace. In a few minutes more we reach the Piazza del Quirinale, formerly di Monte Cavallo (Pl. II, 19), recently extended and levelled, in the centre of which is a Fountain with an antique granite basin. Adjacent to the fountain rises an Obelisk, 48 ft. in height, which once stood in front of the mausoleum of Augustus and was erected here in 1787, and the two colossal Horse Tamers in marble from which the piazza formerly derived its name. These admirable groups once stood in front, and probably at the entrance, of the Thermae of Constantine (see below) which were situated here. They are frequently mentioned in history, and have never been covered or required excavation. The inscriptions on the pedestals, Opus Phidiae and Opus Praxitelis are entirely apocryphal, the groups being works of the imperial age, copied from originals of the school of Lysippus. In the middle ages these were supposed to be the names of two philosophers, who, having divined the thoughts of Tiberius, were honoured by the erection of these monuments in recognition of their wisdom.

Opposite the Royal Palace, on the left, stands the Pal. of the Consulta, erected under Clement XII. by Del Fuga, where a tribunal of that name, charged with the internal administration of the Papal States, was formerly an office of the Minister of the piazza, behind the obelisk, situated by Paul V. Farther on, to the left, is the Pal. Rospigliosi (p. 171).

The piazza commands a fine view of the town, with the dome of St. Peter's in the background. In the course of the excavations preparatory to the construction of the new flight of steps and the carriage-road, the workmen came upon extensive fragments of the walls of the Thermae of Constantine (p. 158) and below them older walls of solid blocks, which appear to have belonged to the walls of Servius Tullius (p. 177). The new Via della Dataria descends straight to the Corso, while the first transverse street to the right, the Via di S. Vincenzo, leads to the Fontana Trevi (p. 145). The Palazzo Regio, formerly Apostolico al Quirinale (Pl. I, 19), begun in 1574 under Gregory XIII. by Flaminio Ponzio, continued under Sixtus V. and Clement VIII. by Fontana, and completed under Paul V. by Maderna, has frequently been occupied by the popes in summer on account of its lofty and healthful situation.

The Garden, which is rarely shown, was tastefully laid out by C. Maderna. It contains rare plants and several antiques, and commands a fine view.

The Palazzo Rospigliosi (Pl. II, 19), erected in 1603 by Card. Scipio Borghese, nephew of Paul V., on the ruins of the Thermae of Constantine, afterwards became the property of the princes Rospigliosi, relations of Clement IX., of Pistoja. The palace contains frescoes from the Baths of Constantine, a beautiful Cl. Lorrain (temple of Venus), and other treasures of art, but is only shown by special permission of the prince. The Casino, however, is open on Wednesdays and Saturdays, 10-4 o'clock (1/2 fr.); see p. 118.

We enter the court by a gate in the palace, and then ascend the steps to the left under the arcades of the Casino. By the door to the right we enter the Principal Hall. Ceiling-painting by Guido Reni: Aurora strewing flowers before the chariot of the god of the sun, who is surrounded by dancing Hours, the master's finest work. The colouring deserves special notice. The strongest light is thrown upon the figure of Apollo, whose hair and flesh are of golden hue. Of a corresponding tint are the yellowish-red of the nymphs nearest to Apollo. The colours are then gradually shaded from green to white, while the dun-coloured horses accord with the clouds in the background. Opposite the entrance is placed a mirror, in which the painting may be conveniently inspected. — On the frieze, landscapes by Paul Brill, and on the ends of the sides, Triumph of Fauna and Cupid (from Petrarch), by Tempesta. Right wall: Statue of Athene Tritogeneia with a Triton; **Van Dyck*, Portrait.

In the Via del Quirinale, farther on, to the right, is the church of S. Silvestro al Quirinale (Pl. II, 19), erected at the close of the 16th cent., and with the adjacent monastery belonging to the fraternity of St. Vincent of Paola since 1770.

In the DOME four oval frescoes by Domenichino: David dancing before the Ark, Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, Judith, Esther and Ahasuerus. In the 2nd Chapel to the left, two landscapes by Polidoro Caravaggio and his assistant Maturino: Betrothal of the Infant Christ with St. Catharine, and Christ appearing as the gardener to Mary Magdalene.

Beyond this the Vicolo della Cordonata descends to the right, and, a little farther on, the Via Magnanapoli (see below). To the left the palms and the pines of the former Villa Aldobrandini peep over the lofty wall. This corner of the town is being thoroughly altered by the construction through it of the Via Nazionale (p. 177).

At the corner of the Via Magnanapoli on the right, is the small church of S. Caterina di Siena (Pl. II, 19, 7) of the 17th cent. Behind it, in the adjoining monastery, rises the Torre delle Milizie, erected about 1200 by the sons of Petrus Alexius, commonly called Torre di Nerone, because Nero is said to have witnessed the conflagration of Rome from this point. Another similar and contemporaneous tower is the Torre dei Conti, near the Forum of Augustus (p. 238), to which the Via del Grillo descends direct. It was erected under Innocent III. (Conti) by Marchionne of Arezzo, but a considerable portion was removed in the 17th cent.

The next cross-street to the left is the Via Mazzarina, immediately to the right in which, opposite the Villa Aldobrandini, is the church of S. Agata in Suburra (Pl. II, 22), originally built in the 5th cent., but restored in 1633, and now possessing 12 granite columns only of the original edifice. It belongs to the adjacent seminary for Irish priests.

The left aisle contains the Monument of O'Connell (who bequeathed his part to this church), with a relief by Benzoni, erected in 1856. To the

The new Via Torino leads hence to S. Maria Maggiore (p. 178).

Domenico Fontana under Sixtus V.; the badly-executed copy of the Moses of Michael Angelo is by Prospero Bresciano, who is said to have died of vexation on account of his failure; at the sides Aaron and Gideon by Giov. Batt. della Porta and Flam. Vacca; in front four modern lions. The Acqua Felice was conducted hither in 1583 from Colonna in the Alban Mts., a distance of 13 M., by order of Sixtus
V. (Felice Peretti); comp. p. 348.
On the right opens the Piazza delle Terme, see p. 175. To the left the Via di S. Susanna descends to the Via di S. Nicola di Tolentino, which leads to the Piazza Barberini (p. 164).
At the angle of the Piazza S. Bernardo stands the church of
S. Maria della Vittoria (Pl. I, 23), so called from an image of the Virgin which is said to have been instrumental in gaining the victory for the imperial troops at the battle of the 'White Hill' near Prague, afterwards deposited here, but burned in 1833. The church, with the exception of the façade, was erected by C. Maderna. In the 2nd Chapel on the right, an altar-piece (Mary giving the Infant Christ to St. Francis) and frescoes by Bernini (covered; 5s.). In the left transept the notorious group of St. Theresa by Domenichino. In the 3rd Chapel on the left, the Trinity by Guerino, and a Crucifixion attributed to Guido Reni. The street now becomes deserted. The imposing new edifice on the right is the government Finance Office. A few minutes before the gate is reached, a street to the left diverges to the Porta Salara (p. 165), while the Via del Maccaro to the right terminates near the railway-station (p. 177). Farther on, to the left, is the Villa Bonaparte, and to the right, the Villa Reinach, formerly Torlonia.

The Porta Pia (Pl. I, 27, 30), which occupies an important place in the annals of 1870, was begun by Pius IV. from designs by Michael Angelo in 1564. It afterwards fell to decay, but was restored by Pius IX. in 1861-69. On 20th Sept. 1870, the Italians directed their bombardment chiefly against this gate, and soon succeeded in making a breach at the side of it, through which they entered the city. The damage has since been repaired. On the outside, to the left, a memorial tablet, bearing the names of the 33 soldiers of the Italian army who fell on the occasion, marks the place where the breach was made. To the right of the gate is the old Porta Nomentana, closed since 1564, which led to Nomentum (p. 350).

OUTSIDE THE GATE (comp. map, p. 339) an unimpeded view is obtained to the left of the Villa Albani and the Sabine Mts. To the right is the entrance to the Villa Patrizi, with pleasant garden and beautiful view (finest from the steps of the small summer-house and from the meadow). In the grounds there are remains of ancient dwelling-houses and a catacomb (Catacomba Nicomedi) with well preserved entrance. Permessi obtained by sending an application with a visiting-card to the Pal. Patrizi, Piazza S. Luigi de' Francesi, p. 195. — About  $\frac{1}{4}$  M. farther, on the right, is the Villa Torlonia, with pleasant gardens and artificial ruins (visitors seldom admitted).

On this road, the ancient Via Nomentana, which commands fine views from various points, on the left,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the gate, is —

Man! 13 * S. Agnese Fuori le Mura, a church founded by Constantine, over the tomb of St. Agnes, and still presenting many of the characteristics of an early Christian basilica. It was re-erected by Honorius I. in 625-38, altered by Innocent VIII. in 1490, and again restored by Pius IX. in 1856. The principal festival, on 21st Jan., is the 'blessing of the lambs' from whose wool the archiepiscopal robes are woven.

We enter by a gateway, where, to the right, is the entrance to the residence of the canons, with remnants of old frescoes in the corridor of the 1st floor, dating from 1454, and including an Annunciation. In the Court, through a large window to the right, we observe a fresco painted in commemoration of an accident which happened to Pius IX. on 15th April, of a room adjoining the church, to which his Holiness gave way, and he was precipitated into the cellar extricated unhurt. On the farther side of the court, on entrance to the church, to which a STAIRCASE with 45 steps leads. On the walls of the staircase are numerous ancient inscriptions from the catacombs.

The interior is divided into nave and aisles by 16 antique columns of breccia, and pavonazzetto, which support arches. Above the wall of the entrance are galleries with smaller columns. The Tabernacle of 1614, borne by four fine columns of porphyry, represents St. Agnes, in alabaster, a restored antique. In the tribune, the 7th cent., and an ancient episcopal chair. To the right, a Head of Christ in marble, a mediocre work of the 16th cent.; in the 2nd Chapel, a beautiful inlaid altar; above it a relief of St. Lawrence, of 1490. In the left aisle, over the altar of a fine old fresco, Madonna and Child. — With regard to the lights which there is an entrance in the left aisle, see p. 337; see them without a permesso by applying to the sacristan, lights are also obtainable (1 fr.).

Leaving the covered flight of steps which descend to S. Agnese, and descending to the right, we reach — S. Costanza (which, if closed, will be shown by the custodian of S. Agnese, 1/2 fr.). This church was originally erected as a monument by Constantine to his daughter Constantia, but converted into a church in 1256. The dome, 70 ft. in diameter, is supported by 24 clustered columns of granite. A few fragments only of the vestibule and the enclosing wall of the central part of the structure now exist. In the tunnel-vaulting of the aisle are *mosaics of the 4th cent. with genii gathering grapes, in the ancient style, but bearing traces of decline. The porphyry sarcophagus of the saint, which formerly stood in one of the niches (now in the Vatican museum, Sala a Croce Greca, p. 313), is similarly adorned. In the niches, Christ as the ruler of the world with SS. Peter and Paul. The Cœmeterium Ostrianum, 1/4 M. from this point, see p. 337. Beyond it lies the Campagna, see p. 349.

Quitting the Piazza S. Bernardo and the Fontanone dell' Acqua Felice (p. 173), and proceeding towards the S. E., we pass (left) an asylum for the deaf and dumb, and come to the PIAZZA DELLE TERME (Pl. I, 25), formerly called di Termini, which derives its name from the Thermæ of Diocletian situated here.

The Thermæ of Diocletian, the most extensive in Rome, were constructed by Maximian and Diocletian at the beginning of the 4th century. The principal building was enclosed by a wall, a massive round fragment of which, now intersected by the Via Nazionale (p. 177), is exposed to view on the S.W. side of the piazza. The corners on this side were formed by two circular buildings, one of which is now the church of S. Bernardo (p. 173), and the other belongs to a prison. The circumference of the baths is said to have been about 2000 yds., or half as much as that of the Baths of Caracalla (p. 257), and the number of daily bathers 3000. The front faced the E., and the circular part, mentioned above, was at the back. Tradition ascribes the execution of the work to condemned Christians, in memory of whom a church, no longer existing, was erected here as early as the 5th century.

An old scheme for erecting a Carthusian monastery among the ruins, which had been abandoned in the 14th cent., was revived by Pius IV., who committed the execution of the task to Michael Angelo. That master accordingly converted a large vaulted hall into the church of —

S. Maria degli Angeli (Pl. I, 25), which was consecrated in 1561. The present transept was then the nave, the principal portal was in the narrow end on the right, and the high-altar placed on the left. In 1749 Vanvitelli entirely disfigured the church by injudicious alterations, such as converting the nave into the transept, blocking up the portal, etc.

A small Rotunda is first entered. The first tomb on the right is that of the painter Carlo Maratti (d. 1713). In the Chapel, Angelo of Peace and piece by Arrigo Fiammingo. On the left is that of Salvator Rosa and Mary Magdalene, an altar.

The great TRANSEPT contains a colossal statue the "Delivery of the Key" (the nave) is 100 yds. in each 40 ft. in height; barbarously painted; the brick wall where pictures here and in were replaced by copies of Rome, laid Ricciolini; Fall of St. Jerome; of St. Peter, Baglioni.

In the TRIBUNE (one of the monks acts as guide here, 1½ fr.); Romanelli, Mary's first visit to the Temple; Domenechino, Martyrdom of St. Sebastian (fresco); left, Pomaresco, Death of Ananias and Sapphira; Ma- Ant. Serbelloni), designed by Michael Angelo.

The Carlota, or Carthusian Monastery, adjoining the church, is partly used as barracks. The second court (entrance by No. 15, opposite the great fountain, where a sentinel stands, then turning to the left), embellished with 100 columns, was constructed from a design by Michael Angelo, who is said to have planted the beautiful cyresses in the centre; but it is now whitewashed, and has lost much of its former interest. The most interesting parts, through which the visitor may ascend to the roof of the church for the sake of the view, belong to the monastery, to the prior of which application for admission must be made.

the church of S. Maria degli Angeli, the circular wall of the Thermæ, runs intersects the Via Quattro Fontane, and the direction to the corner of Via del (p. 172). Immediately to the right delle Terme rises the War Office. — Galleria Tenerani, a complete collection of the sculptor P. Tenerani (d. 1869); open on must be paid.

way-station part of the Wall of Servius, undefended side, has been exposed to view in consequence of the railway. The wall, which is supported by a strong embankment, with its broad moat and numerous towers, may be traced as far as the arch of Gallienus.

To the right (S.W.) runs the new Via del Viminale, which farther on intersects the Via delle Quattro Fontane.

Passing the station, traversing the Piazza delle Terme lengthwise, we reach the S. Lorenzo (p. 181) in 1/4 hr.

Turning to the left between the station and the Thermæ, and passing the new buildings of the quarter which is now springing up here, we reach in 10 min. the Campo di Marzio, or Campo Militare, the camp of the Prætorians of imperial Rome. It was originally established by Tiberius, but destroyed by Constantine so far as it lay without the town-wall, from which it projects in a quadrangular form. At the end to the left, and on the side, traces of gates are still distinguished; the wall was skirted by a passage, under which are several small chambers. Since the end of the papal régime it has again been devoted to military purposes; parades and reviews are held here, and the large, newly erected barracks impart unwonted life to the bleak ramparts.

From the Quattro Fontane to S. Maria Maggiore is a walk of 10 minutes. We first descend the Quirinal, crossing the new Via Nazionale (see above), which leads to the Piazza delle Terme. We then traverse the VIMINAL, which is here of insignificant height; to the left diverges the new Via del Viminale (see above) leading to the station. In the valley between the Viminal and Esquiline, in the first side-street to the right, is situated —

S. Pudenziana (Pl. II, 25; open till 9 a. m.; custodian, Via Quattro Fontane 81), traditionally the most ancient church in Rome, erected on the spot where St. Pudens and his daughters Praxedes and Pudentiana, who entertained St. Peter, are said to have lived. The church, the earliest record of which dates from 499, has been frequently restored, the greatest alterations having been made in

The facade of the church is turned towards the Piazza S. MARIA

S. Maria Maggiore (Pl. II, 25), also named Basilica Liberiana, which it contains, derives its usual name from the manger of the eighty churches dedicated to the Virgin at Rome. It is the same time one of the oldest at Rome, and perhaps the oldest the whole of Christendom. This is one of the five patriarchal churches (p. 128), and has a special 'jubilee entrance'. The prin-pal festivals are on Christmas Day, 5th Aug., and the Assumption 15th Aug., the occasion of the papal benediction. According to legend which cannot be traced farther back than the 13th cent., the Virgin appeared simultaneously to the devout Roman patrician John and to Pope Liberius (352-66) in their dreams, commanding them to erect a church to her on the spot where they could find a deposit of snow on the following morning (5th Aug.).
The Basilica Liberiana, which they are said to have built in obedience to this vision, was re-erected by Sixtus III. (432-40), who named the church S. Maria Mater Dei, shortly after the Council of Ephesus had sanctioned this appellation of the Virgin (430). Of this edifice the nave with its ancient marble columns and mosaics is still preserved. In the 12th cent. the church was farther altered in the mediæval style. Eugene III. added a new porch, Nicholas IV. a new tribune adorned with mosaics, and Gregory XI. gave the campanile its present form and its pointed roof. About the end of the 15th cent. began a new period in the history of the church, when the irregularities of the mediæval additions were removed, and symmetrical lines were formed by the erection of accessory buildings and straight walls. The two large side-chapels, covered with domes, were added by Sixtus V. in 1586 and Paul V. in 1611. The exterior of the tribune was remodelled by Clement X., and the final restoration was undertaken by Fuga, by order of Benedict XIV.

The Façade, designed by Fuga in 1743, consists of a porch with a loggia above it, opening towards the piazza in five arches. Corresponding with the five archways of the porch are four entrances to the church, the last of which on the left, the Porta Santa, is now built up, and a niche on the right. To the right is a statue of Philip IV. of Spain. The loggia (staircase to the left in the vestibule; one of the attendants opens the door), from which the pope formerly pronounced his benediction on 15th Aug., contains mosaics from a façade of the 13th cent., restored in 1825.

The Interior, dating from the pontificate of Sixtus III., 93 yds. long and 19 yds. wide, and subsequently enlarged, produces a rich and imposing effect. The pavement of the NAVE dates from the 12th cent., and the handsome ceiling was executed from designs by Giuliano da S. Gallo. The architrave, adorned with mosaic, is supported by 42 Ionic columns, 33 in marble and 4 in granite, above which, and on the triumphal arch, are Mosaics of the 5th cent., in the ancient style (good light early in the morning). Those on the arch represent events from the Life of Mary, Annunciation, Infancy of Christ, Slaughter of the Innocents, etc.; left wall, history of Abraham and Jacob; right wall, Moses and Joshua (several of the pictures were restored in 1825). In front of the triumphal arch is the High-Altar, consisting of an ancient sarcophagus of porphyry, said to have been the tomb of the Patrician Johannes, and containing the remains of St. Matthew and other relics; the canopy is borne by four columns of porphyry. In the apse of the TRIBUNE are *mosaics by Jacopo Torriti (1292): Coronation of the Virgin, with saints, near whom are Pope Nicholas IV. and Card. Jac. Colonna.

At the beginning of the nave are the tombs of Nicholas IV. (d. 1292) on the left, and Clement IX. (d. 1669) on the right, erected by Sixtus V. and Clement X. respectively. RIGHT AISLE: First chapel: Baptistery with fine ancient font of porphyry. Farther on is the Cap. del Crocifisso with 10 columns of porphyry, containing five boards from the manger (whence termed Cappella del Presepe) of the Infant Christ. — In the RIGHT TRANSEPT is the

 Sistine Chapel, constructed by Fontana and recently gorgeous-in the niche on the left, an altar-piece (St. Jerome) by Ribera; occupying the whole wall, the monument of Sixtus V., the
 Bernini. Over the altar rises a canopy in gilded bronze, bearing the church; in the 'Confessio' under the staircase, by Bernini, and by the altar a relief of the Gualtero da Pietrasanta (1487). — At the end of the right monument of Card. Consalvi (Gensalvus, d. 1200) by Gior.

1st Chapel (of the Cross) Martyrdom of St. Catharine, altarpiece by Gior. da Sordani; on the right and left two bronze statues to the memory of cardinal family. 2nd Chapel (of the Pallavicini Sforza), piece by Gior. Sordani designed by Mich. Angelo Assumption of Mary, altarpiece by Gior. Sordani. — In the 3rd Chapel, opposite the Sistine Chapel, is the Romanesque dome, constructed by Flaminio Piccini in 1611, and also covered with a dome. Over the altar, which is gorgeously decorated with lapis lazuli and silver, is an ancient and miraculous picture of the Virgin, painted (almost black) according to tradition by St. Luke, which was carried by Gregory I. as early as 590 in solemn procession through the city.
 The frescoes in the large apse (I.) Paul V. (Camillo Borghese, d. 1621) and (r.) Clement VIII. (Aldo-brandini, d. 1603) are by pupils of Bernini. The crypt contains tombs of the of the Piazza S. Maria Maggiore (p. 178) is the church Abbate, with a portal of the 13th century. Interesting. S. Antonio is the tutelary saint of animals, church from 17th to 23rd Jan., domestic animals formerly blessed and sprinkled with holy water.

 S. Prassede, at the right corner of the piazza, is a church of —
 (Pl. II, 25), erected by Paschalis I. in 822 and dedicated to Praxedis, the daughter of St. Pudens with whom Peter and the sister of S. Pudentiana. It was restored by 1450, again in 1832, and finally in 1869. The nave is separated from the aisles by 18 columns of bearing arches, having been replaced by pillars). The deserve special notice. On the triumphal arch the new by angels, Christ in the centre, towards whom the saved the arch of the tribune the Lamb, at the sides the seven the symbols of the evangelists; lower down the twenty-spaces allotted to it; thus, in order to follow the curve of the foremost elders in the middle and upper rows in length); in the round part of the apse. Christ sur-
 the right Peter, Pudentiana, and Zeno). On either side are galleries — RIGHT AISLE. The 3rd chapel is the Chapel of when desired). At the entrance are two columns of black ancient entablature. The interior is entirely covered with ground (about the 10th cent.), whence the chapel is some-called Orto del Paradiso. On the vaulting a medallion with head of supported by four angels. Above the altar a Madonna between the Praxedis and Pudentiana. To the right in a niche, the column at is said to have been scourged. The 4th chapel contains the Cetti (d. 1474). At the extremity of the right aisle the Cap. del

Crocefisso contains the tomb of a French cardinal (d. 1286). — In the LEFT AISLE by the entrance-wall is a stone-slab, on which St. Praxedis is said to have slept. The 2nd Cap. di S. Carlo Borromeo contains a chair and table once used by the saint. The 3rd Cap. Agiati contains paintings by the Cav. d'Arpino. — The marble spout of a fountain in the nave indicates the spot where St. Praxedis collected the blood of the martyrs.

The CONFESSIO (keys kept by the sacristan) contains ancient sarcophagi with the bones of the sister saints Praxedis and Pudentiana on the right, and those of martyrs on the left. The altar is decorated with fine mosaic of the 13th cent. Above it an ancient fresco of the Madonna between the sisters. — The SACRISTY contains a Scourging by Giulio Romano.

To the S. and S.E. of the Piazza S. Maria Maggiore run the Via S. Eusebio and the Via Merulana (p. 185), two streets now in course of construction. In the execution of the municipal improvements great alterations in the appearance of the ground have been made here. A great part of the surface has been lowered 13-16 ft., a process which led to the discovery of numerous remains of ancient walls, fragments of sculptures in marble and bronze, sarcophagi, columns, etc. The ruins have been partly covered up again, and nothing certain is known of their history.

We follow the VIA S. EUSEBIO (Pl. II, 25, 28), from which, immediately to the right, the Via di S. Vito diverges, passing under the Arch of Gallienus. This honorary arch, which closely adjoins the church of S. Vito, was erected in 262 in honour of the Emp. Gallienus 'on account of his bravery, surpassed only by his piety' by a certain M. Aurelius Victor. The architecture is simple, and in the degraded style of the age.

Farther on in the Via S. Eusebio is the church of S. Eusebio, re-erected in the last century, with the exception of the campanile. The ceiling-painting, the glory of St. Eusebius, is one of the earliest works of Raphael Mengs; the high altar-piece is by Bald. Croce. Opposite the church, to the right, are considerable remains of a water-tower of the Aqua Julia or Claudia (Pl. II, 28), in the niches of which the so-called trophies of Marius, now on the balustrade of the Capitol, were formerly placed (p. 213). The ruin is called Trofei di Mario. — For the prolongation of the street to the Porta Maggiore, see p. 183.

Turning to the left into the new street between S. Eusebio and the Trofei di Mario, we reach ( $\frac{1}{2}$  M.) the Porta S. Lorenzo (Pl. II, 31), constructed by Honorius against an arch, over which, according to the inscription, the three aqueducts Marcia, Tepula, and Julia passed. The arch stands on its original site, while the gateway occupies considerably higher ground. The gate derives its name from the basilica situated outside the gate, and stands on the site of the ancient Porta Tiburtina, which led to Tivoli. The road (Via Tiburtina) is bounded by walls, and does not afford views of the Sabine Mts. until the church is reached,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from the gate. \**S. Lorenzo Fuori le Mura* (see map, p. 339) occupies the spot where Constantine first founded a church on the burial-place of St. Lawrence and St. Cyriaca. In 578 it was rebuilt by Pelagius II

This ancient edifice, which was entered from the E., was entirely remodelled by Honorius III. (1216-27), who added the present nave to the apse, and transferred the façade with the porch to the W. end. An angle formed by the outer walls shows where the new part was added. Under Nicholas V. and Innocent X., and finally under Pius IX. in 1864-70, the church underwent extensive alterations, and is now at least partially freed from the patchwork by which it was formerly disfigured. S. Lorenzo is a patriarchal church, and one of the seven pilgrimage-churches of Rome (p. 128). Festival, 10th Aug.

In the piazza in front of the church is a Column with a bronze statue of St. Lawrence. The Façade of the church has been recently embellished with paintings resembling mosaic, representing the founders and patrons of the church: Pelagius II., the Emp. Constantine, Honorius III., Pius IX., Sixtus III., and Hadrian I. The vestibule is supported by six ancient columns, above which is an architrave with mosaics (St. Lawrence and Honorius III.), and contains retouched frescoes of the 13th cent., two tombs in the form of temples, and two rude Christian sarcophagi. The door-posts rest on lions.

The interior consists of two parts. The anterior LATER CHURCH, which consists of nave and two aisles, separated by a cypolline of unequal thickness. On the right are a frog and a lizard, and on the left authority, to have been brought there by two sculptors Batrachus (frog) and Chelone (tortoise). This method of perpetuating the history of St. Lawrence; on the right, rises a wall recently adorned with a painted open roof. The pavement, of the 12th century. Under a mediæval canopy at the E. end is a sarcophagus with a representation of the two elevated ambros, that remains of Card. Fieschi, nephew of Pope Sixtus IV. Above the ambros are the two elevated ambros, that is a wreathed candelabrum for the epistle (12th cent.). On the triumphal arch is a mosaic of the Madonna and Child, and a flight of 12 steps, on the left, to the choir.

On the E. is the OLDER CHURCH, of which lies 3 ft. lower. The raised steps ascend on each side of the Confessio, where the altar of the older church was. The nave of the older church is now filled up. The rubbish has been levelled off the aisles exposed to view. The prolongation of the aisles of Pelagius, a basilica with aisles in only two examples of churches with an apse entered at the opposite (E.) end. The pavement is of the 12th century, of pavonazzetto with Corinthian capitals of trophies, on the benches in front of the entablature, which consists of an architrave with graceful smaller columns. On the original front, are restored mosaics of Christ, right SS. Peter, Lawrence, and

The interior is chiefly divided by 22 arches, the capitals of which are from the 11th and 12th centuries. The arches are with their capitals left, and are open to the sky. The interior is of a large hall, with a high vaulted roof. The capitals are from the 11th and 12th centuries.

On the right side of the nave are 12 arches, the capitals of which are from the 11th and 12th centuries. The arches are with their capitals left, and are open to the sky. The interior is of a large hall, with a high vaulted roof. The capitals are from the 11th and 12th centuries.

The handsome old *COURT OF THE MONASTERY (generally closed; apply to one of the monks in the church) contains numerous fragments of sculpture and inscriptions built into its walls; in the corner to the right of the principal entrance is the lid of a sarcophagus adorned with the triumphal procession of Cybele.

The church is adjoined by the Campo Verano, an extensive churchyard, consecrated in 1837, and considerably enlarged in 1854, the upper part of which commands a beautiful view of the mountains and the Campagna. A monument with appropriate inscriptions was erected here in 1870 to commemorate the Battle of Mentana. In the tufa rock of the hill are observed tomb-niches from the catacombs of St. Cyriaca, discovered when the cemetery was extended in this direction.

About a hundred paces beyond the Trofei di Mario, the street leading to S. Bibiana and the Porta Maggiore diverges to the right from that which leads to the Porta S. Lorenzo mentioned at p. 181. As already stated, the ground here is undergoing a complete transformation, and fragments of ancient walls are still frequently discovered.

In 5 min. we reach the church of S. Bibiana (Pl. II, 31), consecrated as early as 470, and rebuilt for the last time in 1625 by Bernini.

The INTERIOR contains eight antique columns; above these are frescoes from the life of the saint, on the right by Ciampelli, on the left by Pietro da Cortona (modernised). The statue of St. Bibiana at the high-altar is by Bernini. To the left by the entrance is the stump of a column, at which the saint is said to have been scourged to death. Festival, 2nd Dec.

A few hundred paces farther on, in the same direction, is the so-called Temple of Minerva Medica (Pl. II, 32), the picturesque ruin of an ancient Nymphæum in the form of a decagon, 55 yds. in circumference, with deep niches in the walls, and originally covered with marble below and stucco above. It must have belonged to some splendid bath-establishment, as a number of ancient statues have been found in the vicinity. One of these, the Minerva Giustiniani of the Braccio Nuovo in the Vatican (p. 307), has given rise to the otherwise unfounded appellation of 'Temple of Minerva'. In the middle ages the ruin was called Le Terme di Galuccio, a name which has been conjectured, without any authority, to be a corruption of 'Gaius and Lucius Cæsar'. The vaulting was in existence down to 1828. The building, which is interesting in an architectural point of view, dates from about the 3rd cent. after Christ.

In the Vigna, between the Temple of Minerva and the Porta Maggiore, several Columbaria were discovered in 1875, the largest being that of the Gens Statilia. Their contents have been transferred to the Museo Kircheriano (p. 150), and the columbaria themselves are now hardly worthy of a visit.

The Via di Porta Maggiore leads in 20 min. from the church of S. Maria to the *Porta Maggiore (Pl. II, 35), formed by a monument belonging to the Aqua Claudia, above which the Anio Novus flowed through a second conduit. The inscriptions record the construction of both aqueducts by the Emp. Claudius, A. D. 52, the Claudia, 45 M. in length, bringing water from the neighbourhood of Subiaco, and the Anio Novus being conducted from the sources of the river of that name, a distance of 62 M.; and also their restoration by Vespasian in 71, and by Titus in 80. Aurelian converted the monument into one of the gates of his city wall; and the Colonnas used it in the middle ages as the nucleus of a fortification. The gate derives its name either from its imposing dimensions, or from the church of that name. It was purged of the later additions by Gregory XVI., who closed up the N. archway. Two roads diverged hence: to the left, through the now closed arch, the Via Labicana, and to the right the Via Praenestina.

Between the two roads, outside the gate, on the occasion of the removal of the fortifications of Honorius, which have been re-erected by the wall to the right, was discovered the **Monument of the Baker Eurysaces*, erected in the form of a baker's oven towards the close of the republic. The monument was erected by the baker himself during his lifetime, and the principal inscription, which is repeated several times, is to the effect that — 'This is the monument of Marcus Vergilius Eurysaces, a public purveyor of bread and an official'. Some of the reliefs represent grinding, baking, and other parts of his trade, and others refer to his post of purveyor to the city.

From the Porta Maggiore a road leads to (5 min.) S. Croce, passing under the arch of the Claudian aqueduct, and skirting the wall on the inside. From S. Maria Maggiore to this church by the Via di S. Croce is a walk of 20 min.

S. Croce in Gerusalemme (Pl. II, 36), one of the seven pilgrimage-churches, once named Basilica Sessoriana, because the Sessorium, perhaps an ancient court of judicature, once stood here, is said to have been erected by St. Helena in honour of the cross found by her. As early as 433 it was used for the meetings of a council, it was rebuilt by Lucius II. in 1144, and was entirely modernised and provided with a poor façade by Gregorini in the pontificate of Benedict XIV. in 1743.

INTERIOR. The nave was originally borne by 12 antique columns of granite, of which 8 only are now visible. An ancient sarcophagus of basalt below the high-altar contains the relics of SS. Anastasius and Cæsarius.

In the tribune are modernised *frescoes by Bald. Peruzzi (not Pinturicchio), the finding of the Cross. The church contains numerous relics, including the inscription on the Cross.

To the left of the tribune a staircase descends to the Crypt, where on the left is an altar adorned with a relief in marble (Pietà); at the sides are statues of Peter and Paul of the 12th cent. On the right the chapel of St. Helena, to which ladies are not admitted except on 20th March. On the vaulting are *Mosaics, after Bald. Peruzzi, representing the Four Evangelists. In the centre, Christ. In the arch over the entrance, on the left St. Helena, right St. Sylvester; over the altar, on the left St. Peter, on the right St. Paul. The altar-statue of St. Helena is an exact copy of the Barberini Juno in the Sala Rotonda of the Vatican (p. 313), with the exception that a cross has been substituted for the sceptre in the right hand, and a nail of the cross for the vase in the left.

The greater part of the old Cistercian monastery formerly belonging to the church is now used as a barrack.

Adjacent to S. Croce, in the direction of the Lateran, is situated the Amphitheatrum Castrense (Pl. II, 36), of which only 16 arches of the enclosing wall, incorporated with the old city-fortifications, still exist. The structure is of brick, and so also are the Corinthian capitals and other decorations. The date of its erection is uncertain. The longer diameter of the amphitheatre is 57 yds., the shorter 44 yds., and the arena 41 yds. in length. The outside is best seen in the course of a walk from the Porta Maggiore to the Porta S. Giovanni (from gate to gate 1 M.). In the interior is a kitchen garden.

On the other side of S. Croce is an apse with arched windows and the beginning of adjoining walls, which are supposed to have belonged to a Temple of Venus and Cupid, or a Nymphaeum of Alexander Severus, or to the Sessorium mentioned above.

From S. Croce to the Lateran is a walk of 5 min. (p. 267).

From S. Maria Maggiore the VIA MERULANA (Pl. II, 26, 29, 30) leads to the right to the Lateran (in  $\frac{1}{4}$  hr.). The first transverse street to the right is the Via di S. Prassede (with the church of that name, see p. 180), which, under different names, leads through a well-peopled quarter to the Forum. The Via di S. Vito to the left leads through the arch of Gallienus to S. Eusebio (p. 181). — To the left, farther on, is the Villa Caserta (Pl. II, 25, 29), which was purchased by the Redemptorists in 1855, and in the street rises S. Alfonso de' Liguori, the church belonging to it, built in the modern Gothic style by Wigley, an English architect.

From the Via Merulana diverges the VIA DI S. PIETRO IN VINCOLI to the W., leading to the church of —

S. Martino ai Monti (Pl. II, 26), erected by Symmachus about the year 500, adjacent to the Baths of Trajan and to an old church of Pope Sylvester, rebuilt in 844 by Sergius II. and Leo IV., and handsomely modernised about 1650. The adjoining Carmelite monastery is now occupied by the military. Principal festival, 11th Nov.

The INTERIOR, a basilica with a roof of straight beams, contains 24 antique columns. In the S. aisle six *frescoes by G. Poussin, from the life of St. Peter, the patron of the order (disfigured by restoration). In the N. aisle smaller *frescoes. Also two pictures representing the interior of the churches of the Lateran and of St. Peter. — The PRESBYTERIUM is eleven higher; below it the CRYPT. From the latter a large, ancient vault is preserved, probably once belonging to Thermæ, but at an early period converted into a church. The vaulting bears traces of very ancient painting. This is supposed to be the site of Pope Sylvester's church, of the period of Constantine.

To the E., near S. Martino, diverges the Via delle Sette Sale, passing the vineyards of the Esquiline, and terminating near S. Cleto (p. 263). On this road, immediately to the right, in the Vigna 10, is the entrance to the so-called Sette Sale (Pl. II, 26), consisting of seven, or rather nine chambers, running parallel with each other, which appear to have been used as reservoirs for the Thermæ Augustæ. The other ruins in the same vineyard also belonged to the same. The celebrated group of the Laocoon (p. 310) was found in the vicinity.

Leaving S. Martino, we next proceed in 5 min. to —

S. Pietro in Vincoli (Pl. II, 23; 151 ft. above the sea-level), named Basilica Eudoxiana after Eudoxia, wife of Valentinian who founded it, about 442, as a receptacle for the chains of St. Peter which had been presented by her to Pope Leo I. The church was restored by Pelagius I. and Hadrian I., the vestibule decorated by Baccio Pintelli, and the whole is now modernised. It is open before 11 a. m. and after 3 p. m.; when closed, visitors ring the adjacent door to the left, No. 4 (1/2 fr.).

INTERIOR. The nave and aisles are separated by 20 antique Doric columns. To the left of the entrance is the monument of the Florentine brothers Pietro and Antonio Pollajuolo (d. 1498). The fresco above it, representing the plague of 680, is attributed to the latter master. The LEFT AISLE, on the left contains the monument of the learned Card. Nic. Cusanus (from Cues on the Moselle, d. 1465). Above it a relief: Peter with keys and chains, on the left the donor (Nic. Cusanus), right an angel. The 3rd altar to the left a mosaic of the 7th cent. with St. Sebastian. At the end of the RIGHT AISLE is the monument of Pope Julius II. with the statue of Moses by Michael Angelo, one of his most famous works. The monument was originally destined for St. Peter's, and intended to be a most singular work, consisting of upwards of 30 statues. Owing to various adverse circumstances the portion preserved here was alone completed. (Two others destined for this monument are at the Louvre.) The statues of Moses is represented by mediæval Christian artists with horns owing to erroneous translation of Exodus xxxiv. 35), Rachel, and Leah (as models, on the left of meditative, on the right of active life) alone were executed by the great master, and even these were not entirely his own workmanship. The grouping only of the remainder was from his design. The figure of the pope (who is not interred here) by Maso del Bosco is a rare work; the prophet and the sibyl at the side are by Raf. da Montelupo. — The right of the choir is St. Margaret, an altarpiece by Guercino. — The CHOIR contains an ancient marble seat from a bath, converted into episcopal throne.

Adjacent to the statue of Moses is the entrance to the SACRISTY. A cabinet here with *bronze doors (by the Pollajuoli, 1477) contains the chains of St. Peter, which are exhibited to the pious on 1st Aug.

The adjacent monastery of the Canonici Regolari is now the seat physical and mathematical faculty of the university. The old monastery court, by Giuliano da San Gallo, planted with large trees, is embellished with a fountain by Antonio. The entrance is by No. 5, to the right of the church. A garden opposite the façade of the church is a handsome tree. — Proceeding to the left and then, where the street turns to the left again, we reach the Thermae of Titus (p. 231). The street in a straight direction descends to the Basilica of Constantine (p. 231), which is conveniently visited after the church of S. Pietro. To the right of S. Pietro in Vincoli is the church of S. Cecilia di Paola, with a monastery, now the R. Istituto Tecnico.

III. Rome on the Tiber (Left Bank).

That part of the city which extends to the W. from the Corso as far as the river was uninhabited in the most ancient times (Campus Martius). The river was gradually covered with buildings as Rome extended her sway as far back as the Republic, but more particularly in the reign of Augustus, it became the site of many palatial edifices, and the new town of ancient Rome. This quarter, which is now densely peopled, and is the main mediæval in character, consists of a network of narrow and dirty streets and lanes, enlivened by the busy traffic of the lower class and rarely intersected by great thoroughfares. Although the topography of these purlieus is sometimes puzzling, and their appearance uninviting, they contain many highly interesting churches and palaces, and afford the traveller an excellent opportunity of becoming acquainted with mediæval Rome, and with the characteristics of its present inhabitants. It is proposed by the present government to improve this quarter by the construction of new and broad streets, but the work has not yet been begun. The following description begins with the N. side.

From the Piazza del Popolo the broad VIA DI RIPETTA (Pl. 15, 14) with its prolongation, the Via della Scrofa, leads to the S. Luigi de' Francesi and the Piazza Navona. In 16 min. to

In the Via di Ripetta, 4 min. from the Piazza del Popolo, a modern building with numerous windows, erected by Gregory XVI., now contains the Direzione Centrale del Lotto, and studios belonging to the Accademia delle Belle Arti, or di S. Luigi (p. 237). The gateway of the circular building leads to a quiet quay (Passeggiata di Ripetta), planted with trees and used by the barges which ascend the river. Pleasing view of the opposite bank.

Proceeding hence we reach in the first transverse street, the Via de' Pontefici 57 (right), the entrance to the Mausoleum of Augustus (Pl. I, 17), erected by that emperor as a burial-place for himself and his family, and in which most of his successors down to Nero were interred. On a huge substructure, which contained the entombment chambers, arose a mound of earth in the form of terraces, embellished with cypresses, surmounted by a statue of the emperor, and environed with a park. In the middle ages it was used by the Colonnas as a fortress, and a small day-theatre, occasionally used as a circus (Anfiteatro Coreo), is now fitted up with precincts. A few only of the tomb-chambers are still preserved. Fee 1/2 fr.

To the left in the (Pl. I, 14), erected in 1657 by De Rossi, the SS. Rocco e Martino pairs of Corinthian columns having been added in 1834. Immediately beyond it, on the right, is the church of Ripetta, constructed by Clement XI. in 1707, where a new bridge over the Tiber is rapidly approaching completion. — On the left, the small church of S. Girolamo degli Schiavoni (Pl. I, 15).

The VIA DELLA SCROFA, the continuation of the Via di Ripetta, is soon intersected (about 9 min. from the Piazza del Popolo) by a main street, which quitting the Corso opposite the Via Condotti leads to the Ponte S. Angelo under different names, and forms the most direct communication between the strangers' quarter (Piazza di Spagna) and the Vatican. The church of S. Trinità de' Monti (p. 143) is visible the greater part of the way, forming the termination of the street. From the Corso to the Piazza Borghese (Pl. I, 16; 4 min.) it is called Via della Fontanella di Borghese; thence to the Via della Scrofa, Via del Clementino, in which are back-buildings of the Palazzo di Firenze, formerly the residence of the Tuscan ambassador, now that of the Minister of Justice. — In the PIAZZA BORGHESE rises the celebrated — *Palazzo Borghese, begun by order of Card. Dezza in 1590 by the architect Mart. Lunghi the Elder, and completed by Flaminio Ponzio by order of Paul V., through whom it came into the possession of the Borghese family. The principal façade (with respect to the construction of the court) towards the street bears the inscription: Bonitatem et disciplinam et scientiam docem(us); the more imposing lateral façade is towards the Piazza Borghese. On the ground-floor and first floor the *Court is surrounded by arcades resting on clustered granite columns. Below these are three ancient colossal statues (a Muse, an Apollo Musagetes, and a portrait-statue); and at the end of the right passage a fragment of the statue of an Amazon. In the centre of the left side of the arcades is the entrance to the **PICTURE GALLERY (open Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 9-3 o'clock; closed in July and August; fee 1/2 fr.). Catalogues are provided for the use of visitors. The apartments are artistically decorated.

The Gallery Borghese is the most important in Rome next to that of the Vatican. It embraces a longer period of time and contains more master-pieces than the other private galleries in Rome. The gallery was founded at a time when the works of that period were generally appreciated. The gallery, however, possesses some excellent works of the close of that century, such as the Madonna with the vase by Lorenzo di Credi (I. Room, No. 54), of doubtful authorship. — The MILANESSE SCHOOL OF LEONARDO is largely represented (I. Room), but the authenticity of most of the pictures is questionable. The best are Christ imparting his blessing, a small work by Marco d'Oggiono (I. Room, No. 33), and Christ bearing his Cross, by Solario (III. Room, No. 1). — Among the earlier masters of the UPPER ITALIAN SCHOOL, Franc. Francia is highly esteemed, and his St. Stephen, a half-figure in the red robe of a deacon (II, 51), affords abundant proof that he has not been overrated.

The only one of RAPHAEL'S works which can claim to be original, is the Entombment (II. Room, No. 38). The picture is not well preserved, and is perhaps not entirely by Raphael's own hand. The impression produced by it is disappointing, the composition seems too studied, and the colouring cold. The predelle belonging to it are in the Vatican Gallery (p. 303). The Fornarina (II. Room, No. 65), the Madonna d'Alba (II, 39), Pope Julius II. (II, 18), and the Madonna col divino amore (II, 24) are copies; the unknown Cardinal (II, 21) is by a somewhat later Florentine master, who for the colouring of the gown has used a different kind of red from Raphael. It is quite as improbable that the so-called Portrait of Cesare Borgia (II, 26) was executed by Raphael. Cesare Borgia died in 1507, whereas the costume of the portrait is in the style of the middle of that century. The painter of this unknown personage is not improbably conjectured to be Angelo Bronzino. The IX. Room contains several Frescoes transferred hither from the Villa of Raphael, and ascribed to that master; but they are unlike his workmanship, both in composition and execution.

The SCHOOL OF FERRARA of the 16th cent. is copiously and well represented. A fine example of Mazzolino's richness of colouring is his Adoration of the Magi (II, 59). Dosso Dossi's Circe (III, 11) conducts us into a world of fancy, similar to that depicted by Ariosto in his Orlando. Lastly there are several excellent works by Garofalo, the Raphael of Ferrara (II, 9: Descent from the Cross).

The COLOURISTS OF THE XVI. CENT. will not fail to attract the visitor. To Sodoma the gallery is indebted for a Pietà (I, 7) and a Holy Family (II, 44), in which the head of the Madonna is radiant with beauty. At a comparatively recent period (1824) an important work by Correggio was secured for the gallery. It represents Danae with Cupids sharpening their arrows (III, 40). The figure of Danae is rather graceful than strictly beautiful, but the Cupids are very charming, and the chiaroscuro masterly. — A whole room is devoted to the VENETIAN SCHOOL. Titian's so-called Earthly and Heavenly Love (X, 21) is one of those creations which produces an indelible impression on the beholder. The picture rivets the attention like a poetical dream, and after the eye has feasted on the charms of the colouring the composition still captivates the imagiation. The Arming of Cupid (X, 2) is one of the finest mythological works by the same master. Bonifazio is another master who applies us with examples of the richness of colouring of the Venetian School (XI, 16, being the finest). Giorgione, on the other hand, is not fairly represented by the only specimen of his handiwork which the gallery possesses (X, 13).

As it is generally the case in the Roman galleries, the painters of the later revival of art, the adherents of the Caracci and the Naturalists, figure very numerous here. Domenichino's Diana (IV, 15) contains a number of nymphs with life-like heads, and an excellent background of landscape; Albani's Seasons are superb decorative pictures; and the half-figures of Guercino are above the average of his compositions. The works of Caravaggio, the chief of the naturalists, produce an exceedingly unpleasant impression in this gallery (V, 26). The pictures by German and Netherlandish masters in the XII. Room are unimportant.

I. Room. *Decorations, in grisaille and gold, by Carlo Villani. On the left: *1. Sandro Botticelli, Madonna; *2. Lorenzo di Credi, Madonna; 7. Sodoma, Pietà, unfortunately darkened by age; 8. Luini (a copy), Vanità; *17. Solario (?), Ecce Homo; 26. School of Leonardo, Madonna; 27, 28. Laura and Petrarch (portraits); 30. Perugino (?), Ecce Homo; 32. Luini (a copy), St. Agatha; *33. Marco d'Oggiono, Youthful Christ; 34. Perugino, Madonna (a copy); *35. Ridolfo Ghirlandajo (according to Passavant by Timoteo della Vite), Portrait of a boy, erroneously called a portrait of Raphael; 43. Fr. Francia (?), Madonna; 45. After Raphael, St. Catharine; 48. Perugino, St. Sebastian; 49, 57. Pinturicchio, Cabinet pictures of the kind which used to be in vogue at Florence for the decoration of wedding cabinets, etc.; *54. Lorenzo di Credi (?), Holy Family, a work of the highest rank; *56. Leonardo, Leda and the swan, an excellent copy of the celebrated picture; 61. Fr. Francia (?), St. Antony; *65. Sch. of Leonardo, Madonna; 67. Ortolano, Adoration of the Child; *69. Pollajuolo, Holy Family.

II. Room. 4. Portrait, copy from Perugino; 16. Garofalo, Madonna with St. Joseph and St. Michael; 7. Fr. Francia, Madonna with two saints; *9. Garofalo, Christ mourned over by his friends; *18. Raphael, Portrait of Julius II., an admirable copy; *21. Raphael (?), Portrait of a cardinal; *24. Raphael, Madonna with the young St. John, St. Joseph and St. Elizabeth (Mad. col divino amore, original at Naples); *26. Raphael (?), Portrait of Cæsar Borgia (?); 30. (?) Portrait of a woman; 35. Andrea del Sarto, Madonna; *38. Raphael, Entombment (1507), his last work before going to Rome, ordered by Atalanta Baglioni for her chapel in S. Francesco de' Conventuali at Perugia (p. 53), afterwards purchased by Paul V.; 39. Raphael, Madonna di Casa d'Alba, an old copy; 40. Fra Bartolommeo, Holy Family; 43. Fr. Francia, Madonna; *44. Sodoma, Madonna; *51. Fr. Francia, St. Stephen; 59. Mazzolino, Adoration of the Magi; *65. Portrait of the so-called Fornarina, a good copy of the original of Raphael in the Pal. Barberini (p. 169), perhaps by Sassoferato; 69. After Raphael, John in the wilderness.

III. Room. 1. Andrea Solario, Christ bearing the Cross; *2. Parmegianino, Portrait; 5. Aless. Allori, Christ risen; *11. Dosso Dossi, The Sorceress Circe (?); 13. Solario (?), Mater Dolorosa; 14. Sofonisbe Anguisciola, Portrait of a woman; 15. Scarsellino, Madonna; 19. Angelo Bronzino, Cleopatra; 22. Sch. of Raphael, Holy Family; 24. Andrea del Sarto, Madonna with angels; *28. Madonna with the Child and St. John, by the same; 35. And. del Sarto (?), Venus with two Cupids; 37. Portrait, unknown; *40. Correggio, Danae, one of his finest easel-pieces; 42. Bronzino (?), Portrait of Cosmo de' Medici; 46. Mary Magdalene, after Correggio's original

at Dresden; 47. Pomaranzio, Holy Family; *48. Sebast. del Piombo, Scourging of Christ (the same piece is in S. Pietro in Montorio as a fresco, p. 324); 49. And. del Sarto, Mary Magdalene.

IV. Room. 1. Ann. Caracci, Entombment; *2. Domenichino, Cumæan Sibyl; 4. Lod. Caracci, Head; 10. Cav. d'Arpino, Rape of Europa; 14. Sch. of the Caracci, Entombment; *15. Guido Cagnacci, Sibyl; 18. Cigoli, St. Francis; *19. Guido Reni, St. Joseph; 29. Ann. Caracci, St. Dominicus; 33. Luca Giordano, Martyrdom of St. Ignatius; 36. Carlo Dolce, Madonna; 37. Mater Dolorosa, by the same; 38, 41. Furino, Annunciation; 39. Ribera, Neptune; 40. St. Jerome, by the same; 42. Carlo Dolce, Head of Christ; 43. Sassoferrato, Madonna. 108 Holy Family Scipione Cortona

V. Room. *11, 12, 13, 14. Franc. Albani, the Four Seasons, landscapes with mythological accessories; *15. Domenichino, Diana and her Nymphs practising with their bows; 21. Francesco Mola, Liberation of Peter; 22. Psyche borne aloft by Cupids, copy from a picture in the Farnesina; 25. Fed. Zuccaro, Christ bewailed by angels; 26. Caravaggio, Madonna with St. Anna and the Child Jesus; 27. Varotari (il Padovano), Venus; 28. Cav. d'Arpino, Battle; 29. Sch. of Poussin, Landscape.

VI. Room. 1. Guercino, Mater Dolorosa; 2. Female half-figure, by the same; *3. Andrea Sacchi, Portrait of Orazio Giustiniani; 5. Guercino, Return of the Prodigal; 7. Pietro da Cortona, Portrait of Gius. Ghislieri; 10. **Ribera*, St. Stanislaus with the Child Jesus; 12. Valentin, Joseph interpreting the dreams in prison; *13. Titian, Three periods of life, a copy by Sassoferrato (original in London); 16, 17. Franc. Grimaldi, Landscapes; 18. Sassoferrato, Madonna; 22. Baroccio, Flight of Æneas from Troy; 24, 25. Landscapes in the style of Poussin.

VII. Room. The lower part of the wall is chiefly adorned with mirrors, on which Cupids (by Croferri) and wreaths of flowers (by Mario de' Fiori) are painted. Above, in small niches, are 16 ancient portrait-busts, some of them freely restored. In the centre is a table of irregular mosaic composed of stones of every variety, some of them extremely rare.

VIII. Room, containing a number of small objects of art and curiosities. Entrance-wall: 86. Brill (?), Orpheus with the animals in a landscape; *80. Female head, a drawing of the Sch. of Leonardo. By the window-wall and the wall of the egress are twelve small antique bronzes. 38. Franc. Viola, Landscape. Wall opposite the window 86. Marcello Provenzani, Mater Dolorosa; 4. Giulio Clodio, Madonna; 91. Vassari, The Graces; *93. View of the Villa Borghese in the 17th cent. From the door of egress the visitor looking straight on obtains a view of the banks of the Tiber beyond the fountain below. — To the left a passage adorned with landscape-frescoes leads to the —

From the Piazza Borghese to the Via della Scrofa, we transverse street mentioned at p. 188 in an E. direction to S. Angelo (10 min.). The street, which is separated ver by a single row of houses only, frequently changes We first cross the PIAZZA NICOSIA (Pl. I, 13), where, in o the left, is the recently erected Pal. Galizin (Pl. I, p. 278). Farther on, in the plan of the Pal. Giraud near mall church of S. Lucia (Pl. 11), mentioned as early nt. In the VIA DI MONTE BRIANZO there are no build- of note. The side-streets diverging from it, however, al interesting Renaissance palaces. Thus in the Via he Albergo dell' Orso; in the Via del Soldato, the ste (Pl. I, 13, 5), built by B. Ammanati; opposite 13, 6) the Pal. Attemps (p. 191); on the house Via o No. 7, is a frieze with paintings from the myth of Caravaggio, much damaged. — A few paces distant is the Pal. Lancelotti (Pl. I, 13, 1), erected under Franc. da Volterra, and completed by C. Maderna. designed by Domenichino. The court contains an- d reliefs. te apartments of Prince Lancelotti, accessible by special stands the celebrated statue of the *Discus-Thrower, found on the Esquiline in 1761, and formerly in the Pal. Massimi (p. 202). It is a copy of the bronze statue by Myron, and is one of the most interesting antiquities in Rome, being almost perfect, and far better executed than the inaccurate restored replica in the Vatican (p. 313).

We now follow the VIA DI TORDINONE, or Tor di Nona, so named from the prison-tower once situated here. To the left the Vicolo de' Marchegiani diverges to the church of S. Salvatore in Lauro, erected by Ursini in 1450, and remodelled by Pius IX. in 1862, with an adjacent monastery court. At the end of the Via Tordinone, on the right, is the Teatro Apollo (p. 111), restored by Valadier in 1830.

The street terminates in the PIAZZA DI PONTE S. ANGELO, whence three others diverge. The first, the Via in Panico, leads with its prolongations to the Piazza Navona (p. 199); the Via del Banco di S. Spirito in the centre to the Piazza Farnese (p. 204); and the Via Paola to the new Chain-bridge and to the Via Giulia (p. 206) which skirts the bank of the Tiber. This was formerly the public place of execution, which has been removed to the neighbourhood of the Ponte Rotto. — By the Ponte S. Angelo to the Church of St. Peter and the Vatican, see p. 276.

If we follow the Via della Scrofa (p. 188), passing the Pal. Galizin on the right, the fourth transverse street on the right (at the left corner, Via della Scrofa 70, is the palace of the general-vicar, where permessi for the catacombs are obtained, 11-12 a. m.) leads us to the PIAZZA DI S. AGOSTINO.

**S. Agostino* (Pl. I, 13), erected by Baccio Pintelli in 1483 by order of Card. d'Estouteville, the protector of the Augustinians, on the site of an old oratorium, was the first Roman church with a dome. The façade and the spacious flight of steps are said to have been constructed of stones from the Colosseum. The interior, in the form of a Latin cross, was restored in 1750, and again in 1860, when it was adorned with frescoes by Gagliardi.

INTERIOR. On the entrance-wall a **Madonna and Child*, in marble, by Jacopo Tatti, surnamed Jac. Sansovino after his master Andrea Sansovino, surrounded by numerous votive offerings. In the 1ST CHAPEL on the right, St. Catharine by Venusti; in the 2ND, Nucci's free copy of the lost Madonna della Rosa of Raphael; in the 4TH, **Christ delivering the keys to Peter*, a group by Cotignola. By the 5TH CHAPEL is the monument (the second to the left) of the learned Onofrio Panvinio (d. 1568). Adjoining the RIGHT TRANSEPT contains the chapel of St. Augustine with an altar-piece by Guercino: St. Augustine between John the Baptist and Paul the Hermit. The HIGH-ALTAR was decorated by Bernini; the image of the Madonna is said to have been painted by St. Luke, and brought from the church of Sophia at Constantinople. In the chapel on the left of this are preserved the remains of St. Monica, mother of Augustine; altar-piece by Gottardi.

The 2nd Chapel in the LEFT AISLE contains a *group in marble (St. Anna, Mary, and Jesus) by Andrea Sansovino (1512). In the 4th, St. Apollonia, altar-piece by Muziano. In the NAVE, on the 3rd pillar to the left, **Raphael's* Prophet Isaiah, holding a scroll with the words from Is. xxvi, 2, painted in 1512, but unfortunately retouched by Dan. da Volterra, and now much injured. In the execution of this work the great master is said to have been influenced by that of M. Angelo in the Sistine Chapel.

The neighbouring monastery, at present occupied by the Minister of the Marine, contains the Biblioteca Angelica (entrance on the right of the church), consisting of 150,000 vols. and 2945 MSS., of which complete catalogues have been formed. Admission daily, Thursdays and holidays excepted, 8-2 (closed in October).

Proceeding from the Piazza S. Agostino straight through the archway, we reach the Piazza S. Apollinare, cross the Piazza Tor Sanguigna, and pass through the narrow Via de' Coronari to the Via in Panico and the Ponte S. Angelo (8 min.). This is the shortest way from the Piazza Colonna to the Vatican.

In the PIAZZA S. APOLLINARE (Pl. I, 13) are situated the Seminario Romano, a kind of grammar-school, and S. Apollinare, an old church, rebuilt in 1552 and 1750, and owing its present form to Fuga. To the left, over the altar in the inner vestibule, is a Madonna by Perugino (?). — Opposite the church is the Pal. Attemps, of the 16th cent., completed by the elder Lunghi, possessing a handsome double court with arcades, the lateral colonnades of which are built up, and containing a few ancient statues.

From the Piazza S. Apollinare the Via Agonale leads to the S. to the Piazza Navona (p. 199); and from Tor Sanguigna, S. Maria dell' Anima (p. 199) and della Pace (p. 200) are reached to the left.

In the direction of the Ponte S. Angelo the Pal. Lancelotti (p. 192) lies on the right (3 min.); a little farther on is the side-entrance to S. Salvatore in Lauro (p. 193).

The Via della Serofa leads to the small, but busy PIAZZA DI S. LUIGI DE' FRANCESI, to the right in which rises S. Luigi de' Francesi (Pl. II, 13), the national church of the French, consecrated in 1589, having been built on the site of several earlier churches. Façade by Giac. della Porta. It is one of the best buildings of its period, and the interior also is judiciously decorated. Some of the pictures are badly lighted.

RIGHT AISLE. 1st Chapel: St. John, altar-piece by G. B. Naldini. On the opposite pillar is a monument to French soldiers who fell at the siege of Rome in 1849. 2nd Chapel: *Frescoes from the life of St. Cecilia, one of the most admirable works of Domenichino; on the right the saint distributes clothing to the poor; in the lunette above, she and her betrothed are crowned by an angel; on the left the saint suffers martyrdom with the blessing of the Pope; above, she is urged to participate in a heathen sacrifice; on the ceiling, admission of the saint into heaven; altar-piece, a copy of Raphael's St. Cecilia (in Bologna) by Guido Reni. 4th Chapel, of St. Remigius: altar-piece, the Oath of Clovis, by Giac. del Conte; frescoes on the right, Campaign of Clovis, by Girolamo Sicciantone (da Sermoneta); on the left, Baptism of Clovis, by Pellegrino da Bologna. 5th Chapel, del Crocifisso: on the left the monument of the painter Guérin, on the right that of Agincourt (d. 1814), the writer on art. — Over the high-altar: *Assumption of Mary, by Franc. Bassano.

Opposite the church is the Palazzo Patrizi (Pl. II, 13), where permission to visit the Villa Patrizi (p. 174) is obtained, adjoining which, at the end of the piazza, is the Pal. Madama, with its principal façade towards the piazza of that name (p. 198).

Opposite the Pal. Madama is situated the Palazzo Giustiniani (Pl. II, 13), erected by Giov. Fontana. It formerly contained valuable collections, of which a few statues and reliefs in the court and on the ground-floor alone remain.

We next reach the small PIAZZA S. EUSTACHIO, in which, to the right, opposite the Pal. Maccarini designed by Giul. Romano, is the back of the —

Università della Sapienza (Pl. II, 13, 25; entrance Via della Sapienza 71), founded in 1303 by Boniface VIII., and after a rapid decline re-established by Eugene IV. It attained its greatest prosperity under Leo X., and under Leo XII. and Gregory XVI. possessed five faculties, but there are now four only (law, medicine, physical science, and philology). It contains several natural history collections and the Biblioteca Alessandrina, a library of 90,000 vols., which is open daily (p. 109). The present building was designed by Giac. della Porta. The church (S. Ivo), with its grotesque spiral tower, was designed by Borromini in the form of a bee, in honour of Urban VIII., in whose armorial bearings that insect figures.

Turning to the left, or following one of the two preceding cross-anes, we reach the PIAZZA DELLA ROTONDA (Pl. II, 16). Above the large Fountain erected by Lunghi under Gregory XIII., was placed the upper end of a broken obelisk by order of Clement XI. This piazza generally presents a busy scene, and affords the stranger opportunities of observing the characteristics of the peasantry.

On the S. side of the piazza is situated the church of S. Maria Rotonda, or the Pantheon, the only ancient edifice at Rome which is still in perfect preservation as regards the walls and the vaulting. The original statues and architectural decorations have long since been replaced by modern and inferior works, but the huge circular structure with its vast colonnade still presents a strikingly imposing appearance. The walls, constructed of admirable brickwork, 20 ft. in thickness, were originally covered with marble and stucco. The ground in the environs has gradually been so much raised that the pavement of the temple, to which five steps formerly ascended, now lies below the level of the piazza. Excavations recently made in front of the edifice, which led to the discovery of the two fine marble reliefs now in the vestibule, have been filled up again as they interfered with the street traffic.

The Portico (36 yds. wide, 14 yds. deep) is borne by 16 Corinthian columns of granite, 13 ft. in circumference, and the ft. in height; the tympanum formerly contained reliefs, and the roof was embellished by statues. Eight of the columns are in front; the others form three colonnades, originally vaulted over, terminating in niches, in which stood the colossal statues of Augustus and his son-in-law M. Agrippa. The latter, according to the inscription on the frieze (M. Agrippa L. F. Cos. tertium fecit), caused the edifice to be erected B.C. 27. — The central colonnade leads to the ENTRANCE, with its ancient door strongly secured by bronze plates, in order to diminish the weight of which the upper portion is replaced by a railing.

The INTERIOR, which is lighted by a single aperture in the centre of the dome, produces so beautiful an effect that it was currently believed at an early period that the temple derived its name of Pantheon, which was applied to it as early as A. D. 59, from its resemblance to the vault of heaven. The height and diameter of the dome are equal, being each 140 ft. The surface of the walls is broken by seven large niches, in which stood the statues of the gods, among which those of Mars, Venus, and Cæsar are ascertained to have been placed. The architrave is borne by fluted columns of giallo antico or pavonazzetto in couples, the shafts being 26 ft. in height. Above the latter, and corresponding with the niches, formerly rose a series of round arches, borne by Caryatides, but they appear to have been removed on the occasion of a very early restoration of the edifice. The coffered ceiling of the vault, which consists of concrete, was decorated with gold-leaf, and the whole roof was covered with gilded bronze tiles, which the Emp. Constantine II. caused to be removed to Constantinople in 655. Under Gregory III. these tiles were replaced by lead. The building has frequently been restored, as, for example, by Domitian, Trajan, Septimius Severus, and Caracalla. The names of the last two are recorded by an inscription on the architrave of the portico.

In 609 the Pantheon was consecrated by Pope Boniface IV. as a Christian church, under the name of S. Maria ad Martyres (comp. p. 333), and in commemoration of the event the festival of All Saints was instituted. It was originally celebrated on 13th May, but afterwards on 1st Nov. A palace, a cathedral-chapter, and a cardinal's title were afterwards attached to the church, which is generally known as S. Maria Rotonda, or La Rotonda. Under Urban VIII. (Barberini) the two campanili were erected by Bernini, the 'asses' ears' of the architect as they have been derisively named. The same pope removed from the portico the brazen tubes on which the roof rested, and caused them to be converted into columns for the defence of the high-altar of St. Peter's, and cannons for the complaint of the Castle of S. Angelo. This Vandalism gave rise to the 'rini'. Pius IX. caused the church to be judiciously restored. To the right of the high-altar is the burial vault of King Victor Emanuel (d. Jan. 9, 1878). In the first Chapel to the left of the high-stands the simple monument of Card. Consalvi (buried in S. Marcello, p. 188) by Thorvaldsen. To the left of the 3rd altar is Raphael's Tomb (b. 6th Apr., 1483; d. 6th Apr., 1520). On the wall is the graceful epigram composed by Card.

Rerum magna parens, et mortale mori.*
Rerum magna parens, et mortale mori.

The Italian translation runs thus: — ‘Questi è quel Raffaele, cui viso vinto
Esser temea Natura, e morio estinto’.

A lengthy inscription beside it announces that Raphael's remains were placed in a new sarcophagus in 1893. The statue of the Madonna on the altar, by Lorenzetto, was executed in accordance with Raphael's last will. The Pantheon is also the last resting-place of Ann. Caracci, Tadd. Zuccheri, Bald. Peruzzi, Perino del Vaga, Giov. da Udine, and other celebrated artists.

A visit to the interior by moonlight should on no account be omitted, but the sacristan must be informed in good time. Visitors are then admitted by the door at the back of the sacristy, Via della Palombella 10. To ascend the dome a special permesso must be obtained.

At the back of the Pantheon are situated the ruins of the Theatre of Agrippa, the proximity of which to the Pantheon once gave rise to the absurd conjecture that it originally belonged to the baths, and was afterwards converted into a temple.

From the Piazza of the Pantheon we may proceed towards the E. through the Via de' Pastini to the Piazza di Pietra (p. 149); or we may turn at once to the left, towards the N., cross the Piazza Capranica, with the small theatre of that name, and reach Monte Citorio (p. 148), or, lastly, we may follow the Via del Seminario, which also runs towards the E., to S. Ignazio (p. 149).

Leaving the Pantheon, we now proceed towards the S. E., through the Via della Minerva to the PIAZZA DELLA MINERVA (Pl. II, 16), where the church of S. Maria sopra Minerva lies on the left, and the Hôtel de la Minerve opposite to us. In the centre of the piazza stands an elephant in marble, on the back of which a small obelisk was placed by Bernini in 1667, being one of those, which are said once to have risen in front of a temple of Isis formerly situated here. The other obelisk is in the Piazza della Rotonda (p. 195).

S. Maria sopra Minerva, erected on the ruins of a temple of Minerva founded by Domitian, the only Gothic church at Rome, was probably begun about 1285 by the builders of S. Maria Novella at Florence. It was restored in 1848-55, and contains several valuable works of art.

150). From the Plo di Marmo leads to the Piazza del Coll. Romano (p. 150). From the Plo di Marmo the Via del Gesù diverges to the right, leading in 3 M. to the Piazza del Gesù (p. 160).

From the Piazza S. Luigi de' Francesi (p. 191) the short street to the right on leaving the church leads to the Piazza Madama, where to the left rises the façade of the Palazzo Madama (Pl. II, 13), so called from Margaret of Parma, daughter of Charles V., by whom it was once occupied. Previously and subsequently it belonged to the Medicis, afterwards grand-dukes of Tuscany, by whose orders Marocelli altered it to its present form in 1642. The Italian Senate now meets in this palace. One entrance is from the Piazza

S. Luigi, the other leads hence to the From the Piazza Madama. — A short side-street *Piazza Navona (Pl. II, 13), the largest in Rome after that of St. Peter, where as its form still indicates, the Circus, or Stadium of Domitian, was formerly situated. The name is derived from the agones, corrupted to Navone, Navona), or contests which took place here. The piazza has recently been officially named Circo Agonale.

It is embellished with three Fountains. That on the N. side, placed here in 1878, represents Neptune in conflict with a sea-monster (polycephalus); round the central group are Nereids and sea-horses. Not far from it, in the centre of a large ancient basin of Pentelic marble, rises the large fountain erected by Bernini under Innocent X. at the corners of the lofty mass of rock, the different parts of which represent the four quarters of the globe, are placed the gods of the four largest rivers, the Danube, Ganges, Nile, and Rio della Platte, executed by pupils of Bernini. The whole is surmounted by an obelisk, which was formerly in the Circus of Maxentius, and was originally erected in honour of Domitian. — The third fountain, at the S. end of the piazza, is adorned with masks, Tritons, and the statue of a Moor by Bernini.

The piazza was used from 1447 to 1871 as a vegetable market, which after the Italian occupation was transferred to the Campo de' Fiori (p. 204). The singular custom formerly prevailed of laying this piazza under water for the amusement of the people every August, by preventing the escape of the water from the fountains.

On the W. side of the Piazza Navona stands the church of S. Agnese, the interior of which, in the form of a Greek cross, and the campanili, are by C. Rinaldi. The façade is by Borromini. The Romans used to maintain that the Nile on the great fountain veiled his head in order to avoid being distressed by the tasteless appearance of the church-tower.

Over the principal door is the monument of Innocent X. by Maini; to the left, in the chapel of the transept, is a statue of St. Sebastian, adapted from an ancient statue by Maini. Beneath the dome are eight columns of 'cognatello'. The old church was situated in the side-vaults of the Circus where the saint suffered martyrdom. Two chapels with ancient vaulting still remain.

To the left of the church is the Palazzo Pamfili (Pl. I, 13, 18), also erected by Rinaldi, now the property of Prince Doria. Opposite to it is the dilapidated national church of the Spaniards, S. Giacomo degli Spagnuoli (Pl. II, 13, 23), erected in 1450. The entrance is in the Via della Sapienza.

The Via di S. Agnese, on the right side of the church, leads to the Via dell' Anima on the right, where on the left side is situated *S. Maria dell' Anima (Pl. II, 13; open till 8½ a. m., on holidays till noon; when closed, visitors go round the church by the Vicolo della Pace on the right, and ring at the door of the German Hospice, opposite S. Maria della Pace). The name is derived from a small marble-group in the tympanum of the portal: a Madonna invoked by two souls in purgatory. This is the German national church, connected with the Hospice, and was completed in 1514. The unsuitable façade is by Giuliano da Sangallo; and Bramante is said to have designed part of the interior.

Interior (lately restored). The central window of the entrance-wall formerly contained stained glass by William of Marseilles, now modern. The frescoes of saints on the ceiling are by L. Seitz. — RIGHT AISLE. 1st Chapel: *St. Benno receiving from a fisherman the keys of the cathedral at Meissen (Saxony), which had been recovered from the stomach of a fish, altar-piece by Carlo Saraceni. 2nd Chapel: Holy Family, altar-piece by Gimignani; left, monument and bust of Card. Slusius. 4th Chapel: altered copy of Michael Angelo's Pieta in St. Peter's, by Nanni di Baccio Bigio. — LEFT AISLE. 1st Chapel: *Martyrdom of St. Lambert, C. Saraceni. 3rd Chapel: frescoes from the life of St. Barbara, Mich. Coxcie. 4th Chapel: altar-piece (Entombment) and frescoes by Salviati.

CHOIR. Over the high-altar, *Holy Family with saints, by G. Romano, damaged by inundations; on the right, *monument of Hadrian IV. of Utrecht (preceptor of Charles V., d. 1523), with figures of justice, prudence, strength, and temperance, designed by Baldassare Peruzzi, executed by Michelangiolo Sanese and Niccolò Tribolo; opposite to it, that of a Duke of Cleve-Jülich-Berg (d. 1575) by Egidius of Rivière and Nicolaus of Arras. A relief in the antechamber of the sacristy (at the end of the N. aisle) represents the investiture of this prince by Gregory XIII. In the church, at the entrance to the sacristy, is the tomb of the learned Lucas Holstein of Hamburg, librarian of the Vatican (d. 1661).

The German Hospice connected with the church was under Austrian management down to 1863. Opposite the hospital rises the church of — 1879 *S. Maria della Pace (Pl. II, I, 13, 3), erected by Sixtus IV. (1484) and Innocent VIII., restored by Alexander VII., and provided by Pietro da Cortona with a façade and semicircular portico. The church consists of a nave only, and terminates in an octagon with a dome.

Interior. Over the 1st CHAPEL on the right are **Raphael's* Sibyls: to the left the Sibyl of Cumæ; on the arch above, the Persian; then the Phrygian, and the aged Sibyl of Tibur, receiving from angels and recording revelations regarding the Saviour. They were painted in 1514 by order of Agostino Chigi who erected the chapel, and skilfully freed from 'restorations' by Palmaroli in 1816 (best light, 10-11 a.m.). 'The disposition of the figures, the uniform and admirable symmetry, and the conception of the forms and characters are such as to entitle this work to be ranked with the very greatest of Raphael's compositions; and it is probably the best calculated among all his frescoes to attract the admiration of the spectator' (Burckhardt). In the lunette above the Sibyls are the Prophets by Timoteo della Vite, a countryman and contemporary of Raphael: on the right Jonah and Joshua, on the left Daniel and David. — At the sides of the 1st Chapel on the left are *monuments of the Ponzetti family, of 1505 and 1509 (which should be compared with the heavy decorations of the 2nd chapel on the right, executed half-a-century later). *Altar-piece in fresco by Bald. Peruzzi: Madonna between St. Brigitta and St. Catharine, in front the donor Card. Ponzetti kneeling (1516). The vaulting above contains scenes from the Old and New Testament, in three rows, also by Peruzzi. — To the left, under the DOME, is the entrance to the sacristy and art (see below). Over the first altar on the left, Adoration of the Shepherds, Sermoneta; above it, the Death of Mary, by Morandi. The second with handsome marble-work, partially gilded, is of 1490. The high-altar is adorned with vaulting are pleasing an ancient and highly revered Madonna; on the right, Baptism of Christ, by Albani. (Over the adjacent altar to the temple, by Bald. Peruzzi (retouched). Over the niche, Mary's first visit to the Temple, by Bald. Peruzzi (retouched). It is the custom for newly-married couples to attend their first mass in this church.

The "Court of the MONASTERY, with arcades constructed by Bramante by order of Card. Raffaele in 1504, merits a visit; by the right wall, the tomb of Bishop Boecaccio (d. 1437). Entrance through the church, or by Via Arco della Pace 5. From the portal of the church the Via della Pace and the Via in Parione lead straight to the busy Via del Governo Vecchio (p. 202).

Leaving the Piazza del Gesù (p. 160). and following the VIA DE' CESARINI (Pl. I, 16) towards the W. in a straight direction, we come (right) to the Piazza delle Stimate, with the church of that name, and the Pal. Strozzi with a small piazza called after it (the streets to the right lead hence to the Piazza della Minerva and the Pantheon, pp. 197, 195). We next pass (left) the Teatro Argentina and follow the VIA DEL SUDARIO (Pl. II, 13), the continuation of the Via de' Cesarini, in the direction of the church of S. Andrea della Valle, which is already visible.

The corner-house to the left (No. 13) before the church is reached is the Palazzo Vidoni, formerly Caffarelli and Stoppani, originally built from designs by Raphael. On the staircase are a few ancient statues (L. Verus, Minerva, Diana). In one of the rooms is the celebrated Calendarium Praenestinum of Verrius Flaccus, being five months of a Roman calendar found by Card. Stoppani at Palestrina. This palace was once occupied by Charles V. (admission not easily obtained). — On the side of the palace towards the church is the so-called Abbate Luigi, a mutilated ancient statue (see p. 159).

* S. Andrea della Valle (Pl. II, 13), begun by P. Olivieri in 1591 on the site of several earlier churches, was completed by C. Maderna. The façade was designed by Rinaldi. The interior is well proportioned, but part of it has unfortunately been whitewashed. On the right the 2nd Chapel (STROZZI) contains copies in bronze of the Pietà (in St. Peter's) and the Rachel and Leah (in S. Pietro in Vinc.) of Michael Angelo, by whom this chapel itself was perhaps designed. — On the left the 1st Chapel (BARBERINI) is adorned with several marble statues of the school of Bernini: St. Martha by Mocchi, John the Baptist by Pietro Bernini, Mary Magdalene by Stati da Bracciano, and St. John by Buonvicino. — At the end of the NAVE are the monuments of the two popes of the Piccolomini family, brought here from the old church of St. Peter; on the left that of Pius II. (d. 1464), by Nic. della Guardia and Pietro Paolo da Todi; on the right that of Pius III. (d. 1503), executed somewhat later. — In the DOME: Glory of Paradise, by Lanfranco; below, the "Evangelists by Domenichino, one of his finest works. By the same master, "paintings on the vaulting of the apse. In front, in the girding-arch: John the Baptist, St. John, and St. Andrew pointing to Christ ("this is the Lamb", etc.); in the vaulting itself, on the left, the Scourging of St. Andrew; then the Vocation of Peter and Andrew by Christ; on the right, St. Andrew beholds and reveres the cross to which he is about to be affixed; below are six female figures representing the virtues. The large lower frescoes by Calabrese (martyrdom of the saint) are of no great value.

To the N.W. of this point, on the right, No. 17 Via de' Massimi, is the —

Palazzo Massimi alle Colonne (Pl. II, 13, 11), a fine structure by Baldassare Peruzzi, who however died in 1536 before its completion. The façade is constructed in a curve, following the direction of the street. The glimpse obtained of the double court is strikingly picturesque. On the second floor is the Chapel of S. Filippo Neri (open on March 16th), who is said to have here resuscitated a child of the family.

In 1467, within the buildings connected with this palace, the Germans Pannartz and Schweinheim, who during the two previous years had found an asylum in the monastery of Subiaco, established the first printing-office in Rome, from which they issued Cicero's epistles and other works, furnished with the name of the printers and the words 'In aedibus Petri de Maximis'. — The Massimi family claims descent from the ancient Fabii Maximi, and their armorial bearings have the motto 'Cunctando restituit'.

Continuing to follow the Via dei Massimi (whence the Via de' Baullari diverges to the left to the Pal. Farnese, which is visible from this point, p. 204), and crossing the small Piazza S. Pantaleo, with the small church of that name on the right, we observe opposite to us the spacious —

Palazzo Braschi (Pl. II, 13, 17), erected by Morelli at the end of last century, and now occupied by the offices of the Minister of the Interior. It contains a fine *marble staircase and a few ancient statues. The back of the building looks towards the Piazza Navona (p. 199).

Passing the palace, we reach the PIAZZA DEL PASQUINO (Pl. II, 13), which derives its name from an ancient group of statuary placed at the obtuse angle of the Pal. Braschi. This was an admirable, but now sadly mutilated work of a good period of art, and is said to have been called Pasquino as early as the end of the 15th cent. after a tailor of that name who lived in the vicinity and was notorious for his lampooning propensities. It was once the custom to affix satires and ebullitions of malice to this statue, the answers to which used to be attached to the Marforio (p. 159, 218), and to refer them to the slanderous tailor, whose name is perpetuated in the word 'pasquinade'. Compositions of this kind have been much in vogue at Rome ever since that period, sometimes vying with the best satires of antiquity. The group represents Menelaus with the body of Patroclus, at the moment when he looks around for help in the midst of the tumult of battle. Duplicates of the group are in the Loggia de' Lanzi and the Palazzo Pitti at Florence, and there are fragments in the Vatican (p. 311).

We continue to follow the VIA DEL GOVERNO VECCHIO, which with its prolongations towards the N.W. and S.E. forms the chief communication between the Piazza di Venezia and the Ponte S. Angelo (comp. p. 161). On the right is the Pal. del Governo

Vecchio (Pl. II, 13, 20), which was long the seat of the tribunals of justice and police. No. 124, opposite, is an elegant little house in Bramante's style (1500). — We now turn to the left, and soon reach, in the Piazza of that name, the —

Chiesa Nuova (Pl. II, 10), or S. Maria in Vallicella, erected by S. Filippo Neri for the order of Oratorians founded by him, and completed in 1605. Architecture by Giov. Matteo da Città di Castello, interior by Martino Lunghi, façade by Rughesi.

The Interior, which is dark and unfavourable for pictures, is richly decorated. The admirable stucco-work is by Cos. Faniello, and Ercole Ferrata. The ceiling of the NAVE, the dome, and the tribune are painted by Pietro da Cortona. — On the right, 1st Chapel, Crucifixion, Scip. di Gaetano; 3rd Chapel, dell'Ascensione, altar-piece by Muziano. — On the left, 2nd Chapel, Adoration of the Magi, Ces. Nebbia; 3rd Chapel, Nativity, Durante Alberti; 4th Chapel, Visit of Elizabeth, Baroccio. — LEFT TRANSEPT: Presentation in the Temple, Baroccio; Peter and Paul, statues in marble, by Valsoldo. Here also, adjoining the tribune, is the small and sumptuous chapel of S. Filippo Neri, beneath the altar of which his remains repose. Above is the portrait of the saint in mosaic, after the original of Guido Reni preserved in the adjoining monastery. — Over the HIGH ALTAR, with its four columns of porta santa, a Madonna by Rubens; on the right *SS. Gregory, Maurus, and Papias, on the left *SS. Nereus and Achilleus, also by Rubens, who painted these pictures during his second stay in Rome in 1606 for this church, which was then the most fashionable in the city. — RIGHT TRANSEPT. On the right, Coronation of Mary, Cav. d' Arpino; SS. John the Baptist and John the Evangelist, statues in marble by Flaminio Vacca.

The SACRISTY (entered from the left transept) was constructed by Marrucelli. On the vaulting: Angel with instruments of torture, by Pietro da Cortona. Colossal statue of the saint by Algardi.

On 26th May, the festival of the saint, and after Ave Maria every Sunday from 1st Nov. to Palm Sunday, concerts of sacred music, to which men only are admitted, are given in the adjoining Oratorium, which derives its name from the oratories fitted up by S. Filippo Neri. The saint was fond of music and advocated a cheerful form of divine service.

The adjoining Monastery, erected by Borromini, is of irregular shape, but is remarkable for the massiveness of its construction. It contains a room once occupied by the saint, with various relics. The Corte di Appello, the Tribunale Civile e Correzionale, and the Tribunale di Commercio have recently been established in this building. — The valuable Library founded by S. Filippo Neri, and gradually enriched by rare MSS., is open to the public on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, 9-1 o'clock.

From the Piazza della Chiesa Nuova we may either return to the Via del Governo Vecchio and Ponte S. Angelo (p. 276), or, turning to the left opposite the façade of the church, we may follow the Via del Pellegrino, at the E. end of which, on the left, is the Cancellaria (see below).

The VIA DE' BAULLARI, mentioned at p. 202, leads to several interesting palaces in the best style of the Renaissance. Immediately on the right, a little back from the street, is the small, but elegant **Palazzetto Farnese*, of which Baldassare Peruzzi is said to have been the architect.

The short streets diverging to the right lead to the Piazza and *Palazzo della Cancelleria (Pl. II, 13). The palace, designed by Bramante in strict accordance with the rules of the ancient orders of architecture, is one of the finest structures in Rome and of majestic simplicity in its proportions. It contains within its precincts the church of S. Lorenzo, originally erected near the theatre of Pompey. The elegant FAÇADE (with portal afterwards added by Dom. Fontana) is constructed of blocks of travertine from the Colosseum. The *Court, in two stories, is surrounded by arcades. The columns are ancient; the graceful capitals are decorated with roses, a flower which belonged to the armorial bearings of the founder Card. Riario. In this palace, in 1848, Pius IX. convoked a parliament to deliberate on the reforms to be undertaken in the States of the Church. On 15th Nov. of that year the minister Count Rossi was assassinated on the first landing of the staircase. This is the only palace in the interior of the city which the Italian government still permits to be occupied by the ecclesiastical authorities.

To the right of the palace (with an entrance to the right from the court) is situated the church of S. Lorenzo in Damaso, which has the above-mentioned façade in common with the palace. It was also designed by Bramante (originally erected by Damasus I.), and is bounded by arcades on three sides. The architecture is the chief object of interest. The pictures were destroyed during the revolution of last century. At the end of the right aisle is the tomb of the ill-fated Count Rossi (see above), with a bust by Tenerani.

The Piazza della Cancelleria is adjoined by the PIAZZA CAMPO DI FIORI (Pl. II, 13), an important centre of business, especially since the vegetable market, with its picturesque frequenters, and enlivened by country-people in the morning, was transferred hither from the Piazza Navona. — Theatre of Pompey and Via de' Giubbonari, p. 207.

Adjoining the Campo di Fiori to the S.W. is the PIAZZA FARNESE, adorned with two fountains. Here is situated the —

*Palazzo Farnese (Pl. II, 14), one of the finest palaces at Rome, begun by Card. Alex. Farnese, afterwards Pope Paul III. (1534-45), from designs by Antonio da San Gallo, continued under the direction of Michael Angelo (who designed the beautiful cornicing and the court), and completed by the construction of the loggia at the back, towards the Tiber, by Giacomo della Porta in 1580. The building materials were taken partly from the Colosseum, and partly from the Theatre of Marcellus. This palace was inherited by the kings of Naples, and from 1862 to 1870 was occupied by Francis II. It was purchased in 1874 by the French government, whose embassy to the Italian court is now established here; on the second floor is the 'Ecole de Rome', or French archæological institution, founded in 1875. The triple *colonnade of the entrance was designed by San Gallo, the two lower halls of the court by Michael Angelo, in imitation of the Theatre of Marcellus. The court contains two 24. Guercino, Dido's death; 26. Baciccio, Design of the Gesù; 29. Salvator Rosa, Landscape; 31. Titian, Portrait; 48, 49. Marco Palmezzano, God the Father, and Bea; 60, 70. Salv. Rosa, Landscapes; 67. Borgognone, Cavalry-skirmish; 68. Guido Reni, Abduction of Helen; 69. Card. Paolo Spada; 9. After Titian, Paul Sch., Portrait (1511); 15. Caravaggio, Laughing angel's head; 18. German Sch., Portrait; 26. Ger. Honthorst, Christ in the garden; 30. Caravaggio, St. Cecilia; 31. Maratta, Card. Fabrizius Spada; 44. Andr. del Sarto (?), Madonna; 54. French Sch., Portrait.

Leaving the Piazza Capo di Ferro, and continuing our walk in the same direction, we reach the small PIAZZA DE' PELLEGRINI. On the left is the back of the Pal. Santacroce, now a Monte di Pietà (Pl. II, 14), or money-lending establishment, founded in 1539, and established here in 1604 (some of the numerous pictures pledged here are of great value). On the right is the church of S. Trinità de' Pellegrini, erected in 1614, with a high-altar adorned with a picture of the Trinity, by Guido Reni. The neighbouring hospital is destined for the accommodation of convalescents and pilgrims. It contains 488 beds, and can provide dinner for 944 persons at one time. Italian pilgrims are entertained here at Easter for three days, and foreigners for four. — In the vicinity is the church of S. Maria in Monticelli (Pl. II, 14), which was consecrated by Paschalis II. in 1101. It has been restored several times, so that the campanile and remains of mosaics in the tribune are now the only relics of the period of its foundation.

The VIA DE' PETTINARI (Pl. II, 14) leads from the Piazza de' Pellegrini to the Ponte Sisto. At the end of the street, on the right, is the small church of S. Salvatore in Onda, re-erected in 1684, and on the left the Fontanone di Ponte Sisto, constructed by Giov. Fontana under Paul V. — The Ponte Sisto, see p. 324.

In a straight direction from the fountain, towards the N.W., and near the river, runs the VIA DEL FONTANONE, prolonged by the VIA GIULIA (Pl. II, 14, 10), which was built by Julius II., leading in 12 min. to the Ponte S. Angelo. To the left in the latter street, opposite the garden of the Pal. Farnese, stands the small church of S. Maria della Morte, or dell' Orazione (Pl. II, 11), erected by Fuga about the middle of last century, and belonging to a burial society. Then to the left, the Pal. Falconieri, built by Borromini, which once contained the picture-gallery of Card. Fesch. On the same side, farther on, the Carceri Nuovi, a prison founded by Innocent X.; then No. 66, the Pal. Sacchetti (Pl. II, 10), originally erected by Antonio da San Gallo as his private residence.

At the end of the street, on the left, is S. Giovanni de' Fiorentini (Pl. II, 10), the handsome national church of the Florentines. The building was begun, by the desire of Leo X., from a design by Sansovino, which he preferred to the competing plans of Raphael, Sangallo, Peruzzi, others; and the laborious task of completing the substructions on the bank of the river was executed by Sangallo.

At a later period Michael Angelo, and after his death Giacomo della Porta were engaged in the work, and the façade was finally added by Aless. Galilei in 1725. The church contains nothing worthy of mention except a picture by Salvator Rosa in the chapel of the right transept (SS. Cosmas and Damianus at the stake).

Near the church an iron Chain-Bridge (1 soldo), constructed in 1863, crosses the river to the Longara (p. 320). The Via Paola leads from the church to the Ponte S. Angelo (p. 276).

In the Piazza Campo di Fiori (p. 204), on the side next S. Andrea della Valle, once lay the Theatre of Pompey (Pl. II, 13, 14). In this piazza is the Pal. Righetti (entrance, Piazza del Biscione 95), in the court of which the bronze statue of Hercules (p. 313) and substructions of the theatre were discovered. Numerous fragments of the walls are now incorporated with the modern building. The semicircular bend of the street by S. Maria di Grottapinta (Pl. II, 13, 5) distinctly shows the form of the ancient theatre.

From the Piazza Campo di Fiori the busy VIA DE' GIUBBONARI leads towards the S.E. to the Capitol and the S. quarters of the city. After 2 min. it expands into the Piazza S. Carlo a' Catinari. Here, on the left, is the church of S. Carlo a' Catinari (Pl. II, 14), erected by Rosati in 1612 in honour of S. Carlo Borromeo, in the form of a Greek cross, and covered with a dome.

In the 1st Chapel on the right, Annunciation, by Lanfranco. In the space below the dome are figures of the four cardinal virtues, by Domenichino. In the transept to the right, Death of St. Anna, Andrea Sacchi. Over the high-altar, Card. Borromeo in the procession of the plague at Milan, P. da Cortona; tribune decorated by Lanfranco. The other paintings are of little value.

The Pal. Santacroce (Pl. II, 14, 4), situated opposite, has its principal façade towards the Piazza Branca.

Farther on, the street divides: to the right, the Via del Pianto, see p. 208; to the left, the VIA DE' FALEGNAMI leads to the small PIAZZA TARTARUGA (Pl. II, 17), named after the graceful **Fontana delle Tartarughe* (tortoises), erected by Giac. della Porta in 1585, and embellished with the figures of four youths in bronze, by the Florentine Taddeo Landini. This is the most charming fountain in Rome; the design is attributed to Raphael.

Nr. 10, Piazza Tartaruga, immediately to the right (another entrance, Piazza Costaguti 16), is the Palazzo Costaguti (Pl. II, 17, 20), erected about 1590 by Carlo Lombardi. On the first floor (closed to the public) are ceiling paintings by Franc. Albani, Domenichino, Guercino (Armida with Rinaldo in the dragon-chariot, admirably coloured), by the Cav. d'Arpino, and other masters. One wing of the palace (formerly Boccapaduli) was long the residence of the Poussins, and still contains works by them, but is not now accessible.

Further on, in the Via de' Falegnami, we observe on the left the church of S. Caterina de' Funari (Pl. II, 17), erected in 1564 by Gian della Porta, with a singular-looking tower, situated within the ancient Circus Flaminius. The interior contains a few unimportant pictures by A. Caracci (1st chapel on the right), Nanni, Veretti, Musiano, and Agresti. The adjoining convent of Augustinian nuns contains a school for girls.

The street terminates in the Via Delfini, which to the left leads to the Via Araceli (p. 161), and to the right to the Piazza Campitelli, beyond the next corner. Here, on the right, stands S. Maria in Campitelli (Pl. II, 17), erected by Rinaldo under Alexander VII. for the more worthy reception of a miraculous image of the Virgin, to which the cessation of the plague in 1656 was ascribed. A smaller church of the same name, mentioned in the 13th cent., formerly stood on this site.

The architecture of the interior, with its handsome projecting columns, has an imposing effect. — Beneath the canopy over the High-Altar is placed the miraculous Madonna. In the 2nd Chapel on the right, the Effusion of the Holy Ghost, by Luca Giordano; in the 1st Chapel on the left two monuments resting on lions of rosso antico. In the S. transept the tomb of Cardinal Pacca by Petrini.

Opposite the church is the Pal. Pacca. — Omnibuses to S. Paolo Fuori, see p. 113.

From the S.E. end of the Piazza Campitelli, to the left, the Via Tor de' Specchi leads to the Piazza Araceli (p. 211), at the foot of the Capitol, and to the right the Via Montanara to the Theatre of Marcellus (see p. 209).

From the Piazza S. Carlo a' Catinari (p. 207) the VIA DEL PLANTO (Pl. II, 14, 17) leads to the right to the Piazza Giudea, or S. Maria del Piavato, called after a small church (which once bore a Hebrew inscription on the portal lamenting the obduracy of the Jews). Adjoining this piazza on the right is the Piazza Cenci (Pl. II, 17), where on the left in the corner is situated the Synagogue, and on the right the Palazzo Cenci-Bolognini. In this palace once resided the ill-fated Beatrice Cenci, who was executed for the murder of her father, a man of execrable character. Her portrait, in the Pal.

Barberini (p. 168), is a favourite subject for reproduction with the Roman artists.

The Via del Portico di Ottavia, formerly the Pescheria, or fish-market, which presents a busy scene on Friday mornings, leads from the Piazza Giudea to the Portico of Octavia. Between the Pescheria and the Tiber lies the Ghetto (Pl. II, 17), the quarter allotted by Paul IV. to the Jews, who in ancient and mediæval times occupied a quarter in Trastevere, formerly closed by a gate. It consists of several streets parallel with the river, and connected by narrow lanes. The same pope compelled the Jews to wear yellow head-gear, and pay unusually heavy taxes; and among other oppressive exactions, they had to provide the prizes for the horse-races at the Carnival. The traveller may explore this quarter for the sake of observing the marked oriental type of its occupants, and the characteristic industry with which they seek to counteract the disadvantages of their social position. The Via della Fiumara, the nearest to the river, leads to the Ponte de' Quattro Capi (see p. 328).

The Via del Portico di Ottavia leads in a straight direction to the interesting remains of the Portico of Octavia (Pl. II, 17, 18), which was erected by Augustus on the site of a similar structure of Metellus (B. C. 149), and dedicated to his sister. Under Titus it was destroyed by a conflagration which raged in this quarter of the city, but was restored by Sept. Severus and Caracalla in 203, as the inscription records. This building was in the form of a colonnade enclosing an oblong space, within which stood temples of Jupiter Stator and Juno. Columns from this structure are frequently seen built into other edifices. It was adorned with many admirable works of art which formed part of the Macedonian booty, and it was here that the Medici Venus was found. In 770 the church of S. Angelo in Pescheria was built on the ruins of the colonnade by Stephen III., but, having been frequently restored, it has entirely lost its mediæval character. In pursuance of a bull issued in 1584, the Jews were formerly compelled to hear sermons here on their Sabbath, in which the Old Testament was explained to them in accordance with the doctrines of the church.

Beyond the colonnade the Via del Teatro di Marcello next leads to the Theatre of Marcellus (Pl. II, 17, 5), which was begun by Cæsar, and completed B. C. 13 by Augustus, who named it after his nephew, the son of Octavia. The twelve arches still standing on the external wall of the space for the spectators are now occupied by smiths and other artizans as workshops. The lower story, partly filled up, is in the Doric, the second in the Ionic style, above which, as in the case of the Colosseum, a third probably rose in the Corinthian order. It is said to have accommodated 20,000 spectators. The stage lay towards the Tiber. It has recently been proposed to purge the ruin of all unseemly adjuncts, and to form an open space around it. In the 11th cent. the theatre was used by Pierleone as a fortress. To his descendant (opposite the Ponte Quattro Capi) standing within the theatre. In 1712 the palace was purchased by the Prussian ambassador, and in 1816-23 the historian Niebuhr, when Prussian ambassador, resided here.

The external wall adjoins the small and busy Piazza Montanara, a frequent resort of the peasantry. To the left a street leads to the Piazza Araceli (p. 211), and, to the right, the busy Via Bocca della Verità to the piazza of that name (p. 249). Immediately to the right in the latter street, standing back, is the church of S. Nicola in Carcere, recently restored, containing, on the external wall, and ancient columns which appear to have belonged to Spes and Juno Sospita, (statues of these temples, light 1 1/2 fr.).

seum (see p. 215). The last of the kings, and Republic. It was 800 feet in circumference, and possessed a triple colonnade and three cellæ, Juno and Minerva on war, the temple was A.D. 69, on the occasion of the struggle between Vespasian and Vitellius. This most sacred shrine of ancient Rome was magnificently restored by Domitian, and was preserved down to the year 455, when it was plundered by the Vandals and robbed of its gilded bronze tiles. After that period there is no trace of it in history. The numerous shrines which once surrounded it have been consigned to the same fate, and the whole of the hill now bears the stamp of modern times.

For nearly 500 years after the time of Cassiodorus, the Goth (6th cent.), there is no mention of the Capitol in the annals of Rome. The hill was in the possession of the monastery of Araceli, and the name of Monte Caprino, or hill of goats, which was applied to the S.E. height, bears testimony to its desertion. The glorious traditions, however, which attached to this spot, gave rise to a renewal of its importance on the revival of a spirit of municipal independence at Rome. In the 11th century it again became the centre of the civic administration. The prefect of the city resided here; among the ruins of the venerable citadel the nobility and the citizens held their public assemblies; and in 1341 Petrarch was crowned as a poet in the great senate-hall here. The hill could originally be approached from the Forum only, the N.W. side being precipitous and inaccessible, but in 1348 the latter side was connected for the first time with the new quarter of the city by the construction of the flight of steps of Araceli, which was almost the only public work executed at Rome during the exile of the papal court at Avignon. About 1389 Boniface IX. converted the palace of the senate into a kind of fortress, but its present form dates from the 16th century. Two new approaches from the city having been constructed in 1536, the Capitol has since formed a kind of termination of the modern part of the city in the direction of the ruins of ancient Rome.

From the PIAZZA ARACELI (Pl. II, 17) three approaches lead to the Capitoline Hill, that in the centre being the principal ascent for pedestrians. On the left a lofty flight of 124 steps, constructed in 1348, leads to the church of S. Maria in Araceli (the principal entrance, but generally closed, see below). — On the right the Via delle Tre Pile, which has recently been converted into an easy and handsome approach, on which occasion remains of the ancient wall of Servius, enclosing the hill in the direction of the Campus Martius, were brought to light (behind the railings to the left as we ascend), leads past the entrance of the Pal. Caffarelli, which was erected in the 16th cent. by Ascanio Caffarelli, a former page of Charles V., and is now the residence of the German ambassador. The principal approach and the Via delle Tre Pile lead to the Piazza del Campidoglio, see p. 213.

**S. Maria in Araceli* (Pl. II, 20), a church of very early origin, is mentioned in history in the 9th cent. as S. Maria de Capitolio. The present name, derived from a well-known legend (p. 212), has been in use since the 14th century. The church, of which the Roman senate formerly enjoyed the patronage, has given a title to a cardinal since the time of Leo X. The façade is unfinished, having escaped modernisation owing to the timely remonstrances of the celebrated German artist Overbeck.

The church is generally approached from the Piazza of the Capitol by the staircase to the left, at the back of the Capitoline museum, and then to the left from the first landing. Over the door here is an ancient mosaic of the Madonna between two angels.

The Interior is disfigured by modern additions. The nave is supported by 22 ancient columns, most of them of granite, varying greatly in style and dimensions. The 3rd on the left bears the inscription 'A cubiculo augustorum'. The rich ceiling of the nave was executed to commemorate the victory of Lepanto in 1571.

By the wall of the principal ENTRANCE, to the left, is the tomb of the astronomer Lodovico Grato (1531), with a figure of Christ by Andrea Sansovino; on the right the *monument of Card. Lebreto (1465) with partially reserved painting. — RIGHT AISLE, 1st Chapel: *Frescoes from the life of St. Bernardino of Siena, by Pinturicchio, restored by Camuccini. Frescoes in the ceiling attributed to Franc. da Città di Castello and L. Signorelli. The 5th Chapel (of St. Matthew) contains good pictures by Muziano. — LEFT AISLE. In the 2nd Chapel a manger (presèpe) is fitted up at Christmas, i.e. a gorgeous representation of the Nativity in life-size, with the richly decorated image of the Infant Christ (il santo bambino), which forms the principal ornament of the church. This image is believed to protect persons in imminent danger, is frequently invoked and revered, and is sometimes conveyed to the houses of the sick, on which occasions passers-by kneel in its approach. During the week after Christmas, from 3 to 4 o'clock daily, a number of children from 5 to 10 years of age address their petitions to the bambino. At the end of the left aisle a tomb-relief of Magr. rivelli by Donatello (much damaged). — TRANSEPT. On the right and left, by the pillars of the nave, are two *ambos from the old choir, by Laurentius and Jacobus Cosmas. The Chapel on the right belongs to the Savelli; on the right and left (the latter originally an ancient sarcophagus) are monuments of the family, of the 13th cent. (of the parents and another of Honorius IV.). The left transept contains a rectangular canopy, borne by eight columns of alabaster, called the CAPPELLA SANTA, or DI S. ELENA. Beneath the altar, which was destroyed during the French Revolution, but was restored in 1835, the remains of S. Helena are said to repose in an ancient sarcophagus of porphyry. The present altar also encloses an ancient altar, bearing the inscription Ara Primogeniti Dei, which is said to have been erected by Augustus. According to a legend of the 12th cent., this was the spot where the Sibyl of Tibur appeared to the emperor, whom the senate proposed to elevate to the rank of a god, and revealed to him a vision of the Virgin and her Son. This was the origin of the name, 'Church of the Altar of Heaven'. At the end of the N. transept is the monument of Matthæus of Aquasparta (d. 1302), the principal of the Franciscan order, mentioned by Dante. — CHOIR. To the left, the monument of Giov. Batt. Savelli (d. 1498). From 1512 down to 1565 the high-altar was adorned with the Madonna of Foligno by Raphael, ordered for this church, afterwards at Foligno (p. 75), and now in the Vatican Gallery. The donor, Sigismondo Conti da Foligno, is interred in the choir. The present altar-piece is an ancient picture of the Madonna, attributed to St. Luke.

The adjacent Monastery, which is reached by the continuation of the side-steps from the piazza of the Capitol, has belonged to the Frați Minori Osservanti di S. Francesco since 1251, and was formerly the residence of the principal of the order, but part of it is now occupied by the military. Fine view of ancient Rome from the corridors. — In the monastery garden fragments of very ancient walls have recently been discovered, running in a direction parallel to the Via dell' Arco di Settimio Severo. They are constructed of tufa, like the walls of Servius, and perhaps belonged to the fortifications of the Arx.

The CENTRAL APPROACH, a gently ascending staircase paved with asphalte ('la cordonnata'), leads to the Piazza del Campidoglio. At the foot of the steps are two handsome Egyptian Lions, and at the top a group of the horse-taming Dioscuri (Castor and Pollux), which are said once to have adorned the theatre of Pompey. To the left of the highest steps a she-wolf is kept in a cage in reminiscence of the story of the foundation of Rome.

The design of the present *Piazza del Campidoglio, or square of the Capitol (Pl. II, 20), is due to Michael Angelo, and its execution was begun in 1536 by Paul III. The palaces of the Conservatori and Senators were already in existence, but their façades were altered. — At the sides of the Dioscuri, in front of the balustrade, are the so-called Trophies of Marius, from the water-tower of that name of the Aqua Julia (p. 181), and the statues of the Emp. Constantine and his son Constans from the Thermæ of Constantine on the Quirinal; on the right the first ancient milestone of the Via Appia (on the left a modern counterpart).

In the centre of the piazza stands the admirable bronze *Equestrian Statue of Marcus Aurelius (161-181), once gilded, and originally placed in the forum near the arch of Sept. Severus. In 1187 it was erected near the Lateran, and, as the inscription records, transferred hither in 1538. For its excellent state of preservation it has been indebted to the popular belief that it was a statue of Constantine, the first Christian emperor (see also p. 126).

Beyond this monument rises the Palazzo del Senatore (Pl. II, 20, 2) which was re-erected by Boniface IX. in 1389 on the site of the ancient Tabularium, and provided with its handsome flight of steps by Michael Angelo, under whose directions it is probable that the façade was constructed by Giac. della Porta. The river-gods which adorn it are those of the (right) Tiber and (left) Nile. In the centre a fountain, above which is a sitting statue of Rome. The palace contains a spacious hall for the meetings of the senate, the offices of the civic administration, an observatory, and dwelling-apartments. The Clock-Tower was erected by Gregory XIII. in 1572 to replace an older one, probably belonging, like the four corner-towers, one of which towards the Forum, on the left, is still recognisable, to the edifice of Boniface. The roof of the clock-tower, which is embellished by a standing figure of Roma, commands an extensive *VIEW. The ascent is somewhat fatiguing. Admission on week-days 10-3, on Sundays 10-2, by permesso obtainable at the municipal offices: Via del Campidoglio, first gate on the left, on the 5th landing of the staircase turn to the left in the passage, and enter the third door on the right. Visitors apply to one of the custodians. The permesso is also available for the saloons of the Conservatori. — On the ground-floor of the same house is the entrance to the Tabularium (p. 221).

 o. On the right is the Palace of the Conservatori (Pl. 1), own Hall, which now contains some important collections, a fire-engine station on the ground-floor. On the opposite is the Capitoline Museum (Pl. 12). — The flights of steps three-arched halls on the E. side of these palaces were erected
Vignola; that to the left by the museum leads to the church
 S. Maria in Araceli and the contiguous Franciscan monastery; to the right, on the opposite side, to Monte Caprino (p. 221).
 On the right and left of the Palace of the Senators are the Via del Campidoglio, and the Via dell' Arco di Settimio Severo, both ascending to the Forum (comp. Plan, p. 222).

COLLECTIONS OF THE CAPITOL.

These are contained in the two side-palaces just mentioned, and are open daily (except on public holidays), 10-3, adm.  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr., and Sundays, 10-1, gratis.

A. *PALACE OF THE CONSERVATORI.

This palace (comp. Plan, p. 216) contains a number of antiques and particularly of bronzes, lately united here, the yield of the most recent excavations, and also a small Etruscan Museum. Here, too, are the 'Protomoteca', or Capitoline Picture Gallery, and the so-called Saloons of the Conservatori.

The principal door leads from the Piazza del Campidoglio into the Court, where on the right, by the door, is a statue of Cæsar, and on the
 coloured marble, capitals, fragments of friezes, etc., found during recent excavations; by the right wall, hand and limbs of a colossal figure in marble; left, colossal head in marble, high-relief of a province on the pedestal. Adjacent is the cinerary urn of Agrippina, wife of Germanicus, which in the middle-ages was employed as a measure for corn; inscription, Ossa Agrippinae M. Agrippae f. divi Augusti neptis uxoris Germanici Caesaris Matris C. Caesaris Aug. Germanici principis. In the centre of the COLONNADE opposite the entrance, a statue of Roma; at the sides statues of barbarians in grey marble. Left, in the corner, colossal bronze head; right, antique group, horse torn by a lion.

In the ENTRANCE-HALL farther on, to the left, 29. Statue of a Bac-chante; opposite the staircase, 30. Modern 'columna rostrata', with the genuine fragment of an inscription in honour of C. Duilius, the victor of Mylæ, B.C. 260, and renewed under Tiberius. On each side of the staircase are Roman inscriptions built into the wall, most of which were found on the Esquiline. — In the niches on the landing of the staircase,
 small court, in the centre, is a bust of Hadrian; on the pedestal an ancient list of streets of the year 136 A. D. Built into the walls, are four reliefs from a triumphal arch of M. Aurelius, found near S. Martina in the Forum: on the right, 44. Sacrifice in front of the Capitoline temple; on the long wall, 43. Entry of the emperor, passing the temple of Jupiter Tonans; 42. Pardon of conquered enemies; 41. His reception by Roma at the
 the second landing, No. 43. Relief representing Curtius on horseback leaping into the chasm. — In the passage above two reliefs from the triumphal arch of M. Aurelius, removed in 1653 by order of Alexander VII.
 (in the Corso near Pal. Fiano), representing the apotheosis of Faustina.

We first traverse two Rooms with modern lists of Roman magistrates, and then enter a long CORRIDOR in which the so-called Protomoteca, founded by Pius VII., has recently been established. This is a collection of busts of celebrated Italians, especially those who have distinguished themselves in art and science, including poets (such as Dante, Petrarch, and Ariosto), scholars, painters, architects, and sculptors. At the end of the corridor is a monument to Canova. Several eminent foreigners have also been admitted: (l.) Winckelmann, (r.) Poussin and Raphael Mengs. — The last door but two in the corridor leads to the picture gallery (see below), and the last but one leads up two steps to the terracottas and bronzes which are connected with the newly arranged part of the Capitoline collections. The principal entrance to the latter is on the opposite side of the corridor (comp. Plan).

II. Room. The antique **Pavement*, found on the Esquiline, consists of tablets of many different and very rare kinds of alabaster. In the centre is the former Albani-Campana Collection of Coins, including many of the imperial epoch in gold. A small case to the left contains glass-pastes, gems, and cameos. On the walls are specimens of aes grave, coins of the emperors and gentes, medals and coins of various periods. — We retrace our steps hence, and turn to the right into the large Octagonal —

III. DOME SALOON, lighted from above, and constructed of iron and wood in the Pompeian style, by Vespignani. In the Vestibule, to the right: **Tombstone of Q. Sulpicius Maximus*, a boy of 11½ years, who, according to the Latin inscription, worked himself to death after having gained the prize over 52 competitors for extemporising in Greek verses, quotations from which are inscribed on each side of the statuette of the youthful poet (found at the Porta Salara in 1870, p. 165). To the left: 8. Sitting Statue of Terra Mater (Mother Earth), in a small temple with inscription, found in 1872 in the burial ground near S. Lorenzo. In the wall are several reliefs. — Farther on, in the octagonal Dome Saloon, on the right, 10. Old woman carrying off a young lamb, a very realistic figure, with new head; 11. Bust of Faustina, the elder; 14, 16. Tritons, of good workmanship; **15. Admirably preserved half-figure of the Emperor Commodus*, with the attributes of Hercules. The marble still displays its fine original polish. The pedestal is formed by two Amazons (one only preserved) bearing a shield enclosed by cornucopiæ, below which is the globe of the firmament; 17. Bust of Plotina, wife of Trajan; 21. Large Sarcophagus from Vicovaro; on the lid a recumbent group, representing a man with a scroll, and a woman with a lute; on the front, the Hunt of Meleager; on the left side, a Lion hunt, on the right, the Bringing home of the spoil; 24. Terpsichore; 25. Well preserved youthful head (Commodus?); **26. Venus in the act of loosening her hair* (both arms missing); 28. Polyhymnia; 30, 31. Colossal female statues, between which is an elegant candelabrum; 33. Statue of Claudia Augusta, with attributes of Fortune; Replica of the so-called Eros of Praxiteles (Vatican, Galleria delle Statue), found on the Esquiline; to the left, interesting **Relief*, representing Vulcan and three Cyclops fabricating the shield of Achilles, while on the left stands Minerva with the olive-tree, ægis, and owl, and on the right Juno with an oak-tree, on which sits the peacock, sacred to that goddess; **36. Head of a Centaur*; 38, 42. Athletes, who must be supposed standing opposite each other, found at Velletri; 40. Cow, of good workmanship; below it a sarcophagus with the four seasons; 44. Bust of Manlia Scantilla, wife of the Emperor Didius Julianus; 45. Tiberius; 46. Colossal bust of Mæcenas, found at Otricoli; Characteristic portrait head of a Roman; 48. Bust of Didia Clara, daughter of the Emperor Didius Julianus; the last female bust, with a diadem, perhaps represents Antonia, wife of Drusus. — By the Pilasters: 53. Well preserved head of Æsculapius; 56. Head of a boy; *59. Head of an Amazon, found on the Esquiline; 62-65. Caryatides in the Archaic style; large dog of verde ranocchio; two large vases, the one with spirited Bacchic representations particularly fine. Over the fountain, Boy hunting; 35. Infant Hercules with the lion's skin, club, and quiver, in his left hand the apples of the Hesperides, found in 1872 together with the Terra Mater (No. 8, see above). 69. Fountain in the shape of a goblet resting on a wreath of leaves, and terminating in a winged Chimæra. The upper part of the goblet is embellished with three delicately designed Mænades. According to the Greek inscription below the water-spout, this work was executed by Pontios of Athens; it was found in the gardens of Mæcenas.

IV. GALLERY: 70. Colossal foot in marble, whose Tyrrhenian sandal is adorned with a pleasing composition of Tritons, Cupids, and Dolphins, found in 1872 in front of S. Cesareo on the Via Appia; *75. Fighting Hercules, with a portrait head, composed of numerous fragments; 78. Two ancient Trapezophoræ, with a modern marble slab, on which are placed various small works in marble, and a fragment of a Roman calendar, found at Corneto. Opposite, 130. Silenus, in a crouching attitude, a fountain figure, found in 1874 in the Via di Porta S. Lorenzo. — On the walls of the adjacent CORRIDOR are copies of the mural paintings found in a columbarium near the so-called temple of Minerva Medica, referring to the earliest mythical history of Rome (see p. 183). 125. Boy (restored as Mercury) playing with a tortoise (fountain-figure); 124. Marble vase, richly adorned with acanthus leaves; 123. Boy with a small dog; 86. Æsculapius. On the sarcophagus to the right are various candelabra in stone; 90. Sacrifice to Mithras. On the sarcophagus adorned with Tritons and Nereids to the left, are several Hermes (busts); 117. Relief in travertine with representations of sacrifices to Mithras; 115. Trilateral pedestal of a candelabrum, with Jupiter, Hercules, and Spes; 105, 106. Marble reliefs with scenes from the worship of Mithras, the larger of them bearing distinct traces of gilding and colour. — A glass door, generally closed, next leads us into a court (giardino) of the Palazzo of the Conservatori, where part of the substructions of the Capitoline temple of Jupiter, and (in the wall to the left) the fragment of a colossal column of the temple are noteworthy.

V. ROOM OF THE TERRACOTTAS. Along the walls are all kinds of common domestic utensils (pitchers, lamps, jars, etc.) and terracotta reliefs used as mural decorations, with the painting partly preserved; then Arretinian pottery, votive, and other objects. The remains of the oldest tombs found on the Esquiline, placed immediately to the left of the entrance, are particularly interesting. In the centre are glass cabinets, containing earthenware lamps, glass vessels, potsherds, mosaics, and a variety of anticaglias.

VI. ROOM OF THE BRONZES. In the centre is the so-called **Capitoline Wolf*, in the early Etruscan style, with Romulus and Remus; possibly the same which the ædiles Cneius and Quintus Ogulnius erected in B.C. 296. An injury on the right hind-leg is supposed to have been caused by lightning, by which, according to Cicero, the figure was struck in B.C. 65, in the consulate of Manlius and Cotta; the twins are modern. The **Thorn Extractor*, a boy removing a thorn from his foot. An expressive **Bronze Head*, said to be that of L. Junius Brutus, who expelled the kings, and became the first consul; eyes restored. 36. Small three-bodied Hecate. Then a Colossal Hand and a Colossal Foot (comp. p. 252). Between these a Tripod. A Horse, sadly mutilated, but of excellent workmanship, found in 1849 in the Vicolo delle Palme in Trastevere, together with the fragments of a Bull; 2. Vase, found near Porto d'Anzio, presented by King Mithridates to a gymnasium. **Gilded Statue of Hercules*, found in the Forum Boarium. Priest's Boy (Camillus) and Ephesian Diana, on a tri-lateral altar. The glass cabinets along the walls contain fragments of weapons, bronze implements, Roman scales, two inscriptions on brass, etc.

VII. ROOM OF ETRUSCAN TERRACOTTAS, or the so-called Museo Italico, a collection of vases, terracottas (including two sarcophagi with figures on the lids), bronzes, and various anticaglias from Etruria and Latium, presented to the city by A. Castellani in 1866, and interesting only for purposes of study. Under glass: Silver cover of a cist with archaic figures of animals, found at Palestrina.

On quitting this collection we enter the first door in the corridor on the right, with the inscription 'Pinacoteca', and ascend to the —

Picture Gallery, which was founded by Benedict XIV. In a straight direction we enter the first saloon. The names are given by the labels attached.

I. FIRST SALOON. Right wall: 2. Guido Reni, Redeemed spirit (unfinished); 6. Romanelli, St. Cecilia; 9. Albano, M. Magdalene; 13. Guercino, John the Baptist; 14. *N. X Paolo Veronese, Rape of Europa; 199, 196. Cola della Matrice, Death and Assumption of the Virgin.

The following Sale dei Conservatori are only shown by permesso (see p. 213). We are first conducted to the LARGE SALOON, with frescoes by the Cavaliere d'Arpino, representing the Combat of the Horatii and the Curiatii, and other scenes from the period of the Kings; it also contains a bronze statue of Innocent X. by Algardi, and marble statues of Urban VIII. by Bernini, and Leo X. by Giacomo del Duca. X II. Room: Paintings by Laureti; statues of the generals Marcantonio Colonna, Alexander Farnese, Rospigliosi, Aldobrandini, and Barberini. — III. Room: Scenes from the Cimbrian war, and several antique busts. — IV. Room: Fragments of the **Fasti Consulares*, or lists of Roman consuls, found in the 16th cent. (and smaller fragments in 1818 and 1872), near the temple of the Dioscuri, the steps to which they perhaps flanked. Along the walls are busts of Socrates, Sappho(?), Alcibiades(?), and Diogenes(?), in the hermal form, with modern inscriptions. — X V. Room. Several antiques: jug in the form of a female head in bronze; two ducks; Head of Medusa, by Bernini. —

Brutian (Pl. B). Into the walls are built the fragments of the marble Plan of Rome, an important topographic relief, executed under Sept. Severus, found in the 16th cent. in St. Cosmo e Damiano (p. 230). Portions of the plan would have been lost, but supplemented from the extant drawings (these parts are indicated by asterisks). On the landing of the stairs are two female statues, groundlessly designated as Pudicitia and Juno Lavinia. — On reaching the top, we first enter the —

I. Room of the Dying Gladiator, containing the finest statue in the museum in the centre. 1. Dying Gladiator, representing a mortally wounded Gaul, a Greek work of the Pergamene school, found in the Gardens of Sallust together with the group of barbarians now in the Villa Ludovici (p. 164). This is a work of profound interest and unrivalled excellence. The right arm is a restoration by Michne. The visitor will readily recall the exquisite lines by Byron. Chit. 182. 2. (right of the door) Apollo with lyre. Right wall. 3. Apollo with lyre, a woman (Ariadne's); the Great, 1. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. 12. 13. 14. 15. 16. 17. 18. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 50. 51. 52. 53. 54. 55. 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. 61. 62. 63. 64. 65. 66. 67. 68. 69. 70. 71. 72. 73. 74. 75. 76. 77. 78. 79. 80. 81. 82. 83. 84. 85. 86. 87. 88. 89. 90. 91. 92. 93. 94. 95. 96. 97. 98. 99. 100. 101. 102. 103. 104. 105. 106. 107. 108. 109. 110. 111. 112. 113. 114. 115. 116. 117. 118. 119. 120. 121. 122. 123. 124. 125. 126. 127. 128. 129. 130. 131. 132. 133. 134. 135. 136. 137. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150. 151. 152. 153. 154. 155. 156. 157. 158. 159. 160. 161. 162. 163. 164. 165. 166. 167. 168. 169. 170. 171. 172. 173. 174. 175. 176. 177. 178. 179. 180. 181. 182. 183. 184. 185. 186. 187. 188. 189. 190. 191. 192. 193. 194. 195. 196. 197. 198. 199. 200. 201. 202. 203. 204. 205. 206. 207. 208. 209. 210. 211. 212. 213. 214. 215. 216. 217. 218. 219. 220. 221. 222. 223. 224. 225. 226. 227. 228. 229. 230. 231. 232. 233. 234. 235. 236. 237. 238. 239. 240. 241. 242. 243. 244. 245. 246. 247. 248. 249. 250. 251. 252. 253. 254. 255. 256. 257. 258. 259. 260. 261. 262. 263. 264. 265. 266. 267. 268. 269. 270. 271. 272. 273. 274. 275. 276. 277. 278. 279. 280. 281. 282. 283. 284. 285. 286. 287. 288. 289. 290. 291. 292. 293. 294. 295. 296. 297. 298. 299. 300. 301. 302. 303. 304. 305. 306. 307. 308. 309. 310. 311. 312. 313. 314. 315. 316. 317. 318. 319. 320. 321. 322. 323. 324. 325. 326. 327. 328. 329. 330. 331. 332. 333. 334. 335. 336. 337. 338. 339. 340. 341. 342. 343. 344. 345. 346. 347. 348. 349. 350. 351. 352. 353. 354. 355. 356. 357. 358. 359. 360. 361. 362. 363. 364. 365. 366. 367. 368. 369. 370. 371. 372. 373. 374. 375. 376. 377. 378. 379. 380. 381. 382. 383. 384. 385. 386. 387. 388. 389. 390. 391. 392. 393. 394. 395. 396. 397. 398. 399. 400. 401. 402. 403. 404. 405. 406. 407. 408. 409. 410. 411. 412. 413. 414. 415. 416. 417. 418. 419. 420. 421. 422. 423. 424. 425. 426. 427. 428. 429. 430. 431. 432. 433. 434. 435. 436. 437. 438. 439. 440. 441. 442. 443. 444. 445. 446. 447. 448. 449. 450. 451. 452. 453. 454. 455. 456. 457. 458. 459. 460. 461. 462. 463. 464. 465. 466. 467. 468. 469. 470. 471. 472. 473. 474. 475. 476. 477. 478. 479. 480. 481. 482. 483. 484. 485. 486. 487. 488. 489. 490. 491. 492. 493. 494. 495. 496. 497. 498. 499. 500. 501. 502. 503. 504. 505. 506. 507. 508. 509. 510. 511. 512. 513. 514. 515. 516. 517. 518. 519. 520. 521. 522. 523. 524. 525. 526. 527. 528. 529. 530. 531. 532. 533. 534. 535. 536. 537. 538. 539. 540. 541. 542. 543. 544. 545. 546. 547. 548. 549. 550. 551. 552. 553. 554. 555. 556. 557. 558. 559. 560. 561. 562. 563. 564. 565. 566. 567. 568. 569. 570. 571. 572. 573. 574. 575. 576. 577. 578. 579. 580. 581. 582. 583. 584. 585. 586. 587. 588. 589. 590. 591. 592. 593. 594. 595. 596. 597. 598. 599. 600. 601. 602. 603. 604. 605. 606. 607. 608. 609. 610. 611. 612. 613. 614. 615. 616. 617. 618. 619. 620. 621. 622. 623. 624. 625. 626. 627. 628. 629. 630. 631. 632. 633. 634. 635. 636. 637. 638. 639. 640. 641. 642. 643. 644. 645. 646. 647. 648. 649. 650. 651. 652. 653. 654. 655. 656. 657. 658. 659. 660. 661. 662. 663. 664. 665. 666. 667. 668. 669. 670. 671. 672. 673. 674. 675. 676. 677. 678. 679. 680. 681. 682. 683. 684. 685. 686. 687. 688. 689. 690. 691. 692. 693. 694. 695. 696. 697. 698. 699. 700. 701. 702. 703. 704. 705. 706. 707. 708. 709. 710. 711. 712. 713. 714. 715. 716. 717. 718. 719. 720. 721. 722. 723. 724. 725. 726. 727. 728. 729. 730. 731. 732. 733. 734. 735. 736. 737. 738. 739. 740. 741. 742. 743. 744. 745. 746. 747. 748. 749. 750. 751. 752. 753. 754. 755. 756. 757. 758. 759. 760. 761. 762. 763. 764. 765. 766. 767. 768. 769. 770. 771. 772. 773. 774. 775. 776. 777. 778. 779. 780. 781. 782. 783. 784. 785. 786. 787. 788. 789. 790. 791. 792. 793. 794. 795. 796. 797. 798. 799. 800. 801. 802. 803. 804. 805. 806. 807. 808. 809. 810. 811. 812. 813. 814. 815. 816. 817. 818. 819. 820. 821. 822. 823. 824. 825. 826. 827. 828. 829. 830. 831. 832. 833. 834. 835. 836. 837. 838. 839. 840. 841. 842. 843. 844. 845. 846. 847. 848. 849. 850. 851. 852. 853. 854. 855. 856. 857. 858. 859. 860. 861. 862. 863. 864. 865. 866. 867. 868. 869. 870. 871. 872. 873. 874. 875. 876. 877. 878. 879. 880. 881. 882. 883. 884. 885. 886. 887. 888. 889. 890. 891. 892. 893. 894. 895. 896. 897. 898. 899. 900. 901. 902. 903. 904. 905. 906. 907. 908. 909. 910. 911. 912. 913. 914. 915. 916. 917. 918. 919. 920. 921. 922. 923. 924. 925. 926. 927. 928. 929. 930. 931. 932. 933. 934. 935. 936. 937. 938. 939. 940. 941. 942. 943. 944. 945. 946. 947. 948. 949. 950. 951. 952. 953. 954. 955. 956. 957. 958. 959. 960. 961. 962. 963. 964. 965. 966. 967. 968. 969. 970. 971. 972. 973. 974. 975. 976. 977. 978. 979. 980. 981. 982. 983. 984. 985. 986. 987. 988. 989. 990. 991. 992. 993. 994. 995. 996. 997. 998. 999. 1000.

II. Room of the Pons. On the walls reliefs, inscriptions, etc., among them the Lex Aelia of Vespasian (black tablet on the entrance-wall), wherein Cole di Romet 'the last of the Tribunes' once demonstrated to the people the might and liberty of ancient Rome. In the centre, 1. Statue of Pons in room antec., raising a bunch of grapes to his mouth from Hadrian's villa, placed on a remarkable altar, dedicated to Serapis. Window wall 2. Statue of Pons on a circular base with a rustum, and the inscription on a fragment, found together with the Ara Ventorum (No. 6) and the Ara Neptuni (No. 2) at Porto d'Anzio, where they were employed by sailors for offering sacrifices. IV. Room of the Philosophers. On the wall valuable reliefs, five from the frieze of a temple of Neptune, over the entrance-door, south of the temple, sculptural implements, on the wall of the apse, an archaic Diogenes relief by Callimachus, etc. — In the centre the dining room.

lar *statue of M. Claudius Marcellus(?), conqueror of Syracuse, B. C. 212, from the Giustiniani collection, formerly in the Museo Chiaramonti. Also 93 *busts of celebrated characters of antiquity, to some of which arbitrary names are affixed. 1. Virgil (?); 4, 5, 6. Socrates; 9. Aristides the orator; 10. Seneca (?); 13. Lysias (?); 16. Marcus Agrippa; 19. Theophrastus; 20. Marcus Aurelius; 21. Diogenes the Cynic; 22. Sophocles (not Archimedes); 23. Thales; 24. Asclepiades; 25. Theon; 27. Pythagoras; 28. Alexander the Gr. (?); 30. Aristophanes (?); 31. Demosthenes; 33, 34. Sophocles; 35. Alcibiades (? certainly not Persius); 37. Hippocrates; 38. Aratus (?); 39, 40. Democritus of Abdera; 41, 42, 43. Euripides; 44, 45, 46. Homer; 47. Epimenides; 48. Cn. Domitius Corbulo, general under Claudius and Nero; *49. Scipio Africanus, recognisable by the wound on his head which he received when a youth at the battle of Ticinus, whilst saving his father's life; 52. Cato the Censor; 54. Minerva; 55. Cleopatra (?); *59. Arminius(?), erroneously named Cecrops; 60. Thucydides (?); 61. Æschines; 62. Metrodorus; 64. Epicurus; 63. Epicurus and Metrodorus; 68, 69. Masinissa; 70. Antisthenes; 72, 73. Julian the Apostate; 75. Cicero; 76. Terence, according to others C. Asinius Pollio; *82. Æschylus (?). The names of the busts by the window-wall are unknown.

V. Room of the Busts of the Emperors. Reliefs by the entrance-wall: over the door, I. Mercury, Hercules, Graces, Nymphs carrying off Hylas; H. *Endymion asleep, beside him the watchful dog; F. *Perseus liberates Andromeda (these two belong to the eight reliefs in the Pal. Spada, p. 205). E. (above the door of egress): sarcophagus-relief, Muses (a cast, original in the Louvre). Then, above the windows, more reliefs; B. Triumph of the youthful Bacchus, A. Circus games, Bacchanalia, D. Calydonian hunt (this last modern). The collection of the emperors' busts is one of the most complete in existence; the names are for the most part verified by coins. In the centre: ~~Sitting female statue~~, believed to be Agrippina, daughter of M. Agrippa, wife of Germanicus and mother of Caligula. The numbering of the busts commences in the upper row, to the left of the entrance-door. 1. Julius Cæsar; 2. Augustus; 3. Marcellus, nephew of the latter (?); 4, 5. Tiberius; 6. Drusus the elder; 7. Drusus, son of Tiberius; 8. Antonia, wife of the elder Drusus, mother of Germanicus and Claudius; 9. Germanicus; 10. Agrippina, his wife; *11. Caligula, in basalt; 12. Claudius, son of Drusus; 13. Messalina, fifth wife of Claudius; 14. Agrippina the younger, daughter of Germanicus, mother of Nero; 15. Nero; 17. Poppæa, Nero's second wife; 18. Galba; 19. Otho; 20. Vitellius (?); 21. Vespasian; 22. Titus; 23. Julia, his daughter; 24. Domitian; 26. Nerva (modern?); 27. Trajan; 28. Plotina, his wife; 29. Martiana, his sister; 30. Matidia, her daughter; 31, 32. Hadrian; 33. Sabina, his wife; 34. Ælius Cæsar, his adopted son; 35. Antoninus Pius; 36. Faustina the elder, his wife; 37. M. Aurelius as a boy; 38. M. Aurelius, more advanced in life; 39. Faustina the younger, daughter of Antoninus, wife of Aurelius; 41. Lucius Verus; 43. Commodus; 45. Pertinax; 50, 51. Septim. Severus; 53. Caracalla; 57. Heliogabalus; 60. Alex. Severus; *62. Maximin; 63. Maximus, son of Maximin; 64. Gordian Afr.; 65. Gordian; 76. Gallienus; 80. Diocletian (?); 82. Julian the Apostate. We next enter the —

VII. Room of the Doves, so called from the *mosaic on the right wall: Doves on a Fountain-basin, found in Hadrian's Villa near Tibur, copy of a celebrated work by Sosus of Pergamum, mentioned by Pliny. Below it, a sarcophagus: 88. Prometheus forming man, whom Minerva inspires with life, in a style showing the transition to the Christian period of art. Farther on, by the right wall, a mosaic with several masks. Under them: *60. Sarcophagus with Selene and Endymion. The busts 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 51, on the narrow wall, are particularly good. By the left wall, in the 2nd window, 25. the Iliad Tablet, a small relief in palombino, a soft kind of marble, with the destruction of Troy and flight of Aeneas in the centre, and many other incidents from the legends of the Trojan war, explained by Greek inscriptions, probably designed for purposes of instruction, found near Bovillæ.

VIII. Room of Venus. Adjoining the gallery is the Venus Room, which contains the **Capitoline Venus*, found in excellent preservation built into in a house of the Suburra, unquestionably the workmanship of a Greek chisel, supposed to be a copy of the Aphrodite of Cnidus by Praxiteles. Left, Leda with the swan, a mediocre work; right, Cupid and Psyche, found on the Aventine.

On the S. height of the Capitol, the so-called Monte Caprino (to which a flight of steps ascends to the right at the back of the Palace of the Conservatori, comp. p. 214), stands the so-called Casa Tarpeia with the Protestant hospital and the new German Archaeological Institute, erected in 1874-76 by Laspeyres, at the cost of the German government. In the garden (custodian, Monte Caprino 130) is shown the Rupe Tarpeia, or Tarpeian Rock. If this be the veritable rock from which the condemned used to be thrown by the ancient Romans, its height and abruptness must have been greatly diminished since that period; as, moreover, it is by no means certain that this is its true situation, a visit to the spot may well be omitted. Ancient substructions of solid stone, which were discovered in the garden of the Pal. Caffarelli (p. 211) in 1866, belong to the temple of the Capitoline Jupiter.

Of the buildings which covered the Capitol in ancient times the only relics now existing are the imposing ruins on which the Senatorial Palace has been erected (entrance by the gate in the Via del Campidoglio, comp. p. 213; we then enter the door to the right with the superscription 'Tabularium'; fee on week-days 1/2 fr.). This edifice was the **Tabularium*, erected B. C. 78 by the consul Q. Lutatius Catulus for the reception of the state archives, and resting on the massive substructions which surround the hill. It consisted of a five-fold series of vaults, the last of which opened towards the Forum in the form of a colonnade with half-columns in the Doric style, which are still visible. The vaults were used in the middle ages as a public salt magazine, and the stones have been much corroded by the action of the salt. From this point there is a beautiful *View of the Forum. The rooms contain architectural fragments from the neighbouring temples and other buildings. An ancient flight of steps, now partly restored, descended hence to the Forum, where, to the left of the temple of Vespasian, the archway where it issued is observed.

The Forum Romanum.

(Comp. Sketch-Plan.)

In the most ancient times the Capitol and Palatine were separated by a deep and marshy valley. The pavement by the column of Phocas still lies 38 ft. only above the level of the sea, and 22 ft. above the level of the Tiber, but 13 ft. lower than the height of an ordinary inundation. In consequence of the lowness of this valley, it was, as may well be supposed, a difficult and tedious task to raise the level and drain the marsh. For this purpose Tarquinius Priscus, the fifth of the kings, is said to have constructed the Cloaca Maxima, which still renders good service (p. 249); and several canalicolae, or tributary drains which fell into the main channel, have recently been discovered. Tradition makes this hollow the scene of the conflict of the Romans under Romulus against the Sabines under Titus Tatius after the rape of the Sabine women. After the hostile tribes were amalgamated into a single state, they chose the Forum as its centre, and it was here that some of the most famous scenes in the history of the Roman Republic were enacted. On the N. side (S. Adriano) lay the Curia Hostilia, or council-hall, which is said to have been erected by King Tullus Hostilius; while on the S. side, at the foot of the Palatine (S. Maria Liberatrice), rose the Temple of Vesta, with its eternal fire, and the Regia, or dwelling of the Pontifex Maximus, the president of the Roman hierarchy. The Comitium, or open space in the centre, was the place where popular assemblies were wont to be held. The Forum was bounded by streets, the most important of which was the Via Sacra ascending to the Capitol. In the Forum and its environs building operations and various changes have been taking place at intervals for upwards of two thousand years, and it is therefore not to be wondered at that a number of topographical questions regarding it are still unsolved, and that the imagination of scholars has indulged in the most extravagant flights with regard to this spot more than any other in Rome. It is, however, ascertained that the Forum extended from the foot of the Capitol, sloping downwards towards the E., although it has sometimes been erroneously supposed that it extended from N. to S. The Basilica Julia marks the S. boundary of the REPUBLICAN FORUM, but the E. boundary has not yet been discovered. Along the sides of the Forum were ranged the tabernae veteres and novae, or shops, which were originally occupied by butchers and other craftsmen, and afterwards by money-changers and goldsmiths. In the course of time a number of temples, public buildings, and monuments were erected here. Of those still existing the most ancient is the Carcer Mamertinus (p. 230), or well-house, situated on the slope of the Capitol, the foundation of which reaches back to the period of the kings. Soon after the temple of the Capitoline Jupiter (p. 210), were founded the Temples of Saturn (B.C. 491) and Castor (484). The Temple of Concord (366) commemorates the termination of the protracted struggle between the patricians and the plebeians. At the period of the Samnite War, which resulted in the extension of Rome's supremacy over the whole of Italy, we are informed that the Forum underwent many embellishments. At last, however, as it was only 150 yds. in length, its area became too confined for the important and multifarious business transacted within its precincts; for it was not used for political and commercial purposes only, but for the celebration of the funerals of the nobility, for the gladiator combats which were introduced about the year 264, and on other public occasions. The first expedient for gaining space was the erection of basilicas, or quadrangular courts surrounded by colonnades, adjoining the Forum, with a view to draw off a portion of the traffic. In 184 Cato erected the Basilica Porcia on the N. side; in 179 followed the Basilica Emilia, and in 169 the Basilica Sempronia. The task was prosecuted with the utmost energy by CÆSAR, who extended the Forum by the addition of the Forum Julium (pp. 236, 238), and appears to have projected a cutting through the hill which connected the Capitol with the Quirinal in order to facilitate communication with the new quarter which was rapidly springing up in the Campus Martius. He also restored the Curia Hostilia, and erected the spacious Basilica Julia on the S. side of the Forum. Augustus proceeded to carry out the plans of his uncle, and to that emperor is chiefly due the arrangement of the Forum which the present excavations are bringing to light. All the edifices of the Republic were restored by him and his successors, whose energetic building operations extended over the first four centuries of the Christian era. They thus endeavoured, as it would appear, to compensate their subjects by external magnificence for the loss of liberty they had sustained. Five new fora, constructed between the time of Cæsar and that of Trajan, adjoined each other on the N. side of the old Forum, thus connecting the central point of the original city with the palatial buildings of the Campus Martius. By these new fora the Forum of the Republic would have been well nigh eclipsed, but for the glorious traditions connected with it, to commemorate which it was profusely adorned with gilded bronzes and rare marbles, with columns, triumphal arches, statues, and works of art, while its history was recorded by innumerable inscriptions.

These ancient buildings were restored for the last time in the reign of king Theodoric, in the first half of the 6th century, and the last new monument erected in the Forum was the Column of Phocas, dating from 608, but the rudeness of the architecture distinctly betrays the degraded taste of the period. As early indeed as the first half of the 6th cent. had begun the war of extermination waged by the MIDDLE AGES against paganism. Ancient temples were transformed into churches, such as those of S. Giuseppe, S. Luca, S. Adriano, S. Lorenzo, SS. Cosma e Damiano, S. Francesca, and S. Maria Liberatrice. These were afterwards frequently altered and restored, while others of the same class, like a church of SS. Sergio e Bacco in the temple of Concord and another at the S.E. corner of the Basilica Julia, have entirely disappeared. Interspersed with these churches were the towers and castles of the Roman nobility, erected among the ruins of the ancient buildings in the style best adapted for the prosecution of their perpetual feuds. In most cases, the dimensions of the monuments of antiquity, were far too vast to admit of their being used for mediæval purposes, but another mode of utilising these immense masses of building materials readily suggested itself. Throughout a thousand years the edifices of ancient Rome were employed as quarries, from which churches and secular buildings alike derived their columns, their blocks of solid stone, and, owing to a still more destructive proceeding, their supplies of lime also from the burning of marble. The fact that in the Basilica Julia alone there have been discovered lime-kilns and stone-masons' yards at three different places will convey an idea of the vast quantity of marble, bearing valuable inscriptions and artistic enrichments, which must have been destroyed in this way; and it need hardly be observed that the bronzes of antiquity were still more eagerly appropriated in an age when metal of every kind was scarce. This accounts for the miserably small number of statues and inscriptions which modern excavations have yielded. After the systematic destruction of the Forum, its remains were gradually buried beneath the rubbish and debris of some four centuries, so that the ancient pavement is at places 40 ft. below the present level of the ground. Down to the 8th cent. the ancient level was unaltered. In the 11th and 12th centuries the Forum was thickly covered with towers and fortress walls, which closed up the old streets, and when these were demolished about the year 1221, the ground appears for the first time to have been covered with an accumulation of rubbish. Fresh deposits were afterwards made when the new buildings on the neighbouring heights were in course of erection. This was particularly the case in 1536, when Paul III. constructed a triumphal street from the Porta S. Sebastiano through the arches of Constantine and Titus, and around the N. side of the Capitol (on which occasion the new approaches to the latter were formed, p. 211). He caused 200 houses which stood between the arches of Titus and Severus to be demolished, and he constructed on their site the piazza as it stood until recently. The large buildings erected by Sixtus V. probably also contributed to the raising of the level of the ground.

In the middle ages, and down to the present day, the Forum was popularly known as the Campo Vaccino. Its desolate area was covered with the teams of buffaloes and oxen of the peasantry, and smiths and carpenters established their workshops around it, while a few isolated columns, protruding from the rubbish, alone formed a reminiscence of its departed glory. And thus it remained until the 19th century. As early as 1519 Raphael had indeed formed a plan for restoring the ancient city, and especially the Forum, by means of extensive excavations; and during his lifetime, and subsequently, particularly in 1546-47, the work was begun in the neighbourhood of the temple of Castor and Faustina. The object in view, however, being merely the discovery of monuments and works of art, the excavations were soon filled up again, and in the 17th and 18th centuries were entirely discontinued. At length, during the present century, the plan was revived by the modern spirit of investigation. In 1803 the arch of Severus, in 1813 the column of Phocas, and in 1816-19 the Clivus Capitolinus with its temples, were disinterred under the superintendence of Carlo Fea, while the French during their occupation of Rome appear to have directed their attention to more productive localities. In 1835, and during the republic in 1848, part of the Basilica Julia was excavated by Canina, but from that year down to 1871 the work was discontinued. The Italian government resumed the excavations again with considerable energy; and by these last operations the Basilica, the temples of Castor and Cæsar, and a great part of the Comitium and the neighbouring streets have been brought to light, and an admirable clue to the arrangements of the whole locality has thus been obtained. The excavations are carried on by Cav. Lanciani under the superintendence of Senator Fiorelli, but serious obstacles are presented to the work by the growing requirements of modern business. It is hoped, however, that the undertaking, which was planned and begun when the Renaissance was at its zenith and has since been so frequently resumed, will ere long be finally and satisfactorily completed, and that the most memorable spot in the history of Europe will at length be fully brought to light and purged of the unseemly accumulations of the rubbish heaped upon it by the neglect of centuries.

ADMISSION. The excavations are shown gratuitously daily till sunset. The ENTRANCE is at the back of the temple of Castor. — The following description is in the order of the buildings as they present themselves to the visitor approaching them from the Capitol.

Descending from the piazza of the Capitol through the Via del Campidoglio to the right, past the Senatorial Palace (comp. p. 214), we enjoy from the lower end another good *SURVEY OF THE FORUM. The excavated portions are divided by the modern street into two halves. The smaller to the left below contains among other relics the temple of Saturn, to which the eight unfluted columns belong, the three columns of the temple of Vespasian, the arch of Septimius Severus, and immediately below in the corner the colonnade of the twelve gods. The second division comprises the column of Phocas the three columns of the temple of Castor, the great Basilica, the Comitium with its enclosure of brickwork, and the bare walls of the temple of Caesar. Beyond these, to the left, is the temple of Faustina now converted into a church, then the huge arches of the basilica of Constantine, the Colosseum, the arch of Titus, and to the right the ruins and gardens of the Palatine.

Here, on the S.W. slope of the hill (Clivus Capitolinus), anciently descended the Sacra Via, the basalt pavement of which is visible below.

The first building facing us, of which eight granite columns are still standing on a basement 16 ft. in height, is the *Temple of Saturn, originally consecrated by the consuls Sempronius and Minucius, B.C. 491, and restored by Munatius Plancus about B.C. 44, where from the earliest times the Aerarium Publicum, or government treasury, was established.

The inscription, Senatus populusque Romanus incendio consumptum restituit, refers to a later restoration, undertaken hastily and without taste, the columns being of unequal thickness and placed at irregular intervals. Of the lofty flight of steps by which the portico was approached there are now but scanty traces. The back is concealed by the street. In the 15th cent., according to Poggio's statement, the ruin was in much better preservation.

Below the temple of Saturn, but concealed by the modern road, once rose the Triumphal Arch erected in A.D. 16 to the emperor Tiberius, to commemorate the defeat of the Germanic tribes and the recovery of the Roman insignia which had been lost at the battle of the Teutoburgian Forest. Fragments of the arch and inscriptions still lie scattered about.

Below the Tabularium (p. 221), of the upper gallery of which one arch only now stands, and in the angle formed with it by the street, lies the Schola Xantha with the Colonnade of the Twelve Gods (deorum consentium), whose images were erected here in A.D. 367 by Vettius Agorius Prætextatus, the præfectus urbi, and one of the principal champions of expiring paganism. The structure was destined for the use of scribes and notaries. The name Schola Xantha is derived from a certain Fabius Xanthus by whom it was once restored. In 1858 the ruin was much modernised.

To the right of this the Tabularium is adjoined by the Ruin of the Three Columns, or *Temple of Vespasian, erected under Domitian, and restored by Septimius Severus.

The inscription ran thus: Divo Vespasiano Augusto Senatus populusque Romanus imperator Caesar Severus et Antoninus Pii Felices Augusti restituerunt. Of this a part of the last word only is preserved. The columns and entablature bear testimony to the excellence of the workmanship. The temple had six columns in front, which were 49 ft. in height, and 4½ ft. in diameter at the base. An egress of the Tabularium (p. 222) through the posterior wall of the cella has evidently been built up.

Farther on, to the right, and with its back to the Tabularium, is the Temple of Concordia, founded in B.C. 366 by M. Furius Camillus, and rebuilt on a larger scale by Tiberius, B.C. 7. It was dedicated to Concord to commemorate the termination of the protracted struggle between the patricians and plebeians.

The smaller projecting rectangle of the raised substructure was the temple itself, while the larger edifice behind, projecting on both sides of the temple (but concealed on one side by the ascent to Araceli), was the Senate-Hall, the threshold of which is still distinguishable. On the ruins of this temple was erected the church of SS. Sergio and Bacco, which was taken down in the 16th century.

In front of the temple of Concordia, and above the Via Sacra (Clivus Capitolinus), rises the *Triumphal Arch of Septimius Severus, 75 ft. in height, 82 ft. in breadth, with three passages. It was erected in honour of that emperor and his sons Caracalla and Geta in A.D. 203, to commemorate his victories over the Parthians, Arabians, and Adiabeni, and was surmounted by a brazen chariot with six horses, on which stood Severus, crowned by Victory. Caracalla afterwards erased the name of his brother Geta, whom he had murdered. The letters were, as was usual with inscriptions of this kind, originally inlaid with metal.

Above the arches are figures of Victory; at the sides, crowded scenes from the wars of the emperor. Side next the Forum: (l.), Raising of the siege of Nisibis in the Parthian war; (r.), Treaty with Armenia, Siege of Atræ. Side next the Capitol: (r.), Siege and capture of Babylon; (l.), Conquest of Ctesiphon and Seleucia. On the bases of the columns, Captive barbarians. All these figures are in the degraded style of the sculpture of that period. In the middle ages the arch was temporarily converted by the ruling powers into a kind of castle, and was deeply imbedded in rubbish, but was unearthed by Pius VII. in 1803.

The arched wall by the arch of Severus is the remains of the Rostra, or orator's tribune, a name derived from the iron prows of the warships of Antium with which the tribune was adorned after the capture of that town in B.C. 338. At the end of it was the Umbilicus urbis Romæ, or ideal centre of the city and empire, the remains of which are recognisable. At the other end, below the street, are a few traces of the Miliarium Aureum, or central milestone of the roads radiating from Rome, erected by Augustus in B.C. 28. It is, however, doubtful whether these names are correctly applied to these remains.

From this part of the excavations, passages lead under the modern street to the second division, which embraces the excavations made in 1848 and those of a recent period.

The visitor should first notice the direction of the streets, in order to obtain an idea of the topography of the ancient forum. On the S. side, between the brick pedestals and the basilica, there descends from the temple of Saturn a street to which another corresponded on the N. side, where the excavations have not yet been begun. At the lowest part of the ground, where it begins to slope upwards towards the Velia and Palatine, the longitudinal street is intersected by a cross-street coming from the Tiber, which separates the Basilica from the temple of Castor, and must also have intersected the northern longitudinal street near the temple of Cæsar. This was the busy Vicus Tuscus, which led from the Forum to the Velabrum and to the cattlemarket by the river (p. 248). A second parallel transverse street, also coming from the river, ran between the temple of Saturn and the basilica, and was called the Vicus

Jugurthine. Thus was formed the CENTRE OF THE FORUM, an oblong rectangle, bounded by four streets, from which it is distinguished by being paved with slabs of travertine instead of blocks of basalt, and being a little raised above the streets and approached by steps. This in all probability was the Comitium, or space set apart for public assemblies and other important business. On the S. side of this rectangle, at equal distances, are placed seven square pedestals of brick, which were once covered with marble, and were probably connected by means of railings or chains for the purpose of separating the comitium from the street. In the comitium, on the W. side, rises the —

Column of Phocas, 54 ft. in height, which was erected in 608 in honour of the tyrant Phocas of the Eastern Empire, by the exarch Smaragdus, having been taken by him from some older building for the purpose. It was formerly crowned with a gilded statue of Phocas. For a long period this column formed the distinctive mark of the Forum — 'the nameless column with a buried base' (Byron) — but it was at length disinterred in 1813 at the cost of the Duchess of Devonshire.

To the right of the column of Phocas are two Reliefs ('anaglyphs'), which were formerly built into the walls of a mediæval tower. They were discovered in 1872 and left undisturbed, after the removal of the tower. They are of topographical value as they bear reference to the different localities of the Forum.

The Rostra which recur in both reliefs, the 'figus ruminalis', or fig-tree under which the she-wolf is said to have reposed, and the statue of Marsyas enable us to identify the scene of action as the republican Forum. The first relief (next to the Capitol) alludes to Trajan's 'alimenta', or institution for poor children: on the right is the emperor, in front of him is Italy, holding a child by the hand (destroyed) and another in her arms to which Trajan hands a 'tessera', or ticket; on the left is a magistrate with his lictors, proclaiming his edict from the rostra. The second relief represents the remission of the arrears of succession-duty, the cords of which are being set on fire in Trajan's presence. On the inner side are a wild boar, a ram, and a bull, the victims which were sacrificed at the solemn public celebration of the Suovetaurilia.

The main arm of the Cloaca Maxima (p. 249), which was discovered in 1872, runs past the E. end of the comitium, and under the Basilica Julia.

The Basilica Julia was founded by Cæsar with a view to enlarge the Forum, and inaugurated in B.C. 46, after the battle of Thapsus, but before its completion. Augustus extended it, but did not witness its completion, as it was destroyed by a fire. The building was again twice injured by fire towards the end of the 3rd century. It was restored several times, the last being in A.D. 377. The building is mentioned in history for the last time in the 7th cent., and it was probably destroyed in the 8th. After several partial excavations, it was entirely extricated in 1871, when remains of a mediæval church, limekilns, and human bones at no great depth were discovered.

This spot had formerly been the burial-place of the adjoining hospital della Consolazione.

The GROUND PLAN of the basilica is a rectangle, about 111 yds long and 58 yds. wide. A flight of six, and at places nine, steps ascended to the basilica from the street. Along the four sides were double aisles which enclosed a CENTRAL SPACE, about 80 yds. by 17 yds., paved with variegated African and Phrygian marble, and separated from the aisles by iron railings. The greater part of the pavement has been restored, a few fragments of the original only having been preserved. The valuable material of which the pavement was composed renders it probable that this space was covered with a roof. The sittings of the tribunal of the Centumviri, in four different sections, took place here. The AISLES were paved with white marble, on which are still seen a number of circles, and occasionally writing, scratched on the surface by visitors. These have been playing a game resembling draughts, to which the hem is playing as the modern. The aisles were separated by columns, sixteen on each side, and ten at each end, rich and encrusted with travertine. On the side next the temple were adorned with Doric half-columns built against the trunk of the ancient pillars, up to a height of about 16 ft., and at the S.W. corner of the building. All the other trunks of the original materials. The pillars supported arches, which have been restored, but their original spring is still clearly distinguishable. The building had an upper story to which the steps still traceable on the N. side ascended. On this side the basilica was adjoined by older buildings, constructed of tuffstone, which seem to have been 'tabernae', or shops, but have not yet been thoroughly excavated or explored.

To the E. of the Basilica, and separated from it by the street, is the Temple of Castor and Pollux, dedicated to the twin gods out of gratitude for the assistance they were supposed to have rendered to the Romans at the battle of Lake Regillus in B.C. 496, in which the Latins were defeated, and inaugurated in 484. It was afterwards rebuilt by Tiberius and re-consecrated in A.D. 6. This was one of the most famous temples of the Republic, and was frequently used for the meetings of the senate.

The basement of the cella rises to a height of 22 ft., and was approached by a flight of 18 steps, with two lateral flights, of which that on the E. side only is preserved. The building was mainly constructed of concrete, which was faced with blocks of tuff, and around these were placed the blocks of travertine which supported the enclosing colonnade. These blocks, however, as well as the steps on the W. side, have entirely disappeared (although the impression made by them on the concrete is still visible), and the width of the building has thus been diminished by about one half. On the E. side stands a fragment of the STYLOBATE, with three columns of Parian marble, which are among the finest of the kind now existing (height 46 ft., diameter 5 ft.). The Corinthian capitals and the architrave are both in a very superior style of workmanship. The temple had eight columns in front and probably thirteen on each side. The length, however, has not been precisely ascertained, the posterior part being still covered by the modern street. Remains of the mortar pavement of the cella are still to be seen, lying about 3 ft. below the level of the portico and the surrounding colonnade. This peculiarity was probably occasioned by the alterations made by Tiberius.

Towards the E. of the temple of Castor are remains of the pavement of an ancient street, with fragments of ancient and mediæval buildings, the purpose of which cannot yet be ascertained. A ring here, provided with a runlet, is supposed to be a remnant of the Puteal Libonis, or the enclosure of a spot which had been struck by lightning. Copious springs arise in this locality, with which the drainage descending from the Palatine unites.

On the E. side of the Forum, with its front towards the Capitol, is situated the Temple of Cæsar, to which Cæsar, in addition to the other alterations made by him, transferred the tribune of the orators. This was now named the Rostra Julia, and from it, on the occasion of the funeral of the murdered dictator on the 19th or 20th March, B.C. 44, Mark Antony pronounced the celebrated oration which wrought so powerfully on the passions of the excited populace. A funeral pyre was hastily improvised, and the unparalleled honour accorded to the illustrious dead of being burned in view of the most sacred shrines of the city. A column with the inscription 'parenti patriæ' was afterwards erected here to commemorate the event. At a later period Augustus erected this temple in honour of 'Divus Julius', his deified uncle and adoptive father, and dedicated it to him in B.C. 29, after the battle of Actium. At the same time he adorned the Rostra with the prows of the captured Egyptian vessels.

The foundation of the substructions of the temple, consisting of concrete, were discovered in 1872, but their covering of solid stone has been removed. In front of the temple there are the remains of a platform, still partly paved with slabs of stone, which is believed to have been the rostra of imperial Rome. Its present form appears to have resulted from subsequent alterations.

Between the temple of Cæsar and that of Faustina situated to the E. of it are several ruins of late Roman and early mediæval buildings with remains of a pavement in marble mosaic. The temple of Faustina is now connected with the excavated part of the Forum, a cutting having been made through the street which passes it, and the rubbish having been cleared away. In front of the temple runs an ancient street, the Via Sacra (comp. p. 225), with the ruts of wheels still visible. From this street the temple is approached by a flight of steps interrupted in the middle by a projecting platform.

The *Temple of Faustina, of which the portico (with ten columns, six of which form the façade) and part of the cella are still standing, was dedicated by Antoninus in 141 to his wife, the elder Faustina, and re-dedicated to that emperor himself after his death. The first line of the inscription, Divo Antonino et divae Faustinae ex S.C., was then added. In the interior of the temple is the church of S. Lorenzo in Miranda.

The portico was excavated in 1807 and 1810. (In front of it once stood the Arcus Fabianus, erected in honour of Fabius Maximus, the conqueror of the Allobrogi, in A.D. 123.) The columns are of cipollino, or marble of Eubœa, and are 46 ft. in height. The cella is of peperine, the marble incrustation of which has entirely disappeared. — The year of the foundation of the church is unknown, and the earliest record of it dates from 1430. The façade was erected in 1602. The entrance is at present in the Via di S. Lorenzo in Miranda.

To the left of the Via dell' Arco di Settimio Severo ascending to the Capitol, at the entrance to the Via di Marforio, we observe the small church of S. Giuseppe de' Falegnami. Below it (entrance in the first-named street,  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.) is the Carcere Mamertinus, one of the most ancient structures in Rome. It was originally built over a well, named Tullianum, and thence traditionally attributed to Servius Tullius, and it was afterwards used as a prison.

It consists of two chambers, one below the other, of very ancient construction. The upper is an irregular quadrilateral, which was probably once adjoined by other similar chambers. An inscription on the front records that the building was restored in B.C. 22. The lower chamber, which was originally only accessible through a hole in the ceiling, is 19 ft. long, 10 ft. wide, and  $6\frac{1}{2}$  ft. high. The vaulting is formed by the gradual projection of the side walls until they meet. It contains a spring, which, according to the legend, St. Peter, who was imprisoned here under Nero, miraculously caused to flow in order to baptise his jailors. The building has therefore been named S. Pietro in Carcere since the 15th century. In this dungeon perished Jugurtha after having been deprived of food for six days, Vercingetorix, and other conquered enemies. Sallust, in recording the execution of Catiline's confederates, describes the prison thus: — 'Est in carcere locus, quod Tullianum appellatur, circiter duodecim pedes humi depressus. Eum miniunt undique parietes atque insuper camera lapideis fornicibus vincta; sed incultu tenebris odore foeda atque terribilis ejus facies est.'

Nearly opposite stands the church of SS. Luca e Martina, erected on the site of an ancient building. It consists of an upper and lower church; the latter being of very ancient origin, and the former erected in the 17th cent. by Pietro da Cortona.

On the opposite side of the Via Bonella, which leads to the Academy of S. Luca (p. 237) and the Forum of Augustus (p. 238), is the church of S. Adriano, with its unadorned façade, uninteresting like the last-mentioned, and also occupying the site of an ancient edifice, probably the Curia Hostilia, which was subsequently re-erected under the name of Curia Julia by Caesar and Augustus, and was used as an assembly-hall by the senate. The church was erected by Honorius I. in the 7th cent. and afterwards restored.

The Velia.

The Colosseum.

Baths of Titus.

A hill, named the Velia in ancient times, connects the Palatine and Esquiline, its highest point being marked by the Arch of Titus (97 ft.). How far the Forum, the lowest part of which was at the end of the Vicus Tuscus (p. 226), extended up this hill, is a point which the result of future excavations must determine. The Via Sacra is flanked by an uninterrupted series of public monuments. The following description therefore forms a continuation of that of the ruins already mentioned.

Beyond the temple of Faustina (p. 229), and separated from it by a street, is — to the portico of which the two columns of cipollino half projecting from the ground to the right of the church, in front of the Oratorium della Via Crucis, probably belonged. The temple was erected by the Emp. Maxentius to his son Romulus, and is sometimes erroneously called a temple of the Penates. The level of the pavement was so much raised by Urban VIII. in 1633, that an upper and a lower church were formed. The entrance, with the columns of porphyry and bronze doors, is ancient.

INTERIOR. The church is entered by the rotunda. On the arch of the choir and in the tribune are interesting *MOsaICS of the 6th cent., the period of the founder, perhaps the most beautiful of their kind at Rome, but freely restored about 1660 (best light towards evening). Those on the arch, which has been shortened during a restoration, represent the Lamb with the Book and seven seals, according to Revelations iv.; adjoining these the seven candlesticks, four angels, and two of the symbols (angel and eagle) of the Evangelists. The arms with wreaths, below, belonged to two prophets. In the tribune: Christ, to whom the saints Cosmas and Damianus are conducted by Peter and Paul; on the left side St. Felix with the church (new), on the right St. Theodorus. Beneath, Christ as the Lamb, towards whom the twelve lambs (apostles) turn.

The LOWER CHURCH (entrance to the left in the tribune; sacristan  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.) is unattractive. It contains the tomb of SS. Cosmas, Damianus, and Felix, an ancient altar, remains of an ancient pavement, and somewhat lower a spring, said to have been called forth by St. Felix.

At the back of this church were found the remains of an ancient plan of Rome (p. 219), other fragments of which were discovered in 1867-68. The ancient wall to which the plan was affixed belonged to Vespasian's Temple of Peace. — Excavations* are being at present carried on in front of and adjacent to the church, with the purpose of exposing to view the circular temple.

We next reach the three colossal arches of the *Basilica of Constantine (Pl. II, 20, 23), erected by Maxentius, but afterwards altered by his conqueror Constantine. The entrance originally faced the Colosseum, but afterwards the Via Sacra. It was a basilica of three halls, with vaulting of vast span, which has served as a model to modern architects, as, for example, in the construction of the vaulting of St. Peter's, which is of equal width.

The Ground Plan is in the form of a rectangle, about 100 yds. in length, and 88 yds. in width. The principal apse, opposite the entrance from the Colosseum, now forms part of a granary. After the opening of the second entrance on the side next the Palatine, a second apse was added. The tunnel vaulting of the S. aisle has been preserved; width 66 ft., depth 54 ft., height 78 ft. The span of the nave was about 80 ft.; its height 112 ft., and its width 66 ft. In front of the central pillars stood eight huge columns of white marble of the Corinthian order, the only one of which now extant has been placed in front of S. Maria Maggiore (p. 178).

The traveller should not omit to ascend to the summit of the ruin in order to enjoy the magnificent **PANORAMA of ancient Rome which it commands. We follow the street between the Temple of Faustina and S. Cosma e Damiano to the end, traverse a lane to the right, and proceed by the Via del Tempio della Pace to the left into the Via del Colosseo. At the corner here, immediately to the right, is No. 61, an institution for poor girls (visitors ring; 1 fr.), from the garden of which we ascend a flight of steps. A window adjoining the stairs affords the best view of the Colosseum, to the left of which are the Thermæ of Titus on the Esquiline; to the right the circular S. Stefano; nearer, S. Giovanni e Paolo with the new dome, both on the Cælius. Beyond the Colosseum the Alban, and to the left the Sabine Mts. To the S. the Palatine with the ruins of the imperial palaces and two monasteries, and the opposite bank of the Tiber with the Villa Pamfili. Towards the W. the Capitol; to the right of it, between the domes of two churches, Trajan's column is visible; above the latter Monte Mario; farther to the right the Torre di Nerone and the Quirinal. Towards the N. the church of S. Pietro in Vincoli with its magnificent palm, and S. Maria Maggiore, recognised by its two domes and Romanesque tower, both on the Esquiline.

Adjoining the basilica of Constantine, and partly occupying the site of a temple of Venus and Roma (see below), is the church of —

S. Francesca Romana (Pl. II, 23), or S. Maria Nuova, standing on the site of an older church of Nicholas I. founded about 860, re-erected after a fire by Honorius III. about 1216, and modernised by Carlo Lombardo in 1615. Festival, 9th March.

Interior. On the right, 2nd Chapel: (r.) Monument of Card. Vulcani (d. 1322) and that of the papal commandant and general Antonio Rido (d. 1475). 3rd Chapel: Miracles of St. Benedict, altar-piece by Subleyras. In the TRIBUNE mosaics of the 12th cent. (lately restored): in the centre Madonna, (l.) SS. John and James, (r.) Peter and Andrew. Over the high-altar an ancient Madonna, traditionally attributed to St. Luke, which is said alone to have escaped destruction in the conflagration. To the right of the apse: monument of Gregory XI., who transferred the papal residence from Avignon to Rome (d. 1378), with a relief by Olivieri. Here on the right, built into the wall, are two stones on which Peter and Paul are said to have knelt when they prayed for the punishment of Simon Magus. In the Confessio a group of the saints with an angel, by Meli. Under the tribune (closed, but the sacristan escorts visitors with a light, if desired) is the tomb of the saint, and over the altar a marble relief by Bernini. — SACRISTY. On the left wall a Madonna with four saints, by Sinibaldo, a pupil of Perugino, 1524. — The sacristan now shows a COURT behind the church, with the well-preserved western apse of the Temple of Venus and Roma (fee 1/2 fr.).

On the summit of the Velia, by the Palatine, rises the *Triumphal Arch of Titus, erected to commemorate the defeat of the Jews (A.D. 70), and dedicated to him under his successor Domitian in 81, as the inscription on the side next the Colosseum records: — Senatus populusque Romanus divo Tito divi Vespasiani filio Vespasiano Augusto. The arch is embellished with fine reliefs.

OUTSIDE: On the same side as the inscription, is a representation of a sacrificial procession on the frieze. INSIDE: Titus crowned by Victory in a quadriga driven by Roma; opposite, the triumphal procession with the captive Jews, table with the show-bread, and candlestick with seven branches. — In the middle ages the arch was used as a fortress by the Frangipani, crowned with battlements, and strengthened by new walls. When these were removed in 1822 under Pius VII., the arch lost its support, and had to be reconstructed, as the inscription on the other side informs us. The central part, composed of marble, is therefore alone ancient, while the restored parts are of travertine.

The street now descends, passing the remains of a basilica (approach from the Meta, p. 246), to the Colosseum. On the left is the double apse of the Temple of Venus and Roma, or Templum Urbis (Pl. II, 20), erected by Hadrian from a plan by himself in A.D. 135, and restored after a fire by Maxentius in 307. This was one of the most superb temples in Rome. The gilded bronze tiles were removed to St. Peter's by Honorius I. in 626.

There were evidently two temples under the same roof, with entrances from the sides next the Colosseum and next the Capitol, and with adjacent cellæ, so that there was a niche on each side of the central wall for the image of a god. One half is built into the monastery of S. Francesca Romana (p. 232), while the other towards the Colosseum is open. The vestibules of the cellæ had each four columns in front. Around this ran a first colonnade of ten columns at the ends, and twenty at the sides (length 120 yds., width 58 yds.). This colonnade was enclosed by a second, consisting of about 200 columns, 180 yds. long, and 110 yds. wide, and projecting as far as the street, where it was supported by massive substructions. To this colonnade belonged the granite shafts scattered about here. The cellæ were encrusted with the rarest marbles.

Descending hence to the Colosseum, we observe the remains of an extensive square Basis of masonry to the left below. Here once stood the gilded bronze Colossal Statue of Nero, as god of the sun, surrounded with rays, and about 117 ft. in height, executed by Zenodorus by order of the emperor himself, to grace the golden palace which he erected with lavish splendour after the burning of Rome in A.D. 64. The palace fell to decay soon after the emperor's death (in 68), and the statue was removed thence by Hadrian to this pedestal. In the space occupied by an artificial lake in the gardens of Nero, Vespasian founded the — **Colosseum (Pl. II, 24), or, as it was originally called, the Amphitheatrum Flavium, the largest theatre, and one of the most imposing structures in the world, completed by Titus in A.D. 80. It was inaugurated by gladiatorial combats, continued during 100 days, in which 5000 wild animals were killed, and naval contests were exhibited; and 87,000 spectators could be accommodated within its walls. The building has been known since the 8th cent. under its present name, derived probably from the colossal statue of Nero with which it was once adorned.

Having been injured by a fire in the reign of Macrinus, it was restored by Alexander Severus. In 248 the Emp. Philip here celebrated the 1000th anniversary of the foundation of Rome with magnificent games. In 405 gladiator-combats were abolished by Honorius as inconsistent with the spirit of Christianity, but wild-beast fights continued down to the time of Theodoric the Great. In the MIDDLE AGES the Colosseum was employed by the Roman barons, especially the Frangipani, as a stronghold. In 1312 the Annibaldi were compelled to surrender it to the Emperor Henry VII., who presented it to the Roman senate and people. In 1332 the Roman nobility again introduced bull-fights. After this period, however, the destruction of the Colosseum began, and the stupendous pile began to be regarded as a kind of quarry. In the 15th cent. Paul II. here procured the materials for the construction of the Pal. di S. Marco (di Venezia), Card. Riario for the Cancelleria, and Paul III. (1534-49) for the Palazzo Farnese. Sixtus V. proposed to establish a cloth-manufactory here, and Clement XI. actually used the building as a salt-magazine. Benedict XIV. (1740-58) was the first to protect the edifice from farther demolition by consecrating the interior to the Passion of Christ, on account of the frequency with which the blood of martyrs had flowed there, and erecting small chapels within it, which were removed in 1874. The following popes, particularly Pius VII. and Leo XII., have averted the imminent danger of the fall of the ruins by the erection of huge buttresses. The steps in the interior were restored by Pius IX.

The Colosseum is constructed of blocks of travertine, originally held together by iron cramps, and tufa and bricks have also been used in the interior. The numerous holes bored in the stone were made in the middle ages, for the purpose of extracting the then very valuable iron. According to the most trustworthy statistics the external circumference of the elliptical structure measures 576 yds., or nearly one-third of a mile, the long diameter 205 yds., the shorter 170 yds., the arena 93 yds. by 58 yds., and the height 156 ft. Above the arena rise the tiers of seats, intersected by steps and passages, most of which are now in ruins and only partially accessible.

The exterior of the still preserved N.E. portion, on the side next the Esquiline, consists of four stories, the three first being formed by arcades, the pillars of which are adorned with half-columns of the Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian order in the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd stories respectively. A wall with windows between Corinthian pilasters forms the 4th story. Statues were placed in the arcades of the 2nd and 3rd stories, as appears from the representations on ancient coins. At the ends of the diameters are the four triple PRINCIPAL ENTRANCES, those next to the Esquiline and Cælius being destined for the emperor, the others for the solemn procession before the beginning of the games, and for the introduction of the animals and machinery. On the side next the Esquiline are seen traces of the stucco-decorations, which were restored under Pius VII., and were once used as models by Giovanni da Udine, the pupil of Raphael. The arcades of the lowest story served as entrances for the spectators, and were furnished with numbers up to lxxx. (Nos. xxiii. to liv. still exist), in order to indicate the staircases to the different seats. Below, on the exterior, are two rows of arcades, and then a massive substructure for the seats. Every fourth arch contains a staircase.

Part of the TIERS OF SEATS is still distinguishable, the foremost of which, called the Podium, was destined for the emperor, the senators, and the Vestal Virgins. The emperor occupied a raised seat here, called the Pulvinar, and the others had seats of honour. Above the Podium rose three other classes of seats, the first of which was allotted to the knights. The humbler spectators occupied the last division, in a colonnade, on the roof of which were stationed sailors of the imperial fleet for the purpose of stretching sail-cloth over the whole amphitheatre to exclude the burning rays of the sun. Apertures are still seen in the external coping, with corbels below them, for the support of the masts to which the necessary ropes were attached.

Under the ARENA were chambers and dens for the wild beasts, and an apparatus by means of which the arena could be laid under water. Since 1874 excavations have been made with a view to disclose all these arrangements, in the course of which fragments of umns, marble slabs (some of them bearing combats of wild beasts and gladiators scratched on them), and other architectural relics Arch of Constantine.

The purposes of the various rooms are not yet ascertained. The water, which abounds here owing to the lowness of the situation, has inundated a great part of the excavations and renders it impossible to visit them.

Although one-third only of the gigantic structure remains, the ruins are still stupendously impressive. An architect of the previous century estimated the value of the materials still existing at 1½ million scudi, which according to the present value of money would be equivalent to at least half a million pounds sterling. The Colosseum has ever been a symbol of the greatness of Rome, and gave rise in the 8th cent. to a prophetic saying of the pilgrims of that age: —

‘While stands the Colosseum, Rome shall stand,
When falls the Colosseum, Rome shall fall,
And when Rome falls, with it shall fall the World!’

The ruins are recommended to ascend a deep wooden staircase of 56 steps here we select the inner, or the entrance towards the 2nd, and then to the 3rd, and then to the 4th story. The view from the 4th story, to which another flight of steps leads, is very fine. It embraces the Caelius with the Forum, the Aventine, the Trastevere, the Tiber, the Fuori le Mura; nearer, to the right the Palatine, to which by MOONLIGHT, or when illuminated by the sun (see p. 16). The traveller is strongly recommended to visit the Colosseum at night for the purpose. The entrance next the Capitol, the ruins of the Colosseum are well preserved, and are visited by an English botanist, who has discovered an over-zealous system of the Colosseum by the same of the edifice, the so-called front of a magnificent fountain of a magnificent fountain gate, we perceive the Meta Sudana, the partially ruined arch erected by Domitian. Farther on, to the left, between the Caelius and Palatine, spanning the Via Triumphalis which here united with the Via Sacra, stands the —

*Triumphal Arch of Constantine (Pl. II, 24), the best-preserved of these structures, erected after the victory over Maxentius at Saxa Rubra, near the Ponte Molle, in 311, when Constantine declared himself in favour of Christianity. The inscription runs thus: — IMP. CAES. FL. CONSTANTINO MAXIMO PIO FELICI AUGUSTO SENATUS POPULUSQUE ROMANUS, QUOD INSTINCTU DIVINITATIS MENTIS MAGNITUDE CUM EXERCITU SUO TAM DE TYRANNO QUAM DE OMNI EJUS FACTIONE VICTO DICAVIT. The arch has three passages, and is adorned with admirable sculptures from a triumphal arch of Trajan which stood at the entrance to Trajan's Forum, contrasting strongly with the rude additions made in the age of Constantine.

The following are from the ARCH OF TRAJAN: the captive Dacians above (ancient; one entirely, but the heads and hands of the others are new); the Reliefs (facing the Colosseum), to the left: 1. Trajan's entry into Rome, to the right of which: 2. Prolongation of the Via Appia: 3. Trajan causing poor children to be educated; 4. Trajan condemning a barbarian; on the other side, to the left: 5. Trajan crowning the Parthian king Parthamaspatēs; 6. Soldiers conducting two barbarians into Trajan's presence; 7. Trajan addressing the army; 8. Trajan sacrificing. The eight Medallions below these reliefs represent sacrifices and hunting-scenes; on the narrow sides two battles with the Dacians; below the central arch, the vanquished imploring pardon, and Trajan crowned by Victory. — The contrast between the art of Trajan's and that of Constantine's age is exhibited by the smaller reliefs inserted between the medallions, representing the achievements of CONSTANTINE in war and in peace. In 1804 Pius VII. caused the ground to be lowered to its original level. In the 10th cent. the arch was converted into a castle, and afterwards came into the possession of the Frangipani.

On the opposite side, a few hundred paces from the Colosseum, in the Via Labicana, first gate to the left (whence the Via della Polveriera ascends to the left between walls in 5 min. to S. Pietro in Vincoli, p. 186), are situated on the Esquiline the — *Therma of Titus (Pl. II, 26; open daily from 9 a.m. till sunset; admission 1 fr.; on Sundays gratis). Mæcenas once possessed a villa here, which was afterwards incorporated with the golden palace of Nero. On the site of the latter, in the year 80, Titus hastily erected his sumptuous Therma, which were altered and enlarged by Domitian, Trajan, and others. The ruins are scattered over several vineyards, and a small part only, excavated in 1813, is accessible.

The earlier structure of NERO is easily distinguished from that of TITUS. The long vaulted parallel passages first entered belong to the Therma. They form together a semicircular substructure, the object of which is not clearly ascertained. Most of the chambers beneath, which were filled up by Titus in the construction of his baths, and re-excavated at the beginning of the 16th cent., belonged to the golden palace of Nero. A suite of seven rooms is first entered here; to the left, near that in the centre, are remains of a spring. Traces of the beautiful PAINTINGS, which before the discovery of Pompeii were the sole specimens of ancient decoration of this description, and served as models for Giovanni da Udine and Raphael in the decoration of the loggie, are still observed. Colonnades appear to have flanked both sides of these rooms. A passage leads hence to a bath-room. To the left, at right angles with this suite, are a number of small and unadorned rooms, probably the dwellings of the slaves; to the left again, opposite the first suite, is a passage once lighted from above, the vaulting of which was adorned with beautiful frescoes still partially visible.

Fora of the Emperors. Academy of St. Luke.

In the plain to the N.E. of the Forum of the Republic lay the Fora of the Emperors, which were erected by their founders rather as monuments and ornaments to the city than for political purposes, and were chiefly used for judicial proceedings. The principal edifice in these fora was always a temple. The Forum Julium, the first of the kind, was begun by Cæsar and completed by Augustus; the second was constructed by Augustus; the Temple of Peace (p. 231) of Vespasian is often mentioned as a third; a fourth was founded by Domitian; and lastly, the most magnificent of all, the Forum of Trajan. They are enumerated here in their order from the Temple of Peace, which probably lay on the site of the basilica of Constantine, to the Forum of Trajan, as they all adjoined each other with in this area.

Adjacent to the Temple of Peace lay the forum founded by Domitian and completed by Nerva, whence called the Forum of Nerva, sometimes also Forum Transitorium from being intersected by an important street. Here stood a temple of Minerva, taken down by Paul V. in order to obtain marble for the decoration of the Fontana Paolina on the Janiculus, and a small temple of Janus. Remains of the external walls exist in the so-called * Colonacce, two half-buried Corinthian columns, with entablature richly decorated with reliefs (representing the practice of the arts, weaving, etc., which were specially protected by the goddess; casts of them in the collection of the Académie Française, p. 143); above them is an attic with a Minerva. This fragment, situated at the intersection of the Via Alessandrina and the Via della Croce Bianca, at the E. corner (Pl. II, 20), is well calculated to afford an idea of the grandeur of the original structure.

Accademia di S. Luca (Pl. II, 20), a school of art founded in 1595, the first director of which was Federico Zuccherò. It was re-organised in 1874, and placed under the directorship of the sculptor Prof. E. Wolff. The picture gallery belonging to the Academy, open daily, from 9-3, is a second-rate collection, containing few works of importance.

We ascend the staircase, into the walls of which are built a few casts from Trajan's Column (disfigured with whitewash). On the first landing the entrance to the collection of the competitive works of the pupils (closed), such as Kessel's Discus-thrower reposing, in plaster; Christ on the Mt. of Olives, drawing by Seitz; reliefs by Thorvaldsen and Canova; Gany-med giving water to the eagle, by Thorvaldsen, and several casts from the anti-ue.

We ascend another staircase, and ring at the entrance to the — Picture Gallery (1½ fr.). A small ANTE-CHAMBER (with engravings, etc.) leads to the I. SALOON, lighted from above. Entrance-wall: Berghem, Landscape; Tempesta, Wharf; Old Dutch Sch., Madonna and Descent from the Cross; Rubens, Venus crowned by graces; Van Dyck, Madonna; Titian, St. Jerome; Jos. Vernet, Wharf. Short wall: G. Poussin, two Landscapes. Second wall: Ribera, Scribes disputing; P. Veronese, Venus; Van Dyck (?), Portrait; Titian, Portrait; Vanity; Claude Lorrain, Coast Landscape; Jos. Vernet, Wharf. On the second short wall, busts of Betti, Tenerani, and Thorvaldsen. — The saloon is adjoined on one side by a SMALL ROOM, principally containing portraits of artists; among them, on the pillar, Virginie Lebrun; on the short wall, Byron; in the upper part of the right short wall, second row, to the right Angelica Kauffmann; below, by the entrance, Salvator Rosa, Concert of cats. — On the other side is the II. SALOON, also lighted from above. On the entrance-pillars: Canaletto, Architectural design; Maratta, Madonna; on the back of this picture there is a *copy, by Marc Antonio, of the first design of Raphael's Transfiguration (figures nude; original supposed to have been lost). Left wall: Titian, Discovery of the guilt of Calisto, inferior to the other mythological pictures of this master; Guido Reni, Fortuna; **Raphael*, Boy as garland-bearer, being a relic of a fresco in the Vatican, sawn out of the wall, and freely retouched; Guido Cagnacci, Lucronia, an admirable work of this master, a painter of no great note of the school of Guido Reni; Guercino, Venus and Cupid (al fresco). Short wall: Bronzino, St. Andrew; Venet. Sch., Portrait; Guido Reni, Cupid; Raphael (?), St. Luke painting the Madonna, beside him Raphael observing him, entirely disfigured by retouching, and a work which must have been of little value even when it was in better condition, as the want of uniformity in the colouring shows that several different hands have been engaged upon it (originally an altar-piece in St. Martino); Tintoretto, Portrait; After Titian, Tribute-money. Right wall: Poussin, Bacchanalian dance; Pellegrini, Hebe; Galatea, copy by Giulio Romano from Raphael; J. Vernet, Wharf; P. Veronese, Susanna; Guido Reni, Bacchus and Ariadne. Round the upper part of this saloon is a double row of portraits of artists.

The Via Bonella is terminated towards the N. by an ancient wall with a gateway. In front of the latter, to the left, are three beautiful and lofty *Corinthian columns with entablature, which belonged to one of the sides of the Temple of Mars Ultor in the Forum of Augustus (Pl. II, 20). The forum was enclosed by a lofty *wall of peperine blocks (a grey volcanic rock), a portion of which, about 150 yds. in length, is seen near the temple, and particularly at the gateway (Arco de' Pantani). This wall was adjoined by the back of the temple erected by Augustus in consequence of a vow which he made while engaged in war against Cæsar's murderers, and inaugurated by him in B.C. 2. The forum is now occupied by the nunnery of the Annunziata. The original level is about 16 ft. below the surface. This locality was a swamp in the 16th cent., whence the modern name ('pantano' = swamp).

Between this and the ancient republican Forum lay the Forum of Cæsar, or Forum Julium, with a temple of Venus Genetrix. Scanty remains of the external wall of tuffstone are seen to the left in the court of No. 18 Vicolo del Ghettairello, which diverges to the right from the Via di Marforio between Nos. 47 and 46.

We now ascend to the left through the Arco de' Pantani by the huge wall which now forms part of the nunnery, and a little farther on descend to the left by the Via di Campo Carleo (in the court No. 6, wall of Trajan's forum, see below) to the busy Via Alessandrina, whence immediately to the right we enter the — *Forum of Trajan (Pl. II, 19), which adjoined the Forum of Augustus. It was an aggregate of magnificent edifices, said to have been designed by the architect Apollodorus of Damascus (111-114).

This was considered the most magnificent of the numerous palatial edifices of Rome. Ammianus (16, 10) thus describes it on the occasion of the visit of the Emp. Constantine in 356: — 'Verum cum ad Trajani forum venisset, singularem sub omni caelo structuram, ut opinamur, etiam numinum adensatione mirabilem, hæcebat adtonitus per gigantes contextus circumferens mentem nec relatu effabiles nec rursus mortalibus adpetendos'. According to a legend of the 7th cent., Gregory the Great, while admiring the ancient splendour of the forum one day, and saddened by the thought that so just and benignant a monarch as its founder should be condemned to everlasting perdition, succeeded by his prayers in obtaining the release of Trajan's soul from purgatory. In the 10th cent. this forum lay in ruins, and the church of S. Nicolao had been erected by the column. This was succeeded by other churches. In 1587 Sixtus V. crowned the column with a bronze statue of St. Peter. At length, in 1812-14, the French government caused two nunneries and other buildings to be demolished, and thus partially brought to light the centre of the forum.

The project of effecting an easy communication between the old town and the buildings in the Campus Martius by means of a vast cutting between the Capitol and the Quirinal was at length carried out by Trajan. This passage must have been about 200 yds. in width, and of still greater length. In the part already excavated (about 120 by 50 yds.) have been discovered the foundations of four rows of columns, belonging to the five-halled Basilica Ulpia, which lay with its sides towards the end of the present piazza. The central hall was 27 yds., and the whole building 61 yds. in width. The pavement consisted of slabs of rare marble. It is uncertain whether the remains of granite columns which have been found and erected here are in their original positions. — Between this Basilica and the Forum of Augustus lay the Forum Trajani properly so called, part of the S.E. semicircular wall of which is still seen in the court of No. 6 Via del Campo Carleo, two stories in height. The chambers of the ground floor were probably shops. In the centre of this forum stood Trajan's equestrian statue.

On the N. side of the basilica rises Trajan's Column, constructed entirely of marble, the shaft of which is 87 ft. high, and the whole, including the pedestal and statue, 147 ft.; diameter 11 ft. below, and 10 ft. at the top. Around the column runs a spiral band, 3 ft. wide and 660 ft. long, covered with admirable RELIEFS from Trajan's war with the Dacians, comprising, besides animals, machines, etc., upwards of 2500 human figures, the height of those below being 2 ft., and gradually increasing as they ascend. (The figures can be more conveniently examined on the cast in the Lateran, see p. 274.) Beneath this monument Trajan was interred, and on the summit stood his statue, now replaced by that of St. Peter. In the interior a staircase of 184 steps ascends to the top (closed at present). The height of the column at the same time indicates how much of the Quirinal and Capitoline had to be levelled in order to make room for these buildings: — 'ad declarandum quantæ altitudinis mons et locus tantis operibus sit egestus', as the inscription, dating from 114, records. The depth of earth thus removed amounted to 100 ancient Roman feet (97 Engl. ft.).

To this forum also belonged a temple, dedicated to Trajan by Hadrian, a library, and a triumphal arch of Trajan, all situated on the other side of the column. Some of the reliefs from the arch were removed to embellish the arch of Constantine (p. 235).

On the N. side of the piazza are two churches. That on the right, del Nome di Maria, was erected in 1683 after the liberation of Vienna from the Turks, and restored in 1862. That on the left, S. Maria di Loreto, begun by Sangallo in 1507, contains in the 2nd chapel on the right a statue of St. Susanna by Fiammingo, and over the high altar a picture of the school of Perugino.

Three streets lead hence towards the N. to the Piazza SS. Apostoli (p. 156). — Ascending to the right (E.) the Via Magnanapoli leads in 16 min. straight to S. Maria Maggiore (pp. 172, 178); while to the left it leads to the Quirinal (p. 170). — The street to the left leads to the Piazza S. Marco, or if it be quitted by the first street to the right, the Piazza di Venezia (p. 158) is reached.

The Palatine.

(Comp. Sketch-Plan.)

The Palatine Hill, situated on the S. side of the Forum, rises in the form of an irregular quadrangle. In ancient times it was bounded on the N. side, towards the Capitol, by the Velabrum and the Forum Boarium (p. 248); on the W., towards the Aventine, by the Circus Maximus (p. 250); on the S., towards the Cælius, by the Via Triumphalis and the Via Appia (now Via di S. Gregorio). The hill is 1900 yds. in circumference, and the highest point (S. Bonaventura) is 168 ft. above the sea-level, or 114 ft. above the level of ancient Rome. The Palatine was the original site and the centre of the embryo mistress of the world, the Roma Quadrata, fragments of whose walls have been brought to light at five different places, thus enabling us to trace the situation of these venerable fortifications with tolerable precision. The wall appears to have encircled the whole of the hill about half-way up its slopes, and to have been penetrated by gates at three places only. The situation of two of these, the Porta Mugionis or Mugonia (Pl. 13), and the Porta Romana or Romanula (Pl. 4), has been ascertained by the most recent excavations. Tradition places on this hill the dwellings of its heroes Evander, Faustulus, and Romulus; and a reminiscence of them was preserved down to a very late period by a number of ancient temples and shrines. The orator Hortensius, Catiline, Cicero, and his bitter enemy the tribune Clodius, and other celebrated men of the republican period possessed houses here. Augustus was born on the Palatine, and after the battle of Actium he transferred his residence to this ancient seat of the kings. His palace, the Domus Augustana, lay on the site of the Villa Mills, lately a nunnery; and adjoining it were a large temple of Apollo erected by him and the Greek and Latin library (Pl. 22, 23) which is so highly extolled in Roman literature. The Emp. Tiberius, the house of whose birth was discovered here a few years ago (Pl. 6), extended his palace, the Domus Tiberiana, towards the Velabrum, and the foolish Caligula connected it with the Forum (p. 242). The buildings of Nero, which exceeded all reasonable bounds, were abandoned by Vespasian, who confined his imperial residence to the Palatine. His palace, the Domus Flavia, was much extended by his son Domitian, and thenceforward the Palatium, the ancient name of the hill, became synonymous with the imperial palace. Of the subsequent emperors, some of whom altered and restored the buildings, Septimius Severus appears to have been the only one who extended the Flavian palace. He erected the Septizonium, an edifice seven stories high, at the S.W. angle of the hill, part of which was still standing in the 16th cent., but was at length removed by Sixtus V. The Palatium participated in the general decline of the city. It was occupied by Odoacer, Theodoric, and the Emp. Heraclius (629), but from the 10th cent. onwards the ruins were occupied by monasteries, fortified castles, and gardens.

The area of the Palatine is now occupied by two recently dissolved religious houses, the monastery of S. Bonaventura, opposite the arch of Titus, and the Villa Mills, once a nunnery of the order of St. Francis de Sales; by three vineyards, the Vigna Nussiner on the N.W. side, the Vigna del Collegio Inglese at the S.W. corner, and the Vigna di S. Sebastiano on the S.; and finally by the Orti Farnesiani, which cover the whole of the N.E. part of the hill. These gardens were laid out by Paul III. Farnese, who purposed to erect a magnificent villa here in the style of the 16th century. Extensive excavations were begun here in 1726 under the superintendence of Bianchini, but the treasures of art found on that occasion were afterwards transferred to Naples, and the place again entirely neglected. In 1861 Napoleon III. purchased the property from King Francis II. for 250,000 fr., and at a great expense caused the ruins of the imperial palaces to be systematically excavated under the able superintendence of the architect Comm. Pietro Rosa. The Vigna Nussiner was presented to the city by the Emperor of Russia in 1857, after he had caused excavations to be made in it during the preceding nine years; and since 1866 important discoveries have also been made by the Cav. Visconti in the Vigna del Collegio Inglese, which was purchased by Pius IX. Since the annexation of Rome to the kingdom of Italy, and the purchase of the Farnese Gardens by the Italian government in Dec. 1870, for a sum of 650,000 fr., all these excavations have been entrusted to the sole management of M. Rosa. Notwithstanding the great difficulties which have attended the prosecution of the work, the rubbish being 20 ft. deep at places, very important topographical discoveries have been made here, although as yet few works of art have been found. The character of the ruins brought to light cannot always be precisely ascertained, but they convey a striking idea of the structures with which the Palatine was once covered.

The excavations are open to the public daily; comp. p. 118. The ruins may be inspected in the course of an afternoon, but their imposing character, coupled with the beautiful and varied views commanded by the Palatine, renders them well worthy of repeated visits.

M. Rosa has drawn a PLAN of the entire region, which is reproduced photographically and exposed to view at different points. — Permission to sketch and take measurements is given by M. Contiglionzi, Capo dell'Ufficio Tecnico della Direzione Generale delle Antichità, to whom an introduction should be obtained.

We begin with the ruins brought to light in the old Farnese Gardens. The entrance is in the Campo Vaccino, on the right as we approach from the Forum, opposite the Basilica of Constantine, and is inscribed: 'Orti Farnesiani'.

Ascending the first flight of steps (Pl. 1) to the space in front of the dwelling of the director, we turn to the right and enter a small *Museum (Pl. 2), where the most interesting objects found during the excavations, either in the originals or in casts, are collected.

In the centre, near the entrance, young Bacchus led by a nymph; statue of a youth in basalt; small Bacchus; torso of a Venus Genetrix. To the left, by the posterior wall, cast of a Cupid in the act of pouring out wine (original at Paris, found in the Nymphæum of the Flavian palace); on the right, torso of the satyr of Praxiteles; three female busts in nero antico. Left row: *head of Esculapius, perhaps belonging to the torso with the snake on the right; female portrait-head; on the right, head of a dead barbarian; left, heads of Nero and Drusus. By the left wall, objects in ivory, bronze, and terracotta. By the right wall, coins, different kinds of stone found among the ruins. Among the glasses, objects in ivory, fragments of stucco, brick-stamps. Among the terracotta fragments by the wall of the entrance are two interesting *reliefs with representations of mysteries.

We now descend the stone steps to the right to the Clivus Vic-toriae (Pl. 3) is the ancient pavement of which is visible on both sides. The street originally led to the Forum on the right, through the Porta Romana (Pl. 4), but was afterwards entirely covered by the Buildings of Caligula. To these belong the huge substructions and well preserved vaulting. To those belong the bridge which we ascend the Palatine to the right, towards the Forum, we observe above the beginning of the bridge which Caligula caused to be thrown over the Forum to the left (reckoned from the stone tercourses with the Capitoline Jupiter, in order to facilitate his pretended to be. Beyond the following pillar we observe a still preserved fragment of the original marble balustrade.

Returning hence, and ascending the narrow steps, opposite the staircase mentioned above, we reach the bridge, traversing a dark passage with a few steps, we reach the bridge, the direction of which we trace to the farther end, passing various fragments of mosaic pavement. The purpose of the rooms on the left is not yet ascertained. On emerging, we proceed to the left along the slope of the hill, which affords a series of fine views. Immediately in the foreground lie the slopes of the Palatine. In front of the temple of the Dioscuri rises the church of S. Maria Liberatrice (p. 248) with extensive walls adjoining it, occupying the site of the temple of Vesta and the Regia. Farther distant is the venerable circular church of S. Teodoro (p. 248), also erected on the foundations of an ancient structure.

The remains of opus reticulatum (concrete), on the left, belong to the Buildings of Tiberius, which extended to the W. of the palace of Caligula. At the end of the last slope we reach a wooden staircase, near the inscription 'Domus Tiberiana', and descend past a lofty square platform on the right, supposed by Rosa to have been the Auguratorium (Pl. 5), or place where the auspices were consulted, but more probably the remains of a temple 'in antis'. On the left we pass the back of the palace of Tiberius, and soon reach the remains of a — smaller paintings in the corners above, representing sacrificial scenes, afford a good idea of the ancient style of pictures, which like the mediæval altarpieces could be closed by two folding shutters or wings. By the left wall are leaden water-pipes with inscriptions from which the history of this house has been gathered. The walls of the ROOM ON THE RIGHT are adorned with magnificent garlands of flowers and fruits, from which masks and other Bacchanalian objects depend between the columns; the walls of the ROOM ON THE LEFT are divided into brown sections edged with red and green, above which are light arabesques between winged figures on a white ground. Adjoining the right side of the court is the TRICLINIUM, or dining-room, recognisable by the inscription, with walls painted bright red. The two large central paintings represent landscapes, that on the right the attributes of Diana (large indented crown, stag's and wild boar's heads). On the entrance-wall are two glass vases with fruits. — At the back of the house are situated the unpretending offices (bedrooms, store-rooms, etc.), which are reached by a small wooden staircase to the right after the triclinium is quitted.

'Private House (Pl. 8), excavated in 1868, the only one of the kind in the midst of the palaces of the emperors. It is believed to have been the house of Tiberius Claudius Nero, the father of Tiberius, to which his mother Livia also retired after the death of Augustus, in order to marry whom she had divorced. The passage on the left, once built over by Augustus (Cryptoporticus), descended to the river.

Returning through the vestibule to the above mentioned passage (Pl. 7), and following it to the right to the end, where a well-preserved head of Venus in marble stands on a Corinthian capital, we perceive the continuation (Pl. 8) of the passage to the left, leading to the residence of the director. At the beginning of the tunnel-vaulting, considerable remains of the stucco-incrustation are still seen. Beyond these first arches, 35 paces from the head of Venus, a second covered passage (Pl. 9) is reached on the right, with vaulting and pavement in mosaic, of which fragments are extant, leading, finally by steps, to the —

Palace of the Flavii, the most important part of the excavations of the Palatine. About twenty paces straight from the end of the passage we reach the spacious Tablinum (Pl. 10), the actual residence of the emperors. Domitian, by whose father Vespasian the palace was erected, constituted it the chief seat of the Roman government, and made those arrangements which are still traceable in the ruins. The disposition of the apartments is that of an ordinary Roman dwelling (atrium, tablinum, peristylum, etc.), but on a much larger scale, and without offices. The Flavian palace occupied the depression which extended between the buildings of Augustus (the site of the Villa Mills) and those of Tiberius and Caligula; and huge substructions were requisite in order that a level surface might be obtained.

Traversing the tablinum to the left, and proceeding to the N.E. margin of the plateau (in the direction of the basilica of Constantine), we reach an oblong anterior court (Pl. 11) with three rectangular projections, the site of the Atrium, and once surrounded with columns. This was the station of the palace-guards, and also the antechamber for audiences.

From the central projection a view is obtained in a straight direction of the scanty remains of the temple of Jupiter Stator (Pl. 12), the foundation of which tradition ascribes to Romulus, and which was situated near the Porta Mugionis. Remains of a substructure of tufa blocks (two of which bear Greek names), belonging to an ante-Neronian restoration of the temple, have recently been brought to light. To the right of this a part of the ancient basalt pavement of the Via Nova is observed, and farther distant in the foreground, near the inscription 'Roma Quadrata', are remains of the wall of this the most ancient city, constructed of regularly hewn blocks of tufa.

Adjoining the atrium are three chambers, the most S. of which is the Lararium (Pl. 16), or chapel of the Lares or household-gods. On a pedestal at the extremity of the chapel is a small square altar in marble with figures of the Genius Familiaris and the Lares. The former stands in front with covered head; the latter are represented at the sides in the typical style common in Pompeian works of the kind, with boots, a short chiton, a rhyton or drinking-horn in the raised hand, and a situla or pitcher in the other.

The second apartment is the Tablinum (Pl. 10), already mentioned, which in private dwellings was the principal sitting-room. It was here used as an Aula Regia, or throne-room, where the emperors granted audiences. This extensive hall, 39 yds. by 49 yds., with its large semicircular apse which was occupied by the throne, and its eight niches alternately round and square, containing the still existing pedestals, was originally entirely covered; but an adequate idea of its magnificence can hardly now be formed, as it has been deprived of its decorated ceiling, while the walls have lost their marble covering, the niches their statues, and the pedestals their colossal figures.

The third apartment is the Basilica (Pl. 17), where the emperor pronounced his judicial decisions. The semicircular tribune was separated from the space allotted to the litigants by a marble screen, a fragment of which still stands here. This space was flanked on each side by a narrow colonnade, some of the bases of which and one column are preserved.

To the W. of the tablinum is situated the Peristylum (Pl. 18), two-thirds of which only have been excavated (one-third on the S. side is covered by the court of the adjoining Salesian nunnery), a large rectangular garden, 58 yds. in length, originally surrounded by a colonnade. Its imposing dimensions and a few traces of its marble covering (giallo antico) are now the sole indications of its ancient magnificence. The open space in the centre was doubtless occupied by fountains, trees, and flowers.

At the N.W. corner steps descend to two subterranean chambers containing traces of stucco decorations and painting. These belonged to a private house of the republican period, over which the palaces of the Flavii were erected.

Opening on the peristyle along its entire width was the Triclinium (Pl. 19), or dining-hall (Jovis Cœnatio), whence the diners could enjoy a view of the fountains and trees in the garden. In the semicircular apse on the W. wall most of the original marble and porphyry covering of the pavement still exists. The remains of the pavement and covering of the wall on the N. side are more scanty. — Adjacent to the latter is the Nymphaeum (Pl. 20), or fountain saloon, containing an elliptical basin, in the centre of which rises a fountain covered with partially preserved marble slabs, and once employed as a stand for plants.

The other smaller chambers which extend along the N. side of the palace are of inferior interest, and their purposes are not yet ascertained. The same may be said of the chambers adjoining the back of the dining-hall on the W. We next enter a Colonnade (Pl. 21), with six cipolline columns (two of which are entire, and the others in fragments). A view is obtained, through the broken pavement, of the original level over which the Flavii built. The following room (Pl. 22), as the inscription indicates, is conjectured to have been the Library; and we finally enter a room (Pl. 23) with a slightly rounded niche and seats along the walls, supposed to have been the Academia or lecture-room.

From the Academia a few steps descend to the flight of steps by which an ancient temple was approached. This, according to Rosa, was the temple of Jupiter Victor (Pl. 24), erected in consequence of a vow made by Fabius Maximus at the Battle of Sentinum, B.C. 295, and is approached by twenty-six steps in five different flights. On the 4th landing is a round pedestal with an inscription, being a votive offering presented by Domitius Calvinus, who triumphed over Spain in B.C. 36. The upper half of the pedestal has been destroyed. At the top of the steps we reach the nearly square sub-structure of the temple, the great age of which is indicated by the Opposite the S.W. corner of this temple descends a road (Pl. 25), connecting the imperial ruins on the S. side of the Palatine with those above described. Before visiting these ruins, we may proceed about fifty paces farther to a flight of steps (Pl. 26), which formed the ancient approach to the Palatine from the Circus Maximus. The steps are hewn in the natural tufa rock, and are flanked by huge blocks of stone, which, being fitted together without mortar, indicate the great antiquity of the structure. The destination of the buildings on either side is still involved in obscurity. The circumstance, however, that the whole of the W. spur of the hill (Germ. Germanicus) was respected by the emperors in their building operations raises a strong presumption that this was the site of the most ancient shrines of the city of the Palatine.

We now return to the above mentioned road (Pl. 25), descending as far as its first turn towards the left, and then proceed for 3 miles straight along the hill, passing several unexplained ruins and the gardener's house below the Villa Mills, the beautiful cypresses which peep down from above. Beyond the house we ascend a flight of stone steps and then a wooden staircase to a PLATEAU (Pl. 27), bounded on the E. and S. by the ruins of imposing palaces. These ruins belong to those palaces which mainly owed their existence to the later emperors, and particularly to Septimius Severus, after a great fire which took place in 191. In magnitude picturesqueness these ruins surpass those of the Farnese Gardens, but are of inferior interest owing to the obscurity in which their arrangements and purposes are involved. The excavations, commenced here by order of Pius IX., have brought to light many of the lower chambers of these palaces and earlier buildings.

Turning to the left on the plateau, past a wooden balustrade, towards the white hut of the custodian, we reach the Stadium (Pl. 28), which separated the buildings of Septimius Severus from the old palace of Augustus, and from which the rubbish has lately been cleared away. (Opposite us lies the convent of S. Bonaventura, with its palms towering over the wall; on our left rise the white convent walls of the Villa Mills.) Although not mentioned by any known author, there is no doubt that this was the stadium, or race-course. The length, 185 mètres (625 Roman or 607 Engl. ft.), is precisely that of the stadium. At the W. end is the Meta (Pl. 29), which was restored as lately as the time of Theodoric, and has since been converted into a trough for water. The structure appears to date from the reign of Domitian. The whole of this plateau was originally enclosed by a colonnade, consisting of pillars of masonry encrusted with marble, with half-columns in front of them. At the entrance, below us on the left, we observe the remains of these pillars, and others are seen farther on. In the centre the colonnade was adjoined by three chambers (Pl. 30) of the time of Hadrian, covered by the imposing apse of a later edifice. The third of these still shows traces of mural paintings and mosaic pavement. In one of the smaller chambers, which the custodian will open on application, stands a white marble *Female Statue, found in 1877, in clearing away the rubbish from the stadium. This statue, unfortunately headless, is a masterpiece of technical skill, and seems to have represented one of the empresses with the attributes of deity. In the large central chamber the beginning of the vaulted ceiling is distinctly traceable. Several more fragments of the pillars of the colonnade are seen beyond this, on both sides of the path, and we at length reach the E. side of the structure at the extremity of the plateau. The variegated marble covering of the half-columns is here particularly observable. To the right, in front of the wooden door, is an ancient staircase which descended through a painted passage to the colonnade (Pl. 31). — Turning hence towards the S.W., and passing the back of the apse (Pl. 32), the lofty proportions and coffered vaulting of which should be observed, we enjoy a beautiful view to the S.; and, proceeding between insignificant remains of buildings, and keeping to the right, cross a paved bridge to a Platform (Pl. 33) supported by three lower stories, and commanding a magnificent *VIEW in every direction.

Towards the E. tower the ruins of the Colosseum, nearer are five arches of the Aqua Claudia (Pl. 34) which supplied the Palatine with water; more to the right (S.) are the churches of S. Giovanni e Paolo, the Lateran, in the largest S. Gregorio, and above it S. Stefano Rotondo; and the new casino of the Villa Mattei. Still farther to the right appear the ruins of the Theatre of Caracalla (the two towers beyond, to the left, belong to the ruins of the Jewish burial-ground on the site of the Circus). The Pyramid of Cestius, and in the Campagna S. Paolo Fucaventine with its three churches, and lastly St. Peter.

Recrossing the bridge, and retracing our steps (Pl. 27) above described, where most of the ruin ornament, and uninteresting, we next descend a and the steps below it, near the gardener's house kitchen-garden arrive at a series of chambers lying of the Palatine, below the verandah of the Villa M longed to the —

Pædagogium (Pl. 35), or school for the imperials like those of all the wealthier Romans, received a care. A portico of granite columns, one of which still has marble entablature now supported by pillars of masonry of these apartments. The walls are covered with writing done with the stilus, or ancient substitute for a pen), names, sentences, and sketches, similar to the per mischief-loving schoolboys of the present day. The caricature of the Crucified, now in the Museo Kircheriano was found here. These scrawls, one of which is 'Corin pædagogio', furnished the clue to the use of this building.

On the left wall of the Third Room is the sketch of a man on an ass, under which is the inscription, 'laborem aselle quomodo ei proderit Nisi'. The figure of a Roman soldier is also scratched on the wall here. On the posterior wall one of the most conspicuous Felici, in large letters, both Greek and Roman. — On either central semicircular chamber with a square niche is situated a circularly shaped chamber; that on the right is adorned with murals (of Fortuna, etc.).

Proceeding in the same direction, and passing through we proceed for about 200 paces to an altar of travertine with an ancient inscription ('sei deo sei deivæ sacrum'), dedicated to the unknown God. Some 80 paces beyond it is the largest existing fragment of the ancient wall of Rome (constructed, without mortar, of blocks of tufa placed at length and breadth-wise. It was originally 40-48 ft. in height but is now 13 ft. only. Adjoining this is a grotto, supposed to be the Lupercol (Pl. 37) in which the she-wolf is said to have been a refuge when driven from the twins by the shepherds. A series of steps ascend from this grotto to the plateau of the hill, terminating at the point indicated by the inscription, 'Supercilium scalarum'.

About 250 paces farther we pass above the church of S. Maria in Ardeatina (p. 236) and again reach the Porta Romana (Pl. 4). As an approximation to the excursion the visitor is recommended to take the terrace by the director's house, whence an admirable of the chaos of ruins, the city, the Campagna, and the distant mountains is enjoyed.

The street ascending to the right of the egress, past the arch of Titus, leads to the monastery church of S. Sebastiano alla Polveriera (see Plan), the tribune of which contains mural paintings supposed to date from the 6th century. The garden of the Franciscan monastery of S. Bonaventura, situated higher up, with its conspicuous palms, is a favourite point of view.

Velabrum and Forum Boarium.

Quitting the Forum, we now follow the slope of the Palatine, passing the church of S. Maria Liberatrice (Pl. II, 20), which stands on the site of the temple of Vesta; we then traverse the Via di S. Teodoro, and reach on the left the round church of S. Teodoro (Pl. II, 21), standing in a low situation, a little back from the street. The earliest mention of it dates from the time of Gregory the Great, and it probably occupies the site of an ancient temple. In the interior is preserved a Christian mosaic of the 7th century. (The church is accessible on Fridays before 9 a. m.)

A little beyond it the street divides. That to the right, which we follow, descends to the ancient VELABRUM, a quarter prolonged towards the Forum by the Vicus Tuscus (p. 226), and towards the river by the Forum Boarium. The first ancient building we reach is the so-called **Janus Quadrifrons* (Arco di Giano; Pl. II, 21), an arched passage with four façades, dating from the later imperial age, and supposed to have been erected in honour of Constantine the Great. Above it once rose a second story, and it was perhaps used as a kind of exchange.

To the right of this is S. Giorgio in Velabro (Pl. II, 21), founded in the 4th cent., re-erected by Leo II. in 682 and dedicated to SS. George and Sebastian, and often restored subsequently. The portico, according to the metrical inscription, dates from one of these restorations. (In the middle ages the word Velabrum was altered to 'velum aureum'.) The interior is a basilica with aisles, sixteen antique columns, and an old tabernacle. The frescoes of Giotto with which the tribuna is said to have been once adorned have been painted over. Festivals, 20th Jan. and 23rd April. (The church is generally closed; visitors knock at the door by the church to the left, behind the arch mentioned below.)

Adjacent to the church is the small Arch of the Money-changers (Arcus Argentarius; Pl. II, 21, 1), which, according to the inscription, was erected by the money-changers and merchants of the Forum Boarium in honour of Septimius Severus and his wife and sons. The worthless sculptures represent victims and sacrificial utensils.

From this point to the Tiber, stretched the extensive Forum Boarium, or cattle-market, a very important centre of business.

IV. Ancient Rome. 24

mentioned arch, and passing the mill, we arrive at the Cloaca Maxima (Pl. II, 18), founded by the Tarquinii for the drainage of the Forum and the low ground adjoining it. It is the earliest known application of the arch-principle in Rome, and has defied the vicissitudes of more than 2000 years. Two-thirds of the depth are now filled up. A basin was for here, into which springs were conducted in order to produce a current through the Cloaca. In the mill (25c.) is seen the continuation of the Cloaca towards the Forum, and from the Portico its influx into the Tiber. It is constructed of peperine with occasional layers of travertine; and the mouth of peperine.

Continuing to follow the street beyond the arch of Janus, and turning to the left, we reach the Piazza Bocca della Verità, which partly coincides with the ancient Forum Boarium, with a fountain in the centre. Here to the left, at the foot of the Aventine, stands the church of —

S. Maria in Cosmedin (Pl. II, 18), sometimes called Bocca della Verità from the mouth of a fountain to the left in the portico, into which, to a mediæval tradition, the ancient Romans used to insert their right hands when binding themselves by an oath. The church, which is said to date from the 3rd cent., was rebuilt in the 8th by Hadrian I. who erected the beautiful campanile, and it has since been frequently restored. It derives the name 'in Cosmedin' from a place at Constantinople, S. Maria in Schola Graeca). The beautiful opus Alexandrinum of the pavement merits inspection. In the nave are preserved remains of the ancient choir; on the right and left are two handsome ambros and a candelabrum for Easter ceremonies. Canopy of the high-altar by Deodatus (19th cent.). In the apse a handsome episcopal throne of the same period, and an old Madonna. The sacristy contains a mosaic (Adoration of the Magi), originally presented to St. Peter's by John VII. in 708. The venerable crypt is borne by four columns of granite and two of marble.

Opposite, on the Tiber, not far from the church, stands a small and picturesque Round Temple, the Temple of Hercules Victor (?), formerly called a Temple of Vesta (now S. Maria del Sole), consisting of twenty Corinthian columns, one of which next to the river is wanting, covered by a slight wooden roof. The ancient entablature and roof have disappeared.

To the N. of this, immediately to the right, is a second small and well preserved Temple (converted in 880 into the church of S. Maria Egiziaea), which, as its style appears to indicate, dates from the close of the Republic. It is an Ionic pseudoperipteros, with four columns at each end, and seven on each side; but these

On the other side of the transverse street rises the picturesque House of Crescentius (Pl. II, 18, 3), or Casa di Rianai, or di R- into, as it is commonly called, a building constructed of brick with a singular admixture of antique fragments. On the side, Via del Ricovero, a long inscription records that 'this lofty house' was erected by Nicholas, son of Crescentius, not from motives of ambition, but as a reminiscence of the ancient glory of Rome. The Crescentii were the most powerful noble family in Rome at the close of the 10th cent., but the house, the oldest existing specimen of medieval domestic architecture, does not date from an earlier period than the 11th, or perhaps 12th cent. The building was originally much more extensive, and was intended to command the bridge over the Tiber.

The Ponte Rotto (Pl. II, 18) crosses from this point to Trastevere (p. 329). The ancient bridge which once stood here is supposed to have been the Pons Æmilias, built in B.C. 181. After frequent restorations, the two arches next the left bank fell in 1508, and the bridge was never rebuilt; and thence its present name. In 1853 an iron chain-bridge was thrown across the gap (p. 329). The bridge affords a picturesque view: on the right the island of the Tiber, in form resembling a ship; on the left the Aventino; below, the influx of the Cloaca Maxima, and extensive embankments which protect the banks against the violence of the current.

If, in proceeding from the Forum through the Via di S. Tondoro, we leave the Janus Quadrifrons (p. 245) on the right, we soon reach, in the Via de' Fanili, at the corner, the church of S. Anastasia (Pl. II, 21) mentioned as early as 480, frequently restored, and finally modernised during last century. By the buttresses of the interior the ancient columns

The Aventine.*Monte Testaccio. S. Paolo Fuori.

The Aventine (151 ft.), anciently the principal seat of the Roman Plebs, and afterwards densely peopled, is now quite deserted, being occupied by monasteries and vineyards only. At its base lies the Porta S. Paolo, leading to the celebrated Basilica of that name, adjoining which is the Pyramid of Cestius with the Protestant Burial-ground and the enigmatical Monte Testaccio. The main street skirts the base of the hill close to the river, whilst other steep streets ascend the hill.

The principal street quits the Piazza Bocca della Verità (p. 249) on the S. side under the name of VIA DELLA SALARA. To the left, by the church of S. Maria in Cosmedin, the street mentioned at p. 254 diverges to S. Prisca. About 2 min. farther, at the small Chapel of St. Anna, a second street diverges, leading to the three churches mentioned at pp. 253, 254.

The main street then runs between houses and walls of no interest, and under the name of VIA DELLA MARMORATA (Pl. II, 18) reaches the Tiber in 6 min. from the Piazza Bocca della Verità, and skirts the river for about 2 min. To the right we enjoy a pleasing retrospect of the Ponte Rotto and the Capitol. The large building on the opposite bank is the Hospital of S. Michele (p. 331); in front of it is the small harbour where the steamers to Ostia and Porto lie. We next reach the Marmorata (Pl. III, 18), the landing-place and depôt of the unwrought marble of Carrara. In the course of excavations made on the bank of the river below this point since 1867 the Emporium, or ancient quay, has been discovered.

After following the footpath by the river for 8 min., we reach several raised landing-places with inclined planes to facilitate the removal of heavy weights. Rings for mooring vessels are still visible. Numerous blocks of wrought and unwrought marble were found in the vicinity, some of them of rare quality and great value; and many still bearing the marks of the quarry, numbers, addresses, and other inscriptions.

From the Marmorata the street runs between walls and through an archway of brick. After 6 min. the road from the three churches on the Aventine descends from the left (see p. 254). We pass to the right through a gateway (closed with an iron gate since 1870), where the so-called Prati del Popolo Romano begin, and follow the path to the left, which soon leads us to the pyramid of Cestius, with the old Protestant cemetery, and to the new cemetery beyond it.

The Protestant Cemetery (Pl. III, 16) is open from 7 a.m. till dusk (custodian a few soldi). The smaller and older burying-ground was laid out at the beginning of the century, but is now disused. In 1825 the present burial-ground, since doubled in extent, was set apart for this purpose. It is a retired spot, rising gently towards the city-wall, affording pleasing views, and shaded by lofty cypresses, where numerous English, American, German, Russian, and other visitors to Rome are interred.

Amongst many illustrious names the eye will fall with interest upon that of the poet Shelley (d. 1822), 'cor cordium', whose heart only was buried here (near the upper, or Eastern, wall). His remains were burned in the bay of Spezia, where they were washed on shore. The tombstone of John Keats, who also rests here, bears the melancholy inscription, 'Here lies one whose name was writ in water'.

The *Pyramid of Cestius (Pl. III, 16), originally situated in the Via Ostiensis, was enclosed by Aurelian within the city-wall. This is the tomb of Caius Cestius, who died within the last thirty years before Christ. The Egyptian pyramidal form was not unfrequently adopted by the Romans in the construction of their tombs. That of Cestius is constructed of brick and covered with marble blocks; height 116 ft., width of each side of the base 98 ft.

According to the principal INSCRIPTION on the E. and W. sides ('C. Cestius L. F. Pob. Epulo. Pr. Tr. Pl. VII. vir Epulonum'), the deceased was prætor, tribune of the people, and member of the college of Septemviri Epulonum, or priests whose office was to conduct the solemn sacrificial banquets. The inscription on the W. side below records that the monument was erected in 330 days under the supervision of L. Pontius Mela and the freedman Pothus. Alexander VII. caused the somewhat deeply imbedded monument to be extricated in 1663, on which occasion, besides the two columns of white marble, the colossal bronze foot, now in the collection of bronzes in the Capitoline Museum (p. 216), was found. According to the inscription on the pedestal, it appears to have belonged to a colossal statue of Cestius. — The VAULT (19 ft. long, 13 ft. wide, and 16 ft. high) was originally accessible by ladders only. The present entrance was made by order of Alexander VII. (key kept by the custodian of the Protestant cemetery). The vaulting shows traces of painting.

Crossing the meadows, we next proceed to *Monte Testaccio (Pl. III, 13), an isolated mound, 164 ft. in height, rising not far from the Tiber, which, as the name indicates, consists entirely of broken pottery. When and how this hill was formed is still an unsolved mystery. The popular belief was that the vessels in which conquered nations paid their tribute-money were broken here, while the learned have assumed that potteries once existed in the vicinity, and that the broken fragments together with other rubbish were collected here to be used for building purposes. Others have connected this remarkable hill with the Neronian conflagration, or with the magazines situated on the Tiber near the old harbour (p. 250). The hill existed prior to the Aurelian wall, and brick stamps found there date from the first centuries of the Christian era. It is now perforated on all sides by cellars, in some of which wine is sold, and on holidays it is much visited by pleasure-seekers (pp. 107, 116). — The summit is marked by a wooden cross and commands a magnificent **PANORAMA: —

To the N., the city, beyond it the mountains surrounding the crater of Baccano, then the isolated Soracte with its five peaks. To the E. the Sabine Mts., in the background the imposing Leonessa, in the nearer chain M. Genaro, at its base Monticelli, farther to the right Tivoli. Beyond this chain the summits of M. Velino above the Lago Fucino are visible. To the S. of Tivoli appears Palestrina. After a depression, above which some of the Volscian Mts. rise, follow the Alban Mts.: on the buttress farthest E. is Colonna, beyond it Frascati, higher up Rocca di Papa, M. Cavo with its monastery, below it Marino, finally to the right Castel Gandolfo.

The most conspicuous objects in the broad Campagna are the long rows of arches of the Aqua Claudia and the Acqua Felice towards the S., and the tombs of the Via Appia with that of Cæcilia Metella.

By taking the second road ascending from the Via Salara to the left, about 200 paces to the S. of the Piazza Bocca della Verità (comp. p. 251), we reach the three CHURCHES ON THE AVENTINE, which are situated close together immediately above the road and the river, and may be conveniently visited either in going to, or returning from S. Paolo Fuori (comp. p. 254).

*S. Sabina (Pl. III, 18), which probably occupies the site of an ancient temple, was erected in 425, in the pontificate of Celestine I., by Petrus, an Illyrian priest, and restored in the 13th, 15th, and 16th centuries. Since the time of Innocent III. it has belonged to the Dominicans. It is usually entered by a side-door; if closed, visitors ring at the door to the left, and proceed through the monastery to the old portico, now closed, and the principal portal. The doors are adorned with wood carvings representing biblical subjects (5th cent.?).

The INTERIOR, with its twenty-four ancient Corinthian columns of Parian marble and open roof, has well preserved the character of an early Basilica.

ENTRANCE-WALL. Over the door, an ancient *Mosaic (5th cent.); inscription with the name of the founder; on the left a figure emblematical of the Ecclesia ex Circumcisione (Jewish Christians), on the right that of the Ecclesia ex Gentibus (Pagan Christians).

NAVE. On the pavement in the centre of the nave is the tomb of Munio da Zamora, principal of the Dominican order (d. 1300), adorned with mosaic.

— At the extremity of the right aisle, the *Madonna del Rosario with St. Dominicus and St. Catharine, an altar-piece by Sassoferrato, regarded as his master-piece. Other paintings (by Zuccherò and others) are of no great value. Festival, 29th Aug.

The adjoining Monastery possesses handsome cloisters with upwards of 100 small columns. The garden commands a fine *VIEW of Rome, with the Tiber in the foreground.

S. Alessio (Pl. III, 18) is an ancient church with an entrance-court. The date of its foundation is unknown, but it was re-consecrated by Honorius III. after the recovery of the relics of the saint in 1217. In 1426 it came into the possession of the order of St. Jerome. In the neighbouring monastery a blind asylum (Istituto de' Ciechi) has been established. We enter the fore-court, and, if the church is closed, ring at the door on the left ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

The INTERIOR was modernised in 1750, and again recently. The N. Aisle contains a well and a wooden staircase belonging to the house of the parents of the saint, which formerly stood on the site of the church. Two small columns adorned with mosaic in the choir are, according to the inscription, the remains of a work of 19 columns by Jac. Cosmas.

A small piazza is next reached, where the route to Porta S. Paolo (p. 254) turns to the left. The green door No. 5, to the right in this piazza, contains the celebrated *KEY-HOLE through which St. Peter's is seen at the end of the principal avenue of the garden. — Visitors ring (5-10s.) in order to obtain access to the church of —

S. Maria Aventina, or del Priorato (Pl. III, 18). This church, which was founded at a very remote period, was restored by Pius V. and altered to its present form by Piranesi in 1765.

On the right of the entrance is an ancient sarcophagus, on which the deceased (head unfinished), surrounded by Minerva and the Muses, is represented; the remains of a Bishop Spinelli were afterwards placed in it. Also a statue of Piranesi, and the tombs of several members of the Maltese order (Caraffa, Caracciolo, Seripando, etc.) of the 15th cent.

From the garden of the adjacent Maltese Priory, to which the church belongs, a picturesque view of the river and city is obtained. The above named route to the Porta S. Paolo descends in 10 min. to the main road, described at p. 251, exactly opposite the gate through which the route to the Protestant cemetery and the Monte Testaccio diverges to the right from the road.

The first street diverging from the Via della Salara (p. 251) to the left, immediately beyond S. Maria in Cosmedin (at the bifurcation of which we take the branch to the right), crosses the Aventine and again joins the main street near the Porta S. Paolo. In 10 min. we reach S. Prisca (Pl. III, 21), usually closed, a church of very early origin, but modernised in the 17th cent. The ancient columns have been built into the walls. It perhaps occupies the site of the temple of Diana belonging to the ancient Latin League, and founded by Servius Tullius.

The Vigna Maccarani (Pl. III, 17), opposite the church, contains a fragment of the venerable Servian Wall, excavated on the slope of the Aventine. (We reach it by traversing the vineyard straight to the end, and then taking the main path to the left.) It consists of large blocks of tuffstone, placed alternately length and breadth-wise. The arch here belongs to a much later period. In the latter period of the republic the wall, as the ruins indicate, was disused and entirely built over. Another, but more imperfect fragment may be seen in the vigna on the other side of the street, below S. Saba.

Below S. Prisca, the street ascends, in the direction of the gate to S. Saba (Pl. III, 20), a church of great antiquity, but almost entirely rebuilt in 1465. To the left in the portico is an ancient sarcophagus with a representation of a wedding and Juno Pronuba. The interior contains 14 columns, some of granite, others of marble, with mutilated capitals; the walls of the nave show traces of painting. The church belongs to the Collegium Germanicum, and is most easily seen on Thursday afternoons. Festival, 5th Dec.

About 11½ M. from the PORTA S. PAOLO (Pl. III, 16; comp. map, p. 338), anciently the Porta Ostiensis, is situated the celebrated church of S. Paolo Fuori le Mura. About midway on the unattractive route a small chapel on the left indicates the spot where, according to the legend, St. Peter and St. Paul took leave of each other on their last journey. — Omnibus in the afternoon every half-hour from the Piazza Campitelli (P. 113; Pl. II, 17), 6 soldi; acre  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -2 fr.

* S. Paolo Fuori le Mura was founded in 388 by Theodosius and Valentinian II. on the site of a small church of Constantine, and was restored and embellished by many of the popes, especially Leo XII. Prior to the conflagration of the night of 15th July, 1823, this was the finest and most interesting church at Rome. It was a basilica with double aisles and open roof; and the architrave was supported by eighty columns of pavonazzetto and Parian marble, adorned with busts of the popes. It contained numerous ancient mosaics and frescoes, and in the Confessio the sarcophagus of St. Paul, who, according to tradition, was interred by a pious woman named Lucina on her property here. The front towards the Tiber was approached by a colonnade, and early in the middle ages an arcaded passage connected it with the city.

Immediately after the fire, Leo XII. began the work of restoration, which was presided over by Belli, and afterwards by Poletti. The transept was consecrated by Gregory XVI. in 1840, and the whole church by Pius IX. in 1854, on the occasion of the meeting of the Council. The plan and the dimensions are the same as those of the original building, with which, however, the gorgeous decoration and other details are entirely inconsistent, and we now have a showy and, in many respects, unpleasing pile, instead of the simple and majestic early Christian basilica. The chief façade, as formerly, is turned towards the Tiber. The mosaics on the upper part of it, completed in 1875, representing Christ with SS. Peter and Paul, in the symbolical style of the early Christians, with the four great prophets below them, were executed by F. Agricola and Consoni, in the papal mosaic manufactory. The lower half of the façade, with the Atrium, is still uncompleted.

The present ENTRANCE is either from the road on the opposite (E.) side, or by the portico on the N. side. The former, at the back of the campanile, should be selected.

The SMALL CHAMBER first entered contains a colossal statue of Gregory XVI., and a few frescoes and ancient mosaics rescued from the fire. To the left is the entrance to the SACRISTY, which contains several good oil-paintings. Over the door the Scourging of Christ (attributed to Signorelli), on the right a Madonna with SS. Benedict, Paul, Peter, and Justina. Also four single figures of the same saints. — In a straight direction from the entrance-hall several chapels are reached, containing a few ancient but largely restored frescoes. The second to the right contains an entrance into the church, and the last to the left the entrance to the court of the monastery (see below), and another to the church on the right. We first enter the transept, but the following description begins with the nave.

The INTERIOR (130 yds. in length, 65 yds. in width, 75 ft. in height), with double aisles and a transept, borne by columns of granite from the Simplon, is imposing from its vast dimensions, and the valuable materials of which it is built. The best survey of it is obtained from the W. end of the nave.

The ceiling of the nave is richly coffered, instead of being open, or entirely flat, like that of the early Christian basilicas. The two yellowish columns of oriental alabaster at the entrance, as well as the four of the canopy of the high-altar, were presented by the Viceroy of Egypt, and the malachite pedestals by the Emp. Nicholas of Russia. Above the columns of the nave and aisles, and in the transept, is a long series of Portrait-medallions of all the popes in mosaic (each 5 ft. in diameter). Between the windows in the upper part of the NAVE are representations from the life of St. Paul by Gagliardi, Podesti, Consoni, Balbi, etc. The windows of the external aisles are filled with stained glass (apostles and Fathers of the church, with their names surrounded with glories). On the sides of the approach to the transept are the colossal statues of SS. Peter and Paul; the **Confessio*, or shrine, is richly decorated with rosso and verde from the lately re-discovered ancient quarries in Greece.

The ARCH of the Choir is adorned with Mosaics of the 5th cent., executed by order of Galla Placidia, sister of Honorius and Arcadius: Christ with the 24 elders of revelation. On the side next the transept: Christ in the centre, left Paul, right Peter. — Under the arch is the HIGH-ALTAR with a *canopy by Arnolfo del Cambio, the architect of the cathedral of Florence, and his assistant Pietro (1285). — In the TRIBUNE **Mosaics* of the beginning of the 13th cent.: in the centre Christ, with Pope Honorius III. at his feet; on the right SS. Peter and Andrew, on the left Paul and Luke. Under these are the Twelve Apostles and two angels. Below them is the modern episcopal throne. — The LEFT TRANSEPT contains the (1st) CHAPEL OF ST. STEPHEN, with a statue of the saint by Rinaldi, and two pictures (Stoning of St. Stephen, by Podesti, and the Council of high-priests, by Coghetti). (2nd) CAPPELLA DEL CROCIFISSO: in front of the mosaic below it, Ignatius Loyola and his adherents pronounced the vows of their new order, 22nd April, 1541. — On the right, adjoining the apse, the (1st) CAP. DEL CORO, designed by C. Maderna, was spared by the fire. (2nd) CAP. DI S. BENEDETTO, with his statue by Tenerani. — By the narrow walls of the TRANSEPT: to the left, altar with the Conversion of St. Paul by Camuccini and the statues of St. Romuald by Stocchi, and St. Gregory by Laboureur; to the right, altar with the Coronation of the Virgin by Podesti, and statues of SS. Benedict and Theresa by Baini and Tenerani. Easter candleabrum dating from the 12th cent.

The MONASTERY of the church has belonged to the Benedictines since 1442. It possesses a beautiful *COURT of the 13th cent. (entrance, see above; keys at the sacristy; 1/2 fr.), containing numerous heathen and early Christian inscriptions from the catacombs, and a few fragments of ancient and mediæval sculptures, among them a large sarcophagus with the history of Apollo and Marsyas. The celebrated Carolingian Bible with miniatures (9th cent.) is seldom shown to visitors, but access may be obtained to the inscriptions and portraits of the popes (7th cent.) and the ancient bronze doors of the portal (11th cent.). The monastery is richly endowed, but the situation is so unhealthy that it is deserted during the summer. The principal festivals of the church are on 25th Jan., 30th June, and 28th Dec.

Opposite the church a poor osteria. The taverns on the road 1/2 M. farther are favourite resorts. — The Via delle Sette Chiese, and Abbadia delle Tre Fontane, see pp. 341, 342.

The Via Appia within the City.

From the Arch of Constantine (p. 235) we follow the Via di S. Gregorio towards the S., leading between the Palatine and Cælius. On the right we observe the two handsome palms of the convent of S. Bonaventura on the Palatine (p. 248), and the arches of the Aqua Claudia (p. 246). After 5 min. S. Gregorio (p. 260) lies on the left, beyond which the Via de' Cerchi (p. 250) diverges to the right.

Near the point where the Via S. Gregorio unites with the VIA DI PORTA S. SEBASTIANO (Pl. III, 24, 26), was anciently situated the Porta Capena, or Capuan Gate, whence the Via Appia issued. We follow the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano to the left.

After 5 min., at the end of the avenue which runs parallel with the street on the right, a road ascends on the right to the church of S. Balbina (Pl. III, 23), situated on the slope of the Aventine, perhaps on the site of an ancient temple, and rated by Gregory the Great. The roof is still open, but modernised and destitute of ornament. It contains a reliquary by Mino da Pissole and a monument by Johannes Cozzani at the gate on the right of the church.) The adjacent tower commands a view of the Palatine to the left, and of the Celian, with the Villa Mattei (p. 261) and S. Stefano Rotondo.

After following the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano for about  $\frac{1}{2}$  M., we obtain a view to the left of the Villa Mattei, to which the Via delle Mole di S. Sisto diverges to the left. The road here crosses the turbid streamlet Marrana, immediately beyond which, to the right, the Via Antonina leads to the ruins of the — \*Thermae of Caracalla, or Antoninianae (Pl. III, 23; admission daily from 9 a.m. till sunset, 1 fr.; Sundays gratis). They were

The magnificence of the establishment was unparalleled. Numerous statues, including the Farnese Bull, Hercules, and Flora at Naples, mosaics, etc., have been found here; and bare as the walls now are, and notwithstanding the destruction of the roof, they still afford a reminiscence of the technical perfection of the structure. The establishment was quadrangular in form, surrounded by a wall, and had its porticoes, race-course, etc.: length 240 yds., width 124 yds.; total area of grounds 360 yds. in length, by as many in breadth. The use of all the chambers cannot now be ascertained, and the most important only are enumerated here.

We first enter in a straight direction a spacious oblong, once surrounded by columns (Peristyle), and containing scanty remains of mosaic pavement. Keeping to the left, we enter a large saloon, which appears to have been the Calidarium, or hot-air bath. From the calidarium a second peristyle is entered, corresponding to the former. In the new pavement the places where the columns formerly stood are left open. Around, as in the other rooms, are placed architectural and sculptural fragments, remains of the old pavement, etc. We now traverse the semicircular Exedra to the Tepidarium, or warm bath, situated in the centre, next to the calidarium. To the left of this is the Frigidarium, or cold bath, a large round space, the vaulting of which has fallen in. A small flight of steps by the wall here affords a survey of part of the grounds which surrounded the baths. On this side lay the stadium. Other remains of the Thermæ are scattered over the neighbouring vineyards.

We now return to the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano, and continue to follow it. We first reach an arboretum on the left; then, a little beyond it, on the right, the church of SS. Nereo ed Achilleo (Pl. III, 23, 26), standing on the site of a temple of Isis, founded by Leo III. about 800, and almost entirely rebuilt by Card. Baronius at the end of the 16th century. (Festival, 12th May; open in the forenoon.)

The INTERIOR exhibits the characteristics of an ancient basilica. At the end of the nave is an ambo on the left, supposed to be of great age, transferred hither from S. Silvestro in Capite; opposite is a marble candelabrum for the Easter-candles, of the 15th cent. Above the arch of the tribune are fragments of a mosaic of the time of Leo III. Transfiguration of Christ with Moses and Elias, in front the kneeling Apostles, on the right the Annunciation, on the left the Madonna enthroned.

The opposite church of S. Sisto, restored by Benedict XIII., contains nothing worthy of note. The monastery was dedicated to St. Dominicus by Honorius III. — The Via della Ferratella then diverges to the left to the Lateran (p. 267), passing the ruin of a small temple of the Lares.

On the right, a little farther on, is S. Cesareo, a small but curious church, mentioned as early as the time of Gregory the Great, and small restored by Clement VIII. (open on the mornings of Sundays and festivals).

INTERIOR. In the centre of the anterior portion of the church are two altars dating from the close of the 16th cent.; at the farther extremity, to the left, the old pulpit with sculptures; Christ as the Lamb, the symbols of the Apostles, and sphinxes; opposite, a modern candelabrum with ancient basis. The inlaid screen of the PRESBYTERIUM, and the decorations of the HIGH-ALTAR are mediæval. The tribune contains an ancient episcoppal throne.

The piazza in front of the church is adorned with an ancient column. The ancient Via Latina, which traversed the valley of the Sacco and terminated at Capua, diverges here to the left.

The old Porta Latina (Pl. III, 28) was closed in 1808. Near it, to the left (5 min. walk from S. Cesareo), beyond the old monastery, is the church of S. Giovanni a Porta Latina (Pl. III, 29), which was modernised by restorations in 1586, in 1633, and chiefly by Card. Rasponi in 1686. The four antique columns in the portico and ten in the interior are now almost the only objects of interest it contains.

To the right, nearer the gate, is an octagonal chapel of the 16th cent., named S. Giovanni in Oleo from the legend that St. John was thrown into a cauldron of boiling oil at this spot, but having come out unhurt was then set at liberty.

The adjoining vineyard (No. 1; key kept by custodian of the church) contains, immediately to the left, a columbarium (see below) with interesting decorations in stucco and colours, the so-called Tomb of the Freedmen of Octavia. A staircase, partly modern, descends to a niche decorated with plaster, below which is a cinerary urn with shells and mosaic. The tomb is vaulted; on the right is an apse with painted vine-wreaths and Victories. Here and along the wall are several aediculae, or cinerary urns in the form of temples, with inscriptions and figures. The vigna commands a pleasing view of the city. It may be traversed, and quitted by an egress to the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano. At the outlet is the tomb of the Scipios.

Farther on in the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano, on the left by the cypress, in the vigna No. 13 (formerly Vigna Sassi) is the celebrated Tomb of the Scipios (Pl. III, 25, 28; visited by candle-light, uninteresting;  $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr.), discovered in 1780, but now containing a model only of the ancient sarcophagus of peperine-stone, which Pius VII. caused to be removed with the fragments of the others to the Vatican (see p. 309). This sarcophagus once contained the remains of L. Cornelius Scipio Barbatus, Consul in B.C. 298, the eldest member of the family buried here. The bones of the hero, which were found in good preservation, were interred at Padua by Quirini, a Venetian, in order to withdraw them from the gaze of the curious. Here, too, were interred the son of the latter, Consul in 259, many of the younger Scipios, the poet Ennius, and several members of other families and freedmen. The tomb was originally above the surface of the earth, with a lofty threshold; the interior was supported by walls hewn in the solid tufa-rock. It was probably injured, or at least altered, during the imperial age, when freedmen were interred here; and as it has since been to some extent modernised, it is hardly worthy of a visit.

The adjacent Vigna Codini, No. 14, contains three **Columbaria* in excellent preservation (1 fr.).

These Columbaria are tombs capable of containing a great number of cinerary urns, and so named from their resemblance to pigeon-holes (columbaria). They date, as far as can be ascertained, from the imperial period, and were generally constructed by several persons in common, or as a matter of speculation, and each recess could be purchased, or inherited. The names of the deceased were inscribed over the niches (loculi) on marble tablets, on which their mode of acquisition of the spot and other remarks were occasionally also recorded. Each niche contained two, or more rarely four ollae, or cinerary urns, and was closed by a slab. The nature of the decorations depended of course on the means and taste of the family.

Two of these structures are very similar: steep steps descend into a square vault, supported by a central buttress, which, like the external walls contains a number of niches. The larger building contains 600 cinerary urns. Admission to the third columbarium, discovered in 1853, is generally denied, but may be obtained for an additional gratuity; it consists of three vaulted passages, into the niches of which are built ædiculæ (p. 259) and small, sarcophagus-like monuments. The adjoining dark passages were used for the interment of slaves.

Immediately within the Porta S. Sebastiano ( $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the arch of Constantine) is the Arch of Drusus, a sadly mutilated monument, which was probably erected in honour of Claudius Drusus Germanicus, B.C. 8. It is constructed of travertine-blocks, partly covered with marble, and still possesses two marble columns on the side towards the gate. It terminated in a pediment, until Caracalla conducted over it an aqueduct to supply his baths with water, the brick remains of which seriously mar the effect.

The marble blocks of the Porta S. Sebastiano (Pl. III, 28), formerly Porta Appia, seem to have been taken from ancient buildings. The gate is surmounted by mediæval towers and pinnacles.

With regard to the Via Appia without the city, see p. 343; the Catacombs of Calixtus,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the gate, see p. 336.

The Cælius.

This once densely peopled hill (165 ft.) is now deserted like the Palatine and Aventine.

Starting from the Arch of Constantine (p. 235), and following the VIA DI S. GREGORIO (comp. p. 256), or the public walks above it to the left, we reach the Piazza di S. Gregorio. A lofty flight of steps ascends hence to the right to —

S. Gregorio al Monte Celio (Pl. III, 24), on the site of the house of St. Gregory's father, founded by that pope himself in 575 and dedicated to St. Andrew, and afterwards dedicated by Gregory II. to his first namesake. In 1633 it was restored by Card. Borghese, who caused the flight of steps, colonnade, portico, and façade to be constructed by Giov. Batt. Soria. The reconstruction of the church was begun in 1725. Festival, 12th March.

ENTRANCE COURT, embellished with pilasters of the Ionic order. Under the colonnade in front of the entrance: left, monument of the Guidiccioni of 1648, but with sculptures of the 15th cent.; right, monument of the two brothers Bonsi of the close of the 15th century. — INTERIOR, with sixteen ancient columns. Over the HIGH-ALTAR: St. Andrew, altar-piece by Belestra. At the end of the RIGHT AISLE: "St. Gregory, altar-piece by S. Boccia-locchi (?). Below it a "predella: the Archangel Michael with the apostles and other saints, attributed to L. Signorelli. Here to the right is a CHAMBER preserved from the house of St. Gregory, containing a handsome ancient "chair of marble and relics of the saint. Opposite, from the left aisle, the CAP. SALVIATI is entered. In front of the altar, on the right, an ancient and highly revered Madonna, which is said to have addressed St. Gregory; left, a ciborium of the 15th cent., disfigured by regilding.

The sacristan ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.) now shows three chapels detached from the church, and connected by a colonnade. A fragment of the Servian wall, partly covered with remains of other walls, is observed here. To the right, CHAPEL OF ST. SILVIA, mother of Gregory, with her statue by Cordieri; above it, in the vaulting of the niche, a fresco by Guido Reni, greatly damaged. — In the centre the CHAPEL OF ST. ANDREW. Over the altar: Madonna with SS. Andrew and Gregory, painted on the wall in oils by Roncalli. On the right, Martyrdom of St. Andrew (a copy in the Lateran, p. 274), Domenichino; on the left, St. Andrew, on the way to the place of execution, beholding the cross, Guido Reni; two pictures which were once extravagantly admired. — To the left the CHAPEL OF ST. BARBARA, with a sitting statue of St. Gregory in marble, said to have been begun by Michael Angelo, completed by Cordieri. In the centre a marble table with antique feet, at which St. Gregory is said to have entertained twelve poor persons daily. According to the legend, an angel one day appeared and formed a thirteenth.

We now ascend to the N., between remains of old walls, to —

S. Giovanni e Paolo (Pl. II, 24), which has existed since the 5th century. The portico, mosaic-pavement in the interior, and architecture of the apse are of the 12th century. The church contains few objects of interest. The sacristan shows a marble slab on which the saints, whose house once stood here, are said to have been beheaded in the reign of Julian the Apostate.

The adjoining Monastery belongs to the Passionists. Below it are spacious ancient vaults, only partially cleared of rubbish, the object of which has not yet been ascertained. Gentlemen are admitted by the upper door of the monastery (ascend to the left from the piazza in front of the church) to the \*garden, whence there is a beautiful prospect of the Palatine, Colosseum, Lateran, S. Stefano Rotondo, etc. ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

On the right is the entrance to the **Villa Mattei* (Pl. III, 24, 27), founded in 1582, the property of M. v. Hofmann, and recently restored (Villa Caelimontana). It contains few antiquities, but the grounds and points of view are worthy of a visit. (Visitors admitted after 2 p.m. on leaving their cards.)

We now continue to ascend the street flanked by walls, and reach the Arch of the Consuls Dolabella and Silanus (Pl. III, 27), constructed of travertine in A. D. 10, and apparently connected with an aqueduct.

Near this, on the right, No. 8, is the portal, embellished with mosaic, of an old hospital which once belonged to the small church of S. Tommaso in Formis (Pl. III, 24), situated behind it. The interesting mosaic-medallion, above the door, representing Christ between a black and a white slave, was executed in the 13th cent. by two masters of the Cosmas family, and is an allusion to the order of Trinitarians founded in 1198 for the purpose of ransoming Christian slaves.

To the left is the street descending to the Colosseum, see p. 232. On the right lies the oblong PIAZZA DELLA NAVIOBELLA (Pl. III, 27).

so called from the small marble ship which Leo X. caused to be made from the model of the ancient original formerly in the portico of the church.

The church of S. Maria in Domnica, or della Navicella, one of the most ancient deacouries of Rome, was re-erected by Paschalis I. in 817, to which period the columns of the nave and the tribune belong; the portico, erected by Leo X., is said to have been designed by Raphael.

Interior. The NAVE rests on eighteen beautiful columns of granite; above, below the ceiling, is a frieze painted by Giulio Romano and Perino del Vaga (in grisaille; genii and lions in arabesques), afterwards retouched. The arch of the TRIBUNE rests on two columns of porphyry; the mosaics date from the 9th cent., but were considerably restored under Clement XI.; above the arch, Christ between two angels and the apostles, below are two saints; in the vaulting, the Madonna and Child imparting blessings, on either side angels, Paschalis I. kissing her foot; beneath all the figures spring forth flowers. — The church is open on the 2nd Sunday of Lent only.

Opposite this church, but not accessible from the Piazza della Navicella, rises S. Stefano Rotondo. We follow the Via di S. Stefano to the left, pass through the first green door on the right, and ring a bell to the right under the porch.

S. Stefano Rotondo (Pl. III, 27) is a very interesting building, on account of its construction, and, although greatly diminished in extent, is the largest circular church in existence. It was erected at the close of the 5th cent. by Simplicius, and afterwards gorgeously decorated with marble and mosaics. It then fell to decay, but was restored by Nicholas V. In the original edifice, the diameter of which was 70 yds., the present external wall formed the central row of columns, while another lower wall, decorated with pilasters, 11 yds. distant, and still traceable round the church, formed the circumference. The church thus consisted of three concentric rings, intersected by two transepts. Nicholas V. shut out the external wall, and filled up the spaces between the central columns with masonry, with the exception of a few projecting chapels. The roof is rudely constructed of wood. The old entrance was on the E. side. In the present portico, erected by Nicholas, on the right, is the ancient episcopal throne, from which Gregory the Great delivered one of his homilies. Festival, 26th Dec.

INTERIOR. To the left of the entrance is an altar-niche with mosaic of the 7th cent.; farther on, to the left, a chapel with (1.) a well-executed monument of the beginning of the 16th cent. Most of the fifty-six columns are of granite, a few of marble. The lateral walls bear frescoes of fearful scenes of martyrdom, by Tempesta and Pomarancio (much retouched). In the centre a canopy of wood. The dome is borne by two lofty columns of granite and two buttresses.

Beyond the church the Via di S. Stefano leads past the extensive fragments of an ancient aqueduct in 5 min. to the vicinity of the Lateran (p. 267).

S. Clemente. The Lateran.

From the Colosseum (p. 233; Pl. II, 24) three streets run towards the S.E. : to the left the Via Labicana to the Thermæ of Titus (p. 236), to the right the Via de' Quattro Santi to SS. Quattro Coronati (p. 266), uniting with the following street near the Lateran, and lastly, between these two, the VIA DI S. GIOVANNI IN LATERANO (12 min. in length) to the Piazza of the Lateran and the Porta S. Giovanni. Following the latter street we reach, in 5 min., a small piazza, where on the left is situated —

*S. Clemente (Pl. II, 27; side-entrance from the street generally open; if not, visitors ring at the principal door under the portico), one of the best-preserved basilicas of Rome, and rendered still more interesting by the result of recent excavations, which were zealously and successfully prosecuted by the Prior Mullooly. These operations have brought to light, below the present church, three different layers of masonry, the first being of early Christian, the second of imperial, and the third of republican origin. The early Christian basilica (now the lower church) is mentioned by St. Jerome as early as the year 392, and in 417 was the scene of a council of the church. It was almost entirely destroyed in 1084 on the entry of Robert Guiscard into Rome, and in 1108 Paschalis II. erected on its ruins the present upper church, with which he incorporated several ornaments of the lower, such as the choir and the ambos. The upper church also underwent frequent restoration, and was finally decorated with considerable taste by Clement XI., who however unfortunately added the unsuitable ceiling. St. Clement (90-100), according to Roman tradition, was the third successor of St. Peter, and suffered martyrdom in the Black Sea. The church which stands on the traditional site of his house gives a title to a cardinal, and belongs to Irish Dominicans.

From the principal gate in the Via di S. Clemente, we first enter the Atrium, surrounded by a colonnade and paved with fragments of marble (giallo and verde antico), and beyond it the *UPPER CHURCH, consisting of nave and aisles, but, like all genuine basilicas, without a transept.

Interior. The NAVE with its flat ceiling is separated from the aisles by sixteen antique columns, and contains the *Screen of the choir and the Ambos from the lower church, with the monogram of Pope John VIII. (key kept by the sacristan). The Canopy with four columns of pavonazzetto dates from the time of Paschalis II. — In the TRIBUNE is an ancient episcopal throne, restored in 1108. Mosaics of the tribune of the 12th cent. On the rood-arch in the centre: Bust of Christ with the Symbols of the Four Evangelists, (l.) SS. Paul and Lawrence, below them Isaiah, lower down the city of Bethlehem, (r.) SS. Peter and Clement, below them Jeremiah, lower down the city of Jerusalem. On the vaulting: Christ on the Cross, with John and Mary surrounded by luxuriant wreaths, below which are the thirteen lambs. On the wall of the apse, Christ and the apostles, restored by means of painting only. — On the walls by the tribune, monuments of the close of the 15th cent. In the chapel at the end of the RIGHT AISLE a statue of John the Baptist by Donatello's brother Simone. — To the left of the principal entrance, the CAP-

PELLA DELLA PASSIONE with *frescoes of the beginning of the 15th cent., unfortunately retouched. Vasari ascribes them to Masaccio, who could not then have been older than seventeen, but more modern authorities incline to his teacher Masolino da Panicale. On the arch over the entrance the Annunciation. To the left, near the entrance, St. Christopher. On the wall behind the altar a Crucifixion; on the left, scenes from the life of St. Catharine: above, she refuses to worship a heathen idol; she teaches the king's daughters in prison; below, she disputes before Maxentius with the doctors; an angel breaks the wheels on which she was to be broken; her execution. The paintings on the window-wall, greatly damaged, probably referred to St. Clement.

As already mentioned at p. 263, and as the annexed plan and sections show, there exist below the present church several still older strata of masonry. Lowest of all, and forming a right angle, are two massive walls, constructed of blocks of stone quarried on the Cælius itself (No. I. in the ground-plan and in the section). As the stones are more carefully hewn and jointed than those of the Servian wall, these substructions cannot be dated farther back than the republican epoch. Above these are remains of workmanship of the imperial era, executed in the 2nd cent. after Christ (No. II. in the ground-plan and in the section; see also p. 266). Upon these foundations in the 4th cent. was erected the Christian basilica which now forms the Lower Church (No. III. in the ground-plan and in the section), the altar of which stood at the point marked a in the section. This seems to have been a much grander edifice than the church afterwards superimposed, its nave having been as broad as that of the upper church and one of its aisles put together (see ground-plan), and the lower apse was accordingly of wider span than the upper. During the construction of the upper church the lower was entirely covered up, and the two churches were never in use at the same time. It is only since about the year 1855 that the lower has been again rendered accessible, and it is now shown by the sacristan, who provides a light (fee 1 fr.). In order, however, to obtain a distinct idea of the original structure, which has been considerably marred by alterations, the visitor should repair to the church on 23rd Nov., 1st Feb., or on the second Monday in Lent, on which days the lower church is completely illuminated. The entrance is from the sacristy of the upper church (in the right aisle), on the walls of which are hung copies of the frescoes in the lower church, and plans comparing the upper with the lower part of the edifice.

A broad marble staircase, with inscriptions on the walls from the time of Pope Damasus, descends to the VESTIBULE in which the nave and aisles of the lower church terminate. The aisles alone have remained in their original condition, while in the nave additions of three distinct periods are observable. The newest are the buttresses constructed during the recent excavations for the support of the upper church, and recognisable by their white wash. The older additions consist of the wall between the columns of the right aisle, and the lateral wall on the right, both built on the occasion of the erection of the upper church, the former for the support of the external wall above, the latter to sustain the right row of columns above. The most ancient alterations were made at a period when the lower church was still in use, and consist of masonry built round the columns of the left aisle, adorned, like the outer walls, with frescoes, some of which are in excellent preservation. The ceiling was borne by 16 ancient columns of granite and marble. Seven of those in the right

The Proscenium date from different periods, extending over over centuries. We begin with the Vestibulum. Immediately to the left by the entrance is a female head with a halo, flanked by the Roman date from the 5th cent. Further on under the first arch on the left there is a group in the Greek mode with Christ, middle, and little boys attended, between the arches Michael and Gabriel and St. Andrew (1) and St. Peter (2). Below this are St. Cyril and Methodius (9th or 10th cent). The figures in this, as well as to the following scenes, have their names attached. - Opposite (on the right) a Mother and child at the altar of St. Clement her child who had been swallowed up by the sea and thrown on shore a year later. Under it the family of the donor grouped round the medallion portrait of St. Clement. To the right is the dedication Ego Anna de Ripone pro amore dei et beati Clementis pape prope (11th cent). On the right, further on, the Transference of the relics of St. Cyril from the Vatican to St. Clement in the reign of Pope Nicholas with the dedication Ego Maria Marcellana pro amore dei et remedio anime sue hoc pape fecit - At the end of the vestibule on the right is the entrance to the Lava Area. Over the door of the latter are three badly preserved frescoes, of which that in the centre appears to represent the resuscitation of a child. Two only of the frescoes at the end of this aisle are distinguishable - on the posterior wall in the apse, St. Cyril before the Emp. Michael, on the lateral wall, a youth baptised by St. Methodius (10th cent). The Lava is now entered through the arch in the right wall. Here, immediately to the left, is a fresco in three sections - one above the other. Half of the uppermost, the Bathronement of St. Clement, is destroyed. That is the centre of presents St. Clement celebrating mass, on the right Theodore converted to Christianity and his husband Martinus struck with blindness, the smaller figures on the left are those of the donor Anna and her son. Below it is also the dedicatory inscription Ego Anna de Ripone cum Maria matre mea, etc. The lowest represents Martinus causing a column to be bound instead of St. Clement (11th cent). The lateral surfaces of the pillars are also adorned with frescoes: St. Antony Daniel in the front, St. St. Anthony, St. Martin, but the adjoining wall prevents them from being seen. Further on towards the vestibule, on the same wall is another and larger fresco in three sections. The highest, now half obliterated, represents Christ between Michael and St. Clement (1), and Gabriel and Nicholas (2). The centre are three scenes from the life of St. Andrew, placed as the other is to the side with scenes on Roman emperors: his return acknowledged to Rome as a heretic, St. Pope Boniface the dying man; the betrothal of the dead man recognised as. The lowest of the three frescoes is of a decorative character with birds. - At the end of this wall are three scenes from the life of Christ. Next to them, on the wall of the vestibule on the right, the Assumption. Over the latter Christ in four angles; at the corners St. Vitus (1) and St. Lawrence (2) with pillars St. Peter and St. Paul (1) and St. Paul (2) and the square stained with red persons were usually represented (9th cent). The frescoes on the wall of the Lava Area are almost obliterated. A single scene of a group of Mary with Jesus. On the arch above, Christ (bearded) flanked by angels and saints on each side.

The apse are the remains of the Sanctuary or Sanctuary (1) and marked black in the plan, built of brick. The first of adjoining chambers is adorned with stucco ornaments. The next chamber is a Chapel of Martyrs, in which the statue of St. Stephen (1) was found. These chambers are damp and partly ruined. The staircase descending to them is at the end of the street opposite to S. Clemente leads to the Via of which then ascends to the left to the church of - Sanctus (Pl. II, 27, entrance by the gate of the Ospizio di Orfane), dedicated to SS. Severus, Severianus, Carphorus, and Victorinus, who suffered martyrdom under Diocletian. Five sculptors, who met with a similar fate for refusing to make images of heathen gods, are also revered here, and this is accordingly a favourite church with the 'scarpellini', or stone-masons, to whom the chapel of S. Silvestro belongs. The date of the foundation is very remote, and the materials were probably partly obtained from some ancient structure. After its destruction by Robert Guiscard, it was rebuilt by Paschalis II. in 1111, restored under Martin V. by Card. Alph. Carillo, and afterwards partly modernised. Keys in the anterior court, on the right ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

The church now possesses two ENTRANCE-COURTS, a peculiarity owing to the diminution of its size on one of the occasions when it was restored, probably by Paschalis II. The church originally extended over the whole of the second court, and its former breadth is indicated by the ancient columns built into the walls of this court. The disproportionate size of the tribune in the interior is thus accounted for. — On the right, under the corridor in front of the entrance to the second court, is the Cap. di S. Silvestro, consecrated under Innocent IV. in 1246, containing valuable, though unattractive ancient paintings from the life of Constantine, in the Byzantine style. — The INTERIOR consists of nave and aisles with galleries. The tribune is decorated with tasteless frescoes by Giovanni da S. Giovanni. Festival, 8th Nov.

The nunnery comprises an establishment for the education of orphans.

To the right, farther on in the Via S. Giovanni, is the Villa Campana, which formerly contained a valuable collection of antiquities, now in Paris and St. Petersburg. We next enter the spacious and quiet —

Piazza di S. Giovanni in Laterano (Pl. II, 30), the buildings in which were chiefly erected by Sixtus V. On the right is situated a large Hospital for Women, accommodating about 600 patients, and belonging to the obstetric department of the Sapienza. The Via Merulana then diverges to the left to S. Maria Maggiore (see p. 181). On the opposite side of the piazza is the baptistery of S. Giovanni in Fonte (p. 270). Farther on is the church of S. Giovanni in Laterano (p. 268), and before it the Lateran Palace with the museum (see p. 271).

In the centre rises an Obelisk of red granite, originally erected by King Thothmosis III. (B.C. 1599-60) in front of the temple of the Sun at Thebes, and brought by Constantius to the Circus Maximus in 357. In 1587 it was discovered there in three pieces, and in 1588 was erected by Sixtus V. on its present site. This is the largest obelisk in existence, being 104 ft. in height, or with the pedestal 153 ft., and about 600 tons in weight. Opposite the N. side of the Palace of the Lateran, on the left, is the entrance-gate to the Villa Massimo, see p. 274.

Facing us, on the extreme E. side of the piazza, is the edifice containing the Scala Santa, a flight of twenty-eight marble steps from the palace of Pilate at Jerusalem, which our Saviour is said to have once ascended. They were brought to Rome in 326 by the Empress Helena, and may only be ascended on the knees. They are now covered with wood for the protection of the stone. The two adjoining flights are for the descent. At the foot of the steps are two groups in marble by Giacometti, Christ and Judas, and Christ before Pontius Pilate. — At the top of the steps is the Sancta Sanctorum chapel (not accessible), formerly the private chapel of the popes, and the only part of the old Lateran palace now preserved. It was erected in 1278 by a member of the Cosmas family by order of Nicholas III., and contains, among other relics, a Christ in mosaic in the style of the 9th cent., and another painted on wood, attributed to St. Luke. — The portico towards the piazza was erected by Sixtus V.

From the adjoining angle, to the left, the street diverges to the Villa Wolkonsky (p. 275).

To the E. of the last described piazza lies the spacious PIAZZA DI PORTA S. GIOVANNI (Pl. II, 33), towards which the principal façade of S. Giovanni in Laterano is turned. In front of the church, and to the right by the city-wall, a charming prospect is enjoyed of the mountains and the Campagna.

To the left, by the Scala Santa, is a tribune erected by Benedict XIV. with copies of the ancient Mosaics from the Triclinium of Leo III., or principal dining-room of the ancient palace. These copies are from old drawings. The originals, executed at the end of the 8th cent., were destroyed in the pontificate of Clement XII. Their subject is the union of spiritual and temporal power effected by Charlemagne. In the centre, Christ sending out his disciples; on the left, Christ enthroned delivers the keys to Pope Sylvester and the banner to the Emp. Constantine; on the right, St. Peter presenting the papal stole to Leo and the banner to Charlemagne. — At the back of the tribune a survey is obtained of the arches of the Aqua Claudia (p. 246). An avenue leads hence in 5 min. to S. Croce in Gerusalemme (p. 184).

The Porta S. Giovanni, named after the church, was erected in 1574, and took the place of the ancient and now closed Porta Asinaria, which stood a little to the right. Route hence to the Campagna, see p. 347.

*S. Giovanni in Laterano (Pl. III, 30; comp. ground-plan), 'omnium urbis et orbis ecclesiarum mater et caput', was the principal church of Rome after the time of Constantine the Great. The emperor presented to Pope Silvester a large palace, which had hitherto belonged to the wealthy family of the Laterani, and fitted up a church within it. It was called the Basilica Constantiniana after its founder, and sometimes S. Salvatoris, or Aula Dei, as being a second Zion, and gradually became privileged to grant the most ample indulgences. It was overthrown by an earthquake in 896, but was re-erected by Sergius III. (904-911), and dedicated to John the Baptist. In 1308 it was burned down, but was restored by Clement V., and decorated with paintings by Giotto. A second fire destroyed the church in 1360, after which it was rebuilt by Urban IV. and Gregory XI. It was again altered by Martin V. (1430), Eugene IV., and Alexander VI., and modernised by Pius IV. (1560), by the alterations of Borromini (1650), and by the façade of Galilei (1734). Five important Councils have been held in this church, viz. those of 1123, 1139, 1179, 1215, and 1512.

The FAÇADE by Alessandro Galilei, with a portico and open loggia above it, is the best of this description in Rome. From the central arcade of the loggia the Pope used to pronounce his benediction on Ascension-day.

To the left in the PORTICO is an ancient statue of Constantine the Great (Pl. 1), found in the Thermæ of that emperor. Of the five entrances the Porta Santa (Pl. 2) on the right is closed, but is opened in the year of jubilee. The central entrance (Pl. 3) possesses two bronze doors with garlands and other decorations. The portico is 33 ft. in depth and 174 ft. in width; the church 426 ft. in length.

Interior. The NAVE, which is flanked by double aisles, is supported by twelve pillars, the work of Borromini, partly enclosing the ancient columns. In the niches are the Twelve Apostles, of the school of Bernini; reliefs by Algardi. Over these are the figures of twelve prophets. The ceiling, said to have been designed by Michael Angelo, is more probably by Giacomo della Porta. The richly inlaid pavement dates from the time of Martin V. On the right and left at the end of the nave are the only two ancient granite columns now visible. Below, in front of the Confessio (Pl. 4), is the *monument of Pope Martin V. (d. 1431), in bronze by Simone, brother of Donatello. — In the centre of the TRANSEPT, which is raised by four steps, is the **Canopy* (Pl. 5), a beautiful work of 1367, lately restored, with paintings by Barnaba da Siena, dating from 1390, but freely restored. It contains numerous relics, including, it is said, the heads of SS. Peter and Paul. Below it is the high-altar (altare papale), at which the pope alone reads mass, containing a wooden table from the catacombs which is said to have been used as an altar by St. Peter. The transept was restored under Clement VIII. by Giac. della Porta (1603) and adorned with frescoes. Here to the left is the great Altar of the Sacrament (Pl. 6), with four ancient columns of gilded bronze, which once belonged to the original basilica. The chapel of the choir (Pl. 7; generally closed), to the left of the tribune, contains a portrait of Martin V. by Scip. Gaetano, and an altar-piece by the Cav. d'Arpino.

The Tribune and Choir Passage are at present undergoing restoration. The TRIBUNE (Pl. 8) is embellished with *mosaics, either originally executed, or of ancient workmanship restored by Jacobus Torriti (1290): the Saviour enveloped in clouds; below at the sides of a cross, (l.) the Virgin, at whose feet Nicholas IV. kneels, SS. Francis, Peter, and Paul, and (r.) John the Baptist, St. John, St. Andrew, and other saints. To the right in the transept two fine columns of giallo antico. Adjoining the organ is a monument to the philologist Laurentius Valla (d. 1455), a canon of this church. — The CHOIR PASSAGE, called 'Portico Leonino' from having been constructed by Leo I., entered to the right behind the tribune, is embellished on each side with mosaic tablets, the subjects of which relate to the construction of the church; farther on, to the right, the kneeling figure of a pope (10th cent.); to the left in the centre, an altar with ancient crucifix, on each side statues of Peter and Paul (Pl. 10), of the 10th cent. — Farther on, to the right, the entrance to the SACRISTY (Pl. 11), the inner bronze doors of which date from 1186. It contains the monument of Fulvius Ursinus, a canon of this church (d. 1600); an *Annunciation by Marcello Venusti after a drawing by Michael Angelo; statue of John the Baptist in wood by Donatello; cartoon of Raphael's Madonna di Casa d'Alba (original at St. Petersburg). — At the end of the choir passage is a handsome marble sanctuary (Pl. 12), dating from about 1500; near it the Tabula Magna Lateranensis, or list of relics.

AISLES. At the back of the first pillar on the right in the nave (Pl. 13), *Boniface VIII. between two cardinals proclaiming the first jubilee (1300), by Giotto. ON THE RIGHT: The 2nd chapel (Pl. 14) belongs to the Torlonia family, and is richly decorated with marble and gilding; over the altar, *Descent from the Cross, a marble relief by Tenebrani (a custodian opens this and other chapels, 1/2 fr.). The 3rd chapel (Pl. 15), belonging to the Massimi, constructed by Giac. della Porta, contains the Crucifixion, an altar-piece by Sermoneta. Farther on in the right aisle, the monument (Pl. 16) of Card. Guissano (d. 1287). — ON THE LEFT: The *1st chapel, that of S. Andrea Corsini (Pl. 17), designed by Galilei in 1734, contains ancient columns and a large vessel of porphyry from the portico of the Pantheon, in front of the bronze figure of Clement XII. (Corsini, d. 1740); the walls sumptuously inlaid with precious stones. Below the chapel is the burial-vault of the Corsini, with a *Pieta by Bernini (?). During the excavation of the latter were found the antiques now in the Pal. Corsini.

The sacristan conducts visitors to the left from the last chapel (Pl. 18) into the interesting *Court of the Monastery, of the 13th cent., with numerous small spiral and inlaid columns. Various fragments from the old church are placed in the passages. The monastery was founded at the end of the 6th cent. by Benedictines from Mte. Casino.

The Portico of the right transept, opening on the Piazza S. Giovanni in Laterano, was erected by Sixtus V., the founder of the palace (see below), while the small campanili, standing far apart, were built by Pius IV. The corridor below to the right (Pl. 19), contains a bronze statue of Henri IV. of France, by Nic. Cordieri.

In the S.W. angle of the Piazza S. Giovanni in Laterano is situated the octagonal *Baptistery, Il Battistero, or S. Giovanni in Fonte (Plan of Rome, II, 30), where according to a Roman tradition, Constantine the Great was baptised by Pope Silvester in 324 (the fact, however, being that his baptism did not take place till 337, shortly before his death). Sixtus III. (d. 440) is regarded as the founder of the chapel. This was long the only baptistery at Rome, and afforded a model for all later buildings of the kind. In 461 Pope Hilarius added to the baptistery the Oratories of St. John and John the Baptist on the E. and W. sides respectively, and about the year 640 John IV. added the Oratory of S. Venansio, adjoining that of St. John. Leo X. roofed the baptistery with lead, and his successors decorated and modernised it.

The Baptistery has two ENTRANCES, one from the piazza, and one from the court, which we reach on the left on leaving the right transept of S. Giovanni in Laterano. The latter entrance to the Baptistery is embellished with two ancient columns of porphyry with their architrave, built into the wall here by Sixtus III.; and by it the portico, mentioned below, is first entered. From the piazza we at once enter the precincts of the BAPTISTERY itself. It is divided into a central space and surrounding passage by eight large columns of porphyry with an antique architrave in marble, which are said to have been presented by Constantine. In the centre is the font in green basalt. The frescoes are by A. Sacchi, Maratta, and others. — Adjacent to the right, is the ORATORY OF JOHN THE BAPTIST, containing a statue of the saint in bronze by L. Valadier, executed in 1772 (after Donatello), and placed between two columns of serpentine. The bronze doors, presented by Hilarius, are said to originate from the Thermæ of Caracalla. — On the left, opposite this oratory, is the ORATORY OF ST JOHN, with bronze doors of the year 1196, and adorned with Mosaics (5th cent.) representing birds and flowers on a golden ground. The statue of the saint, between two columns of alabaster, is by Landini (d. 1594). — The door in the centre leads into what was formerly the PORTICO (Porticus S. Venantii), as the chief entrance was originally from the court. In 1154 the portico was converted into two chapels. The apse to the left is enriched with handsome Mosaic of the 5th cent., consisting of gold arabesques on a blue ground. Over the door to the Baptistery is a Crucifixion, a relief in marble, of 1494. — A fourth door in the Baptistery is the entrance to the ORATORIO DI S. VENANZIO, with ancient mosaics of the middle of the 7th cent.

Adjoining the church of S. Giovanni in Laterano, on the N side, is the —

Palazzo del Laterano (Pl. II, 30), to which, together with the Vatican (p. 288) and Castel Gandolfo, the privilege of extraterritoriality was secured by a law of 13th May, 1871. This was the residence of the popes from the time of Constantine down to the migration to Avignon. The old palace was much more extensive than the present and included also the Sancta Sanctorum Chapel (p. 268). After a great fire in 1308 it lay in ruins, which were removed by order of Sixtus V. and the new palace erected by Domenico Fontana in 1586. As it remained unoccupied, it was converted by Innocent XII. into an orphan asylum in 1693. In 1843 Gregory XVI. set apart the palace for a collection of the heathen and Christian antiquities for which the Vatican and Capitoline museums no longer afforded space and named it the *Museum Gregorianum Lateranense, a collection which has since then steadily increased in importance. Visitors admitted daily, except on holidays, 9-3 o'clock. The entrance is by the portal in the piazza opposite the obelisk (p. 267); visitors ring on the right in the passage. Compare ground-plan.

On the ground-floor is the so-called \*MUSEO PROFANO, a collection of ancient sculptures, including several admirable works. There are neither catalogues nor numbers, but the custodian ( $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 fr.) is well informed. A scientific German catalogue was published by Benndorf and Schöne at Leipsic in 1867.

I. Room. Entrance-wall: relief of the Abduction of Helen; tomb-relief (warrior's farewell); priest of the oracle of Dodona (fountain-relief). Left wall: two pugilists, named Dares and Entellus (in relief); bust of Marcus Aurelius; Trajan (head restored by Thorvaldsen) accompanied by senator (relief from Trajan's Forum); in front of the latter a statuette of Nemesis Nymph suckling a child, perhaps the infant Pan, in relief. Right wall sarcophagus-reliefs of Mars and Rhea Silvia (the latter being a likeness of the deceased woman); Diana and Endymion; Adonis; Diana and Endymion. In the centre a mosaic with pugilists, from the Thermæ of Caracalla (see 1st floor, p. 274). — II. Room: interesting architectural fragments, especially from the Forum of Trajan. Fragments of a *frieze in the centre of the walls of the entrance, the egress, and that on the right merit inspection. — III. Room: by the entrance-wall a statue of Æsculapius. Right wall *Antinous (head new), found at Ostia. Wall of egress: child's sarcophagus with scenes of pugilism. In the window several handsome feet of tables. — IV. Room: on the entrance-wall, *Medea with the daughters of Peleus, Greek relief. On the board above (numbered 762) a beautiful small head of a female satyr. Statue of Germanicus. Right wall: *statue of Mars. Wall of egress: copy of the reposing satyr of Praxiteles. On a cippus: *bust of the youthful Tiberius. In the first window: basis of a column from the Basilica Julia. In the centre a beautiful basin of lumacchella (a kind of shell-marble).

V. Room. Right wall: Roman portrait-bust; statue of Pan; a Muse; statue of nymph; *cinerary urn with representation of a cock-fight. In the centre: sacrifice of Mithras (found near the Scala Santa); stag of basalt; a cow. — VI. Room: collection of sculptures from Cervetri, the ancient Caere, probably found among the ruins of a theatre. Entrance wall: left, circular altar with Pan and two dancing Horae; on it, a colossal portrait-head (perhaps Augustus); right, statue of an emperor, head new. Right wall: draped statue; colossal sitting figures of Tiberius and Claudius, between them the younger Agrippina; toga statue (perhaps the elder Drusus). Wall of egress: statue of an emperor; bust of Caligula. In front of it: relief with representation of the deities of three Etruscan cities (Vetulonia, Volci, Tarquinii). On the pillar between the windows: female portrait-statue (perhaps Drusilla). In the centre, two sleeping Silens (from a fountain); altar with representation of sacrifice. — VII. Room. On the right: *dancing Satyr, found near S. Lucia in Selce, possibly from a group by Myron: Marsyas endeavouring to pick up the flutes thrown away by Athene, and staggering backwards on the appearance of the goddess (p. xxxi). By the door: (r.) head of Paris (?); (l.) barbarian monarch. Left wall: Apollo. Opposite the entrance: *Sophocles, one of the most beautiful ancient portrait-statues in existence, found at Terracina in 1838. The desire to exhibit this statue in an appropriate locality contributed in a great measure to the foundation of the Lateran museum. — VIII. Room: Entrance-wall: left, relief of a poet, with masks, and a Muse; right, sarcophagus with the Calydonian hunt; above it small head of a sleeping nymph. Left wall: Meleager slain by Apollo. In the centre: *statue of Poseidon, found at Porto. — IX. Room, containing numerous architectural fragments brought to light by the excavations in the Forum and the Via Appia. Entrance-wall: sarcophagus-relief with masked Cupids bearing garlands. Wall of egress, to the left by the door: small head of Victory. In the centre: *triangular ara with Bacchanalian dances. — X. Room: chiefly sculptures from the tombs of the Haterii, on the Via Labicana near Centocelle, found in 1848. Entrance-wall: male and female portrait-busts; between them relief of a large tomb, with powerful lifting-machine adjacent. Right wall: relief of the laying out of a dead woman, surrounded by mourners. Wall of egress: relief with representation of Roman buildings, among which the Colosseum is distinguishable. Above it a relief with Mercury (broken), Ceres, Pluto, and Proserpine. In the centre: Cupid on a dolphin.

Entrance-wall: relief of a Titan fighting; *portrait-statue of C. Cælius Saturninus (in Parian marble). Wall of egress: relief, Pylades supporting the exhausted Orestes. In the centre: oval sarcophagus of P. Cæcilius Vallianus, with the representation of a funeral-banquet. Then a three-sided *candelabrum-stand with Pluto, Neptune, and Persephone. — XIV. Room. Entrance-wall: (r.) a small group in relief, possibly Orpheus and Eurydice. Left wall: unfinished statue of porphyry. Opposite the entrance: statue of a captive barbarian, unfinished, interesting account of the marks of measurement made by the sculptor. Below, sarcophagus of L. Annius Octavius with representation of bread making; adjacent is the inscription: tuus valeat! Nil mihi vobiscum est, ludificate a castis of Sophocles (see above) and interesting for comparison. — XV. Room and the yield of the new excavations at Ostia. In the windows are lamps, terracottas, fragments of glass, pillar, mosaic from a niche, with Silvanus; on of terracotta. Wall of egress: right Sarcophagus with Tritons and Nereids. Then (L.) a small female head, probably of a nymph; head of Alexander. Above, to the right by the door, head of Atthis. — XVI. Room. On the right, lead pipes from the lower regions. In the centre the statue of a Recumbent with scenes from the lower regions. In the centre the statue of a Recumbent Atthis, found at Ostia in 1869, interesting on account of the traces of gilding on the hair and the crescent.

The Christian Museum.

The Christian Museum and the Picture Gallery are established on the first floor of the palace. The principal entrance to them is on the farther side of the court, to the right. If this entrance is closed, we ring, as mentioned at p. 271, in the entrance passage, then, in the arcades to the right, ascend a staircase to the left, into the walls of which are built ancient Christian inscriptions, and knock at the door at the top ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.). Compare also Plan.

The "CHRISTIAN MUSEUM" was founded by Pius IX. and arranged by the Padre Marchi and the Commendatore de Rossi. We begin our description from the above mentioned principal entrance. In the first hall atque ubi deficiisset dies, in usum nocturni luminis urerentur.' Tacitus, xiv, 44.) On the ruins of the ancient walls thus hallowed by the first great martyrdoms at Rome sprang up the Church of St. Peter, in the immediate neighbourhood of which paganism maintained its footing with greater obstinacy than in any other part of the city. Not far from the church was situated a highly revered shrine of Mithras, the god of the sun, the monuments in whose honour are proved by inscriptions to extend down to the year 390. Another circumstance which tended to shape the future of this part of the city was the erection by HADRIAN of his gigantic Tomb on the bank of the river. This monument was afterwards converted into a tête-de-pont, but at what date is uncertain. In 537 it effectually repelled the attacks of the Goths, and since that period it has constituted the citadel of Rome, commonly called the Castle of S. Angelo, on the possession of which the mastery over the city has always depended. Around the Church of St. Peter sprang up a number of chapels, churches, monasteries, and hospitals, and in the pontificate of SYMMACHUS (496-514) a papal palace also. Foreign pilgrims soon began to establish settlements here, named scholae, or borghi, of which in the 8th cent. four are mentioned in history, viz. those of the Saxons (i.e. English), the Frisians, the Lombards, and the Franks, who in time of war formed separate companies of soldiers. In order to protect the whole of this region against the predatory incursions of the Saracens, LEO IV. surrounded it, in 848-52, with a wall 40 ft. in height, and thus became the founder of the Civitas Leonina named after him. This quarter of the city was repeatedly destroyed during the conflicts of the middle ages, as on the occasion of the retreat of Henry V. before Robert Guiscard in 1084, and when the Castle of S. Angelo was destroyed by the Romans in 1379. A new era in the history of the Borgo began with the return of the popes from Avignon; streets gradually sprang up; and the walls were considerably extended. EUGENE IV. and SIXTUS IV. were particularly active in developing the Borgo, and it attained the height of its prosperity in the pontificate of JULIUS II. and LEO X. at the beginning of the 16th century. The papal court, however, was unable permanently to attract the business of the city to its neighbourhood, and a sparse and poor population, engaged in the humbler branches of trade, now lives beneath the shadow of the most famous church and the most imposing palace in Christendom. Down to the pontificate of SIXTUS V. the Borgo belonged to the popes, and lay without the bounds of the municipal jurisdiction; but that pope incorporated it with the city as a '7th Rione', and in the plebiscite of 2nd Oct. 1870 the inhabitants of the Borgo declared their desire that it should continue to form an integral part of Rome.

The bridge which crosses the river highest up is the Ponte S. Angelo (Pl. I, 10), consisting of five arches, but originally of seven, one next the land on each side being now built up. It was erected by Hadrian in order to connect his tomb with the city in A.D. 136, and named after him Pons Ælius. At the S. end of the bridge, on the site of two old chapels, Clement VII. erected statues of Peter by Lorenzetto, and Paul by Paolo Romano. The ten colossal statues of angels, formerly much admired, were executed from Bernini's designs in 1688, and testify to the low ebb of plastic taste at that period. One angel (fourth on the right, with the cross) is erroneously ascribed to Bernini himself; two executed by him for this bridge are now in S. Andrea delle Fratte (p. 145). The bridge commands a pleasing view of the Pincio with the Villa Medici.

From the bridge to St. Peter's is a walk of 8 min. — The bridge leads direct to the Castello S. Angelo (Pl. I, 10), which was originally the tomb erected by Hadrian for himself and his successors.

(Moles Hadriani), after the example of the mausoleum of Augustus, the tomb of Cæcilia Metella, etc. It was completed in 140 by Antoninus Pius. On a substruction, 114 yds. square, now concealed by rubbish, arose a cylinder of travertine, 80 yds. in diameter, encrusted with marble, of which covering no trace now remains. Around the margin of the top of the cylinder stood numerous statues in marble. The cylinder was probably surmounted by another of smaller dimensions, on which a colossal statue of Hadrian was placed. The head in the Sala Rotonda of the Vatican is supposed to have belonged to this statue. According to others the pine-apple mentioned at p. 308 formed the culminating-point of the structure. The total height was about 165 ft. From Hadrian to Septimius Severus, and perhaps down to a later period, all the emperors and their families were interred here. When the Goths under Vitiges besieged Rome in 537, the tomb was converted into a fortress, and the statues on the summit were hurled down on the besiegers. At the end of the same century, Gregory the Great, while conducting a procession to pray for the cessation of the plague then raging, 'beheld the Archangel Michael sheathing his sword' above the Castello S. Angelo, in commemoration of which Boniface IV. erected the chapel of S. Angelo inter Nubes on the summit. This was afterwards replaced by the marble statue of an angel by Montelupo, and in 1740 by the present bronze statue by Verschaffelt. From 923 onwards the edifice was always used by the party in power as a stronghold for the purpose of maintaining their sway over the citizens. In 1379 it was almost entirely destroyed by the Romans. From the time of Boniface IX. downwards the castle was in possession of the popes, and in 1527 Clement VII. sustained a terrible siege here, on which occasion Benvenuto Cellini asserted he had thence shot the Connétable de Bourbon. The outworks were constructed by Urban V., and about 1500 the covered passage leading from the Vatican to the castle was added. In 1822 the interior was freed from rubbish. The fort was newly fortified by Pius IX. Permission to visit it must be obtained at the office of the commandant, Via del Burrò 147, 2nd floor. A sergeant acts as guide ( $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr., but more for a party). The entrance is to the right of the sentinel's post.

The ancient entrance is seen in the court, opposite the bridge. A passage gradually ascended thence, winding round the walls in the interior, and then diverging from them to the Tomb Chamber in the centre, which is now reached partly by other approaches. This was the last resting-place of Hadrian and his family, and still contains the four niches for the reception of the urns. These are now empty; but a sarcophagus of porphyry, the lid of which is now used as a font in St. Peter's, is said to have been found here. The visitor is also shown several gloomy dungeons in which Beatrice Cenci, Cellini, Cagliostro, and others are said to have been incarcerated; former apartments of the popes; and a saloon with frescoes by Raphael's pupil Perino del Vaga. The view from the summit is remarkably fine, especially of St. Peter's. It is here that the Girandola (p. 116) takes place.

formerly the PIAZZA PIA, whence four streets diverge to the W.: in the centre, on both sides of the fountain, which like the two adjacent façades was erected by Pius IX., are the streets called the Borgo Vecchio (l.) and Borgo Nuovo (r.); to the left, by the river, the Borgo S. Spirito; to the right is the Borgo S. Angelo. To the N., between the latter and the city-wall, lies a dirty quarter consisting of mean houses.

The ordinary route to the Vatican is by the BORGHINO NUOVO. To the right in this street is the church of S. Maria Traspontina (Pl. I, 7, 5), erected in 1566. Farther on, to the right, in the small Piazza Scossa Cavalli, is the handsome *Palazzo Giraud (Pl. 4), now Torlonia, the property of Prince Torlonia, erected in 1506 by Bramante for Card. Adriano da Corneto; the poor portal dates from the 18th cent. In an adjacent building are several valuable antiquities, including the so-called Vesta Giustiniani; visitors not admitted. — Near it is the insignificant church of S. Giacomo (Pl. 7). In the centre of the piazza is a small fountain.

On the right in the BORGHINO NUOVO, farther on, is the Pal. Ricciardi, erected for Giacomo da Brescia, the physician of Leo X., from a design attributed to Bald. Peruzzi. Proceeding hence in a straight direction, we reach the PIAZZA RUSTICUCCI, 288 yds. in length, which forms a kind of entrance-court to St. Peter's. Raphael's house, which stood on the right side, near the Pal. Accoramboni (Pl. 2), was removed when the piazza was enlarged.

The BORGHINO S. SPIRITO, issuing from the Piazza del Plebiscito (or Pia), terminates under the colonnades of the piazza of St. Peter. To the left in this street, by the river, is the spacious Ospedale di S. Spirito (Pl. I, 7), established by Innocent III., and embracing a hospital, a lunatic-asylum, a foundling-institution (shown 2-4 p. m.; permesso obtained at the office of the administration, or in the library), an establishment for the reception of girls, a refuge for the aged and infirm, and a valuable medical library (open 8-12 o'clock). The three departments first mentioned can accommodate 1000, 500, and 3000 persons respectively. The Military Hospital is on the opposite side of the street. The 'borgo', or settlement, of the English was once situated here.

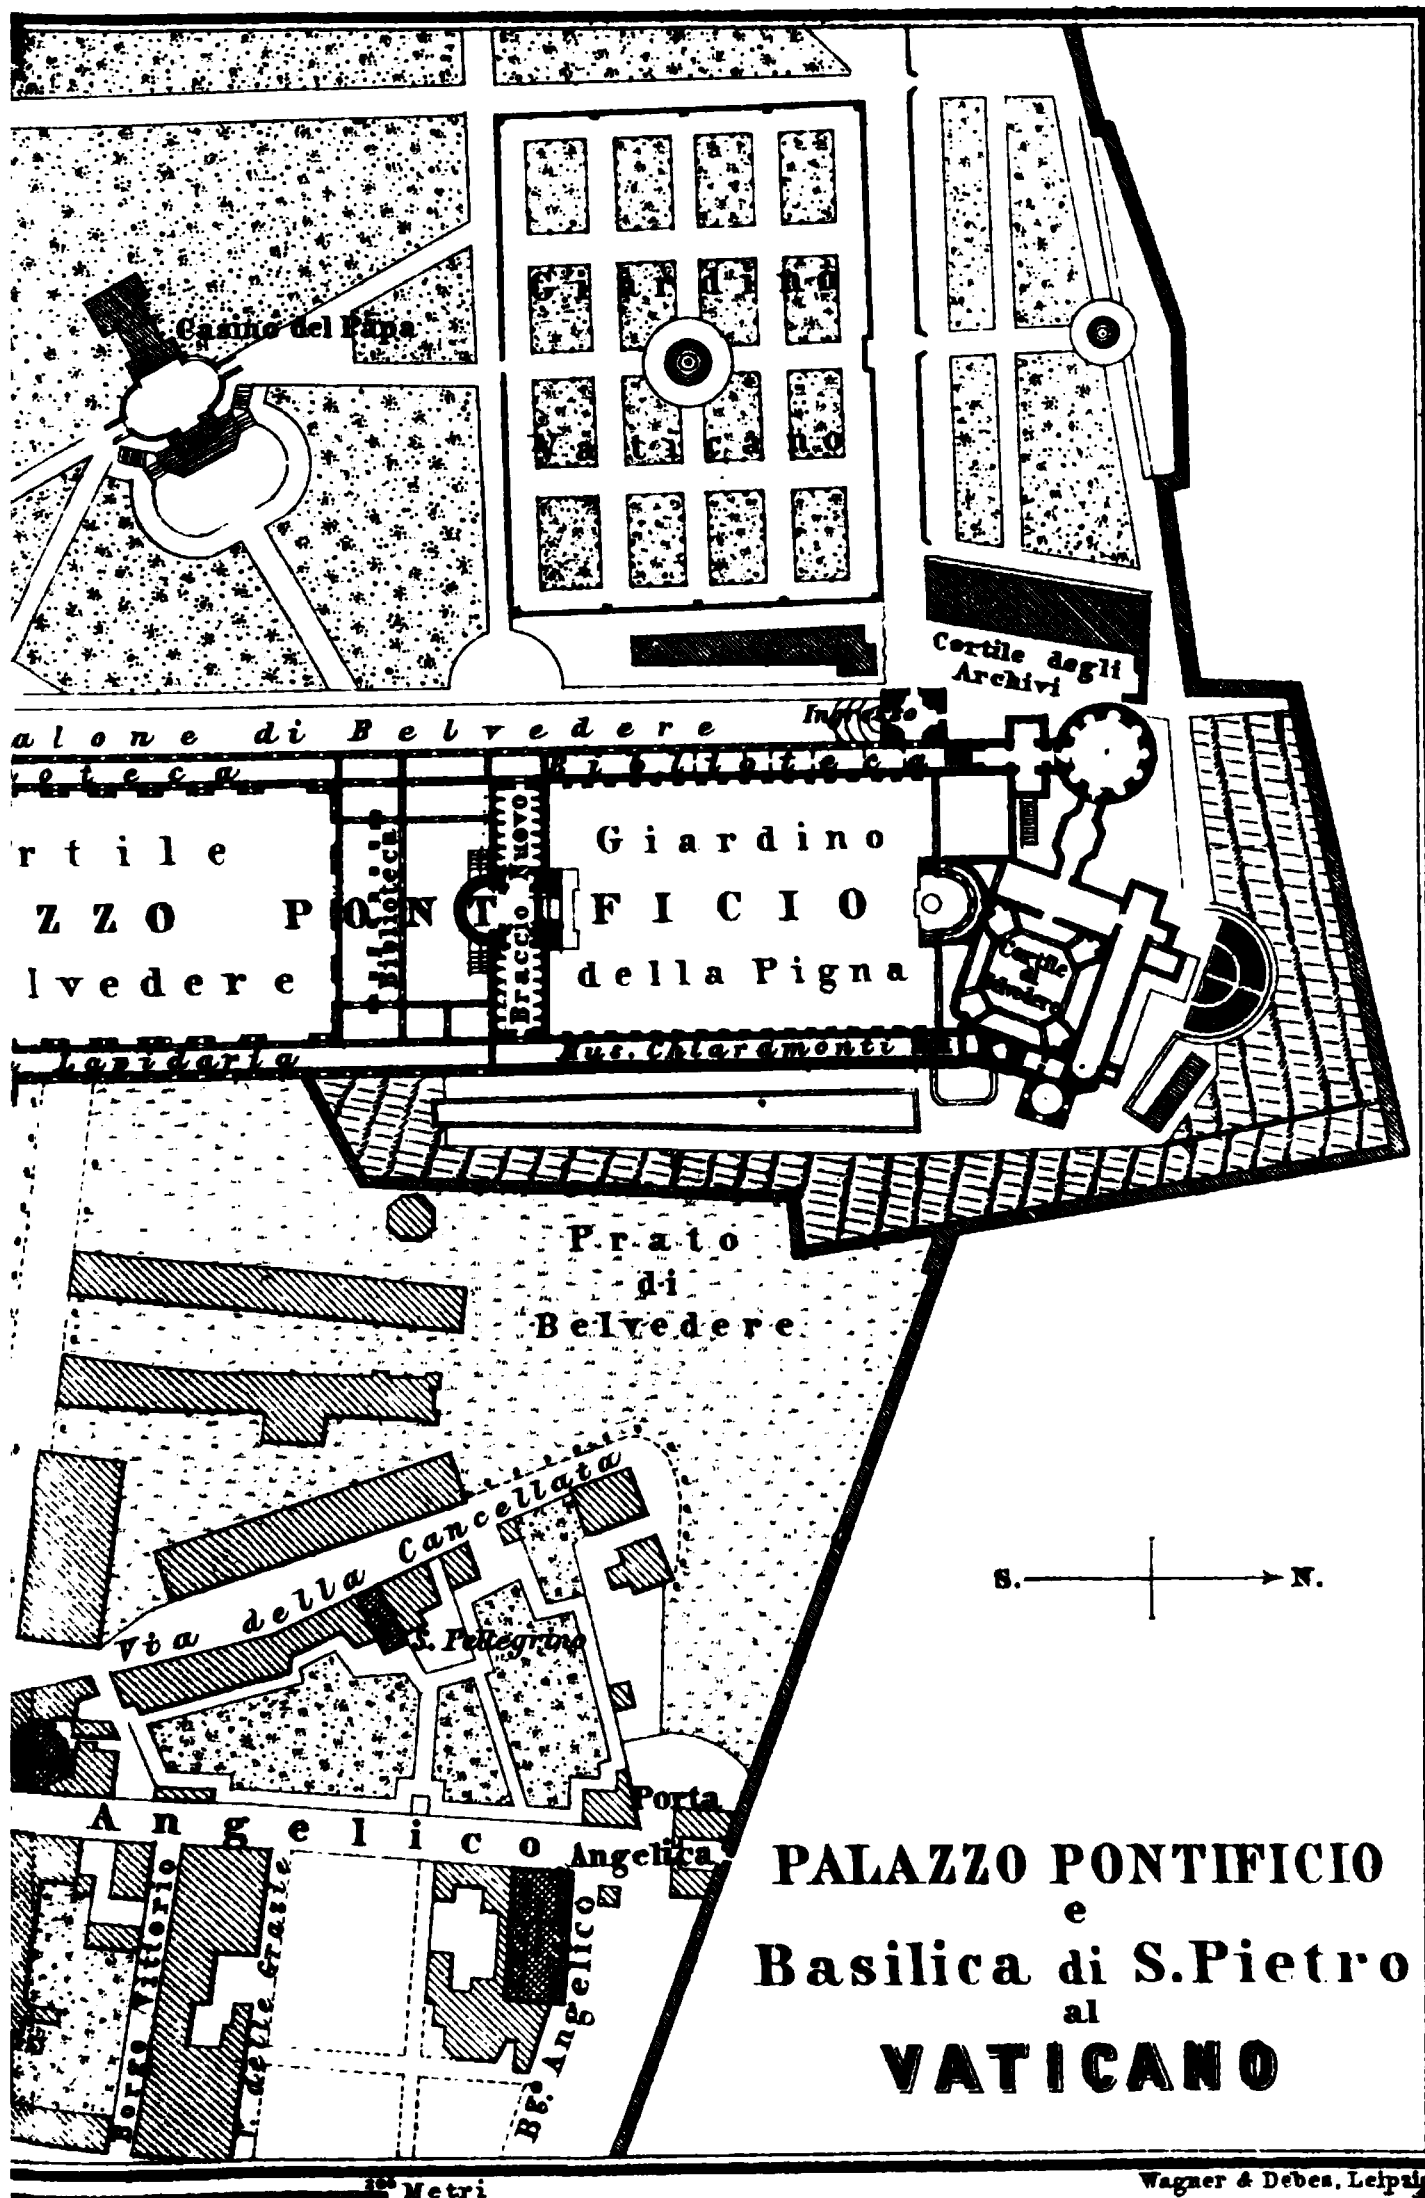

Farther on, to the left, is the church of S. Spirito in Sassia (Pl. 12), erected by Antonio da S. Gallo under Paul III., and the façade by Mascherino under Sixtus V. It belongs to the adjoining hospital and contains nothing noteworthy, except a bronze ciborium attributed to Palladio over the high-altar.

We next observe on the left, at the end of a side-street, the Porta S. Spirito, from which the Via della Longara leads to Trastevere (see p. 320).

A short distance from the colonnades, on the right, is S. Lorenzo in Piscibus (Pl. 10), a church of ancient origin, but rebuilt in 1659; on the left is the small church of S. Michele in Sassia, formerly the church of the Frisians, rebuilt in the last century, where the artist Raphael Mengs is interred.

The **Piazza di S. Pietro is a square with an elliptical space in front, enclosed by the imposing colonnades of Bernini. Its length as far as the portico of the church is 370 yds., and its greatest breadth 260 yds. Each of the colonnades, which were erected in 1667, contains four series of columns of the Doric order. Three covered passages, the central of which has space for two carriages abreast, are formed by 284 columns and 88 buttresses. On the roofs are placed 162 statues of saints in Bernini's style. The cost of the construction amounted to 850,000 scudi; the pavement, laid down under Benedict XIII., alone cost 88,000 scudi. The effect is very imposing, and the piazza forms an appropriate adjunct to the largest church in the world.

The great Obelisk in the centre of the piazza, which is destitute of hieroglyphics, was brought from Heliopolis to Rome by Caligula and placed in the Vatican Circus, and is the only monument of the kind which has never been overthrown.

Under Sixtus V. in 1586 this huge monument, estimated by Fontana to weigh about 500 tons, was removed by means of rollers from its original position, and on 10th Sept. erected under the superintendence of Domenico Fontana on its present site. Representations of this extremely difficult undertaking are frequently seen. It is related that Fontana in the construction of his machines had omitted to make allowance for the tension of the ropes produced by the enormous weight, and that at the most critical moment, although the bystanders were prohibited under pain of death from shouting, one of the 800 workmen, the sailor Bresca di S. Remo, exclaimed: "Acqua alle funi!" (water on the ropes), thus solving the difficulty. As a reward, his relations (of Bordighera near S. Remo) were granted the privilege of providing the palm-branches on Palm Sunday for St. Peter's.

On the pavement round the obelisk is placed an indicator of the points of the compass. At the sides are two handsome *Fountains, 45 ft. in height, the one next the Vatican erected by Maderna, the other under Innocent XI. On each side, between the obelisk and the fountains, is a round slab of stone indicating the centres of the radii of the colonnades, each series of which appears thence as one. At the sides of the steps leading to the portico of St. Peter's, formerly stood the statues of SS. Peter and Paul which are now at the entrance to the Sacristy (p. 286), and were replaced under Pius IX. by works of De Fabris and Tadolini. To the right, at the end of the colonnades, is the entrance to the Vatican, called Portone di Bronzo, where the Swiss guard is stationed (comp. p. 118).

The Church of St. Peter, like S. Giovanni in Laterano, S. Paolo, S. Croce, S. Agnese, and S. Lorenzo, is said to have been founded by the Emp. Constantine on the request of Pope Silvester I. It was erected in the form of a basilica with nave, double aisles, and transept, on the site of the circus of Nero, where St. Peter is said to have suffered martyrdom, and contained the brazen sarcophagus of the apostle. The church was approached by an entrance-court with smaller churches, chapels, and monasteries. The interior was sumptuously decorated with gold, mosaics, and marble. At Christmas, in the year 800, Charlemagne received here the Roman imperial crown from the hands of Leo III., and numerous emperors and popes were subsequently crowned here.

In the course of time the edifice had at length become so damaged that Nicholas V. determined on its reconstruction, and in 1450 began the posterior tribune, from the design of the Florentine Bernardino Rossellini. According to this, the church was to have the form of a Latin cross (i. e. with one arm longer than the others), and the choir was to be rounded internally, and to form half of a hexagon externally. The proportions were so adjusted that the choir and the transept completely enclosed the corresponding parts of the old church. The walls had risen to a height of 4-5 ft. only when it was interrupted by the death of the pope.

The work was not resumed till 50 years later, when a new impulse was given to the undertaking by the idea of Julius II. to erect a monument to himself during his own lifetime (p. 186), for which, as there was no sufficient room in the church, it was proposed to add a chapel. For this proposal was next substituted another, that the church itself should be altered, and that the beginning of Rossellini's building should be utilized; but this last suggestion was afterwards abandoned as being likely to interfere with the independence of the work, and it was at length resolved to erect an entirely new edifice. The tradition, that Julius II. had invited numbers of architects, including Giuliano da Sangallo, to submit designs, and that BRAMANTE was the successful competitor, is probably true. The numbers of sketches and designs preserved in the collection of drawings in the Uffizi at Florence testify to the enthusiasm and zeal with which the various masters entered into the lists, and particularly to the assiduity with which Bramante revised, corrected, and perfected his designs. His aim seems to have been to crown a substruction like the Basilica of Constantine with a superstruction like the Pantheon. He intended the new church to be in the form of a Greek cross covered with gigantic domes, with rounded choir and transept, and an aisle adjoining each of the dome pillars and terminating in smaller cupolas at the corners, while the entrances were to be in the axes of these aisles, opening outwards in the form of tunnel-vaulted porches. The foundation-stone was laid on 18th April, 1506, in the presence of 35 cardinals, under the choir-pillar of St. Veronica (No. 4 on the plan, p. 282).

This plan, which had the merit of majestic simplicity, was, it is well known, not adhered to. The year preceding Bramante's death (d. 1514), Giuliano da Sangallo, and with him Raphael and Fra Giocondo da Verona were entrusted with the superintendence of the work. The great age of the first and the third, and the early death of Raphael (d. 1520), were unfavourable to the work, and the original plan was much altered, the masters being divided between the Greek and Latin form of cross. The next directors of the work were Antonio da Peruzzi of Perugia and Angelo (1517), Baldassare Peruzzi of Perugia (1548), who distinguished himself by the design of the pillars of the porch borne by this last part. Angelo was in completed the drum of the dome, and left behind him drawings and models for the completion of the work up to the lantern, a task which was executed by Giacomo della Porta and Carlo Fontana. Notwithstanding the vastness of its dimensions, the dome presents a marvellously airy and symmetrical appearance.

After the death of Michael Angelo (d. 1564) the building of the church was continued by Vignola, Pirro Ligorio, and the already mentioned Giacomo della Porta. In 1606 the church was completed with the exception of the façade, when Paul V. introduced an unfortunate alteration. Contrary to the plan of Bramante and Michael Angelo, he caused the nave to be lengthened, and the present weak and unsuitable façade to be erected by Carlo Maderna. Lastly Bernini (after 1626) finished the building in a most unsuitable way. He designed two campanili to be erected on each side of the church, but the only one which was built had to be removed owing to the insecurity of the foundation. The effect was afterwards enhanced by the double colonnades erected in front, also by Bernini, in the pontificate of Alexander VII.

The new church was consecrated by Pope Urban VIII., on 18th Nov. 1626, on the 1300th anniversary of the day on which St. Silvester is said to have consecrated the original edifice. The interior was filled by Bernini with the sculptures of his contemporaries, the buttresses covered with marble of different colours, and niches, which destroyed the massive effect, were formed in the principal pillars. By the end of the 17th cent. the cost of building St. Peter's had amounted to upwards of 47 million scudi (nearly 10 million pounds sterling), and the present expense of its maintenance is about 7500 pounds per annum. The new sacristy, erected by Pius VI., cost 960,000 sc. (about 180,000 pounds).

The result of these various vicissitudes is that St. Peter's is the largest and most imposing, although not the most beautiful church in the world; its area is 26,163 sq. yds., while that of the cathedral at Milan is 14,501, St. Paul's at London 13,429, and St. Sophia at Constantinople 11,891 sq. yds.

The measurements are variously stated by different authorities, but the following are approximately accurate. Length of the interior 205 yds., or including the walls 213 yds.; length of St. Paul's in London 170 yds.; cathedral at Florence 163 yds.; cathedral at Milan 148 yds.; S. Paolo Fuori le Mura 139 yds.; St. Sophia at Constantinople 118 yds. — According to the measurements of Carlo Fontana, the total length of St. Peter's, including the portico, is 232 yds.; height of nave 150 ft.; breadth of nave in front 29 yds., and at the back, behind the tribune 26 yds.; length of transept inside 150 yds. — The Dome, from the pavement to the summit of the lantern, is 403 ft. in height, to the summit of the cross 435 ft.; its diameter is 138 ft., or about 5 ft. less than that of the Pantheon. The church contains 29 altars, in addition to the high-altar, and 148 columns.

The FAÇADE, with 8 columns, 4 pilasters, and 6 semi-pilasters of the Corinthian order, is 123 yds. long, and 165 ft. in height. It is surmounted by a balustrade with statues of the Saviour and apostles, 19 ft. in height. The inscription records that it was erected by Paul V. (Borghese) in 1612. Over the central of the five entrances is the Loggia in which the new pope used to be crowned, and whence he imparted his benediction at Easter to the concourse assembled in the piazza (discontinued since the Italian occupation, comp. p. 114).

The PORTICO, the ceiling of which is magnificently decorated in stucco, is 78 yds. in length,  $14\frac{1}{2}$  in width, and 66 ft. in height. At the ends are equestrian statues: on the right, Constantine the Great by Bernini, on the left, Charlemagne by Cornacchini. At the entrances are antique columns of pavonazzetto and African marble.

Over the interior of the central external entrance is *St. Peter on the sea, termed 'La Navicella', a mosaic after Giotto, formerly in the entrance-court of the earlier church, unfortunately considerably altered by Marcello Provenziale and Fr. Berretta. A copy of the original is preserved in S. Maria della Concezione in the Piazza Barberini (p. 164). — Of the five doors of the church that on the extreme right is called the PORTA SANTA, indicated by a cross, and is only opened in the years of jubilee (every 25 years; but the last celebration was in 1825). The great CENTRAL ENTRANCE is closed by the brazen doors which Eugene IV. caused to be executed in 1447 by Ant. Filarete and Sim. Donatello after the model of those of S. Giovanni at Florence. The Christian subjects represented on them contrast strangely with those on the surrounding arabesques, such as Phrixus and Hella on the ram, Europa on the bull, Ganymede carried off by the eagle, etc. — The portico unfortunately detracts greatly from the effect of the whole, and, even when the spectator is at some distance off, it conceals a considerable part of the cylinder of the dome. The effect which Michael Angelo intended the dome itself to produce cannot be appreciated except from a considerable distance.

While the exterior of St. Peter's is open to criticism, it cannot be denied that the **INTERIOR, notwithstanding the meretricious enrichments with which it is disfigured, is overwhelmingly impressive, and the effect is produced not so much by the vastness of its dimensions, as by the harmony and symmetry of its proportions. The finest features, such as the great breadth of the three arms of the cross, the four great dome pillars, the arcades below the dome, and the diameter of the latter, are all due to Bramante, to whom the coffering of the tunnel-vaulting must also be ascribed.

Interior. On the pavement of the NAVÉ, close to the central door, is a round slab of porphyry on which the emperors were formerly crowned, and beyond it are stones on which are inscribed the length of several other large churches (see above; half obliterated). On each side, as far as the dome, are four pillars with Corinthian pilasters; above these a rich entablature, which bears the arches extending from pillar to pillar and the gorgeously coffered and gilded *vaulting of the ceiling. The niches of the pillars here and in the other parts of the church contain mediocre statues of the founders of various orders. The pavement, like the walls, consists entirely of marble, inlaid from designs by G. della Porta and Bernini. — By the fourth pillar to the right is the *sitting statue of St. Peter in bronze, on a throne of white marble beneath a canopy, a work of the 5th cent., brought by Paul V. from the monastery of S. Martino. The right foot is almost entirely worn away by frequent contact with the lips of devotees; in front of it two large candelabra. Above is the mosaic portrait of Pius IX., placed there in memory of the 25th anniversary of his accession to the papal see, 16th June, 1871.

The DOME rests on four huge buttresses, 234 ft. in circumference, the niches in the lower parts of which are occupied by statues, 16 ft. in height, of (r.) St. Longinus (2) by Bernini and St. Helena (3) by Bolgi, (l.) St. Veronica (4) by Mocchi and St. Andrew (5) by Duquesnoy; above them are the four loggie of Bernini, where the greatest relics are exhibited on high festivals, on which occasions the loggie may be entered by none but the canons of St. Peter's. Above these are four mosaics of the Evangelists after the Cav. d'Arpino, of colossal dimensions. The frieze bears the inscription in mosaic: Tu es Petrus et super hanc petram aedificabo ecclesiam meam et tibi dabo claves regni caelorum. The sixteen ribs of the vaulting of the dome are decorated with gilded stucco; between them are four series of mosaics. In the lowest the Saviour, the Virgin, and the Apostles. On a level with the lantern, God the Father, by Marcello Provenziale, after the Cav. d'Arpino.

Beneath the dome rises the imposing, but tasteless bronze CANOPY, borne by four richly gilded spiral columns, constructed in 1633 under Pope Urban VIII., from designs by Bernini, of the metal taken from the Pantheon (p. 196). It is 95 ft. in height, including the cross, and weighs about 93 tons. Under the canopy is the HIGH ALTAR, consecrated in 1594, where the pope only reads mass on high festivals. It stands immediately over the Tomb of St. Peter. The CONFESSIO, constructed by C. Maderna under Paul V., is surrounded by 89 ever-burning lamps. The descent to it is by a double marble flight of steps. Doors of gilded bronze, dating from the earlier church, close the niche which contains the sarcophagus of the apostle. Between the steps is the *statue (6) of Pius VI. in the attitude of prayer, by Canova, 1822.

The nave is continued beyond the dome, and terminates in the TRIBUNE, containing the mediocre bronze Cathedra Petri of Bernini, which encloses the ancient wooden episcopal chair of St. Peter. On the right (7) is the monument of Urban VIII. (d. 1644) by Bernini; on the left (8) *that of Paul III. (d. 1549) by Gugl. della Porta, probably under the supervision of Michael Angelo. Above is the figure of the pope pronouncing his benediction; beneath on the right Prudence, on the left Justice, the latter now draped with bronze. Two other figures belonging to the group are now in the Pal. Farnese. Under the two founders of orders here, and under the next two in the nave, Pius IX. caused to be engraved the names of the bishops and prelates who on 8th Dec. 1854 accepted the new dogma of the immaculate conception of the Virgin.

Having traversed the nave and surveyed the stupendous dimensions of the fabric, we now proceed to examine the aisles and transepts. St. Peter's contains but few pictures; those formerly here, some of which are now in the Vatican Gallery, are replaced by copies in mosaic.

RIGHT AISLE. Over the 'jubilee-door' St. Peter in mosaic (9), placed here by Clement X. in the year of jubilee 1675. The (1st) CHAPEL DELLA PIETÀ (10) contains an admirable early work of Michael Angelo (1499; p. Lii): *Mary with the dead body of Christ on her knees. Adjacent, to the right under the arch, is the monument (11) of Leo XII., erected by Gregory XVI., by De Fabris; to the left, cenotaph (12) and bronze relief-portrait of Christina of Sweden, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, and a convert to the Romish faith. The 2nd altar (13) is adorned with the Martyrdom of St. Sebastian after Domenichino. Under the next arches are the monuments of (r.) Innocent XII. by Fil. Valle (14), and (l.) the Countess Mathilda of Tuscia (d. 1115) by Bernini (15), executed by order of Urban VII. who had transferred her remains from Mantua hither. On the right the (3rd) CHAPEL OF THE HOLY SACRAMENT (16), closed by an iron gate, contains an altar-piece by Pietro da Cortona; right, the finely executed *monument (17) of Sixtus IV. (d. 1484) in bronze, by Ant. Pollajuolo (1493). Julius II. (of the della Rovere family, like Sixtus), who was the first to resume the construction of the church after Nicholas V., is also interred here. Under the next arch: right, the monument (18) of Gregory XIII., the rectifier of the calendar (d. 1585), by Camillo Rusconi; left, the unadorned sarcophagus (19) of Gregory XIV. Opposite (but now concealed by the council barriers) over the altar by the principal buttress, is the Communion of St. Jerome (20), after Domenichino (original in the Vatican). On the right, the GREGORIAN CHAPEL (21), an altar (54) with Mary's first visit to the Temple, after Romanelli; adjoining this, to the left, is a point whence the entire depth of the church may be surveyed, as far as the chapel of St. Michael, but the view is now unfortunately marred by the council barriers. Under the arch, to the right over the door which leads to the dome, the eye of the English traveller will rest with interest upon the monument (55) of Maria Clementina Sobieski (d. 1785 at Rome), wife of Charles Edward, the young Pretender, and to the left the tomb (56) of the last of the Stuarts, by Canova (1819), with busts of 'James III.' and his sons Charles Edward, and Henry, better known as Cardinal York. In the last chapel (57) on the right is a font consisting of the cover of a sarcophagus from the mausoleum of Hadrian. Over the altar, Baptism of Christ, after Maratta.

The SACRISTY (entrance by the grey marble portal, ground-plan 44; visited most conveniently 9-11 a.m.), erected in 1775 by Pius VI. from designs of C. Marchionne, consists of three chapels in a corridor adorned with ancient columns and inscriptions.

At the entrance the statues of (r.) St. Peter and (l.) St. Paul, executed under Pius II. by Mino del Regno, and formerly in the Piazza of St. Peter. The central chapel, SAGRESTIA COMUNE (58), octagonal in form, is embellished with eight columns of bigio from the villa of Hadrian at Tibur. A guide (1½ fr.) is found here to show the others. Left, the SAGRESTIA DEI CANONICI (59), with the Cap. dei Canonici, altar-piece by Francesco Penni (Madonna with SS. Anna, Peter, and Paul), opposite to which is a *Madonna and Child by Giulio Romano. Adjacent is the STANZA CAPITOLARE (60), containing *pictures from the old Confessio, by Giotto (Christ with a cardinal, Crucifixion of Peter, Execution of Paul), and *fragments of the frescoes by Melozzo da Forlì from the former dome of SS. Apostoli (angels with musical instruments and several heads of apostles). On the right, the SAGRESTIA DE' BENEFIZIATI (61), with an altar-piece by Muziano, the Delivery of the Keys. Contiguous is the TREASURY (62) of St. Peter's, containing jewels, candelabra by Benvenuto Cellini and Michael Angelo, the dalmatica worn by Charlemagne at his coronation, etc. — Over the sacristy are the ARCHIVES of St. Peter's with ancient MSS., e.g. Life of St. George, with miniatures by Giotto; also a few classical authors. The treasury and archives are seldom shown.

The SAGRE GROTTA VATICANE also deserve a visit (admission by permesso; application to be made in the sacristy; ladies require special permission from the Pope; sacristan 1½ fr.). They consist of passages with chapels and altars beneath the pavement of the present church; entrance (ground-plan a) by the pillar of St. Veronica, under the dome. The 'Grotte Vecchie', however, the most interesting of these vaults, are not shown to the public.

The Grotte Nuove, situated under the dome, consist of a corridor in the form of a horse-shoe, which encloses the Confessio. In the four great buttresses which support the nave, steps descend to as many CHAPELS: a. St. Veronica, k. St. Helena, i. St. Longinus, d. St. Andrew. — In the CHAPEL OF S. MARIA DE PORTICU (b), to the right by the entrance, is St. Matthew, on the left, St. John, both from the tomb of Nicholas V. (d. 1455); over the altar a Madonna by Simone Memmi, from the colonnade of the old church, much injured. Outside the chapel, on the right, a mosaic: Christ between SS. Peter and Paul, from the tomb of Emp. Otho II. — In the CHAPEL OF S. M. PREGNANTIUM (c), at the entrance, the two SS. James, from the tomb of Nicholas V.; half-figure of Boniface VIII.; angels in mosaic, after Giotto. Here, and throughout the whole corridor, are preserved numerous reliefs of the 15th cent. from the tombs of the popes; among them, on the right, a Madonna with St. Peter and St. Paul by Mino da Fiesole. Reliefs from the tomb of Paul II.: Hope, Faith, and the Last Judgment. On the left side, by the sides of the Confessio, marble *reliefs (m), representing the martyrdom of St. Peter.

and Paul, from the tomb of the prefect Junius Bassus (d. 359), with the large *sarcophagus of the Old and New Testament, found here in 1535. The Confraternity of St. Peter and Paul, situated in the centre of the circular passage, is gorgeously decorated in 1122, are two ancient etc. Over the altar, which was consecrated in 1122, are two ancient pictures of St. Peter and St. Paul. The sarcophagus of St. Peter (formerly in the catacombs on the Via Appia, then in the Lateran) has been preserved here since the 15th cent.

The Grotto Vecchia, of the ancient church, and lies 11 ft. below that of the present church. These vaults contain the tombs of many popes and princes. In e. of Nicholas I. (d. 867), Gregory V. (d. 999), and Emp. Otto II. (d. 1004), an old sarcophagus in granite; Pius II. (Æneas Silvius Piccolomini, d. 1458), an early Christian sarcophagus; Pius III. (d. 1503), Boniface VIII. (d. 1303), Nicholas V. (Thomas of Sarzana, d. 1455), and Paul II. (d. 1471), these four by Mino da Fiesole; Urban VI. (d. 1389); Marcellus II. (d. 1555), in an early Christian sarcophagus; Cardinal Fonseca (d. 1422).

The ascent of the Dome is nominally permitted on Thursdays only, 8-10 a. m., but permission can also be obtained on other days without much trouble; visitors knock at the door in the left aisle (Pl. 55). Eight flights of easy steps, 142 in all, ascend to the roof. The walls bear memorial-tablets of royal personages who have performed the ascent. On the roof a number of domes and small structures are seen, some of which serve as dwellings for the workmen and custodians.

One of the eight octagonal chambers in the pillars which support the dome contains a model of the church by Michael Angelo and his predecessor, Ant. da San Gallo, for admission to which a separate permission, decessible by special recommendation only, must be procured; here, too, obtainable of the ancient throne of St. Peter is preserved.

The Dome rises 308 ft. above the roof, and is 630 ft. in circumference. The huge hoops of iron are seen here, by which the dome was strengthened in the 18th cent., when threatening fissures had begun to make their appearance. The gallery within the dome affords a view of the interior. An easy staircase ascends between the external and internal walls of the dome to the *Lantern, whence a view is obtained of the whole church and its environs, and in clear weather of the Campagna from the mountains to the distant sea. A narrow iron staircase, admitting one person only at a time, ascends to the copper ball on the summit, which can contain 16 persons, but affords no view.

Ascending by St. Peter's, to the left beyond the colonnades (the way to the Vatican gallery of statues, see p. 305, and Plan, p. 278), we reach, on the left near the sacristy, the Cimitero dei Tedeschi, the most ancient Christian burial-ground, instituted by Constantine, and filled with earth from Mt. Calvary. In 1779 it was granted to the Germans by Pius VI. Adjacent is the church of S. Maria della

Pietà in Campo Santo (Pl. I, 4, 4), adjoining which is the German and Flemish refuge for pilgrims.

Near it is situated the Palace of the SS. Uffizio, or seat of the Inquisition, now converted into barracks. That tribunal was established in 1536 by Paul III. by the advice of Card. Caraffa, afterwards Pope Paul IV., and this edifice was assigned to it by Pius V.

The Vatican.

This, the most extensive palace in the world, was originally a dwelling-house for the popes, erected by Symmachus near the anterior court of the old church of St. Peter, and afterwards gradually extended. Charlemagne, when in Rome, is believed to have resided here. This building having fallen to decay during the tumults of the following centuries, Eugene III. erected a palace near St. Peter's, which was greatly enlarged by Nicholas III. The Vatican did not, however, become the usual residence of the popes until after their return from Avignon, when the Lateran was deserted. After the death of Gregory XI. the first conclave was held in the Vatican in 1378, which resulted in the schism. In 1410 John XXIII. constructed the covered passage to the castle of S. Angelo. In 1450 Nicholas V., with a view to render the Vatican the most imposing palace in the world, determined to unite in it all the government-offices and residences of the cardinals. The small portion completed by him, afterwards occupied by Alexander VI. and named Tor di Borgia, was extended by subsequent popes. In 1473 the Sistine Chapel was erected by Sixtus IV., and about 1490 the Belvedere, or garden-house, by Innocent VIII. Bramante, under Julius II., united the latter with the palace by means of a great court, which under Sixtus V. was divided by the erection of the library into two parts, the anterior court and the Giardino della Pigna. The Loggia round the Cortile di S. Damaso were also constructed by Bramante. In 1534 Paul III. founded the Pauline Chapel, and Sixtus V. the Library and the present residence of the popes, which last was completed by Clement VIII. (1592-1605). Urban VIII. erected the Scala Regia from Bernini's design, Pius VII. the Braccio Nuovo for the sculptures, Gregory XVI. the Etruscan Museum, and Pius IX. closed the fourth side of the Cortile di S. Damaso by covering and reconstructing the great staircase which leads from the arcades of the piazza into the court. The palace now possesses 20 courts, and is said to comprise 11,000 halls, chapels, saloons, and private apartments. By far the greater number of these are occupied by collections being set apart for the papal court. A law passed on 13th May, 1871, secures to the Vatican, the Lateran, and the papal villa at Castel Gandolfo the privilege of extraterritoriality. Pius IX. never quitted the Vatican after the Italian occupation on 20th Sept., 1870. and Leo XIII. has adopted the same line of action.

the right, by which however they are their present entrance to the Stanze, etc., see below.) The Cortile di S. Damaso, a court which derives its name from the fountain of St. Damascus erected here by Innocent X., and sometimes called Cortile delle Loggie from the Loggia of Bramante (p. 302) by which it is bounded on three sides. On the right is the wing occupied by the Pope; on the left a door with the inscription Adito alla Biblioteca ed al Museo (now available for workers in the library only) leads to the staircase which ascends to the Loggia of the first floor, and those of Raphael on the second (p. 302). The first door to the left in the loggia of the first floor leads to the Sistina, and that at the end straight before us, to the Museum of Antiquities (p. 304).

The Permessi for the Vatican, and Hours of Admission, see pp. 118, 119. The visitor should be abundantly provided with 50c. notes and a copper money, as contributions are exacted from him at about ten places (see in each department  $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr., frequent visitors 25c.). The cicerones who proffer their services at the entrance are generally very ignorant and importunate. Apartments not usually shown at present, are enclosed within square brackets in the following description.

A permesso may be obtained for any week-day, 8-11 and 2-5 o'clock, available for five persons (comp. pp. 118, 119). — The name of each department where it is shown is then deleted in turn.

We pass the entrance with the Swiss guard and proceed to the Scala Regia, a magnificent flight of steps, constructed by Antonio da Sangallo, and restored by Bernini under Alexander VII., covered with tunnel-vaulting resting on Roman columns. We mount these steps and pass through a door to the Staircase on the Right, which ascends to the first floor, where there is a side entrance, and now Sistina Chapel (see below), indicated by an inscription, and now used by visitors, and to the second floor, where Raphael's stanze and loggia are situated (p. 290). The third floor contains the picture gallery (p. 298).

side above. Beautifully decorated marble screens enclose the space set apart for religious solemnities. The lower part of the walls was formerly hung with Raphael's tapestry on the occasion of festivals, while the upper part, with the exception of the wall of the altar, is decorated with interesting frescoes by Florentine masters of the 15th century. The ceiling was painted by Michael Angelo. Best light in the morning.

These FREScoes represent parallel scenes from the life of Christ (right) and Moses (left), beginning at the altar, and meeting on the entrance-wall. Left: 1. (by the altar) Moses with his wife Zipporah journeying to Egypt, Zipporah circumcises her son, by Perugino (sometimes attributed to Luca Signorelli); 2. Moses kills the Egyptian, drives the shepherds from the well, kneels before the burning bush, Sandro Botticelli; 3. Pharaoh's destruction in the Red Sea, Cosimo Rosselli; 4. Moses receives the Law on Mt. Sinai, Adoration of the calf, by the same; 5. Destruction of the company of Korah, and that of the sons of Aaron, S. Botticelli; 6. Death of Moses, L. Signorelli. Adjoining the latter, on the entrance-wall: Contest of the Archangel Michael for the body of Moses, by Salviati, now entirely repainted. — Right: 1. Baptism of Christ, Perugino; 2. Christ's Temptation, S. Botticelli; *3. Vocation of Peter and Andrew, Dom. Ghirlandajo; 4. Sermon on the Mount, Cure of the leper, C. Rosselli. — On the entrance-wall: Resurrection of Christ, originally by D. Ghirlandajo, renewed by Arrigo Fiammingo. — On the pillars between the windows 28 popes by S. Botticelli, not easily distinguishable.

The **CEILING (p. lii) was begun by Michael Angelo 10th May, 1508, and, if the exaggerated account of his two biographers be believed, was completed by the master in 22 months with his own hand, the Florentine assistants he had at first engaged having been speedily dismissed. Whether the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel, or the Stanze of Raphael are to be regarded as the culminating effort of modern art, has long been the subject of controversy. The merit of uniformity of thought and compactness of composition, must be awarded to the ceiling painting, and these attributes are the more worthy of admiration, as the subjects of the whole series had not been agreed upon from the outset. The pictorial enrichment of the ceiling was at first to be limited to the figures of the Twelve Apostles, but Michael Angelo, perceiving the poverty of the design, prevailed on the pope to allow him to extend it. In order to connect the different scenes, Michael Angelo invented an imaginative structure with columns, pillars, and cornices in bronze and marble, which rises from the walls, and encloses in the middle of the ceiling (which is vaulted, with a flat surface in the middle) nine sections of different sizes. The lifelike figures which step forth from the architectural members, some of them in their natural colour, and others of a bronze tint, impart to the background such animation and significance, as to render it an admirable introduction to the large central pictures. It is here that the spectator will become fully aware of the importance to a painter of a thorough acquaint-

A description of the CENTRAL SCENES may be given nearly in the words of Ascanio Condivi, a pupil of Michael Angelo, who in 1553 wrote the master's life before the death of the latter. — 'In the 1st Section of the ceiling (reckoned from the altar), which is one of the smaller ones, you observe in the air God Almighty, who with the motion of his arms separates light from darkness. — In the 2nd Section he creates the two great lights of the world, his outstretched right hand touching the sun, and the left the moon. Around him are several angels, one of whom (to the left) hides his face, and presses close to the Creator, as if to screen himself from the baneful influence (dazzling light) of the moon. In the same section God is again represented as engaged in creating the herbs and plants on the earth. He is portrayed with such art, that wherever you turn he appears to follow you, showing his whole back down to the soles of his feet, — a very excellent work, proving what can be done by foreshortening. — In the 3rd Section God the Lord appears in the air surrounded with angels, regarding the waters, and commanding them to bring forth all those kinds of animals which that element nourishes. — In the 4th Section the creation of man is represented, and God is seen with outstretched arm and hand, as if prescribing to Adam what to do, and what to abstain from. With his other arm he encloses a group of angels (the figure immediately behind the shoulder of the Father bears distinctly female features, and it is a not improbable conjecture that the master meant here to represent the uncreated Eve). — In the 5th Section God draws from Adam's side the woman, who with folded hands stretched out towards God, bows herself with a sweet expression, so that it seems she is thanking him, and that he is blessing her. — In the 6th Section the Demon, in human form from the waist upwards, and otherwise a serpent, coils himself round a tree; he converses with Adam and Eve, whom he persuades to disobey their Creator, and hands the forbidden fruit to the woman. In the second part of the section you see the pair, driven out by the angel, fleeing terrified and sad from the face of God. — In the 7th Section the sacrifice of Abel and Cain is represented. — In the 8th Section is seen the Flood, with Noah's Ark on the water at a distance, and a few persons clinging to it in hopes of saving themselves. Nearer is a boat crowded with people, which, owing to its undue load, and to the numbers of violent shocks of waves, is already shipping water, and threatening to sink, and it is indeed a strange thing to see the human race perishing so miserably in the waves. Still nearer the eye appears above the water the top of a mountain, where a number of men and women have sought refuge as if on an island; they show different emotions, but they all cower, miserable and terrified, under a tent stretched over a tree, to shelter themselves from the excessive rain. And in this scene the wrath of God is represented with great art, for he sends upon them lightning, waters, and storms. There is also another mountain top on the right side with a group of people on it in similar distress, but it would take too long to describe each one of them. — In the 9th Section, the last, is narrated the story of Noah, who, when lying drunken and naked on the ground, is mocked by his son Ham, but is being covered by Shem and Japheth'.

On the lower part of the vaulting are the **PROPHETS AND SIBYLS in earnest contemplation, surrounded by angels and genii. To the left of the altar: 1. Jeremiah, in a profound reverie; 2. Persian Sibyl, reading; 3. Ezekiel with half-opened scroll; 4. Erythraean Sibyl, sitting by an open book; 5. Joel, reading a scroll; 6. (over the door) Zacharias, turning the leaves of a book; 7. Delphian Sibyl, with an open scroll; 8. Isaiah, his arm resting on a book, absorbed by divine inspiration; 9. Cumaean Sibyl, opening a book; 10. Daniel, writing; 11. Libyan Sibyl, grasping an open book; 12. (above the Last Judgment) Jonah, sitting under the gourd. 'All these are truly wonderful', says Condivi, 'both owing to the attitudes, and to the ornamentation, and the variety of the drapery. But most wonderful of all is the prophet Jonah who sits at the top of the vaulting. His body is foreshortened towards the inside, towards the part nearest the beholder's eye, while the legs project outside, in the more distant part: a marvellous work, for so great is the skill of Michael Angelo in foreshortening and perspective'.

Nearly 30 years later than this ceiling Michael Angelo painted on the altar-wall the **LAST JUDGMENT, 64 ft. in width, completed under Paul III. in 1541. Careful and repeated study alone will enable the spectator to appreciate the details of this vast composition, which is unfortunately blackened by the smoke of centuries, and unfavourably lighted. To fathom the religious views and artistic designs of the talented master is a still more difficult task. On the right of the figure of Christ as Judge hover the saints drawn back by devils and supported by angels, on his left the sinners in vain strive to ascend; above are two groups of angels with the Cross, the column at which Christ was scourged, and the other instruments of his sufferings; in the centre Christ and the Virgin, surrounded by apostles and saints; below the rising dead is hell, according to Dante's conception, with the boatman Charon and the judge Minos, whose face is a portrait of Biagio of Cesena, master of the ceremonies of Paul III., who had censured the picture on account of the nudity of the figures. Paul IV., who contemplated the destruction of the picture on this account, was per- , instead, to cause some of the figures to be partially draped by Daniele da Volterra. Clement XII. caused this process to be extended to the other figures by Stefano Pozzi, whereby, as may be imagined, the picture was far from being improved.

Most of the solemnities at which the Pope officiates in person take the Stanza della Segnatura (p. 295), the Stanza d'Elodoro (p. 299), and the Sala di Costantino (p. 300). From the last of these we enter the Loggie, see p. 302.

The Principal Entrance, which was formerly often available, is in the Cortile di S. Damaso, whence the staircase mentioned at p. 289 ascends to the Loggie, from which the Stanze are then entered. — The following description begins with the Stanze.

Raphael's Stanze. The frescoes executed by Raphael in 1508-1520 in the papal apartments (Stanze or Camere) of the Vatican, by order of the Popes Julius II. and Leo X., are unquestionably the foremost among the creations of the master and are rivalled by no modern works of art in existence except the ceiling paintings in the Cappella Sistina (p. 291). The work, however, in its entire grandeur had not been planned, nor the task committed to Raphael from the outset. Julius II. originally intended these rooms to be decorated in a much simpler style, and he entrusted the task to Perugino, Sodoma, and other painters of Umbria and Siena. Among these was the young Raphael, who had probably been introduced by Perugino, and who after the completion of the first frescoes became so prominent among his fellows, that the work was then entrusted to him exclusively. Raphael did not, however, live to complete his task, and it was finished by his pupils. The earliest pictures in the first and second stanza only are by Raphael's hand. For each of these paintings he received 1200 gold scudi (nearly 500 pounds). They were seriously injured during the plundering of Rome in 1527, but were restored by Carlo Maratta under Clement XI. They are enumerated here chronologically (comp. also p. liv).

I. STANZA DELLA SEGNAURA, so named from the fact that the papal letters were signed here. Its decoration was undertaken by Raphael in 1508, at the age of 25, and completed in 1511. The sections of the vaulting of the apartment had already been arranged by Sodoma. On the four circular and quadrangular spaces Raphael painted allegorical figures and Biblical and mythological scenes, which in connection with the paintings in the large lunettes are symbolical of the four principal spheres of intellectual life.

Mural Paintings. Under the Theology: 1. THE DISPUTA. This name continues to be applied to this painting, although it is based on a misunderstanding and error. The scene represented is not a dispute about the doctrine of transubstantiation, as commonly sup posed, the monstrance with the host on the altar being merely intended as a clue to the nature of the subject, and as a symbol of the church. The scene is rather to be defined as the Glorification of Christian Faith. The congregation gathered round the altar, full of religious emotion, and burning with enthusiasm, see heaven open, disclosing Christ with the heroes of the faith grouped around him. The composition thus consists of two halves, the upper and the lower, whereby not only the heavenward direction of the religious sentiment is clearly indicated, but a definite basis for its formal expression is also obtained. In the UPPER HALF is Christ enthroned, attended by the Madonna and the Baptist; above him hovers the half-figure of God the Father; and below him is the symbol of the Holy Spirit, at whose side are two angels holding the books of the gospel. A choir of angels forms the background, and angels likewise bear the clouds, on which, a little lower down, the heroes of the Old and New Testament are sitting. These last are arranged alternately, and the heroes of the Old Testament at the same time represent the epochs of the world. To the left of the spectator sit St. Peter, Adam, St. John the Evangelist, David, St. Stephen, and a half-concealed personage from the Old Testament (a prophet?); on the right, St. Paul, Abraham, St. James, Moses, St. Lawrence, and lastly an armed hero of the Old Testament. — In the LOWER HALF the four Fathers of the Church, sitting next to the altar, constitute the historical foundation of the picture; to the left St. Gregory and St. Jerome; on the right St. Augustine and St. Ambrose. From a very early period attempts have been made to attach historical names to the other figures, which are supposed to be portraits of theologians. Vasari states that they represent SS. Dominicus and Francis, Thomas Aquinas, Bonaventura, Scotus, and Nicholas of Lira. The figure in the antique costume beside St. Ambrose, stretching his right hand towards heaven, has been identified with Petrus Lombardus, the monk behind St. Augustine with Thomas Aquinas, the cardinal with Bonaventura, and the two popes with Anacletus and Innocent III. These, however, are mere conjectures; and as Raphael has clothed these figures in an ideal costume, he seems to desire chiefly to emphasize their purely human psychological traits of character. The artist has also shown his independence by introducing several of his contemporaries. To the extreme left, in the background, is Fra Angelico da Fiesole, on the right side is the laurel-crowned profile of Dante, and, separated from him by an old man, appears the head of Savonarola.

the most perspicuous of the whole fail to appreciate the poetical life pervade the picture, while the immense time exceedingly pleasing. Raskin's skill in adapting his work to the space to be covered. Apollo sits under his instrument was not chosen by Raskin for the purpose of paying a compliment to the purpose of that period, but on the motion of the hand seemed to him easier when around Apollo are grouped the blind singer, on the left, next arrests our attention. The figures of the god have so inspired him, that he begins to sing. Near him are Dante and Virgil. The foremost group are recognisable, and the front figures, in the so-called Pindar and Horace. The personages be- called Pindar and Horace. The personages be- contemporaries of Raphael, whose names cannot be ascertained. Under these, in grisaille: left, Alexander the Great carries the poems of Homer to be placed in the grave of Achilles; right, Augustus prevents the burning of Virgil's Aeneid.

Under the Philosophy: S. The so-called SCHOOL OF ATHENS (a name not originally applied to the work), the companion to the Disputa, not only in point of situation, but with respect to its subject likewise. There we are introduced to a congregation of philosophers, here to an Assembly of Scholars. The scene is not divided between heaven and earth, as in the case of the Disputa, but is a gradation of knowledge, from the imperfect empirical to the perfect and universal, is suggested. A flight of steps leads to an open colonnade, crowned with a dome at the back (supposed to have been designed by Bramante), which forms the most admirable example of knowledge ever created. Apollo, Minerva, and numerous gods adorn the niches. Plato and Aristotle, the princes in the realm of thought, whom the Renaissance especially revered, surrounded by a numerous train, approach the steps which descend to the foreground, where, in contrast to the pure philosophers, is a crowd of representatives of the empirical sciences, of geometry, arithmetic, astronomy, and music. Such are the two main contrasts presented by the picture, and with them are combined a gradual raising of the sentiments and aspirations from mechanical pursuits, from learning and teaching, copying, meditating, and disputing, to the glorious revelation of the truth, as embodied in the 'divine Plato'. To these general features Raphael imparted the warmth of life and individuality by interweaving with the scene a number of ancient Greek and other personages, in conformity with the pre- of his contemporaries, who were enthusiastic admirers of the antique. He by no means intended, as has been supposed, to give a complete picture of the development of Greek philosophy, but he merely introduced various popular characters of antiquity, with a view to direct the spectator's imagination into the proper channel, and, as it were, to localise a scene which would otherwise have been too general and abstract. Besides Plato and Aristotle, the masks of the bald Socrates, and of Diogenes lying on the steps, are unmistakable. Ptolemy (who from having been mistaken for one of the kings of that name is arrayed in a crown), and Zoroaster with the globe in the foremost group on the right, are easily recognised. The names of the other figures are merely conjectural. The bearded old man in the corner to the left, in profile, is supposed to be Zeno, the Stoic, the vine-wreathed figure beside him, holding a book, is perhaps Epicurus or Democritus. The Oriental, who bends over the writing Pythagoras, is Averroes, who was regarded in the middle ages as the principal champion of heretical wisdom. By the base of a column sits Empedocles, who is also looking towards the tablet of Pythagoras. The figure resting his foot on a block of marble is either Anaxagoras or Xenocrates. Lastly, the isolated figure in the foreground, terminating the group to the left, is supposed to be Heraclitus. In the Socrates group above is a youthful warrior, representing either Alcibiades or Xenophon, and the figure behind the warrior, beckoning to Socrates, is said to be Chrysippus. No clue, however, has yet been discovered to the names of the figures in the corresponding group to the right, in the upper

of the picture. Raphael has introduced several of his into this picture also. Thus, the handsome youth at group to the left, bears the features of Francesco Rovere, Duke of Urbino; the geometer with the compasses, is the portrait of Bramante; and the youth bending forward with outstretched arms is Duke Frederick II. of Mantua. We are also introduced to the master himself, who enters the assembly from the right, accompanied by his teacher Perugino.

Under the Justice: 4. Over the window the three cardinal virtues: Prudence with double visage looking to the future and the past; right, Moderation; left, Strength. Below, at the side of the past; right, the administration of ecclesiastical and secular law; cry IX. (with the features of Julius II.) presenting the a jurist (surrounded by numerous portraits; to the left rd. de' Medici, afterwards Leo X.). Below (by Perino Moses brings the tables of the Law to the Israelites: an entrusts the Roman Code to Tribonian. In the speech lon's address to the Athenian people (?).

The door adjoining the 'School of Athens' leads to the —
 II. STANZA D'ELIODORO, the frescoes of which were painted in 1511-14. The mural paintings, from the first of which the saloon derives its name, represent the triumph and divine protection of the church, in connection with the age of the warlike Julius II. and the elevation of Leo X.

On the Ceiling are four scenes from the old Covenant, unfortunately much damaged: Jehovah appears to Noah, Jacob's Vision, Moses at the burning bush, Sacrifice of Isaac.

Mural Paintings. Below the Moses: 1. MIRACULOUS EXPULSION OF HELIODORUS from the Temple at Jerusalem by a heavenly horse-man (Maccab. ii, 3), being an allusion to the deliverance of the States of the Church from their enemies. On the right Heliodorus lies on the ground; one of his companions attempts to defend himself, a second shouts, a third strives to secure his booty; in the background the high-priest Onias praying; to the left in the foreground women and children, and Pope Julius II. on his throne (the hindmost of the two chair-bearers is the celebrated engraver Marcantonio Raimondi). This composition is remarkable for its admirable vigour of expression.

Below the Sacrifice of Isaac: 2. THE MASS OF BOLSENA. An unbelieving priest is convinced of the truth of the doctrine of transubstantiation by the bleeding of the host (comp. p. 65), a miracle which is said to have taken place at Bolsena in 1263; below are women and children; opposite the priest, Julius II. kneeling with calm equanimity; the wrathful cardinal is Riario (founder of the Cancelleria). This work is probably the most perfect of Raphael's frescoes with respect to execution.

Below Noah: 3. ATTILA REPULSED FROM ROME BY LEO I., in allusion to the expulsion of the French from Italy after the battle of Novara in 1513. The pope, with the features of Leo X., is seated on a white mule, around him cardinals and attendants on horseback, above him St. Peter and St. Paul enveloped in a brilliant light, and distinctly visible to Attila and his Huns, who are struck with terror at the apparition. To the right of this —

Below Jacob's Vision: 4. THE LIBERATION OF PETER, in three sections. Over the window Peter in the dungeon sleeping between the watchmen and awakened by the angel; right, he is conducted away; left, the watchmen awake.

Under the picture are painted eleven Caryatides and four statues in grisaille. They are symbolical of a life of peace, and bear the distinct impress of Raphael's inventive genius, notwithstanding considerable shades of brown between these, of similar import with the large figures, have been still more freely retouched.

These two apartments were painted by Raphael's own hand, and his progressive freedom and decision of touch are distinctly traceable. In the two following rooms he painted the conflagration of the Borgo only (with the exception of a few figures on the left); the other pictures were executed from his designs, those of the third room under his personal supervision, those of the fourth after his death.

III. STANZA DELL' INCENDIO, on the opposite side of the Stanza della Segnatura, is entered by the door on the right adjoining the Disputa. The ceiling-paintings are by Perugino, those on the walls, representing scenes from the reigns of Leo III. and Leo IV., were executed in 1517.

Over the window: 1. OATH OF LEO III., sworn by him in presence of Charlemagne (with the gold chain, his back turned to the spectator), in order to exculpate himself from the accusations brought against him, by Perino del Vaga.

To the right of this, on the entrance-wall: 2. VICTORY OF LEO IV. OVER THE SARACENS AT OSTIA, executed by Giov. da Udine. The pope is represented as Leo X., accompanied by Card. Julius de' Medici (Clement VII.), Card. Bibiena, and others. Below: Ferdinand the Catholic, and the Emp. Lothaire.

3. INCENDIO DEL BORGO, conflagration of the Borgo, whence the name of the room.

The apparently ungrateful task of painting a miracle has been executed so happily by the genius of Raphael, that he has presented us with what would be termed in modern language a magnificent genre picture. The traditional incident, — the extinguishing of a fire which had broken out in the Borgo, or Vatican quarter, by the sign of the cross made by Pope Leo IV. (9th cent.) in the Loggia of St. Peter's — is placed in the background. The foreground exhibits the terrors of a conflagration, the efforts of the people to save themselves and their movables, and the half-paralysed condition especially of the mothers and other women. We are then transported to the heroic age, by a group in the left corner, representing the aged Anchises on the back of Æneas, the classical derivation of which justifies the powerful delineation of the limbs. The Incendio is unquestionably the most popular picture of the series, and is well adapted to illustrate the superiority of Raphael's art to that of a later period. The antiquarian will also scan with interest the façade of the old church of St. Peter, represented here as it still existed in Raphael's time.

Below: Godfrey de Bouillon and Aistulf.

4. CORONATION OF CHARLEMAGNE in the old Church of St. Peter. Leo III. has the features of Leo X., and the emperor those of Francis I. of France. Below: Charlemagne.

IV. SALA DI COSTANTINO. The pictures of this saloon were executed under Clement VII. by Giulio Romano, aided by Francesco Penni and Raffaello dal Colle. It has been supposed that the allegorical figures of Comitas and Justice, in oil, and not 'al fresco' like the rest of the work, were painted by Raphael's own hand; but it appears, from letters of Fra Sebastiano del Piombo (who took an interest in the work after Raphael's death) to Michael Angelo, that one figure only was painted in oil by Raphael's pupils, and that the objects he depicted were not finally agreed upon at the time of Raphael's death, or, at least, that they underwent many changes during their execution. For some of the pictures, however, particularly for the battle of Constantine, preliminary sketches had been made by Raphael himself.

On the long wall: 1. BATTLE OF CONSTANTINE against Maxentius at Ponte Molle, the emperor advancing victoriously, behind him flags with the cross, Maxentius sinking in the river, flight and defeat on all sides, painted by G. Romano. This fine composition is full of expression and vigour, but the colouring is less successful. — On the left side of the picture Silvester I. between Faith and Religion; on the right Urban I. between Justice and Charity.

2. BAPTISM OF CONSTANTINE by Silvester I. (with the features of Clement VII.) in the baptistery of the Lateran, by Francesco Penni. To the left of this: Damasus I. between Prudence and Peace; right, Leo I. between Innocence and Truth.

4. CONSTANTINE'S ADDRESS to his warriors regarding the victorious omen of the cross, designed by Raphael (?), and executed by G. Romano, who added the dwarf (perhaps Gradasso Berettini or Norcis, dwarf-chamberlain of Card. Hippolytus de' Medici) and several other figures. — On the left, Peter between the Church and Eternity, right Clement I. between Moderation and Urbanity. — The scenes below are from the life of Constantine, designed by G. Romano.

The CILING, completed under Sixtus V., is adorned with allegory of the triumph of Christianity over paganism. 1 pendentives are Italian landscapes, with corresponding allegorical figures in the lunettes.

One of the custodians of this saloon ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.) shows the Cappella di Niccolò V., erected by Nicholas V. and decorated by Fra Angelico da Fiesole in 1447 with frescoes from the life of SS. Lawrence and Stephen. They are one of the last and finest works of that master, but were buried under Gregory XIII. and Pius VII.

The UPPER SKEIN represents scenes from the life of the door) Stephen consecrates him as a deacon; 8. He preaches; 9. He is dragged away to stoning. — Below, in the same order, scene 1. Sixtus V. gives him treasures for distribution of the same; 4. The saint is condemned to

Also on the wall below: l. St. Bonaventura, r. St. Johannes Chrysostomus. In the vaulting: l. St. Augustine, r. St. Gregory. On the lower part of the right wall: l. St. Athanasius, r. St. Thomas Aquinas. On the vaulting: l. St. Leo, r. St. Ambrose. On the ceiling the Four Evangelists.

**Raphael's Loggie. Leaving the Constantine saloon, we proceed to the second floor of the loggie which enclose the Cortile di S. Damaso (p. 289), the W. (right) wing of which was embellished with stucco mouldings, painted enrichments, and ceiling paintings, from designs by Raphael and under his superintendence by Giulio Romano, Giovanni da Udine, and others of his pupils. The hall was originally open, and the paintings have therefore suffered seriously from exposure to the air, but since 1813 they have been protected by windows of glass. The stucco work and the painted ornamentation are by Giovanni da Udine, and its style has manifestly been influenced by the antique works of the kind which had been found a short time previously in the Thermæ of Titus (p. 236). Amongst the ceiling paintings after Raphael's designs those in the first vault were executed by Giulio Romano, the others by Francesco Penni, Perino del Vaga, Polidoro da Caravaggio, and others. Each of the thirteen sections of the vaulting contains four quadrangular frescoes, which are together known as 'Raphael's Bible'. All these compositions display rare fertility of invention and gracefulness of treatment.

CEILING PAINTINGS. The first twelve vaults contain scenes from the Old, and the thirteenth scenes from the New Testament. We begin to the right of the principal approach, i. e. the side opposite the present entrance. Staircase: I. (over the door) 1. Separation of light from darkness; 2. Separation of land from sea; 3. Creation of the sun and moon; 4. Creation of the animals. — II. 4. Creation of Eve; 1. The Fall; 2. Banishment from Paradise; 3. Adam and Eve working (destroyed). — III. 1. Noah building the ark; 2. Deluge; 3. Egress from the ark (destroyed); 4. Noah's sacrifice. — IV. 1. Abraham and Melchisedek; 3. God promises Abraham posterity; 2. Abraham and the three angels; 4. Lot's flight from Sodom. — V. 1. God appears to Isaac; 3. Abimelech sees Isaac caressing Rebecca; 2. Isaac blesses Jacob; 4. Esau and Isaac. — VI. 1. Jacob's vision of the ladder; 2. Jacob and Rachel at the well; 3. Jacob upbraids Laban for having given him Leah (destroyed); 4. Jacob on his journey. — VII. 1. Joseph relates his dream to his brethren; 2. Joseph is sold; 3. Joseph and Potiphar's wife; 4. Joseph interprets Pharaoh's dream. — VIII. 1. Finding of Moses; 2. Moses at the burning bush; 3. Destruction of Pharaoh in the Red Sea; 4. Moses strikes the rock for water. — IX. 1. Moses receiving the tables of the Law; 2. Adoration of the golden calf, Moses breaks the tables; 3. Moses kneels before the pillar of cloud; 4. Moses shows the tables of the Law to the people. — X. 1. The Israelites crossing the Jordan; 2. Fall of Jericho; 3. Joshua bids the sun stand still during the battle with the Ammonites; 4. Joshua and Eleazar dividing Palestine among the twelve tribes. — XI. 1. Samuel anoints David; 2. David and Goliath; 4. David's triumph over the Syrians; 3. David sees Bathsheba. — XII. 1. Zadok anoints Solomon; 2. Solomon's Judgment; 4. The Queen of Sheba; 3. Building of the Temple (destroyed). — XIII. 1. Adoration of the shepherds (destroyed); 2. The wise men from the East; 3. Baptism of Christ; 4. Last Supper.

Raphael's own portrait, the one fleeing to the left that of Perugino; Coronation of the Virgin, designed by Raphael for the monastery of S. Maria di Monte Luce near Perugia, the upper half painted by G. Romano, the lower by Francesco Penni (il Fattore); Lo Spagna, Adoration of the infant Christ (formerly in La Spineta near Todi); **Raphael*, Coronation of the Virgin, painted in 1502 in Perugino's school, for S. Francesco at Perugia; **Perugino*, Madonna on a throne with Laurentius, Ludovicus, Herculaneus, and Constantius, the guardian saints of Perugia; Sassoferrato, Madonna. — End wall: M. A. Caravaggio, Entombment. — Window-wall: Titian, Doge of Venice; Niccolò Alunno, Crucifixion of Christ and Coronation of the Virgin, two large paintings in several compartments. Between these: **Melezzo da Forlì*, Fresco from the former library of the Vatican, representing Sixtus IV. the donor, with Card. Giul. della Rovere (Julius II.) and his nephew Pietro Riario; before him kneels Platina, prefect of the library.

IV. Room. Entrance-wall: Valentin, Martyrdom of Processus and Martinianus; Guido Reni, Crucifixion of St. Peter; N. Poussin, Martyrdom of St. Erasmus. — Right wall: F. Baroccio, Annunciation; A. Sacchi, Mass of Gregory the Great (there are mosaic copies of these three pictures in St. Peter's); Baroccio, St. Michelina. — Window-wall: **Moretto*, Madonna with SS. Jerome and Bartholomew; Paolo Veronese, Vision of St. Helena. — Left wall: Madonna; below, Guido Reni, SS. Thomas and Jerome; Correggio (? or perhaps Caracci), Christ in a glory; A. Sacchi, St. Romuald.

PERMESSO, see p. 118. A complete description (in English) of the Vatican Museum has been published by Massi (4 fr.; abridgment 2 fr.).

The VATICAN COLLECTION OF ANTIQUITIES, the finest in the world, was begun by the Popes Julius II., Leo X., Clement VII., and Paul III. in the Belvedere, which was erected by Bramante under Julius II. and commands a magnificent view of Rome. Here, for example, were preserved the Torso of Hercules, the Apollo Belvedere, and the Laocoon. Clement XIV. (Ganganelli, d. 1774) determined to institute a more extensive collection, in consequence of which the Museo Pio-Clementino arose under him and his successor Pius VI. The museum was arranged by the celebrated E. Q. Visconti. It was despoiled of its costliest treasures by the French in 1797, but most of these were restored to Pius VII. in 1816 after the Treaty of Paris. Pius VII. extended the collection by adding to it the Museo Chiaramonti, and in 1821 the Braccio Nuovo; and Gregory XVI. added the Egyptian and the Etruscan Museum.

The PRESENT ENTRANCE to the collection of antiquities is on the W. side of the palace, not far from the N.W. corner. Approaching from the Borgo, we cross the Piazza S. Pietro, proceed to the left great flight of steps of St. Peter's through the passage under the portico, walk round the whole of St. Peter's, of the dimensions of which we thus obtain an excellent idea (comp. also plan, p. 278), and then, between the Vatican Gardens (at present inaccessible) and the palace, reach the door under the Sala della Biga. We ring at the gate, mount the stairs; where the permesso is given up (the glass-door opposite the staircase leads to the Library), and enter the Sala a Croce Greca (p. 313) of the Museum. Continuing to ascend the staircase hence, we visit the Sala della Biblioteca Gregoriana, in the remaining rooms in the order given in the Handbook, while we take the round, Sala delle Muse, Sala degli Animali, Galleria delle Statue, with the Saloon of Busts, and the Gabinetto delle Maschere, Cortile del Belvedere, etc., so that in the annexed description the enumeration often begins opposite the entrance door.

[GALLERIA LAPIDARIA.] *BRACCIO NUOVO. *MUSEO CHIARAMONTI.

[When approached from the principal entrance in the Cortile di S. Damaso, which is at present closed (comp. p. 295), the museum begins with a corridor 20 ft. in width, and upwards of 300 yds. in length, the first half of which contains the —

ing Amazon, apparently a copy from an older work of the best period, perhaps by Polycletus, arms and feet restored by Thorvaldsen; 81. Hadrian; 83. Juno, erroneously restored as Ceres (head new); 86. Fortuna with cornucopia and rudder, from Ostia; 89. (So-called Hesiod; 92. Venus, risen from the sea; 94. Spes, erroneously restored as Proserpine; 96. Mark Antony; 97. 99, 101, 103, 105. Athletes; 106. Bust of the triumvir Lepidus. On the ground in this semicircle (behind the Nile) a mosaic with the Ephesian Diana, from Poggio Mirteto. 100. Colossal group of the Nile, surrounded by 16 playing children, emblematic of the 16 yds. which the river rises; at the back and sides of the plinth a humorous representation of a battle of the pygmies

We now return to the corridor, the second half of which contains the — *Museo Chiaramonti, a collection divided into 30 sections, and containing upwards of 700 sculptures in marble, many of them small and fragmentary. The following are especially worthy of notice.

Section I. r. No. 2. Sitting Apollo; 6. Autumn, from a sarcophagus, found at Ostia; l. 13. Winter, from the sarcophagus of P. Ælius Verus. — II. r. 14, 16. Muses. — III. r. 28. Head of a wounded Amazon; 29. Head of a female Faun; l. 55. Torso of Hebe. — IV. r. 63. Minerva; l. 107. supposed to be Julius Cæsar. — VI. r. 120. So-called Vestal Virgin from Hadrian's Villa; 121. Clio; 122. Diana. — VII. r. 130. Relief, badly executed, a pleasing representation of the sun and moon as the leaders of souls; 144. Bearded Dionysus; l. 166. Archaic Apollo. — VIII. r. *176. Daughter of Niobe, found at Tivoli, of superior Greek workmanship; l. *179. Sarcophagus of C. Julius Euhodus and Metilia Acte, with representation of the myth of Alcestis; 181. Hecate; under it, *182. Ara of Pentelic marble, with Venus and Bacchanalian representations. — IX. r. 186. Greek equestrian relief; 197. Head of Roma (eyes renewed), found at the ancient Laurentum; l. *229. Two heads of Silenus as a double bust; under it, 230. Large cippus, Night with Death and Sleep (?). — X. r. 241. Nymph nursing the infant Jupiter; l. 244. Colossal mask of Oceanus, once used as the mouth of a fountain; 245. Polyhymnia. — XI. r. 254. Venus; 255. Jupiter Serapis; 259, 263. Beautiful unknown portrait-heads; l. 285. Apollo with a hind, in imitation of the archaic style; 287. Sleeping fisher-boy. — XII. r. 294. Hercules, found in 1802, restored by Canova. — XIII. r. 300. Fragment of a shield with four Amazons, copy of the shield of Athene Parthenus by Phidias; l. 338. Boy from a group of players. — XIV. r. 352. Venus Anadyomene; 353. Nymph; 354. Venus. — XV. r. 360. Ancient relief of three draped Graces, copy of a work of Socrates, fragments of which have been found on the Acropolis at Athens; 369. Unknown portrait-head; *372 A. Greek relief with fragment of a rider; l. 392. Hadrian. — XVI. r. *400. Tiberius, sitting, found at Veii in 1811; r. 401. Augustus, also found at Veii. — XVII. r. *416. Bust of the young Augustus; 418. Julia, daughter of Augustus (?); 420 A. Head of Vulcan, found in 1861 in the Piazza di Spagna; 422. Demosthenes; l. 441. Alcibiades (?). — XX. r. 493. Portrait-statue of a boy; *494. Tiberius, colossal sitting statue, found at Piperno in 1796; *495. The so-called bow-bending Cupid; l. 497. Representation of a mill; *498. Drowsy spinster. — XXI. r. 510 A. So-called Cato Major; 512 A. So-called Marins; *513 A. Head of Venus in Greek marble, found in the Thermæ of Diocletian. — XXII. r. 544. Silenus; l. 547. Isis. — XXIII. r. 550. Square marble slab with shield of Medusa in the centre; 563. Unknown portrait-bust. — XXIV. r. 587. The elder Faustina as Ceres; 588. Dionysus and a satyr; 589. Mercury; l. 591. Claudius. — XXV. r. *606 A. Head of Neptune in Pentelic marble from Ostia. — XXVI. r. 636. Hercules with Telephus. — XXVII. r. *644. Dancing women; 652 A. Head of a Centaur; 655. Narcissus (erroneously restored). — XXVIII. r. 682. Colossal statue of Antoninus Pius (from Hadrian's Villa at Tivoli); — XXIX. r. 693. Wreathed head of the youthful Bacchus; 698. Cicero, from Roma Vecchia; 701. Ulysses handing the goblet to Polyphemus; l., below, *729. Torso of Penelope, in a sitting posture, of finer workmanship than the better preserved statue in the Galleria delle Statue. — XXX. r. 732. Hercules reclining (freely restored).

[The door to the left at the end of the corridor leads to the GIARDINO DELLA PIGNA, to which visitors are not now admitted, containing numerous fragments of statues and reliefs. On the right is the colossal Pine-cone from the mausoleum of Hadrian (p. 277). In the centre is the pedestal of the column in honour of Antoninus Pius, which stood near Monte Citorio, adorned with the Apotheosis of Antoninus and Faustina and processions of warriors. On the left is a colossal portrait-head in marble. — 'Il Boscareccio', or the larger Garden of the Vatican, which was formerly sometimes visited hence, but is now closed to the public, extends from the Belvedere to the walls of the Leonine city, and is beautifully laid out in the Italian style. To the left of the entrance, at the base of an eminence planted with trees, stands the Casino of Pius IV. ('Casino del Papa'), built by Pirro Ligorio in 1560, a garden-house richly decorated with sculptures, mosaics, and pictures, where the Pope occasionally grants an audience to ladies.]

At the end of the Museo Chiaramonti a short staircase (at the end of which to the left is an entrance, now closed, to the Egyptian Museum) leads to the — **Museo Pio-Clementino, the real nucleus of the Vatican collection, containing a number of the most celebrated antiques. Respecting its origin, see p. 304. The museum is divided into eleven departments.

I. VESTIBULE OF THE BELVEDERE, divided by two arches into three halls.

1. ATRIO DEL TORSO. In the centre of the first hall is the celebrated *Torso of Hercules, executed, according to the inscription, by Apollonius of Athens, who probably lived in the 1st cent. B.C.; it was found in the 16th cent. near the theatre of Pompey (p. 207). Opposite the window is the *Sarcophagus of L. Corn. Scipio Barbatus, great-grandfather of the illustrious Africanus, and consul B.C. 298, of peperine-stone, with a very remarkable inscription in Saturnine verse, which records his virtues and achievements; it was found in 1780 in the tomb of the Scipios on the Via Appia (Vigna Sassi, see p. 259), at the same time as that of his son L. Corn. Scipio, consul B.C. 259, and that of P. Corn. Scipio (son of Africanus), flamen dialis, all of whose inscriptions are built into the surrounding walls. The bust on the sarcophagus has been groundlessly regarded as that of the poet Ennius. — 2. ATRIO DELLA VASA, or Round Vestibule. In the centre a *Basin of marble (pavonazzetto). No. 7 is a cippus with relief of a Daidumenus, or youth placing a bandage round his head, which conveys an idea of the famous statue of Polyclethus (p. xxxi). On the balcony to the right is an ancient *Wind-indicator, found in 1779 near the Colosseum. The view of Rome with the Alban and Sabine Mts. formerly enjoyed from this point is now almost entirely obscured by trees. A ship in bronze below the balcony contains a fountain. — Adjacent is: 3. ATRIO DEL MELEAGRO. In the centre: *Statue of Meleager, a good work of the imperial period, found about 1500 outside the Porta Portese. Left, 21. *Colossal bust of Trajan; above it a late relief, showing the decline of art.

II. CORTILE DEL BELVEDERE, an octagonal court constructed by Bramante, but afterwards altered. It is surrounded by arcades, separated by four apartments in which several of the most important works in the collection are placed. In the court a fountain with ancient embouchure, above the arcades eight ancient masks, and by the wall eight sarcophagi and sixteen statues.

dations for the sacristy of St. Peter's were being laid; 30. Sleeping nymph, a fountain-figure. Two baths of black and green basalt. — To the right the —

GABINETTO DI CANOVA. \Perseus by Canova; the pugilists Creugas and Damoxenus, by the same. In the small niches: 34. Mercury; 35. Minerva.

In the HALL, farther on: r. 37. Sarcophagus with Bacchus and Ariadne in Naxos; r. 38. Relief of Diana and Ceres contending with the Titans and Giants, found in the Villa Mattei; l. 44. So-called Ara Casali, with reliefs relating to the origin of Rome; 49. Sarcophagus with battle of Amazons, in the centre Achilles and Penthesilea, bearing the features of the deceased.

SECOND CABINET (dell' Antinoo). *53. Mercury, once erroneously regarded as an Antinous; l. 55. Relief of a procession of priests of Isis.

In the HALL, farther on: r. 61. Sarcophagus with Nereids with the arms of Achilles; on it the torso of a Nereid; r. 64, 65., at the sides of the entrance to the Sala degli Animali (see below) *two Molossian hounds.

THIRD CABINET. **Laocoon with his two sons entwined by the snakes, by the three Rhodians Agasander, Polydorus, and Athenodorus, once placed, according to Pliny, in the palace of Titus, discovered under Julius II. in 1506 near the Sette Sale, and termed by Michael Angelo a 'marvel of art'. The work (which is not carved out of a single block) is admirably preserved, with the exception of the three uplifted arms which have been incorrectly restored by Giov. da Montorsoli. Owing to the delicacy of the workmanship, the dramatic suspense of the moment, and the profoundly expressive attitudes of the heads, especially that of the father, this group forms the grandest representative of the Rhodian school of art.

In the HALL: r. 79. Raised relief of Hercules with Telephus, and Bacchus leaning on a Satyr; 80. Sarcophagus with weapon-bearing Cupids; 81. Roman sacrificial procession after a victory. In the niche: *85. Hygeia; 88. Roma, accompanying a victorious emperor, relief probably belonging to a triumphal arch.

FOURTH CABINET. **92. Apollo Belvedere, found at the end of the 15th cent. near Porto d'Anzio, the ancient Antium. According to the most recent interpretation, the god, whose left hand has been restored, originally held in it, not the bow, but the ægis (as has been discovered from comparison with a bronze), with which he is supposed to be in the act of striking terror into the Celts who have dared to attack his sanctuary of Delphi. The statue is of Carrara marble. (Comp. Childe Harold's Pil. iv, 161.) On the left a relief: Women leading a bull to the sacrifice (the left half entirely modern).

III. SALA DEGLI ANIMALI, containing a number of animal-pieces in white and coloured marble, most of them modern or freely restored; the greater part of the floor is covered with ancient mosaics.

To THE LEFT (or, on entering from the Sala delle Muse, immediately to the right), by the entrance wall: 194. Pig and litter; 202. Colossal camel's head as the aperture of a fountain; 208. Hercules with Geryon; 210. Diana, badly restored; 213. Hercules and Cerberus; 220. Bacchanalian genius on a lion; 228. Triton carrying off a nymph. Below, on an oval sarcophagus-cover, triumphal procession of Bacchus; 232. Minotaur.

To THE RIGHT: 116. Two greyhounds playing; 124. Sacrifice to Mithras; 134. Hercules with the slain Nemean lion; 137. Hercules slaying Diomedes; 138. Centaur with a Cupid on his back. (Adjacent is the entrance to the Galleria delle Statue, see below.) 139. Commodus on horseback (Bernini's model for the statue of Constantine in the Portico of St. Peter's); 151. Sheep sacrificed on the altar; 153. Small group of a shepherd resting, with goats; 157. (in the next window) Relief of a cow and calf.

IV. GALLERIA DELLE STATUE, originally a summer-house of Innocent VIII., and converted into a museum by Clement XIV. and Pius VI. The lunettes contain remains of paintings by Pinturicchio.

The statues have been admirably arranged by Ennio Quirino Visconti.

To the right of the entrance: 248. Clodius Albinus, the opponent of Capitoline Venus. The statue stands on an interesting cippus of travertine (found in 1771 not far from the Mausoleum of Augustus, near S. Carlo al Corso), which marked the spot where were the body of Calvus, son of Germanicus, was buried. 250. Eros of Praxiteles (termed Il Genio del Vaticano), found near Centocelle on the Via Labicana; on the back are traces of wings; above it, 263. Relief, attributed to Prax. 264. Triptolemos, per part only, found near Tivoli; 265. Youthful Hercules; 267. Diana nude torso, probably Apollo, incorporated with the olive-branch; envelope, an imitation of the more Bacchus and Ariadne, 268. Relief Eueroctonus, lying in wait for a Amazon, from the Villa Mattei; 267. Drunken satyr; 268. Juno, Jason and Medea (?); 270. Urania, 280. (one on each side of the arch of the busts) Posidippus and Menander, two of these comic dramatists, in Pentelic marble, of Cephisodotus, son of Praxiteles, from the theatre no under Sixtus V. near S. Lorenzo in Panisperna, where they were long revered as saints.

We now pass between these statues and enter the --

V. HALL OF THE BUSTS, consisting of four sections. The collection has recently been re-arranged, the most interesting works are enumerated from right to left.

I. Section. Above, 273. Head of Hadrian; 278. Nero as Apollo Citharodius, with laurel-wreath; 281. Augustus, with chaplet of ears of corn. Below, Caracalla. — II. Above, 298. Zeus Serapis, in basalt. Below, 303. Apollo; 307. Saturn; 308. Isis; 311. Head of Menelaus, from the group of Menelaus with the body of Patroclus (or Ajax with the body of Achilles), found in 1772 in the villa of Hadrian, a duplicate of the Pasquino group (see p. 202); 312. Legs of the body by the window of the first section, found at the same time as No. 311 — III. Above, 313, 314. Masks; 315, 316 Satyr. In the central niche "Zeus, formerly in the Pal. Verospi. To the left above, 329. Barbarian; below, 338. Hermes (holes for the wings near the head). — IV. In the niche: Woman praying, a so-called Plat.; under it an interesting sarcophagus, adorned with Prometheus and the Fates, perhaps of Christian workmanship; beside it, to the left below, 337. Antinous. — In Section II. there is also, 318. Hercules. In Section I., below, 376. Head of Pallas from the Castle of St. Angelo; 382, 384. Anatomical representations in marble. By the entrance, r. 388. Roman man and woman, tomb-relief (Niebuhr's favourite group, copied on his tomb at Bonn by Rauch).

We now return to the Galleria delle Statue, and pass the Menander: — 382. S. regarded as Verospi; 38 of which t. wound), 387 successor of found near 400. Euterpe, daughter, found 401. Copy of the Satyr of Praxiteles. — In the window-niche 422. Giustiniani fountain enclosure with Bacchanalian procession, modern copy from the original in Spain. (Adjacent is the entrance to the Gabinetto delle Maschere, see below.) Then, in the centre: 432. Cinerary urn of oriental alabastfound with the inscriptions Nos. 248, 405, 407, 408, 410, 420, which once contained the remains of a member of the imperial Julian family. On the end: *414. Sleeping Ariadne, formerly taken for Cleopatra, found in the reign of Julius II.; below it, *Sarcophagus with battle of the giants. At the sides: *412, 413. The Barberini Candelabra, the largest and finest extant, found in Hadrian's villa; on each three reliefs, (l.) Jupiter, Juno, Mercury, and (r.) Mars, Minerva, and Venus; 416. Relief of the forsaken Ariadne, similar in expression to the large statue; 417. Mercury; 420. Lucius Verus.

The cabinet derives its name from the *Mosaic on the floor, adorned with masks, etc., found in Hadrian's villa in 1780. — On the right of the entrance: *427. Dancing girl, in Pentelic marble, found at Naples; 428. Relief, called the apotheosis of Hadrian; 429. Stooping Venus, in the bath; *431. Torch-bearing Diana. — Wall opposite the entrance: 432, 434. and on the opposite side 441, 444. Reliefs of the exploits of Hercules; 433. Satyr in rosso antico, copy in the Capitoline; 435. Worshipper of Mithras. — Window-wall: 438. Minerva, from Hadrian's villa; 439. Bathing-chair, of rosso antico, formerly in the court of the Lateran. — In the window: 440. Relief of Bacchanalian procession. — Entrance-wall: 442. Ganymede; 443. Apollo. — A door (which the custodian opens if desired) leads hence to the LOGGIA SCOPERTA (containing a few unimportant reliefs and busts), which commands a charming view of M. Mario and Soracte to the left, and the Sabine Mts. to the right.]

We return from the Galleria delle Statue to the Sala degli Animali, and then, opposite the Sala delle Muse, turn to the left, into the court of the Belvedere, see p. 309.

N.B. The visitor leaving the Sala delle Muse, which he has entered in the direction at present described, next reaches the Sala degli Animali (see p. 310).

VIII. SALA ROTONDA, erected under Pius VI. by Simonetti, after the model of the Pantheon.

The floor contains an admirable *Mosaic, found in 1780 in the Thermae at Otricoli, with Nereids, Tritons, Centaurs, and masks. — In the centre magnificent basin of porphyry from the Baths of Diocletian. On each side of the entrance, 538, 537. Comedy and Tragedy, from Hadrian's villa.

IX. SALA A CROSS GRECA, also constructed by Simonetti, in the form of a Greek cross.

This room is at present entered first (comp. p. 304). Approaching from the staircase, we proceed in a straight direction, passing the sphynxes and the large central mosaic. The following enumeration accordingly begins by the entrance from the adjacent Round Saloon. — On the floor are three ancient mosaics. In the centre a head of Pallas, found in 1741 in the Villa Ruffinella, near Frascati. By the steps, between the two sphynxes,

The next gallery, containing the tapestry of Raphael, is open to the public on Thursdays only (comp. p. 118).
The Tapestry of Raphael, called 'Gli Arazzi', from having been manufactured at Arras in France, was executed from cartoons drawn by Raphael in 1515 and 1516, seven of which were purchased in Flanders by Charles I. of England, and are now exhibited in the South Kensington Museum. These designs, derived from the history of the New Testament, are among the most admirable of the great master's works. Each piece of tapestry, wrought with great skill in wool, silk, and gold, when complete cost about 700 pounds. They were originally intended to cover the lower and unpainted part of the walls in the S and faded, especially those are now sadly damaged.
The MARGINAL SCENES the life of Leo X. who bequeathed which surround Giovanni da Udine. In 1798 it fell into the hands of whom it was carried off and serious damage done to it.
SCENES. 1. St. Paul he keys; 2. St. Paul he draught of fishes; 3. and Barnabas; 4. Du Christ appearing to M tation of Christ in the pieces of tapestry; 5. Adoration of the M; 6. Religion between J 19. Death of Anan rison at Philippi. These scenes of Raphael; the others may possibly have drawn by the Vatican, but the designs used by the tapestry-workers are believed to have been drawn by Flemish artists. (The gallery of the tapestry is adjoined by the Galleria Geografica, a corridor 180 yds. long, with maps designed by the Dominican Ignazio Daniele, and executed by his brother Antonio under Gregory XIII. in 1580; and ceiling-paintings by Tempesta and others; also a number of ancient busts, some of them valuable.)

MUSEO GREGORIANO.

The Museo Gregoriano of Etruscan Antiquities, founded by Gregory XVI. in 1838, occupies twelve rooms, and is also on the upper story. Visitors are admitted on Thursdays only (see p. 118). We ascend the steps from the entrance to the Galleria del Candelabri (p. 313), and reach the door to the right, where we knock. The museum comprises a number of antiquities excavated chiefly in 1828-36 in the Etruscan cities Vulci, Toscanella, and Chiusi, such as statues, paintings, vases, golden ornaments, and various domestic utensils in bronze, extremely interesting as a link in the history of Italian art, and affording some insight into the habits of the Etruscans, of whom but little is yet known. Of the numerous objects, which are chiefly of small size, the following deserve special mention.

(To the left by the loggia, in the space before the door, is a relief of Medea; right, by the door, another with a contest of Hercules.)
 I. Room: Three sarcophagi of terracotta with life-size figures of the deceased on the covers. On the walls numerous portrait-heads in terracotta of peculiar formation. — The II. Room is then entered to the right. One of the larger sarcophagi on the left is of travertine, adorned with an almost flat relief of a chariot with a bearded man and musicians, on which traces of painting are visible. — is smaller cinerary urns, some of them of alabaster with m. — Iefs, from Chiusi and Volterra. — III. Room: In the centre is a figure and reliefs of the Hagus of tuffstone with recumbent figure and reliefs of the temnestra, sacrifice of Iphigenia. — Beyond this is a fine frieze of Kinos and Polynices, Telephus, and Orestes. In the corner are small and strange-looking cinerary urns in the form of houses, perhaps Celtic, found under the lava between Albano and Marino. — IV. Room: containing terracottas. Mercury; on each side fragments of female figures with rich drapery, from Tivoli. On the right, below, a relief in stucco of Venus and Adonis, Cupid dressing the wound of the latter; left, a relief of Jupiter, Neptune, and Hercules; on the walls reliefs, cinerary urns, architectural fragments. By the window small terracottas.

The next four rooms contain the Collection of Vases. These painted vessels were partly imported from Greece, partly manufactured in Etruria itself, where Vulci, Chiusi, Volterra, Bomarzo, etc. are proved to have excelled in this branch of art. The Etruscans imitated the earlier Greek vases with black, as well as the later with red figures, often without a just appreciation of the subjects, and with an obvious preference for tragic scenes, especially murders. An exhaustive examination of the details will be undertaken by the scientific only; the most interesting objects only need be enumerated here. — V. Room: By the walls a great number of vases with the same decorations from Vulci; on the column towards the delivery of a vase with whitish ground and coloured designs, representing the delivery of the infant Bacchus to Sileas; by the window to the left a humorous representation of Jupiter and Mercury's visit to Alcmena; in the cabinet objects in crystal from Palestrina. — VI. Room: In the centre five vases, four of them remarkably fine; on the first, with three handles, a poet and six muses. Towards the posterior wall: *Achilles and Ajax playing at dice (with the name of the manufacturer Exekias). In the centre a vessel of great antiquity, with representations of animals. On the second to the left near the window-wall, is *Hector's Death. The sixth by the entrance-wall represents two men with oil-vessels and the inscriptions: 'O Father Zeus, would that I were rich', and: 'It is already full and even runs over'. Over the doors are mosaics from Hadrian's villa. By the second window two basins with ancient Latin inscriptions. — VII. Room: Semicircular corridor. In the first niche a large vase of S. Italy. In the second *Minerva and Hercules, from Vulci. To the right and left of these, imitations of the prize-vases of the Panathenæan games at Athens, with Athene between two fighting-cocks. Then the sixth: *Hector taking leave of Priam and Hecuba. The third niche contains a vase of S. Italy; to the left of it, *Achilles and Briseïs. — VIII. Room: containing a large collection of graceful and delicately painted goblets, placed on appropriate stands. The cabinet contains small vases, some of them of irregular form. On the wall above are copies of paintings in a tomb at Vulci, showing that Etruscan art was at this period completely Hellenised. Below, as the imperfectly interpreted inscriptions appear to indicate, is an historical scene, an adventure of Mastarna (Servius Tullius) and Caelius Viberna, besides mythological representations (Cassandra, Achilles slaying the victim for the funeral sacrifice of Patroclus).

We now return to the sixth room, in order thence to reach the — IX. Room on the right, where Bronzes of every description, domestic utensils, weapons, ornaments, jewellery, etc. are arranged. By the wall to the right the statue of a warrior, with Umbrian inscription, found at Todi in 1835; opposite, a bed, and boy with a bulla, sitting. On the wall as far as the window, helmets, shields, mirrors with engraved designs. By the right window a cista of bronze from Vulci, with Amazon battles in embossed work, which when found contained articles of the female toilet.

Passing through a door on the right, we next enter the — X. Room, or CORRIDOR, where water-pipes, a boy with a bird in bronze, etc., are preserved, and the — XI. Room: containing all kinds of vases, as well as copies of Tomb-Paintings from Corneto and Vulci, invaluable in the study of early Italian art. The most ancient style is represented by the paintings on the narrow sides of the saloon (excepting the scene over the door), which resemble early Greek designs, but are ruder and more destitute of expression. The next stage is exemplified by the designs on the long walls, where the progress is traced which the Etruscans had made in the art of drawing and in their ideas of the human figure, under the influence of the Greeks; at the same time Etruscan peculiarities are observable, especially in the heads, which are all in profile. These paintings, like the preceding, also represent games and dances performed in honour of the dead. The third and fully developed period is represented by the picture, over the door, of Pluto and Proserpine (the latter full-face), which may probably be regarded as coeval with those in the 8th room. — We now return to the 9th room, where immediately to the right, by the windows, is a glass cabinet with votive objects, found at the mineral springs of Vicarello, near the Lago di Bracciano: golden ornaments, silver goblets, polished stones. In front of the 2nd window a cabinet with objects excavated at Pompeii in presence of Pius IX.; below, an *equestrian relief in marble. The turning glass-cabinet in the centre contains *golden ornaments; in the upper section are arranged those found in 1836 in a tomb at Cervetri, in the lower similar objects from other tombs. These show the great skill and taste in workmanship of this kind to which the magnificence-loving Etruscans had attained, and the chains, wreaths, rings, etc. afford models which are rarely equalled by Roman jewellers of the present day (see Castellani, p. 110). By the 3rd window is a second, but less perfect cista, adorned with engraving. By the wall a large arm in bronze, numerous mirrors with designs, a restored biga, behind it a male bust; in the cabinet small bronzes. By the fourth wall: candelabra, kettles, shields; in the centre a brazier with tongs and poker. — In the XII. Room, on the left, is an imitation of an Etruscan tomb, with three burial recesses, vases, at the entrance two lions from Vulci. The cabinet in the centre contains two small ornaments and objects in bronze from Veii; by the window small ornaments and objects in silver. Also several Chinese curiosities.

EGYPTIAN MUSEUM.

The Egyptian Museum is below the Etruscan, in the so-called Torre de' Venti. Pius VII. purchased the nucleus of the collection from Andrea Gaddi, and greatly extended it, and his example was followed by Gregory XVI. The stiff and grotesque specimens of Egyptian art may be glanced at by the traveller, for the sake of comparing them with those of the Hellenic and Italian, but the museum contains few objects of great interest. Entrance (Thursdays only p. 118) at the bottom of the staircase from the Sala a Croce Greca (p. 313).

1st Room: Three coffins of painted wood. — 2nd R.: *Egypt (Sesostris), in black granite, Thermæ of Agrippa, which form (3) by the exit-wall, in the centre, his Queen Arsinoë, in red. 3rd R. The objects collected by Roman workmanship in the Egypt the favourite of Hadrian, in white. 4th R.: Small idols and vases of the goddess Pacht (Isis), from the ruins of stone. — 5th and 7th R.: Several small statues of animals (ibis, cat, etc.). — 8th R.: Idols and statues to the left of the window, Athens cut in the shape of beetles; in the cabinet to the left of the window, Athens and Ptolemaic silver coins. — 9th R.: MSS. on Papyrus. Small reproductions of inscriptions, hieroglyphics, cuneiform characters. Model of a pyramid. the Nile in the Braccio Nuovo (p. 306). — 10th R.: (t, and four her of Rhamses, from the tomb of Ramesses III. to the left of Sallust). — 11th R.: Statues of Antinous in black marble, and two colossal statues of Arabians, from the window, Athens.

C. Library.

The Library and the Museum of Statuary may be conveniently in succession as they are open on the same days and at the same Entrance for readers in the Cortile di S. Damaso, for visitors glass-door at the bottom of the staircase to the Sala a Croce Greca (p. 304; visitors knock).

At a very early period the popes began to collect documents, thus gradually formed the Archives, which are mentioned first time under Damasus I., and were preserved in the After various losses, caused especially by the migration to and frequent change of locality, the library is now finally established in the Vatican in eleven rooms, in addition to the great library-hall. Over the door is the inscription: Pauli Papae V. Archivium. The Archives comprise a number of the most interesting and important documents, especially of the middle ages, registers of the papal acts, letters of the popes from Innocent III. down to Sixtus V. in 2016 vols., and correspondence with nuncios and foreign nations. Besides this collection of documents, the popes possess their private libraries. The public Library was first instituted by Nicholas las V., and then consisted of 9000 vols.; and Giovanni Tortelli was the first librarian.

The library was neglected and dispersed by his successors. SIXTUS IV. was the first to revive the institution; he assigned a locality under the Sistine Chapel for the collection, appointed Platina (1475) director, and set apart definite revenues for its maintenance. Thus endowed, it increased steadily, and the allotted space became more and more inadequate to its requirements, until in 1588 SIXTUS V. caused the present magnificent edifice to be erected by Domenico Fontana, intersecting the great court of Bramante. To this ever-increasing collection several considerable libraries have been added by purchase or donation, some of which are catalogued and preserved separately. In 1623 the Elector Maximilian presented to the Pope the Bibliotheca Palatina of Heidelberg, when the town was taken in the Thirty Years' War; and in 1657 the Bibl. Urbina, founded by Duke Federigo da Montefeltro, in 1690 the B. Reginensis, once the property of Queen Christina of Sweden, and in 1746 the B. Ottoboniana, purchased by Alex. VIII. (Ottobuoni), were added. Most of the MSS. carried off by the French were restored in 1814.

The Vatican Library now contains nearly 24,000 MSS., of which about 17,400 are Latin, 3450 Greek, and 2000 Oriental. Of the latter a printed catalogue has been published (1756-59), and continued by Card. Mai. There are also about 50,000 printed books, but those only which formerly belonged to the library of Card. Mai are catalogued and available for consultation. The principal librarian is a cardinal, at present Pitra, who in ordinary business is represented by the under-librarian, Monsignor Pecci (brother of Pope Leo XIII.), and the Custodian, Padre Bollich; besides these there are seven scrittori and several subordinate officials (scopatori). The usefulness of the library is greatly circumscribed by the numerous holidays on which it is closed. It is not available on more than 100 days in the year (from the middle of Nov. to the middle of June), and then only for 3 hrs. daily (8-11). Permission to use it is best obtained through the traveller's ambassador, or by private letters of introduction, the applicant stating the branch of study contemplated.

Visitors first enter (comp. p. 317) a long CORRIDOR below the Galleria dei Candelabri, divided into several sections. — Section I: Museo Profano: To the right, by the door: *Bronze head of Augustus, one of the finest extant portrait-busts of that emperor; left, on the table, a small, finely executed head of Venus. The cabinets contain beautiful ancient and modern ornaments, etc.; e.g. in the 2nd cabinet (left), Oriental bronzes and articles in gold, hair found in an ancient tomb, etc. — At the entrance to the next room, or section, are two porphyry columns from the Thermæ of Constantine, on each of which are carved the figures of two kings. — The frescoes of scenes from the lives of Pius VI. and Pius VII. possess little interest. — The following rooms contain the Bibliotheca Ottoboniana, the Bibliotheca Reginensis, and the MSS. of the Vatican library. — For the continuation of the corridor, see below.

We now turn to the left and enter the GREAT HALL, 77 yds. long, 18 yds. wide, and 29 ft. high, supported by 8 buttresses, constructed by Fontana and paved with marble by Pius IX. (immediately to the left is the entrance to the Archives). The paintings (of the 17th cent.) are in bad taste. By the walls and round the pillars are 46 small cabinets containing the MSS., the most celebrated of which are preserved in two glass-cases in the right wing of the hall. Most of the ancient busts placed on the cabinets are of no great value. In the 1st are the celebrated palimpsest of the Republic of Cicero, Dante with miniatures by Giulio Clovio, the ritual of Card. Ottobuoni, breviary of King Matthias Corvinus, etc. In the 2nd are the MSS. of the Greek New Testament (5th cent.), of Virgil (5th cent.), and Te-room but one contains a model of a projected church of the 'Immaculate Conception', by Neveu, a French architect. The last large saloon is adorned with paintings and stucco-work by Giov. da Udine and Perino del Vaga, now sadly marred by restoration.

The Longara.

The Studio del Mosaico, or Papal Manufactory of Mosaic, is under the gallery of the inscriptions; entrance in the left angle of the farther side of the Cortile di S. Damaso (p. 288). Permessi obtained at the Segreteria, comp. p. 118. Numerous hands are employed here in copying celebrated pictures for churches, etc. The material used is a kind of coloured glass, of which there are no fewer than 10,000 different shades. — The papal Armoury and Mint (La Zecca) near the Vatican also contain a few objects of interest, e.g. all the papal coins from the time of Hadrian I., and most of the dies since Martin V.

The Longara.

The Borgo is connected with Trastevere by the VIA DELLA LONGARA,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. in length, constructed by Julius II. The Borgo is quitted by the Porta di S. Spirito (Pl. I, 7; p. 278), begun by Antonio da San Gallo, and nearly occupying the site of the old Gate of the Saxons. — To the right, immediately to the S., the steep Salita di S. Onofrio ascends to the right (then to the left where the street divides) in 5 min. to —

*S. Onofrio (Pl. II, 7), on the slope of the Janiculus, erected in 1439 by Niccolò da Forca Palena in honour of the Egyptian hermit Honophrius; adjoining it is a monastery of the order of St. Jerome. The church and monastery are preceded by a colonnade of eight columns; in the lunettes are three frescoes from the life of St. Jerome by Domenichino, protected by glass (Baptism, Chastisement, Trance). If the church is closed, visitors ring (r) — of the monastery (1/2 fr.).

(p. 206). Opposite the bridge, in the Longara, is the extensive Pal.
Salviati (Pl. II, 7), with a handsome court of the 16th cent. Prince Borghese, having inherited this palace, sold it to the government, which has established in it the Tribunale Supremo di Guerra e Marina, or supreme military court of justice. The adjacent garden, skirted by the street, was converted by Gregory XVI. in 1837 into a Botanical Garden (visitors ring at the small door on the right), which belongs to the Sapienza (p. 195), and contains many rare and beautiful trees and plants and various curiosities.

Farther on in the Longara, about 1/2 M. from the Porta S. Spirito, is the small church of S. Giacomo alla Lungara, said to have been founded by Leo IV., but rebuilt in the 17th cent. The adjoining convent is now occupied by Bersaglieri. — A little farther

**Villa Farnesina (Pl. II, 11; closed at present), erected in 1506 by Bald. Peruzzi for the papal banker Agostino Chigi, an enthusiastic admirer of art and patron of Raphael, the property of the Farnese family since 1580, and now of the ex-king of Naples, who has let it on a lease of 90 years to the Marchese di Lema.
This small palace is one of the most pleasing Renaissance edifices in Rome, being simple in style, and of symmetrical proportions. The ceiling of the principal chamber on the ground floor, which is entered direct from the garden, was designed by Raphael (1518-20), and decorated by Giulio Romano, Francesco Penni, and others of his pupils, with twelve illustrations of the **MYTH OF PSYCHE, which are among the most charming creations of the master (comp. p. LVii).
dows in order to protect the pictures.

is continued on the wall opposite the entrance. Raphael adhered to the charming fable of Apuleius, which may be briefly told as follows. A certain king had three daughters, of whom Psyche, the youngest, excites the jealousy of Venus by her beauty. The goddess accordingly directs her son Cupid to punish the princess by inspiring her with love for an unworthy individual (1). Cupid himself becomes enamoured of her, shows her to the Graces (2), and carries her off (this is the best preserved of the paintings).
He visits her by night only, warning her not to indulge in curiosity as to his appearance. Psyche, however, instigated by her envious sisters, disobeys the injunction. She lights a lamp, a drop of heated oil from which awakens her sleeping lover. Cupid upbraids her, and quits her in anger.
Psyche wanders about, filled with despair. Meanwhile Venus has been informed of her son's attachment, imprisons him, and requests Juno and Ceres to aid her in seeking for Psyche, which both goddesses decline to do (3). She then drives in her dove-chariot to Jupiter (4), and begs him to grant her the assistance of Mercury (5). Her request is complied with, and Mercury flies forth to search for Psyche (6). Venus torments her in every conceivable manner, and imposes impossible tasks on her, which, however, with the aid of friends she is enabled to perform. At length she is desired to bring a casket from the infernal regions (7), and even this, to the astonishment of Venus, she succeeds in accomplishing (8). Cupid, having at length escaped from his captivity, begs Jupiter to grant him Psyche; Jupiter kisses him (9), and commands Mercury to summon the gods to deliberate on the matter (ceiling-painting on the right). The messenger of the gods then conducts Psyche to Olympus (10), she becomes immortal, and the gods celebrate the nuptial-banquet (ceiling-painting on the left). In this pleasing fable Psyche obviously represents the human soul purified by passions and misfortunes, and thus fitted for the enjoyment of celestial happiness.

In the compartments below the pendentives twelve Cupids with divine attributes. The garlands which surround the different paintings are by Giovanni da Udine. — The frescoes, having suffered from exposure to the atmosphere, were retouched by Maratta. The blue ground, which was originally of a much warmer tint, as is apparent from the few portions still unfaded, was most seriously injured. The whole nevertheless produces a charming and brilliant effect owing to the indestructible beauty of the designs. The felicity with which the scenes have been adapted to the unfavourable spaces is also remarkable.

The smaller apartment adjoining the principal hall, which was also once an open Loggia, contains a second mythological picture by Raphael, which is no less charming than the Psyche series, and even far surpasses them in point of execution: ***GALATEA*, borne across the sea in a conch, and surrounded by Nymphs, Tritons, and Cupids, painted entirely by the master's own hand in 1514. The *ceiling of this room was decorated and painted by Bald. Peruzzi.

The upper floor of the Farnesina also contains celebrated frescoes: the Marriage of Alexander with Roxana, and the Family of Darius before Alexander, both by Sodoma (painted after 1520), but unfortunately not accessible.

A large and beautiful \**Garden* extends behind the palace on the slopes of the Janiculus. The heights command an admirable \*view of Rome, especially towards sunset (porter  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr., but more for a party).

A little to the S. of these palaces the Via della Longara is terminated by the Porta Settimiana (Pl. II, 11), a gate in the older wall of Trastevere, deriving its name from the gardens of Septimius Severus which once lay in the vicinity.

Trastevere.

The Janiculus (275 ft.) rises to a commanding height near the river, and was on that account chosen by the ancient kings of Rome as the site of a castle, which they connected with the city lying opposite to it by a double wall. The hill was at length annexed to the city by Augustus as a 14th quarter, which he named the Regio Transtiberina. The banks of the Tiber here were bordered with handsome villas, but the quarter always retained the character of a suburb, and was much frequented by foreigners, and particularly Jews, who formed a community here down to the beginning of the 16th century. Trastevere is now inhabited almost exclusively by the working classes, among whom many well-built and handsome persons of both sexes will be observed. The inhabitants of Trastevere maintain that they are the most direct descendants of the ancient Romans, and their character and dialect differ in many respects from those of the citizens of other quarters.

Trastevere is connected with the city by three bridges, the most N. of which is the Ponte Sisto (Pl. II, 11), constructed by Baccio Pintelli under Sixtus IV., in 1474, on the site of the Pons Aurelius, which was destroyed in the 8th century. Fine view from the bridge.

To the right the Via di Ponte Sisto leads in 3 min. to the broad VIA GARIBALDI, formerly Via delle Fornaci, which ascends to the left a little on this side of the Porta Settimiana (see above), and which we now follow. After 5 min. the street emerges into the open air (immediately to the right diverges a direct but steep road to Acqua Paola, see p. 326), but still retains the name of Via Garibaldi, and ascends in windings to S. Pietro in Montorio, the Acqua Paola, Porta S. Pancrazio, and Villa Pamfili. Pedestrians may, about 180 paces from the last houses, beyond the memorial tablet, turn to the right, and follow a footpath flanked with oratories, which ascends in 3 min. to —

S. Pietro in Montorio (Pl. II, 12), erected in 1500 for Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain by Baccio Pintelli, on the spot where St. Peter is said to have suffered martyrdom, and situated on the slope of the Janiculus, 197 ft. above the sea-level. The campanile and tribune were almost entirely destroyed during the siege of 1849. If the church is closed, visitors ring at the door on the right (5-10 soldi).

RIGHT SIDE. The *1st Chapel was decorated by Seb. del Piombo with frescoes from Michael Angelo's drawings: Scourging of Christ (of which there is a small duplicate in the Gall. Borghese), adjoining which are St. Peter on the left and St. Francis on the right; on the ceiling the Transfiguration; on exterior of the arch a prophet and sibyl. The 2nd Chapel (Coronation

S. Trinità de' Monti, rising with its two towers above the Piazza di Spagna; farther to the right, the casino of the Villa Ludovisi. Nearer, not far from the Tiber, rises the Pal. Farnese with its open loggia. To the right of it, the spiral tower of the Sapienza; farther to the right, part of the dome of the Pantheon, concealed by the dome-church of S. Andrea della Valle, to the right of which the column of M. Aurelius in the Piazza Colonna is visible. Again to the left, on the height, are the wall and the Passeggiata of the Pincio with the two dome-churches of the Piazza del Popolo. Then, near the river, the Chiesa Nuova; beyond it the indented outline of Soracte. On this side of the Tiber rises the castle of S. Angelo; beyond it, the heights of Baccano. By the chain-bridge is the dome-covered church of S. Giovanni de' Fiorentini. Farther off, M. Mario with the Villa Mellini; lastly, at the extreme angle to the left, rises the dome of St. Peter's. In Trastevere, at the foot of the hill, is the church of S. Maria in Trastevere, the bright campanile to the left of which belongs to S. Cecilia.

If we descend from S. Pietro in Montorio in a straight direction, traverse the Vicolo della Frusta to the right, and then the Via de' Fenili to the left, we reach the Piazza di S. Maria (p. 329).

The Via Garibaldi, which continues to ascend the hill beyond S. Pietro in Montorio, leads in 2 min. to the Acqua Paola (Pl. II, 12), the ancient Aqua Trajana, which was supplied by the Lago di Bracciano (p. 379), upwards of 31 M. distant. The aqueduct, having fallen to decay, was restored by Fontana and Maderna in 1611 under Paul V., who caused the great fountain to be decorated with portions of columns from the Temple of Minerva in Trajan's Forum. The massive basin was added by Innocent XII. The view is much more obstructed by surrounding buildings than that from S. Pietro below, but several objects, such as the Pantheon, are more distinctly seen hence. (From the corner the road mentioned at p. 324 descends direct to the entrance of the town.)

Continuing to ascend the Via Garibaldi we reach in 5 min. the Porta di S. Pancrazio (Pl. II, 9), on the summit of the Janiculus (276 ft.), adjacent to the ancient Porta Aurelia. It was stormed by the French under Oudinot in 1849, but restored in 1857 by Pius IX. There are several osterie outside the gate. The surrounding summer-houses and the church and monastery of S. Pancrazio, about  $\frac{1}{4}$  M. distant, were also seriously damaged on that occasion. The church was erected by Symmachus about the year 500, but has been frequently restored. — In a straight direction we reach the entrance to the Villa Pamfili (see below).

From the Porta S. Pancrazio to the Porta Portese (p. 331) is a pleasant walk of  $\frac{1}{2}$  hr., but not recommended in the reverse direction. We skirt the outside of the walls, which were restored in 1849, for 12 min., descend, and soon reach a circular plateau affording a charming \*view of the Campagna and the deserted S. quarters of the city. From

*Villa Doria Pamfili (Pl. II, 9; adm. on Mond. and Frid. after 1 p.m., comp. p. 118), planned by Algardi, and skilfully adapted to the undulating character of the ground, by order of Prince Camillo Pamfili, nephew of Innocent X., and now the property of Prince Doria. This is the most extensive and delightful of the Roman villas, and is sometimes called by the Italians Belrespiro. Considerable damage was done to it by the siege of 1849.

On entering, we follow the carriage-road, which passes under a triumphal arch, and leads in windings (8 min.) to the entrance of the Casino which lies in a reserved part of the garden. On the right here is a terrace affording a beautiful *view of M. Mario and St. Peter's, between which the horizon is bounded by Mte. Soracte, and a part of the Campagna.

We ring at the gate opposite the terrace in order to obtain admission to the *Casino, built by Algardi. The external walls are adorned with reliefs, some of which are ancient, and with statues (1/2 ft.).

GROUND FLOOR. The vestibule contains several fine female statues. In the 3rd ans are a few antiques: in the 1st, r. Cybele, riding on a lion; in the 3rd, a female statue, in style resembling the Æthra in the Villa Ludovisi. The balcony of this room affords a pleasant survey of the flower-garden. FIRST FLOOR. The rooms here contain views of Venice by Heintius, of the 17th cent. — The stairs ascend to the PLATFORM of the villa, commanding a fine *panorama of the grounds and environs. The sea is said to be visible in clear weather.

Leaving the Casino, we next visit the **Columbaria* under the trees to the right, discovered in 1838, and situated on the ancient Via Aurelia. One of them is well-preserved, and contains some interesting paintings (Prometheus delivered by Hercules, Death of the children of Niobe, etc.).

The carriage-road by which we reached the Casino turns to the left, skirting an ara, with representations of the gods, and Antoninus Pius sacrificing to the Penates). After 5 min., where the road turns to the right, a beautiful *view is obtained of the Alban Mts. and the Campagna; it then proceeds in numerous windings, at first skirting a celebrated grove of pines, to a pond with swans (10 min.), and along its bank to the fountain by which it is supplied (5 min.). The Casino may now be regained either by the direct path, or by the carriage-road, which leads in 4 min. to the hot-houses (r.), and the pheasantry (l.), with its beautiful silver-pheasants. On the road-side (l.), 50 paces farther, a monument was erected by Prince Doria in 1851 to the memory of the French who fell and were interred here.

Trastevere.

The island in the Tiber (Isola Tiberina, or di S. Bartolommeo) is believed by some authorities to have been once traversed by the wooden Pons Sublicus, the most ancient communication between Rome and its suburb on the Janiculum. It is now crossed from the Piazza Montanara (p. 210) by the Ponte de' Quattro Capi (Pl. II, 17), so named from the four-headed figures on the balustrades, constructed in B.C. 62 by L. Fabricius, as the inscription records. Pleasing view.

On the island, to the right, is the church of S. Giovanni Colabita (Pl. II, 17), which, with the neighbouring monastery and hospital, belongs to the Brothers of Charity, by whom sick strangers are readily received. Farther on, to the left, is a small piazza, embellished in 1869 with a monument to SS. John, Francis, Bartholomew, and Paulinus. Here, perhaps on the site of an ancient temple of Esculapius, is situated the church of —

S. Bartolommeo (Pl. II, 18), erected about the year 1000 by the Emp. Otho III. in honour of St. Adalbert of Gnesen, and erroneously named S. Bartolommeo. The emperor had desired the Beneventans to send him the relics of St. Bartholomew, but received those of St. Paulinus of Nola in their stead. The present church, with the exception of the campanile, is modernised and uninteresting; façade by Lunghi, 1625.

The interior contains fourteen ancient columns; in the choir, remains of an early mosaic. In the centre of the steps leading to the presbyterium is the mouth of a fountain of the 12th cent., on which a figure of Christ with a book in his hand and the heads of two sides.

In the small GARDEN OF to the right by the church) is which gave the island the name of the mast. The island is connected by the ancient Pons Cestius (Gratianus), now the which was built by Augustus, and, according to the lengthy inscription on the right side, restored by the Emperors Valentinian and Gratian. Pleasant view to the right. The wooden mills in the river, in the direction of the Ponte Sisto, date from the siege of Belisarius, when the Goths destroyed the aqueducts, thus rendering the mills on the Janiculum useless.

having been in 1624.

The INTERIOR is interesting on account of its fine old mosaic pavement, and ancient columns, particularly the two of porphyry supporting the arch of the choir, which are the largest in Rome. The ceiling-paintings of the transept are by Arpino. The mosaic on the wall of the tribune represents the Madonna between SS. Chrysogonus and James. Fine carved stalls of 1866.

In the Contrada Monte di Fiore, a little to the E. of the Piazza
S. Crisogono, an Excubitorium of the VII. cohort of the Vigiles, i. e. a station of the Roman firemen, was excavated in 1866 and 1867. A small mosaic-paved court-yard, with a well in the centre, and several rooms with small mural paintings are shown here. On the walls are numerous rude inscriptions of the 3rd cent. (see 1/2 fr.).

is the brightly-painted hospital of S. Gallicano, for cutaneous diseases, presided over by a professor of the Sapienza.

After 9 min. we reach the PIAZZA DI S. MARIA (Pl. II, 15, 12), with a fountain, and a church of that name.

*S. Maria in Trastevere, which is said to have been founded by Calixtus I. under Alexander Severus, on the spot where a spring of oil miraculously welled forth at the time of the birth of Christ, is mentioned for the first time in 499, was re-erected by Innocent II. about 1140, and consecrated by Innocent III. in 1198. The church has recently been restored. The present portico was added by C.
Fontana under Clement XI. in 1702. In front are mosaics of Mary and the Child, on each side the small figure of a bishop (Innocent II. and Eugene III.) and ten virgins, eight of whom have burning, and two extinguished lamps, a work of the 12th cent., largely restored in the 14th. The portico contains the remains of two Annunciations, one attributed to Cavallini, but now entirely repainted, and numerous inscriptions. On the side-wall to the right is the tomb of the librarian Anastasius (d. about 886).

The INTERIOR contains twenty-two ancient columns of unequal sizes.
Some of the Ionic capitals were formerly decorated with heathen deities, but these were removed when the church was restored in 1870. The ceiling, decorated with richly-gilded stucco, was designed by Domenichino. The oil-painting on copper in the centre, a Madonna surrounded by angels, is by the same master. The chapels contain little to detain the traveller. The TRANSEPT is reached by an ascent of seven steps, adjoining which is the inscription Fons olei, indicating the alleged site of the spring of oil. In the transept on the left are the tombs of two Armellini and an ancient relief of the Virgin and saints. Opposite is an altar erected to St. Philip

of Card. Stefaneschi (d. 1417), with recumbent figure by Paolo Romano. — The **Mosaics* in the TRIBUNE belong to different periods. Above, on the arch, are the older ones, dating from the 12th cent.: the Cross with Alpha and Omega, under the symbols of the Evangelists; r. and l. Isaiah and Jeremiah. On the vaulting Christ and the Virgin enthroned; l., St. Calixtus, St. Lawrence, Innocent II.; r., St. Peter, St. Cornelius, Julius, Calepodius. The lower mosaics are attributed by Vasari to Pietro Cavallini, a master of the transition period from the Cosmas family to Giotto, and have been restored by Camuccini. They represent the thirteen lambs and scenes from the life of Mary; in the centre of the wall a mosaic bust of Mary with St. Peter, St. Paul, and the donor Stefaneschi (1290). — The SACRISTY contains a Madonna with SS. Rochus and Sebastian, attributed to Perugino, and a fragment of ancient mosaic (ducks and fishermen), the former an admirable work.

The Via del Cemetero and Via de' Fenili lead hence direct to S. Pietro in Montorio (p. 324). — The Via di S. Francesco descends towards the S.E. (to the left) to the piazza of that name, in which are situated the church and monastery of S. Francesco a Ripa, where St. Francis resided for some time. The church was built in 1231, and modernised in the 17th cent. The last chapel on the left contains the recumbent figure of St. Lodovica Albertoni by Bernini. — Omnibus hence to the Piazza di Venezia, see p. 112.

*S. Cecilia in Trastevere (Pl. II, 15), originally the dwelling-house of the saint, which was converted into a church by Urban I., restored by Paschalis I., and entirely rebuilt by Card. Franc. Acquaviva in 1725. It is approached by a spacious court, which is embellished with an ancient vase, and by a portico resting on four columns of African marble and red granite. Festival, 22nd Nov.

Interior. The columns which formerly supported the nave were replaced by pillars in 1822. To the right of the entrance is the tomb of Card. Adam of Hertford, an English prelate (d. 1398); and to the left that of the warlike Card. Fortiguerra (d. 1473). — The beautiful HIGH-ALTAR with columns in pavonazzetto was executed by the Florentine Arnolfo del Cambio in 1283; adjacent is an ancient candelabrum for the Easter-candle; beneath the high-altar the recumbent *figure of the martyred S. Cecilia by Stef. Maderno. The saint had converted her husband, her brother, and even her judges, but was at length condemned to be executed during the persecution that took place either under Marcus Aurelius or Alexander Severus. The executioner being unable to sever her head from her body, fled in dismay after three attempts. Bishop Urban interred the remains of the holy woman in the catacombs of St. Calixtus, not far from the tomb of the popes. In 821 her burial-place was divulged to Paschalis I. in a vision, whereupon he transferred her remains to this church. In 1599 the sarcophagus was again opened, and at that period, the age of Bernini, this admirable figure was executed. — The TRIBUNE contains ancient **Mosaics* of the period of the foundation (9th cent.): the Saviour on a throne with the Gospel, r. St. Paul, St. Agatha, and Paschalis; l. St. Peter, St. Cecilia, and her husband St. Valerianus. — In the 1st CHAPEL, on the right, an ancient picture of Christ on the Cross; the 2nd CHAPEL, somewhat receding from the church, is said to have been the bath-room of St. Cecilia, the pipes of which are still seen in the wall. — The opposite door leads to the SACRISTY, the vaulting of which is adorned with the Four Evangelists by Pinturicchio. — In the last CHAPEL to the right, on the altar: Madonna with saints, a relief of the 15th cent.; on the right wall are preserved the remains of mosaics of the 12th cent. detached having been extended from those under S. Sebastiano, to which the topo-

i.e. resting or sleeping places, probably with reference to the hope of the resurrection. The Roman law, frequently re-enacted during the empire prohibiting the interment of the dead, or even their ashes, within the precincts of the city, was of course binding on the Christians also. We accordingly find their burying-places situated between the 1st and 3rd milestones beyond the Aurelian wall, to which Rome had extended long before the construction of the wall itself. While most of the European nations had become accustomed to dispose of their dead by cremation, the Egyptians and the Jews retained the practice of interment as being more in harmony with their views on the subject of a future state. The prevalence of similar views among the Christians gave rise to the excavation of subterranean passages, in the lateral walls of which apertures were made for the reception of the corpses. Burial-places of this description are to be found at Naples, Syracuse, Chiusi, Venosa, in Alexandria (in Egypt), and elsewhere, as well as at Rome.

It was formerly supposed that the early Christians used ancient arenaria, or pits of puzzolana earth, for this purpose, and extended them according to requirement, but this theory, as well as the belief that the different catacombs were all connected, has been entirely refuted by modern investigation. These subterranean passages are proved to have been excavated almost exclusively for the purposes of Christian interment, in the soft strata of tufa (tufo granolare), of which most of the hills in the environs of Rome consist, and which is rarely employed for building purposes. The hard tuffstone used for building, and the puzzolana, which when mingled with lime yields the celebrated Roman cement, have been penetrated in a few exceptional cases only. It is moreover ascertained that several of these 'cemeteries' were kept within the limits prescribed by the Roman law with regard to excavations, and therefore enjoyed its protection.

The Romans used burial-places of two kinds, viz. the family-tombs, and those of collegia, or societies, such as the columbaria (p. 259). In both cases the purchase of a definite area was necessary, within which every tomb was sacred and inviolable above and below the surface. So also the catacombs are partly Family-Tombs, which were named after their original proprietors, such as those of Lucina, Domitilla, Balbina, Prætextatus, Pontianus, and Maximus, and partly those of Collegia, which began to be formed by the Christians for the establishment of common burial-places about the 3rd century. The approaches to these vaults were everywhere wide and conspicuous, without any indication of attempt at concealment. The oldest of them appear to belong to the first century of our era, while the most recent date from the first half of the 4th century. A system of ecclesiastical supervision of cemeteries, which is mentioned for the first time about the year 200, appears gradually to have embraced all the Christian burial-places, the different districts of which were distributed among the deacons; and this became more necessary as the community, which about the year 250 consisted of 50,000 souls, increased in numbers.

It was not till the 3rd cent. that the safety of the catacombs was occasionally endangered during the persecutions of the Christians, when the devout who assembled to celebrate divine service at the tombs of the martyrs were not unfrequently followed into their subterranean places of refuge, and there arrested or slain. From this period date the precautionary measures which are sometimes observable, such as narrow staircases and concealed entrances. Peace was at length restored to the Church and security to the catacombs by Constantine the Great's edict of Milan. Throughout the 4th century interments here were customary, but they became rarer towards the beginning of the 5th, and were soon entirely discontinued, as it now became usual to inter the dead near the churches. The last three catacombs were founded by Pope Julius in 336-47.

The catacombs, however, as well as the tombs of the martyrs, still enjoyed the veneration of pilgrims and the devout. As early as 370 Pope Damasus caused numerous restorations to be made, and the most important tombs to be furnished with metrical inscriptions; apertures for light were constructed, to facilitate the access of visitors, and the walls at a comparatively late period decorated with paintings, which differ materially from those of the earliest Christians in subject and treatment. During the frequent devastations undergone by the city, however, the catacombs were also pillaged and injured, the first time on the occasion of the siege by the Goths in 537, and afterwards during the siege by the Lombards in 755, when they suffered still more seriously. 'The invaders ransacked the burial-places of the martyrs with pious zeal, searching for the bones of saints, which they deemed more precious than gold, and giving them arbitrary names, carried them home in hope of selling them at a great price. That a skeleton was found in Roman soil was sufficient warrant to them for attributing miraculous virtue to it, and thus it probably happened that the greatest sinners buried in the catacombs frequently had their remains exhumed and revered as those of saints' (Gregorovius). After these different plunderings the catacombs were restored by John III. (560-73) and Paul I. (757-68); but the transference of the remains of the martyrs to the altars of the city had already taken place in the most wholesale manner. In 609, when Boniface IV. consecrated the Pantheon as a church, he caused twenty-eight waggon-loads of the bones of 'saints' to be deposited beneath the altar; and there is an inscription still extant which records that no fewer than 2300 corpses of 'martyrs' were buried in S. Prassede on 20th July, 817. Hadrian I. (722-95) and Leo III (795-816) made some farther attempts to preserve the catacombs from ruin, but the task was abandoned by Paschalis I. (817-24), after whose time the catacombs gradually fell into oblivion, those under S. Sebastiano alone remaining accessible to the visits of pilgrims.

At length we find traces of renewed visits to a few of the catacombs towards the close of the 15th cent. partly by pilgrims, and partly by members of the Roman academy of the humanists, but the scientific exploration did not begin until fully a century later. In 1578 some workmen accidentally discovered an ancient Cœmeterium near the Via Salara, and from that period the subject began to excite general and permanent interest; and the Roman church has since then regarded the supervision of Roma Sotterranea as a point of honour. The pioneer of the scientific examination of the catacombs was Antonio Bosio of Malta, who devoted thirty-five years of his life to the task, but his 'Roma Sotterranea' was not published till 1632, thirty years after his death. His researches, although afterwards followed up by other scholars, were at length threatened with oblivion, but within the last twenty or thirty years he has been worthily succeeded by the Jesuit P. Marchi and the able brothers De Rossi, Michele, the geologist, and Giovanni Battista, the archæologist. The last has begun to publish the result of his indefatigable labours in a Collection of Ancient Christian Inscriptions (1st vol. 1861), in a work entitled 'Roma Sotterranea' (1st vol. 1864, 2nd vol. 1867, 3rd vol. 1876), and in the 'Bullettino di Archeologia Cristiana' (1863 et seq.).

II. ARRANGEMENT OF THE CATACOMBS. This was originally extremely simple. Narrow passages, 2½ ft. in width, and afterwards even less, were excavated and furnished with loculi, or recesses in the sides, of the length of the body to be interred. These niches were placed one above the other, as many as seven and more being sometimes thus disposed, and when the body was interred they were closed with tablets of marble, or occasionally of terracotta, which were either left plain, or merely recorded the name of the deceased, with the addition 'in pace', and sometimes with the addition of 'martyr'. The older inscriptions are sometimes in Greek, but the later always in Latin. This change shows that the Christians were at first aliens, but afterwards formed a naturalised and permanent community. Important inscriptions are now united in the great collection in the Lateran (p. 273), while the niches are generally empty in consequence of the mania for relic-hunting, already mentioned, which even during the present century is not entirely extinct. The practice is now being introduced of leaving all the monuments in the places in which they were found.

The increase of the community and the transformation of burial-places originally intended for families and their fellow-religionists into public cemeteries could not fail to affect the external arrangements of the catacombs. By degrees they were extended; the passages became nar-

Catacombs of St. Calixtus on the Via Appia,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. beyond Sta S. Sebastiano (p. 260; comp. also p. 342). On entering the passage in which they are situated, we perceive at a short distance a brick building with three apses. This having been identified by M. de Rossi as the ancient Oratorium S. Callixti in Arenariis, induced Pius IX. to purchase the ground, and his investigations were speedily rewarded by most important discoveries. The present entrance to the catacombs immediately adjoins this building. A passage with tombs is traversed, and the \**Camera Papale*, or Cubiculum Pontificium, a chamber of considerable dimensions, is soon reached on the left, containing the tombs of popes on the left, and those of Anteros, Lucius, Fabianus, and Eutychianus on the right; in the central wall that of Sixtus II., who died as a martyr in the catacombs in 258. In front of the latter is a long metrical inscription in honour of those interred here, composed by Pope Damasus about the close of the 4th cent., and engraved in elegant and decorated characters invented specially for the purpose by Furius Dionysius Philocalus, the secretary of that pope. Outside the entrance, on both sides, a great number of inscriptions have been scratched by devout visitors of the 4th-6th century. We next enter a \*chamber, open above, which once contained the Tomb of St. Cecilia, whose remains are now in the church of S. Cecilia in Trastevere (p. 330). On the wall here are several Byzantine paintings of the 7th-8th cent.: St. Cecilia, St. Urban, and a head of Christ. The walls of the aperture for light bear traces of other frescoes. On St. Cecilia's Day (22nd Nov.) mass is celebrated here, on which occasion the chapel and the adjoining chambers are illuminated and open to the public. On the sides of the passages near these chapels are several tombs adorned with symbolical representations of the communion, baptism, and other scenes of the kind already mentioned. Then follow the Tomb-Chamber of Pope Eusebius, with an old copy of an inscription by Damasus, and another with two sarcophagi still containing the remains of the deceased, one of them preserved in a mummy-like form, the other almost entirely destroyed. Lastly we may mention the Tomb of Pope Cornelius, which originally belonged to the separate cemetery of Lucina.

The Catacombs of SS. Nereus and Achilleus, or of Domitilla, near the Catacombs of Calixtus, on the Via delle Sette Chiese (p. 344), contain the greatest number of inscriptions (upwards of 900), and are among the earliest foundations of the kind, vying in antiquity with the Crypts of St. Lucina, and the Catacombs of St. Priscilla. Domitilla was a member of the imperial house of the Flavii. In two of the five ancient entrances are frescoes of the beginning of the 2nd cent., representing genii in the Pompeian style, figures of the Good Shepherd, Daniel, and centre of the catacomb is the of St. Petronilla, who, according to the legend, was the daughter of St. Peter. The basilica, built in the nearly quadrangular Basilica projects with its roof into the open air. On the second story of the catacomb, is represented the martyrdom of St. Achilles in relief, perhaps the earliest work of the kind (4th cent.). Everything else is in a ruined condition, but the church has recently been partly restored. It was used from the 5th to the 8th cent. only. In the interior of the catacombs are several smaller chapels, some of which are adorned with life-size mural paintings.

The Catacombs of St. Protextatus, on the Via Appia towards S. Urbano (p. 346), contain decorations similar to those of the station of the Vigiles at Trastevere (p. 329). In the burial chapel of Vibia (not easily accessible) are still to be seen gnostic heretical representations (Hermes as conductor of the dead, etc.).

The Catacombs of St. Priscilla lie on the Via Salara,  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the gate (p. 350). The oldest part consists of an extensive group of chapels, with interesting paintings of the beginning of the 2nd cent. Farther on, among the decorations of the ceiling, are a Madonna and the Child, with Isaiah and the star. Coloured inscriptions on tiles, of the earliest and simplest type, are also occasionally found here.

The Catacombs of S. Agnese, under the church of S. Agnese Fuori le Mura (p. 174), are destitute of painting, but are to a great extent still in their original condition. They are shown by the sacristan without a permesso. — About  $\frac{1}{4}$  M. beyond the church is another catacomb, called the Cameterium Ostrianum, and remarkable for the number of chapels it contains (accessible on Sund., Tues. and Thurs.). Some of these were doubtless used for divine service, as is indicated by the large pulpits, hewn in tufa. The largest chapel, a narrow and lofty room, also contains stone benches and niches.

The Catacombs of S. Sebastiano, situated below the church of that name on the Via Appia (see p. 344), the only excavations of the kind which continued to be visited in medieval times, have been deprived of all their enrichments, and are now devoid of interest. Near them are the —

Jewish Catacombs, in the Vigna Randanini (p. 344; at present inaccessible), which were excavated about the 3rd cent. They rather resemble the catacombs of Naples than the other Roman catacombs. The inscriptions are exclusively Greek and Latin. The most frequently recurring symbol is the seven-branched candelabrum. Two chambers are enriched with decorative paintings, in which, contrary to the Mosaic law, figures of animals are depicted. A sarcophagus here bears traces of gilding.

The Catacombs of SS. Peter and Marcellinus, near Torre Pignattara (p. 349), are among the most extensive. The ceiling of a lofty chapel bears an Enthroned Christ, with St. Paul on the right, and St. Peter on the left, with four saints below, quite in the style of the earliest mosaics. Other frescoes, such as two scenes of Agapæ (love-feasts), belong to the 3rd cent. The representation is often very realistic.

The Catacombs of St. Pontianus,  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the Porta Portese, are excavated in the breccia of Monte Verde. At the foot of a staircase descending into them, is a basin with water, serving as a baptistery. On the wall beyond is the Baptism of Christ (with a stag near the Jordan), above a large cross in the later style. Above the staircase are two large medallions with heads of Christ of the 6th and 9th centuries.

The Oratorio of S. Alessandro, 8 M. from the Porta Pia (p. 350), in the Tenuta del Coazzo (permeso at the Propaganda), is a long, half-subterranean building, the very poor masonry of which is well preserved in the lower part. According to an inscription on the altar, this was the tomb of Pope Alexander. The oratory is surrounded with lofty passages still containing undisturbed tombs.

Abbey delle Tre Fontane (ad aquas Salvias), now almost deserted on account of the unhealthiness of the situation. The building was made over in 1868 to French Trappists. By extensive plantations of the rapidly growing Eucalyptus the sanitary condition of the place is said to have improved since 1874. The name is derived from the legend that the apostle Paul was executed here, and that his head was observed to make three distinct leaps, corresponding to which there welled forth three different fountains. The court surrounding the three churches is approached by an archway bearing traces of painting, which is believed to have belonged to an earlier church of John the Baptist (visitors ring; 30 c.; a monk acts as guide, 1 fr.).

In the centre is an antique mosaic representing the four seasons, found in Ostia, and presented by the Pope in 1800. On the spring to the right stands the column of white marble to which St. Paul is said to have been bound at the time of his execution. The present edifice dates from 1500.

FROM THE PORTA S. SEBASTIANO (Pl. III, 28).

The excursion to the VIA APPIA by carriage, including halts, requires 3 3/4 hrs. (one horse carr. to Casale Rotondo and back, 9-10 fr.). Good walkers will take 4 1/2-5 hrs.: from the arch of Constantine to Porta S. Sebastiano, 1 1/2 M.; from the gate to the Catacombs of St. Calixtus, 1 1/4 M.; thence to the beginning of the excavated part of the ancient Via Appia, 1 M.; to the Casale Rotondo, 2 M. more. — The traveller is recommended to drive as far as the Catacombs of Calixtus (2 1/2 fr.), a visit to which is conveniently combined with this excursion, and to walk thence to the Casale Rotondo. Pedestrians may shorten the uninteresting first part of the route by visiting the Caffarella Valley on the way (see p. 346).

An excursion to Albano may also be combined with the visit of the Via Appia, but the last part of the route is uninteresting (p. 359). Carriage and two horses from Rome to Albano, 25 fr. and fee; with one horse less than 20 fr.

The route by the Via di Porta S. Sebastiano to the gate, and the ruins and buildings situated near it, are described at p. 257 et seq. The *Via Appia, the military road, constructed by the censor Appius Claudius Cæcus (in B.C. 312), led by the ancient Porta Capena, near the church of S. Gregorio (in the vigna of which fragments of the wall of Servius were discovered in 1869), to Capua, whence it was afterwards extended to Beneventum and Brundisium. In 1850 it was excavated by order of Pius IX., under the superintendence of Jacobini, the minister of commerce, and Canina, the architect, as far as the 11th milestone, where it is now intersected by the railway to Albano. Even at the present day the Via Appia merits its proud ancient title of the 'queen of roads'. It affords perhaps the finest of all the nearer excursions in the Campagna. Shortly after leaving the city, we enjoy a magnificent prospect, embracing the Campagna, the ruins of the aqueducts, and the mountains, while numerous ancient tombs are situated on each side of the road. Very few of the latter are preserved intact; but the remains of others have been carefully restored by Canina, so as to convey an idea of their architecture and decorations. The new administration has unfortunately carried its system of purification somewhat too far, and has removed a number of inscriptions and sculptures which formerly lay picturesquely scattered about.

The road descends from the Porta S. Sebastiano (p. 260) by a declivity, which corresponds with the ancient Clivus Martis, and after 4 min. passes under the railway to Civita Vecchia. About 3 min. farther it crosses the brook Almo, where ruins of tombs are observed on both sides. After 5 min. more the Via Ardeatina diverges to the right; and on the left stands the small church of Domine Quo Vadis, so named from the legend that St. Peter, fleeing from the death of a martyr, here met his Master and enquired of him, 'Domine quo vadis?' to which he received the reply, 'Venio iterum crucifigi'; whereupon the apostle, ashamed of his weakness, returned. A copy of the footprint which Christ is said to have impressed on the marble is shown here.

By a small circular chapel, about a hundred paces beyond the church, a field-road diverges to the left, to the Caffarella Valley (see p. 346). The road now ascends, being hemmed in for the next  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. by monotonous walls. To the right, No. 33,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the gate, is the entrance to the Catacombs of St. Calixtus (p. 336), furnished with an inscription, and shaded with cypresses.

A little farther on the road again divides. The branch to the left is the new road which leads to S. Urbano (p. 346), the baths of Acqua Santa (p. 348), and ( $2\frac{1}{2}$  M.) unites near the so-called ruins of Roma Vecchia (p. 345) with the high road to Albano, see p. 359.

We follow the branch of the road to the right, the 'Via Appia Antica', descend past the entrance (on the left, No. 37) of the Jewish Catacombs (p. 337), and reach the church of S. Sebastiano, situated  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. from the gate. This church has from a very early period been one of the seven churches frequented by pilgrims, being erected over the catacombs where the remains of so many martyrs reposed. Mention of it is first made in the time of Gregory the Great. The form was originally that of a basilica, but in 1612 it was altered by Flaminio Ponzio and Giovanni Vasanzio. The portico is supported by six ancient columns of granite.

The 1st CHAPEL on the right contains the original 'footprint of Christ' on stone. The last chapel on the right was designed by C. Maratta. Over the HIGH ALTAR is a painting by Innocenzo Tacconi, a pupil of Annibale Caracci. The second chapel on the left contains a good Statue of St. Sebastian, designed by Bernini and executed by Giorgini. A staircase on the left, by the egress, descends to the CATACOMBS, but they are uninteresting compared with those of Calixtus.

Immediately before we come to the church, the Via delle Sette Chiese diverges to the right, intersecting the Via Ardeatina after 10 min., and in 4 min. more reaching the recently excavated remains of the Basilica of St. Petronilla, or of SS. Nereo ed Achilleo (see p. 336). Thence to S. Paolo Fuori  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M., see p. 341.

Continuing to follow the Via Appia we come to a large gateway on the left, which we pass in order to reach the *Circus of Maxentius, situated on the left side of the road. The circus, which is 350 yds. long, and 86 yds. broad, was constructed in 311, and is now sufficiently excavated to show the arrangement of the structure, which was destined for chariot-races.

Facing the Via Appia was an extensive portico, and behind it one of the principal Entrances, with another opposite to it in the semicircle which terminated the building (on the above-mentioned branch of the road). At the sides were other gates, of which the first on the right is supposed to be the Porta Libitina, by which the dead were carried out. On each side of the first-mentioned main entrance were the carceres, or barriers. The chariots starting hence had to perform seven times the circuit of the course, which was formed by the seats of the spectators and the spina, a wall erected longitudinally in the centre of the arena, and embellished with statues and obelisks, one of which last now stands in the Piazza Navona (p. 199). At the ends of this wall stood the metae, or goals. The spina was placed somewhat obliquely, for the purpose of equalising the distance as much as possible to those starting in different positions, and for the same reason the carceres are in an oblique line. The spectators sat on ten surrounding tiers of steps, on which about 18,000 persons could be accommodated. It is worthy of remark that pottery has been used in the formation of the tiers of seats.

The ruins of a circular building near the circus, on the Via Appia, are supposed to be those of a Temple of Romulus, the son of Maxentius, who died at an early age, and in whose honour the circus was perhaps also constructed.

The road again ascends, and, in 35 min. from the Porta S. Sebastiano, leads us to the *Tomb of Cæcilia Metella, which forms so conspicuous an object in the views of the Campagna. It is a circular structure, 65 ft. in diameter, which, as well as the square pedestal, was originally covered with travertine. The frieze which runs round the building is adorned with wreaths of flowers and skulls of ten, from which last the tomb is sometimes called Capo di Bove.

On a marble tablet facing the road is inscribed: Caeciliae Q. Cretici Filiae Metellae Crassae, i.e. to the manes of the daughter of Metellus Creticus, wife of the triumvir Crassus. The interior, now almost entirely filled up, contained the tomb-chamber of the deceased. In the 13th cent. the Gaetani converted the edifice into the tower of a stronghold, and furnished it with pinnacles. To this extensive castle, which subsequently passed through various hands, and was destroyed under Sixtus V., belong the picturesque ruins of a palace adjacent to the tower, and a church opposite.

As far as this neighbourhood extends a lava-stream which once descended from the Alban Mts. and yielded paving material for the ancient road. The more interesting part of the Via now begins; the ancient pavement is visible in many places, the road is skirted on both sides by continuous rows of ruined tombs, and the view becomes more extensive at every step. On the left are perceived the adjacent arches of the Aqua Marcia and the Aqua Claudia, the latter now partly converted into the modern Acqua Felice (comp. p. 348). The houses on the road-side gradually cease, and  $2\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the city-gate we reach the entrance (indicated by a notice on a house to the right) to the excavated part of the Via Appia, flanked beyond this point by a constant succession of tombs. Many of these contain reliefs and inscriptions worthy of note. The scenery continues to be strikingly beautiful.

On the left,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  M. from the entrance, is a 'casale' built within the walls of an ancient church, which is called S. Maria Nuova. Beyond it lie the extensive ruins named Roma Vecchia, which appear to have belonged to a spacious villa of the Quintilii. Several of the chambers were employed as baths.

A large tomb on the left, the site of which is now occupied by a small farm,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from S. Maria Nuova, is named the Casale Rotondo. It lies by the 6th milestone, and, according to Canina, was erected for Messala Corvinus, a statesman and poet of considerable reputation under Augustus, but this conjecture is not supported by sufficient evidence. It may be ascended for the sake of the fine view it commands (30.c.). — The lofty building on the left, 7 min. farther, on the same side, is also an ancient tomb on which the Arabs and Normans erected a tower, named Tor di Selce (tower of basalt).

The prolongation of the Via Appia from this point to Albano ( $7\frac{1}{2}$  M.) is less interesting. After 1 M. a field-road diverges to the left, leading to the Via Appia Nuova (see below). Among the tombs may also be mentioned, on the left, 2 M. beyond Tor di Selce, the circular Torraccio, or Palombaro, the name of whose occupant is unknown. At the 11th milestone the road is crossed by the railway, a little beyond which is the Osteria delle Fratecchie; thence to Albano, see p. 359.

cross the Via Appia Nuova (by which from this point the gate is

Rome in 22 min. (fares 1 fr. 60, 1 fr. 15, 80 c.).

On reaching the left to the mill. Near the latter is situated the so-called Temple of the Deus Rediculus, a Roman tomb of Hadrian's time, on an ancient road which formerly issued from the now closed Porta Latina. The building has been assumed by some, but without authority, to be a temple erected by the Romans after the retreat of Hannibal. The architecture is tasteful, and the brick ornaments, the Corinthian pilasters, with half-columns on the S. wall, and the cornicing should be noticed. The interior (25 c.) contains two stories with groined vaulting. Hence to the road, we may next ascend the valley of the Tiber. The carriage-road is followed in a straight line through, immediately the left of the road, which ascends the valley of the Tiber.

Returning hence to the road, we may next ascend the valley of the Almo, or Caffarella. The carriage-road is paved through, immediately beyond which a road diverges to the left; 2 min. farther, beyond a second cancello, the path by the river ascends to the so-called Almo, which is a misinterpretation of the name of the river.

2 min. farther, beyond the bridge, should be quitted in order to turn to the right to S. Urbano (see below) of Egeria, which was so protection of a passage of Juvenal and the Servian walls. The ancient Via Latina diverges from Porta Capena; the now closed Porta was destined for its point of issue the other roads emerging from both sides, several of which, their decorations, were excavated at Porta S.  left, which runs the unbroke series of arches of the Acqua Felice, it rises the Monte del Grano, surmounted by a tower, which nds a magnificent PANORAMA. A long shaft leads to an

FROM THE PORTA MAGGIORE (Pl. II, 35). o high roads issue from the Porta Maggiore (p. 184): to the distant, are situated the remains of the octagonal Monument of the Empress Helena, whose sarcophagus found here is now preserved in the Vatican. The building, which has been fitted up as a small church (S. Pietro e Marcellino; catacombs, see p. 338), is named Torre Pignattara from the 'pignatte', or earthen-ware vessels used for the sake of lightness in the construction of the vaulting, as was customary during the empire, but is otherwise uninteresting.

 Via Labicana, which leads to Palestrina (p. 371), 23/4 M.

TOR DE' SCHIAVI. Outside the Porta Maggiore we follow the ancient Via Praenestina to the left, a little frequented route, but, as the city is left behind, commanding beautiful views of the mountains. About 1 M. from the gate the vineyard-walls cease. Numerous ruins of tombs on the right indicate the direction of the ancient route, which, lying higher, affords a more unobstructed view than the present lower level of the road, and may be reached by crossing the fields. About 2 M. from the city-gate we reach the ruins called Tor de' Schiavi, which probably belonged to an extensive villa of the Gordians.

First, to the left of the road, is a hexagonal structure, almost entirely fallen to decay. A column in the centre and the additional erection on the summit, both mediæval, impart a grotesque appearance to the place. — Farther on is a circular building with niches and dome, used in the middle ages as a church, and decorated with now nearly obliterated frescoes; below, entered from the back, is a vault supported by strong pillars in the centre. Both these buildings are supposed to have belonged to a bath-establishment. Among the extensive ruins on the right of the road are a few columbaria.

The road proceeds hence to (11 M.) Gabii, and Palestrina, about 10 M. farther (comp. pp. 370, 371).

About 3 M. from the city-gate the ancient Via Collatina, diverging to the left, and skirting the Acqua Vergine, leads to **Lunghezza*, the ancient Collatia, 9 M. distant, a tenuta or farm of the Duca Strozzi, on the Anio, forming a charmingly shaded oasis in the Campagna. On this road, 5 M. from Rome, lies the Tenuta Cervara, with the celebrated Grottoes of Cervara, where festivals of artists are frequently celebrated.

FROM THE PORTA S. LORENZO (Pl. II, 31).
The road issuing from the Porta S. Lorenzo leads to the church of the same name (p. 181), and thence to Tivoli (p. 363).

FROM THE PORTA PIA (Pl. I, 30).
From the Porta Pia to S. Agnese 1-1/4 M.; thence to Ponte Nomentano and Mons Sacer, to which point most travellers will extend their walk, also 1-1/4 M.

The Via Nomentana, which leaves Rome by the Porta Pia, passes the Villas Patrizi and Torlonia (p. 174) and the church of S. Agnese with the adjoining catacombs (p. 337), and, 2-1/2 M. from the gate, crosses the Anio by the Ponte Nomentano, an ancient bridge which has been frequently restored, surmounted by a tower. This road is also bordered with ancient tombs. Beyond the bridge is a hill, con-the ~~Mons Sacer~~ rendered famous by the Secession of its foot an osteria). View from the top.

see p. 140. The road is at first uninteresting, being continuously flanked by garden-walls. Immediately after the right, outside the gate, is the entrance to the Villa Borghese (P. 161). After  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. we reach the Casino di Papa Giulio on the right, whence a field-road, passing through a gate called the Arc Scuro, leads to Acqua Acetosa ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  M.). This road passes the Villa di Papa Giulio, erected by Vignola for Julius III., formerly celebrated for its splendour, but now deserted. On the ground-floor are \*two rooms with richly decorated ceilings, worthy of a visit; hand-some court with fountain ( $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

On the high road, farther on, is S. Andrea on the right, founded by Julius III. in commemoration of his deliverance out of the hands of the Germans in 1527, erected by Vignola in the finest style of the Renaissance. A little on this side of the bridge, on the right, is a second Chapel of St. Andrew, erected by Pius II. on the spot where he met the head of St. Andrew, when brought hither from the Peloponnesus in 1462.

We then cross the Tiber by the Ponte Molle, which was constructed on the foundations of the ancient Pons Milvius, built by the Censor M. Aemilius Scaturus in B.C. 109.

It was here that Cicero, on the night of 3rd Dec., B.C. 63, caused the ambassadors of the Allobrogi, who were in league with Catilina, to be arrested. Here, too, on 27th Oct. 812, Maxentius, who had been defeated by Constantine near Saxa Rubra, under the sign of the cross, was drowned in the river. The present bridge was almost entirely rebuilt by Pius VII. in 1815, and embellished with statues of Christ, and John the Baptist by Mocchi, and by a kind of triumphal arch. In 1849 an arch was blown up, but speedily restored.

Beyond the Ponte Molle is a popular osteria. — The present route, one of the most charming in the Roman Campagna, turns to the right immediately before the bridge, and skirts the river for  $\frac{1}{2}$  hr. commanding fine views, and leading to the Acqua Acetosa, a mineral spring of great repute, within a building erected by Bernini under Alexander VII.

We may now return to the town (2 M.) by the above-named path, passing the Villa di Papa Giulio, or by the more attractive, but longer route by the height of Antenna and the Via Salara ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  M.), see p. 35. A field-road is followed, which often entirely disappears, leading first to the left in the plain by the river, then ascending the hill, where it runs at a considerable height above the Anio, and reaches the bridge of the Via Salara.

Beyond the Ponte Molle the road divides. The branch to the left is the Via Cassia, see p. 377; that to the right, near the river, is the Via Flaminia; while to the extreme left is the road coming from the Porta Angelica (p. 352; after  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. a road ascends from the Flaminia, we reach, after about  $1\frac{3}{4}$  M., the tufa hills, the first of which is an interesting rock-tomb of the Nasones, containing stucco-decorations, greatly damaged. \* Magnificent view from the top. Peter's*, framed by the Alban Mts. (comp. Map).

From the Porta Angelica an uninteresting road leads straight on to Ponte Molle, from which, after  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M., a road diverges to the left to ( $\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Villa Madama. The villa was erected by G. Romano from Raphael's designs for Card. Giulio de' Medici, afterwards Clement VII., and subsequently came into possession of the Princess Margaret, daughter of Charles V., from whom it derives its name (comp. p. 198). It next belonged to the Farnese family, and then to the kings of Naples. The building was formerly in a miserably dilapidated condition, but is now at least preserved from ruin. It contains a picturesque, overgrown fountain-basin, and a fine \*loggia with mouldings and frescoes by Giulio Romano and Giovanni da Udine. Beautiful view. (Fee  $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.)—The road to Ponte Molle reaches the Tiber a few minutes farther, and skirts it as far as the bridge ( $1\frac{1}{4}$  M.; see p. 351).

II. Excursions from Rome to the Mountains and the Sea.

The Alban Mountains.

The railways to Frascati (p. 354), Marino (p. 357), Albano (p. 359), etc., render the Alban Mts. so easily accessible from Rome, that the traveller may obtain a glimpse at some of the most interesting points in a single day. Rome should, if possible, be quitted in the evening, in order that the excursion may be begun at an early hour on the following morning.

PLAN OF EXCURSION. Time necessary for Frascati, the villas, and Tusculum  $1\frac{3}{4}$ -2 hrs., thence to Rocca di Papa (p. 357) 1 hr. (guide necessary, 1- $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.), ascent of Monte Cavo  $\frac{3}{4}$  hr., descent 20 min., to Nemi  $1\frac{3}{4}$  hr., Genzano  $1\frac{3}{4}$  hr., Ariccia  $\frac{1}{2}$  hr., Albano  $\frac{1}{4}$  hr., i. e. 8-9 hrs. (without halt), which may be somewhat diminished if the route from Rocca di Papa direct to Albano by Palazzuola (p. 358) be taken. In the reverse direction, beginning with Albano, the excursion occupies about the same time. If the excursion be made by Genzano and Nemi, Castel Gandolfo (p. 360) should be visited first. If time permit, it is of course far more enjoyable to devote several days to a tour among these mountains.

The only good INNS are at Frascati and Albano, but the smaller villages afford accommodation for the night in case of necessity. Albano is recommended for a stay of several days, as a number of the most beautiful excursions are most conveniently accomplished thence.

The traveller is recommended to hire a DONKEY at Ariccia (where the best are to be had), or at Frascati; charge, with guide, 4-5 fr. daily. In spring and autumn WALKING in this district will also be found pleasant, in which case travellers intending to perform the excursion in one day had better take a guide (about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  fr.). Those who have more time, and do not object to an occasional deviation from the direct route, will have no difficulty in finding their way with the aid of the map and following directions. — A precise programme of the excursion should be agreed upon with the guides, as they are apt to cut short the journey to the traveller's disadvantage. A supply of provisions for the expedition will also be found desirable, as the osterie on the route are very poor.

Clement VIII., from the designs of Giacomo della Porta, and now the property of the Borghese. The palace contains paintings by the Cavaliere d'Arpino. The grounds are adorned with cascades and beautiful oaks, and the views are very extensive, especially from the roof of the semicircular building. — A little to the S. is the Villa Montalto, erected by the Peretti, and since 1835 in the possession of the Propaganda.

The road to Tusculum next passes the Capuchin Church (1 M. above the town, containing a few pictures), and soon reaches the entrance to the **Villa Ruffinella*, or Tusculana, of the 16th cent., formerly the property of Lucien Bonaparte, afterwards that of King Victor Emanuel, and now belonging to Prince Lancelotti. In Nov., 1818, Lucien was attacked and plundered here by robbers, an event admirably described in Washington Irving's 'Adventure of the Artist'. The celebrated Villa of Cicero (the 'Tusculanum') is generally believed to have occupied this site. Inscriptions and antiquities found in the neighbourhood are shown.

The other villas lie on the height to the E. of Frascati. The nearest is the Villa Taverna and a little farther on is the Villa Mon-dragone, erected by Cardinal Altemps under Gregory XIII., both the property of the Borghese, surrounded by delightful gardens and points of view. The latter is now fitted up by the Jesuits as a school. — Above the Villa Taverna is situated the Villa Falconieri, the oldest in Frascati, planned by Cardinal Ruffini before the year 1550, and erected by Borromini, possessing pictures by C. Maratta and others, and shady gardens. — On the height to the E. lies the suppressed monastery of Camaldoli, founded by Pope Paul V.

From Villa Ruffinella (ascending to the right from the palace) a shaded, and partly ancient road, leads to the site of the venerable town of Tusculum, the foundation of which is traditionally ascribed to Telegonus, the son of Ulysses and Circe, the birthplace of the elder Cato and a favourite residence of Cicero. In the middle ages the ancient castle on the summit of the hill was occupied by a warlike race of counts, who were generally in league with the emperors against the Romans. The latter having been signally defeated in the reign of Frederick I., 30th May, 1167, they retaliated by seizing and dismantling the castle in the pontificate of Celestine III., in 1191. Nothing therefore now remains of the ancient Tusculum but a heap of ruins.

In ascending from the Villa Ruffinella, we soon obtain a view of the Amphitheatre, outside the town-walls (longer diameter 77 yds., shorter 57 yds.; arena 52 yds. by 31 yds.), which is called by the guides Scuola di Cicerone. The so-called Villa of Cicero, excavated in 1861 by Prince Aldobrandini, is next reached. On the right is the ancient Forum and the **Theatre* (about 2 M. above Frascati), excavated, as an inscription records, in presence of Maria Christina, dowager Queen of Sardinia, on the occasion of the arrival of Gre-

A monument of Costanza is believed, as abbot of St. Maria, to be the handsome Abbey. The small Madonna sculptures are shown in the hands of Andrea. Caracci; a bust of Domenichino is by Teresa Benincampi, a pupil of Canova. Fairs held here on 25th March and 8th Sept. attract numerous peasants from the neighbourhood, as well as strangers from Rome.

About 2 M. farther to the S., and reached either by footpaths or by the high road, is Marino, a small town famous for its wine, and picturesquely situated on an eminence of the Alban Mts., 1322 ft. in height, the site of the ancient Castrimanium. In the middle ages it was a stronghold of the Orsini, who defended themselves here against their enemies, particularly the Colonna; but the latter, under Martin V. in 1424, captured Marino and are still proprietors of the place. The town contains a Corso, which is the principal street, a Fountain, and a Cathedral dedicated to St. Barnabas. The church of S. Trinità, to the left of the Corso, contains a Trinity by Guido Reni. In the church of the Madonna delle Grazie, St. Rochus and Domenichino. In the Cathedral a badly-preserved St. Bartholome by Guercino.

The MARINO STATION on the Rome and Naples line is situated in the Campagna, 3 M. distant (railway to Rome in 35 min.; fares 2 fr., 1 fr. 40 c., 1 fr.).

From the town of Marino a shady road, commanding extensive views, leads through the Parco di Colonna, the well-wooded valley of the Aqua Ferentina, a brook often mentioned in history as a rallying-point of the Latins, to the Alban lake, and by Castel Gandolfo to ( $3\frac{3}{4}$  M.) Albano, see p. 360.

From the FRASCATI and MARINO road, there diverges at the bridge in the valley, rather more than half-way to the latter, a new road to Rocca di Papa, situated about 5 M. from Tusculum (horse carr. about 8 fr.). It may also be reached from Tusculum (p. 355) direct in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. by field and forest-paths (guide necessary, 1-1 $\frac{1}{2}$  fr.).

Rocca di Papa, a wretched little town with 2500 inhab., lying on the brink of the great crater of Campo d'Annibale (see below), in the midst of beautiful forest-scenery, is well adapted for a summer-residence on account of its lofty situation (2647 ft.). Rooms, even for one night, may be heard of at the Caffè dell'Aurora, in the upper part of the town. The two Trattorie, one of which has a lancia in connection with it, are very poor.

Ascending the steep streets of the town, we reach in 15-20 min. the great crater of Campo d'Annibale, so named from the unfounded tradition that Hannibal once pitched his camp here during his campaign against Rome. It is more probable that the Romans were encamped here at that period, to repel the attacks of the Carthaginians.

he wooded summit of Monte Cavo, the ancient Mons Albanus, reached (turning to the right at the beginning of the crater) by well-preserved and shady Via Triumphalis, an ancient road, with basalt, by which the generals to whom the senate refused triumph at Rome, ascended, and celebrated one on their own re-bility. From two open spaces, about three-quarters of the way better *view than from the top is obtained of Marino on the the Lago d'Albano, Ariccia with the viaduct, Genzano, the di Nemi, and Nemi itself.

 uary of the Latin League, the Temple of Jupiter Latiaris, the great sacrificial festival of the Feriae Latinae was celeannually. Its ruins, 82 yds. long and 38 yds. wide, with col-of white and yellow marble, were in tolerable preservation till
 , when Cardinal York, the last of the Stuarts, converted them a Passionist Monastery. A portion only of the ancient founda-is preserved on the S.E. side of the garden-wall. The **VIEW several different points is incomparable. It embraces the sea, east from Terracina to Civit  Vecchia, the Volscian and Sabine

Rome and the Campagna with a number of towns and villages, below the spectator the beautiful Alban Mts. The distant view, ally obscured by mist, is seen to the best advantage immedi-before sunrise, after sunset, or after a passing shower has ed the atmosphere. The traveller had better take refreshments him; the monks are very civil, but the food and sleeping accommodation which they offer are exceedingly poor.

From Monte Cavo we may reach Nemi in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. by pleasant t-paths (see p. 362).

Those who wish to proceed direct to Albano by Palazzuola should ce their steps to the Campo d'Annibale, pass above Rocca di Papa, visit (1 M.) the chapel of the Madonna del Tufo (2323 ft.), see a fine view of the Alban Lake and the plain is enjoyed.
 At 1 M. beyond it they will reach the suppressed Franciscan asterly of Palazzuola, dating from the 13th cent., and situated e the E. margin of the Lake of Albano (p. 360). The garden ins a remarkable rock-tomb in the Etruscan style, about which is known.

Above the monastery, on the narrow space between the base of e Cavo and the Alban Lake, once lay in a prolonged line, as its indicates, the city of Alba Longa, of which no traces now re-
 . It will be observed, however, that the rocks in the direction alazzuola have been hewn perpendicularly, in order to render own more impregnable.

The foundation of Alba Longa belongs to a pre-historic period, and tion has attributed it to Ascanius, the son of  neas. It was the an-capital, and the political and religious centre, of the Latin League, was destroyed at an early period by its younger rival on the banks

RAILWAY FROM ROME TO ALBANO, 17½ M., in about 1 hr.; fares 3 fr. 30, 2 fr. 30, 1 fr. 65 c.; express 4 fr. 40, 2 fr. 95 c. (comp. p. 354).

Soon after quitting the city the train diverges from the line to Civita Vecchia; on the left is the Porta S. Lorenzo, on the right the arches of the Acqua Felice, then the tombs of the Via Appia. To the left the Sabine and Alban Mts.; at the foot of the latter, Frascati (p. 354) is a conspicuous object. At (9 M.) Ciampino the line to Frascati diverges to the left, while the S. line approaches the Alban Mts. — 16 M. Marino lies on the nearest chain of hills on the left; above it, on the mountain, is Rocca, adjoining which on the right rises Monte Cavo with the white monastery walls. The train then passes through a cutting. To the left, on the olive-clad hill, appears Castel Gandolfo, immediately beyond which Albano and Ariccia, connected by a viaduct, are visible in the distance. These two towns possess stat. Albano, or La Cecina, in common, in a lonely and unattractive situation.

An omnibus (fare 1 fr.) runs from the station in ¾ hr. to the town of Albano, 3 M. distant. (As the omnibus is often full, a seat should be secured at once.) The ascent is picturesque, although there are few distant views. The ruins of Castello Savelli soon appear on the right; La Turri, or Torretta, on the left. A magnificent view of Ariccia is then obtained, with the ancient castle (p. 361) on the right, and the imposing viaduct on the left, and farther to the left, Albano; to the right, by the entrance to the town, stands the Villa Lincampa. The omnibus stops in the Piazza. The HIGH ROAD from Rome to Albano, the Via Appia Nuova, is also still much frequented, especially by those who wish to combine this excursion with a visit to the ancient Via Appia (comp. p. 342); the vetturini mentioned at p. 113 perform the journey in 2½ hrs. (fare 2½ fr., not recommended to strangers).

The Via Appia Nuova quits Rome by the Porta S. Giovanni (p. 268); the ancient Via Appia which is rather longer, by the Porta S. Sebastiano (p. 260). The two roads unite at the Fratocchie, by the 11th milestone of the new road. On the left side of the road Clodius once possessed a villa; to the right in the valley lay Bovillae, a colony of Alba Longa, with a sanctuary of the Gens Julia, where the remains of a theatre and circus may still be traced. Remains of walls and tombs are seen on both sides of the road. A large square structure, about 33 ft. in height, with three niches, was long erroneously regarded as the tomb of Clodius. The road ascends. The high ground here commands a fine survey of the Campagna, the sea, and Rome. Near the gate of Albano, at the 14th milestone, on the left, is the so-called Tomb of Pompey (p. 360).

Albano. — VILLE DE PARIS, in the Palazzo Feoli, R. 3 fr., dear; ROMA, at the end of the town, near the bridge leading to Ariccia; EUROPA, or Posta, R. 2 fr., 'vino del paese' ½ fr., a café on the ground-floor; RUSSIA, at the Porta Romaria.

Albano (1250 ft. above the sea), a small town with 2900 inhab., situated on the ruins of the villa of Pompey and of the Albanum of Domitian, is mentioned as early as 460 as the seat of a bishop, and 1th cent. in the contests of the popes with the citizens the 13th cent. it belonged to the Savelli, from whom the possession of the papal government in 1697. The neighbourhood renders Albano an attractive summer-resort in the hottest season it is not exempt from fever. The women are famous for the picturesqueness of their dress, but it is now rarely seen, except sometimes on Sundays. Albano is praised by Horace, and is still much esteemed. The upper part of the town, between the monastery of S. Paolo and the Capuchin monastery lay an Amphitheatre, the ruins of which are seen from the road. The church of S. Maria della Rotonda stands on the foundations of an ancient temple. The ruins in the street of Gesù e Maria are supposed to be the remains of baths.

Appia intersects Albano in a straight direction. Outside the town, to the right of the road, rise the remains of a large tomb, called without foundation the Tomb of Pomponius, diverging to the right by this tomb, is known as Strada di Sotto, see below. — On the S. side of the town, to the left of the road to Ariccia (to the left of the ancient road), there is an ancient **Tomb* in the Etruscan style, consisting of a large tumulus, originally surrounded by four obtuse cones, of which only three are still standing, with a fifth in the centre. It was formerly supposed to be the tomb of the Horatii and Curiatii, and now, on no authority, is regarded as that of Aruns, a son of Porsena, who was killed near Ariccia.

1 $\frac{1}{4}$  M. to the N.W. of Albano lies Castel Gandolfo, reached by two shady avenues of beautiful evergreen oaks: the upper called *\*Galleria di Sopra*, or 'upper gallery', beginning at the Capuchin monastery above Albano, and affording fine views of the town and the Galleria di Sotto, beginning near the tomb of Horatius at the N.W. entrance to the town, passing the Villa Barberini and Castel Gandolfo, and leading to (3 $\frac{3}{4}$  M.) Marino (p. 357).

Castel Gandolfo, which belonged to the Savelli in the middle of the 16th cent., has been the property of the Popes since 1596. It is an important place with a large Papal Palace, erected by Urban VIII. and designed by Carlo Maderna, and splendidly situated high above the precipitous margin of the Alban lake. The château was formerly the favourite summer residence of the popes (including Pius IX.), and a law passed on 13th May, 1871, received the privilege of Imperiality.

*Lake of Albano (964 ft. above the sea-level, 490 ft. deep), 12 M. in circumference, is the crater of an extinct volcano, of a gloomy and melancholy aspect, although its banks are well cultivated and fringed by abundant subterranean springs, and is drained by the **Fiume Emissarius* which issues below Castel Gandolfo.

The path to the ancient Emissarius descends steeply from the Galleria di Sopra a little before the village is reached, but the custodian must first be summoned from the village (fee 1 fr.; for a party more in proportion). The descent occupies nearly  $\frac{1}{4}$  hr., and the whole inspection about 1 hr. The Emissarius, an imposing work, was constructed according to tradition by the Romans in B.C. 397, during the siege of Veii, when the lake rose to an unusual height, but it is probably of still more remote origin. It is hewn in the solid rock. At the entrance is a large stone building resembling a nymphæum. The channel is 7-10 ft. in height, and issues  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. below Albano by the village of La Mola, where the water is used as a motive power for mills, descending thence to the Tiber. The custodian floats lighted pieces of candle on boards down the stream, in order to give visitors an idea of its length (about 1300 yds.).

About  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. to the S.E. of Albano lies Ariccia. The road passes the Etruscan tomb mentioned above. It then crosses the imposing \*Viaduct, erected by Pius IX. in 1846-63, 334 yds. in length, and 192 ft. in height, consisting of three series of arcades of six, twelve, and eighteen arches respectively, one above the other, which crosses the valley separating Albano from Ariccia. To the right, a view of the extensive plain as far as the sea, to the left, of the \*Park of the Palazzo Chigi, built by Bernini, and situated immediately to the left beyond the viaduct. This park, containing fine old timber, is kept in as natural a condition as possible. Permission to visit it should be obtained from the porter or gardener in the palace (fee  $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr.).

Ariccia (Café in the piazza), an insignificant place, frequently attracts visitors in summer on account of the proximity of the woods. The women of Ariccia and Genzano are famed for their beauty. The ancient Aricia, which belonged to the Latin League, lay towards the S., in the Valle Aricciana (981 ft.), an extinct crater below the modern town, while the latter occupies the site of the ancient Arx or citadel. According to Horace (Sat. i. 5) this was the first station on the Via Appia, which runs towards Genzano on massive, still visible substructions, instead of the direct route from Albano to Ariccia, is interesting.) In the middle ages Ariccia came into the possession of the Savelli, and in 1661 was purchased by the Chigi, who are still the proprietors of the place.

The beautiful and shady new road from Ariccia to Genzano at first leads a little to the left and commands a fine view. After  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. it crosses four viaducts, which command a fine view. After  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. it crosses Galloro, formerly a Jesuit church. At the 17th milestone, it passes about  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. farther, the road divides; the branch to the left descends to a Capuchin monastery and to the Lake of Nemi (below is a partly ancient road to Nemi); the branch in the middle leads through an avenue to the Palazzo Cesarini (situated below); and that to the right descends to the town.

S.W. bank of the Lago di Nemi, is also much visited in summer, but there are no good inns, and intermittent fever is not uncommon here. In the piazza, opposite the fountain, there is a good osteria. The wine of Genzano is esteemed. The place presents no attraction beyond its fine situation. The best view of the lake is from the garden of the Palazzo Cesarini, which slopes rapidly towards the water (entrance to the left, opposite the palace; admission granted on application at the palace). — At Genzano, on the 8th day after Corpus Christi, is celebrated the famous Infiorata di Genzano, or flower-festival, consisting of a procession through a street carpeted with flowers, followed by fireworks and merry-makings. The festival has been revived after an intermission of some years, but does not take place every year.

The **Lago di Nemi* (1066 ft.) is an extinct crater, about 3 M. in circumference, and like the Alban lake, which lies 100 ft. lower, is of considerable depth (328 ft.), and is also drained by an artificial emissarius. The water is beautifully clear, and rarely ruffled by wind. The precipitous lava-slopes of the crater, 328 ft. in height, are carefully cultivated. In ancient times it was called the Lacus Nemorensis, and sometimes the 'Mirror of Diana', from a temple, of which substructions have been discovered below Nemi, and from a nemus, or grove sacred to that goddess, whence the present name is derived. Tiberius (or Trajan) constructed a magnificent vessel here, a beam of which is preserved in the Museo Kircheriano at Rome (see p. 152). This exquisite lake is the gem of the Alban Mts.

From Genzano to Nemi 2 M.; by the Palazzo Cesarini we follow the road to the right, through the town, and past the church of S. Annunziata. The pleasant road skirts the upper margin of the lake, affording several fine views. — A footpath descends to the lake from S. Annunziata, and ascends again near the mills below Nemi.

Nemi is a small mediæval town with an ancient fort. The inn attoria Desanctis, tolerable, bargaining advisable) possesses a fine verandah which commands a delightful *VIEW of the lake from the castle of Genzano, of an old watch-tower beyond them. From the extensive plain and the sea.

From Nemi to the (1½ hr.) Monte Cavo (p. 358) a guide is required on account of the intricacy of the forest-paths (1-1½ fr.). GENZANO is a little farther distant.

At its Map, p. 353) to Cività Lavinia, the ancient Lanuvium, by the W. end of the town are a few remains of the ancient neighbourhood. The town, a poor, insignificant place, commands a fine view of the Campagna towards the sea. Below it, 1½ M. distant, is the Lavinia railway-station on the Rome and Naples line; three miles farther (7½ M. from Genzano) lies Velletri, also, about 5½ M. farther (7½ M. from Genzano) lies Velletri, which can be reached by a nearer and more picturesque route in a guide. Rome is quitted by a road lately beyond which is the road then descends into crosses the railway to For Peter's. The route, which Via Tiburtina, crosses the Ponte Mammolo at the 4th tains near Filettino, passing it forms the celebrated c

Ponte Salaro (p. 350). The bridge is named after Mammæa, the mother of Alexander Severus. To the right an undulating district with ancient towers. At the (7 M.) —

Osteria del Fornaccio a road diverges to the left to the picturesquely situated village of Monticelli, with a castle and monastery. At the Osteria delle Capannacce (245 ft.), a little farther on, the road reaches its culminating point between the Ponte Mammolo and Ponte Lucano (see below). We next pass (1.) the Castel Arcione, an ancient stronghold of robbers. Beyond it is the calciferous Lago de' Tartari, now dried up. A sulphureous odour soon indicates the proximity of the Aquæ Albulae, which were much frequented in ancient times, but are now less popular (bath-house erected in 1862). In the vicinity are the quarries of lapis Tiburtinus, or travertine, which have furnished building-material for ancient and for modern Rome, for the Colosseum and for St. Peter's alike. About 1½ M. farther the Anio is crossed by the Ponte Lucano, near which is the well-preserved Tomb of the Plautii, dating from the early empire, and resembling that of Cæcilia Metella (p. 344).

Immediately beyond the river the road again divides: that to the left ascends to the town (see below), that to the right leads to the villa of Hadrian, 1 M. distant, formerly the property of the Braschi, purchased by the Italian government in 1871, and open to the public (adm. 1 fr.).

The **Villa of Hadrian*, situated on the slope of the hills of Tivoli, 1½ M. from the town, once occupied with its gardens and adjuncts an area of several square miles. The magnificent grounds, which were unrivalled in the Roman empire, contained palaces, theatres, a circus, academies, etc., where the emperor might repose after the labours of government; and he purposed to erect here models and plans of all the celebrated buildings and districts which he had visited, particularly those of Egypt and Greece. These costly structures stood till the 6th cent., when they were destroyed by the Goth Totilas. Innumerable works of ancient art, extricated from these ruins, now adorn churches and museums; and there still exist extensive remains of the buildings themselves, where excavations are now taking place under the supervision of the Com-mend. Rosa.

The Palace of Hadrian, the oldest edifice, appears to have stood on the highest ground, at the back of the Hippodrome and Academy. A Theatre, with adjacent halls and saloons, belonged to it. The Thermae were reached hence by the Canopus, a building fitted up in the Egyptian style, containing a number of Egyptian statues, etc., which are now in the Vatican. To the E. flows the river Alphæus. A large space above the Canopus is named the Hippodrome, or race-course, which however shows traces of aqueducts. To the N. of the palace are situated the so-called Elysium and Tartarus. A subterranean passage leads E. to the river Penæus, and beyond it to the Vale of Tempe. On the W. are extensive ruins supposed to be the Prytaneum, adjoining which are the Scuola, a circular edifice with niches for statues, the Stoa Pacile, a stadium with a colonnade, and ther remains. By the present entrance are two more Theatres, and other ruins, commonly called a Nymphaeum and Palaestra. The proper designations of these, as well as the other remains, are far from being ascertained with precision, especially as the plan of the whole establishment appears to have been dictated by mere caprice.

The road ascends somewhat rapidly from the tomb of the Plautii on windings which pedestrians may cut off. It passes the Tempio della Tosse (p. 367), and reaches the gate of Tivoli below the Villa d'Este.

Tivoli, the Tibur of antiquity, existed, according to tradition, as a colony of the Siculi long before the foundation of Rome. In B.C. 380 Camillus subjugated Tibur along with Præneste, after which it formed a member of the league of the Latin towns allied with Rome. Hercules and Vesta were especially revered at Tibur. Many of the Roman nobles, including Mæcenas, and the emperor Augustus himself, founded beautiful villas here; under Hadrian the splendour of the place attained its climax; and in the middle ages it participated in the fate of Rome. In 1460 Pius II. founded the citadel on the ruins of the amphitheatre. The modern town (7000 inhab.), with its narrow streets, offers few attractions beyond its charming situation. It is moreover somewhat damp and windy, especially in spring.

From the piazza, where the diligence office is situated, we proceed in a straight direction to a small piazza near the bridge, by which the high-road to Vicovaro, Subiaco, etc. (p. 367) crosses the Anio above the falls. The Vicolo della Sibilla here leads to the left to the inn of that name (on the right), in the court of which is situated the beautiful *TEMPLE OF THE SIBYL, a circular edifice, surrounded by a colonnade of eighteen Corinthian columns, ten of which are preserved. This temple, called by other authorities that of Vesta, or of Hercules Saxanus, was used as a church in the middle ages, whence the round niche in the interior. The door and windows contract at the top. It stands on a rock above the waterfalls, of which it commands an admirable *VIEW. — Close to the Sibyl Inn is a small piazza with the church of S. Giorgio, which has been incorporated with another fine old ancient temple of oblong shape, with four Ionic columns in front, supposed to have been dedicated to Tiburtus, or to the Sibyl.

The ruins visible from the projecting rock near the temple of the Sibyl to the right, were caused by a serious inundation in 1826, which carried away part of the village. To prevent the recurrence of a similar disaster, a new course was formed for a part of the water of the Anio, by the construction of two shafts through the mill disaster, a new course was formed for a part of

limestone-rock of Mte. Catillo, 290 yds. and 330 yds. in length respectively. In 1834 the water of the Anio was admitted to its new channel, in presence of Gregory XVI., by the engineer Folchi, and a **New Waterfall* of imposing appearance, and about 330 ft. in height, was thus formed (to the left of the temple of the Sibyl). Two ancient bridges and several tombs were discovered on the occasion.

Near the above-named church of S. Giorgio is an iron gate (attendant 4-5 soldi), leading to the Grotto of Neptune, which was formerly the channel of the main branch of the Anio. The new works drew off the greater part of the water from this channel, but the fall is still very fine. The excellent path, affording picturesque glimpses of the great fall, was constructed by the French general Miollis. Following this path to the right, we cross a wooden bridge, and reach the grotto in a few minutes. — We now return to the gallery hewn in the rock, and pass through it, descend to the lowest point to which the path leads, and finally mount a flight of stone steps, constantly wetted by spray, to the fantastically shaped \**Sirens' Grotto*. From this point we return to the path, which ascends at first in steps and afterwards in zigzags. Halfway up, where the zigzags terminate, near some cypresses, a path diverges to the left, at first ascending a few steps, then descending, and leading in a few minutes to a Platform of masonry, immediately above the new fall. — We now return and continue to ascend, and at the top of the hill turn to the left to a Terrace planted with olives, whence we enjoy a charming \*view of the temple of the Sibyl, above us, and of the new waterfall below. Passing through a door, which a custodian opens (fee), we may proceed to the fall and the entrance of the two tunnels by which the Monte Catillo is penetrated (see above; 372 steps long; to persons inclined to giddiness the walk by the roaring stream is not recommended). — From the terrace we follow the main path on the same level, constantly affording a view of the temples on the right. The path then passes under the street and reaches the exit to the right (10c.). — Visitors now generally walk through the town gate (Porta S. Angelo) to the right, and beyond it follow the road to the left, which runs at the same level along the slope above the river, and affords a series of more extensive views of the falls. Fine olive trees on the road. After  $3\frac{1}{4}$  M. we reach the first point of view, a round Terrace enclosed by masonry, and ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  M.) a second \**Terrace*, commanding an admirable view of the new fall, of Tivoli, and of the smaller waterfalls below the town, known as \**Le Cascatelle*, formed by a branch of the Anio.

The guides usually turn here. Visitors who wish to return by another route may continue to follow the same road. About  $\frac{1}{4}$  M. farther, various ancient ruins, probably the remains of a villa of Quintilius Varus, are seen near the small church of S. Maria di one at Tibur, cross the meadows between old olive trees, and in about 20 min. reach a road descending in a few minutes to the left, to the Ponte dell' Acquoria, by which we cross the Anio. On the left bank of the river we ascend the hill to the left, partly by an ancient pavement, and join the road from Rome. Here, to the left, are the colonnades, which have long been visible from the opposite bank, of the so-called Villa of Maecenas, where an iron manufactory is now established. On the other side of the road is an ancient circular building, known by the curious name of Tempio della Tosse, or 'temple of the cough', probably a tomb of the Turcia, or Tuscia family. From this point to the Porta del Colle of Tivoli about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M.

The **VILLA D' ESTE*, near the Porta del Colle, is worthy of a visit. (The lower entrance being closed, we must ascend, and in the street to the right proceed to the upper entrance adjacent to the church of S. Francesco.) The Villa was erected by Pirro Ligorio in 1549 for Card. Ippolito d'Este, and presented by the Duke of Modena to Card. Hohenlohe. Though sadly neglected, it still retains traces of its former splendour. In the casino are frescoes by Federigo Zuccherro and Muziano (damaged). The garden contains terraces, which are best seen from the cypress plateau with the four fountains, grottoes with cascades, densely shaded avenues, magnificent groups of trees of most varied hues, and charming points of view.

The Villa Braschi, founded by Pius VI., and the Terrace of the Jesuits' College near the Porta S. Croce also afford magnificent views of the Campagna and Rome.

Besides the ancient villas already mentioned there are traces of many others on the slopes near Tivoli. In those below the Greek college, which have been named villas of Cassius and M. Brutus, were found a number of works of art, several of which are exhibited in the Sala delle Muse in the Vatican (see p. 312).

Beautiful Excursions may be made from Tivoli to the Sabine Mts. To Subiaco, see below; to the lower valley of Licenza, see p. 374; to Ampiglione, see p. 368; to S. Angelo, see p. 374; Monticelli, see p. 374; Palombara, see p. 360; Monte Gennaro, see p. 373; also to PALESTRINA (beautiful, but fatiguing) by Gerico, S. Gregorio, Casape, and Poli (7 hrs.), or by a nearer carriage-road via Passerano and Zagarolo (15 M.).

SUBIACO.

FROM TIVOLI TO SUBIACO, 25 M., a Vetturino runs daily in 5 hrs., starting early in the morning (fare 4 fr.); a seat in other conveyances may also frequently be procured. Carriage with two horses generally 20 fr. and a fee. (From Rome to Subiaco 8 fr.; starting-point and booking, see p. 113.)

A shorter route for pedestrians (about 19 M.) in 7-8 hrs., very interesting at places, but fatiguing, leads from Tivoli through the valley of the aqueduct, and by Gerano (about two-thirds of the way), as far as which it is a carriage-road. Guide from Gerano necessary,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr.; donkey  $1\frac{1}{2}$  fr. (Comp. Maps, pp. 363, 367).

Pedestrians quit Tivoli by the Porta S. Giovanni, and follow the road skirting the left bank of the Anio on the slopes of M. Ripoli and M. Spaccato. About 1 M. from the gate a road diverges to the left to Castel Madama (see below); here we keep to the right. The arches of the venerable Aqua Marcia, and soon afterwards remains of the Aqua Claudia and the Anio Vetus become visible. About 4 M. from the town are (1.) the ruins of the ancient Empulum, now Ampiglione, and 1 M. farther those of Sassula, beyond which a lonely district is traversed. Below Siciliano the road turns to the right to Gerano, a village with a poor osteria.

The path now ascends the heights, whence a fine view of the mountains and valleys as far as Olevano (p. 372) is disclosed. The villages to the left are Canterano and Rocca Canterano, to the right Rocca S. Stefano and Civitella. After frequent ascents and descents on the mountain-slopes, and a succession of fine views of the valleys in the vicinity, the valley of the Anio and Subiaco below suddenly come into view beyond the last defile.

The CARRIAGE-ROAD leaves Tivoli by the Porta S. Angelo, and follows the right bank of the Anio. On the right, after the first mile, are seen a few arches of the Aqua Claudia, and shortly afterwards the Aqua Pia, the arches of which are frequently visible. After 3 M. a road diverges to the left to the lofty S. Polo, whence Monte Gennaro may be ascended (see p. 373). Farther on is the loftily situated village of Castello Madama (1460 ft.), which has long been visible; then the ruins of the old castle of Saccomuro. About 7½ M. from Tivoli, we reach Vicovaro, the ancient Varia, which possesses interesting walls of travertine-blocks, and the octagonal, late-Gothic chapel of S. Giacomo (containing a miracle-working image of the Madonna), designed in the 16th cent. by Simone, a pupil of Brunellesco. Beyond Vicovaro the road divides, leading to the left to the village of Licenza (p. 374), and to the right by the river to Subiaco. Cantalupo, the Mandela of Horace (p. 374), situated on a rock, lies on the left.

About 1½ M. from Vicovaro we pass a monastery of S. Cosimato, and soon afterwards cross the Licenza, an affluent of the Anio. On the left bank of the river opens the valley of Sambuci, through which Siciliano and the above-described pedestrian-route from Tivoli to Subiaco are reached. Above the valley lies the village of Saracinesco, which soon becomes visible. It is said to have been founded by the Saracens. The inhabitants wear a picturesque costume. Midway between Tivoli and Subiaco stands the Osteria della Ferrata. Farther on lies Roviano, opposite to which is Anticoli on the left bank. Beyond Roviano the Via Valeria diverges to the left to Arsoli and the Lago di Fucino (see Baedeker's Southern Italy).

The valley of the Anio now expands picturesquely, and again contracts at Agosta. To the left lies Cervara on a lofty rock; on the right Canterano and Rocca Canterano. Subiaco, charmingly situated amidst wood and rock, now soon becomes visible.

The GARDEN of the monastery is well stocked with beautiful roses. They were, according to tradition, originally thorns, cultivated by St. Benedict for the mortification of the flesh, but converted into roses by St. Francis when he visited the monastery in 1223.

Having returned to the high road after visiting the monasteries, we may cross the Anio by the bridge, and return to the town by a footpath on the right.

By this high road, which is mentioned at p. 373, Olevano (p. 372) is about 10 M. distant.

PALESTRINA. OLEVANO.

Paestrina may be visited from Rome direct, or, which is pleasanter, from Frascati or Valmontone. FROM ROME, in summer daily (usually at 2.30 p.m., returning at 4 a.m.), a Vetturino starts from Via S. Marco 10, where enquiry should be made (a drive of about 5 hrs., fare 4 fr.). — FROM FRASCATI (railway station, see p. 354) Paestrina may be reached on foot or on donkey-back in 4 hrs.; the road is also practicable for carriages. — FROM VALMONTONE (a station of the Naples-Rome line, reached by train in 1½ hr. from Rome) to Paestrina a walk of 1½ hr.; also vetturino, 1½ fr.; comp. Map, p. 353. A vetturino also plies from Valmontone to Genazzano (1½ fr.) in 2 hrs., the driver undertaking to provide a conveyance thence to Olevano.

The ROAD FROM FRASCATI TO PALESTRINA, 13 M., especially the first half, is beautiful, but destitute of shade. We first ascend from the station to the first houses of Frascati, where, at the bifurcation of the road, we turn to the left (comp. p. 354). After ¾ M. the road passes the lower entrance to the Villa Mondragone, which is approached by an avenue of cypresses. Farther on are the ruined vaults of an ancient villa, said to have belonged to Cato. After 2 M. the road passes (r.) the olive-clad hill on which Monte Porzio (1529 ft.) is picturesquely situated; 1½ M. farther it reaches Monte Compatri (1745 ft.), with a château of the Borghese, the ancient Laticum. We do not enter the village, but pass the approach of masonry which forms its entrance, and descend by a somewhat rough road, passing a washing-trough. Near a (1 M.) considerable group of trees we turn to the right, and close to (⅓ M.) a small chapel with an image of the Madonna, again ascend to the right. About 2 M. farther the broad road leads us to the high road coming from Rome (Via Labicana, Strada di Paestrina), and following the latter for ¾ M. we reach the Osteria S. Cesareo, a thatched hut (capanna) to the left of the road, where good wine is sold. At S. Cesareo the road to Lugnano diverges to the right, and the main road to the left leads to Paestrina, 4½ M. distant.

FROM ROME TO PALESTRINA, 22 M., two routes lead from the Porta Maggiore (anciently the Porta Praenestina): the ancient Via Praenestina, and the modern and more convenient Via Labicana. The former runs to the left between vineyards, past (1½ M.) the ruins of Tor de' Schiavi (p. 349), to the mediæval Tor tre Teste, 8½ M. from Rome; then crosses the seven arches of the Ponte di Nono, an early Roman bridge of lapis Gabinus, and reaches the Osteria dell' Osa on the brook Osa, which descends from the lake near the ancient Gabii, which lay near the conspicuous tower of brick-masonry of the empire. Two walls, of which that to the N. is the best preserved, connected the town with the citadel (Arx) on the summit of the hill, now Castel S. Pietro, consisting of a few poor houses. A somewhat fatiguing path ascends from the Palazzo Barberini in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr., for which, however, the noble prospect from the summit (2546 ft.) amply compensates. The vast Campagna, from which the dome of St. Peter's rises, is surveyed as far as the sea; to the right rise Soracte and the Sabine Mts., then the Alban range; to the left is the valley of the Sacco, bounded by the Volscian Mts. The picturesque, half-dilapidated Fortezza was erected by the Colonnas in 1332. The door is opened on application ( $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr.); the approach is uncomfortable, but the view from the interior is particularly fine.

The extensive ruins of the Villa of Hadrian, where the beautiful Antinous Braschi, now in the Rotonda of the Vatican (p. 313) was found, are near the church of S. Maria della Villa,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from the town. In the forum of the ancient Præneste, in 1773, was found the calendar of Verrinus Flaccus, now in the Palazzo Vidoni at Rome (p. 201). The excavations at Palestrina have always yielded a rich harvest; the so-called cistæ, or toilet-caskets, including the celebrated Ficoronian (p. 151), have all been found here.

From Palestrina to Tivoli by Zagarolo and Passerano 15 M. (comp. p. 367).

FROM PALESTRINA TO OLEVANO, about 11 M., a drive of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  hrs. (the vetturino from Rome proceeds in the afternoon to Olevano; carriage 8-10 fr.). This is a very picturesque route. To the left, and before us are the Sabine Mts., to the right the Volscian, and behind us the Alban Mts. The road from Rome passes below Palestrina (p. 370). Beyond a seven-arched bridge across the Fiume di Cavi we reach (2 M.) Cavi, a village with 2000 inhab., the property of the Colonna family. (Above it, 4 M. distant, lies the small village of Rocca di Cavi.) The road pursues a straight direction, and soon passes the church of the Madonna del Campo, 2 M. beyond which a road to Genazzano diverges to the left.

Genazzano, a pleasant little town with 3000 inhab., is famed for its richly endowed pilgrimage-chapel of the Madonna del Buon Consiglio, which attracts crowds of devotees in their picturesque costumes on festivals of the Virgin. We may now return to the high road, or proceed through the valley direct to Olevano by an interesting, but rugged route.

The road farther on again crosses two bridges, beyond the second of which, the Ponte d'Orsino, it divides; the branch to the left leads to Olevano, that to the right to Paliano. The former road at first gradually ascends, and then describes a long curve, causing Olevano to appear much nearer than it really is (vetturino, see p. 370).

Olevano, a mediæval place, with about 3000 inhab. and the scanty remains of an ancient wall, the property of the Borghese, lies most picturesquely on the slope of a mountain, and is commanded by the ruins of an ancient castle. The interior of the town, with its narrow and dirty streets, presents no attractions. At the entrance to the town is the new **Albergo di Roma*, where the vet-

The road, especially the first part, traversing a dreary plain, is uninteresting. To the left lies the ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Lago di Giulianello, an extinct crater. A little farther is a wood, which used to be frequently infested by banditti. From ( $6\frac{1}{2}$  M.) the poor village of Giulianello the road to the left ascends to Rocca Massima, while that to the right leads to Cori. The mountain slopes now become more attractive. About 3 M. from Giulianello, at a chapel of the Madonna del Monte, a road to the left diverges to the upper part of the town. The road to the right, leading to the lower part, is preferable.

Cori (Filippuccio; the trattoria is near the Porta Romana, the bedrooms farther up in the Piazza, rustic accommodation, but civil people). That no time may be lost, a guide to the chief points of interest should at once be engaged ( $\frac{1}{2}$ -1 fr.). The ancient Cora was at an early period a member of the Latin League; it is mentioned, B.C. 493, as one of the thirty confederate towns. During the empire it still prospered, but its name afterwards fell into oblivion. Pop. 4000. Tobacco is extensively cultivated in the neighbourhood.

Besides the modern walls, which date chiefly from the 15th cent., considerable remains of *ANCIENT WALLS of various periods are preserved at Cori. Those of the earliest style consist of large blocks without mortar, the interstices being filled up with smaller stones; the best example of this is seen near the gate to Norma and S. Maria. The second and more perfect kind is constructed of hewn polygonal blocks, the outsides of which alone are left rough. Lastly there are walls of regularly hewn square stones, perhaps dating from the time of Sulla, such as those above S. Oliva, and those separating the upper town (Arx) from the lower. The town seems to have been surrounded by differently situated walls at different periods.

A deep ravine outside the Porta Ninfesina is spanned by the very ancient **Ponte della Catena*, constructed of tuffstone in the style of the Cloaca Maxima at Rome. In order that the great solidity of the arch with its double layers of masonry may be appreciated, it should be surveyed from below.

Our attention, however, is chiefly arrested by the colonnade of the so-called **Temple of Hercules* (perhaps of Minerva), standing on the highest ground in the town. The cella of the temple is incorporated with the church of S. Pietro; but the eight columns of the Doric colonnade, with frieze of travertine bearing traces of stucco-decoration, are preserved. The inscription, recording the erection of the edifice by the dumviri, or chief magistrates of the place, dates from the time of Sulla. Fine *View hence over the town towards the sea, and of the plain with the isolated M. Circeo.

S. Oliva is also erected on the foundations of an ancient temple, and possesses antique columns. In the street of S. The frieze and two columns of the Corinthian order, of admirable

Excursions made to Environs of Rome

Excursions are frequently made to the remains of the Etruscan tomb in one day. Visiting the remains of the Etruscan tomb as the route is so long to be pleasant, and they should be as the Tomba di Nerone (6 M., Sacro & Fr.), or La Storta who are so disposed may return from Veii by a somewhat skirting the Fosso di Valchetta, the valley of which descends between the 6th and 7th milestones. Provisions should be carried from Rome, as the Taverna at Isola is extremely poor.

VIII.

at (8 1/2 M.) longer route to the Via Flaminia the journey should be extremely poor.

From Rome to the where the Via Flaminia Ponte Molle, see p. 351. Cassia, gradually ascending diverges to the right, we By the Osteria desolate. Near the 5th milestone, to the left of the road, on a dilapidated pedestal, stands a sarcophagus with a long inscription, commonly called, but without the slightest authority, the Tomb of Nero. The inscription (at the back, facing the ancient road) expressly records that the monument, which probably dates from the 2nd cent. after Christ, was erected by Vibia Marcia Maxima to the memory of her father P. Vibius Marianus and her mother Regina Maxima. — An ancient route, somewhat shorter than the modern, diverges here to the right to Veii, but as it is not easily traced the high road is preferable.

We next reach (8 1/2 M.) the post-station of La Storta (inn), which in ancient times was the last station on the route to Rome. One mile beyond it the road diverges to the right to Isola Farnese; 1/2 M. farther, where the road divides, we select that to the right; the road to the left leads to Formello.

Isola Farnese, a poor village, belonging to the Hospitaller, numbering scarcely 100 inhab., and harassed by fever in summer, was a place of some consequence in the middle ages, having been founded on account of the security of its site. A guide is engaged here (1-1 1/2 fr., bargaining necessary) to conduct us to the site of Veii. Imposing ruins must not be looked for, but the landscape is interesting and picturesque. A minute inspection of the ancient city is interesting to the archaeologist only. The following are the principal points, a visit to which occupies 2-3 hrs. We first descend the brook to the mill (molino), where there is a picturesque waterfall, not far from which the brook is crossed by the ancient Ponte dell' Isola. Farther on is the Ponte Sodo, hewn in the rock, under which the brook is conducted. Then the Porta Speria with remains of a columbarium, the recesses of which gave rise to the name. the vicinity is the Grotta Campana. We next follow the (view), and to the Piazza d'Armi, the ancient citadel (one view), and return to Isola. Pedestrians, by descending the valley of the str from the Piazza d'Armi, may reach the Via Flaminia in 2 hrs.

Veii was one of the most powerful of the Etruscan cities. After contests protracted for centuries, which at first centred round Fidenæ (Castel Giubileo, p. 350), the frontier stronghold of the Etruscans on the S. bank of the Tiber, and after manifold vicissitudes and a long siege, the city was at length captured by Camillus, B.C. 396. Its circumference, which may still be traced, is  $5\frac{1}{2}$  M. After its capture it fell to decay, and was afterwards re-peopled by Cæsar with Romans; but this colony scarcely occupied one-third of the former area. Excavations here have led to the discovery of inscriptions, statues, and the columns which adorn the old post-office in the Piazza Colonna (p. 148).

Veii stands on a table-land, around which, on the N. and E. sides, flows the ancient Cremera, now the Fosso di Formello, and on the W. side, the Piazza d'Armi, occupies a separate plateau at the citadel, now the Piazza d'Armi, occupies a separate plateau at the confluence of the two brooks, connected with the site of the town by a narrow isthmus only. The camp of the Fabii, whose whole family was destroyed by the Veientines, was situated on the heights on the right bank of the Valca, as the Cremera is named in the lower part of its course, about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant from the citadel. The \**Grotta Campana*, named after its discoverer, is the only tomb of Veii still preserved, and is left in the condition in which it was found in 1842. It is hewn in the tufa-rock, and guarded by two lions at the entrance. The interior consists of two chambers; the walls are covered with grotesque paintings of great antiquity. Two skeletons were found here, but they soon fell to pieces. Remains of the armour of a warrior, vessels of clay, etc. are also seen.

GALERA.

Galera, 15 M. from Rome, may be visited on the way to Bracciano, or by carriage (about 25 fr.), in a single day from Rome. A supply of provisions necessary. Vetturini also occasionally run (see below).

About  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. beyond La Storta (p. 377) the Via Clodia diverges to the left from the Via Cassia, which leads to Baccano (p. 69). We follow the Via Clodia, the old pavement of which is seen at intervals. The district is dreary. On the road-side is the entrance to the subterranean Acqua Paola, which descends from the lake of Bracciano, and terminates on the Janiculus. On the left,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  M. from La Storta, appears the church of S. Maria di Cesareo; 1 M. farther is the Osteria Nuova, where the carriage may be left. The land here is well watered, and occupied by several extensive farms. A path to the left in the direction of these, then turning to the right, leads in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. to the ruins of Galera. The town, which arose in the middle ages near the Carciæ of antiquity, was at first governed by powerful nobles, and belonged to the Orsini 1226-1670. At the beginning of the present century the inhabitants were compelled by malaria to abandon the place. Even the solitary shepherd who now lives here quits it with his flock in summer. It stands on an abrupt tufa-rock, around which flows the A of Bracciano. The walls are of the 1 churches with their towers, the palace are recognisable, all densely overgrown surrounding wooded ravine enhances the spot.

The road skirts the lake. left to the old church of the martyrs S erected, as the inscription informs us, of Pausilypon, and affording a fine view. from which inscriptions and other reli regain the road to Vicarello by another from Bracciano. The baths,  $\frac{3}{4}$  M. from spring, are the Aquæ Apollinares of antiquity which they were held was afforded in numbers of coins and votive offerings, most Kircheriano (p. 150). Owing to the summer longed beyond the early part of the E remains of opus reticulatum, belonging Trevignano, occupying the site of the proper early into oblivion, formerly the Roman remains Conti, is a poor village. Roman remains church two pictures of the school of Peru village commands a fine view; its destruction

A bridle-path leads hence in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  hr. to Subi (p. 60), another in about 3 hrs. to Anguillara, the ancestral seat of the once powerful counts of that name. If the wind be favourable it is preferable to cross the lake from Trevignano by boat. From Anguillara to Bracciano an uninteresting route of  $\frac{3}{4}$  M.; the tour of the lake may thus be made in one day.

From Bracciano a road traverses a dreary district to (8 M.) Cervetri, so that the above excursion may easily be combined with the next.

CARR.

Cervetri, the ancient Caere, may be visited from Rome in a single day. The first train should be taken as far as Palo (p. 8; three trains daily, fares 5 fr. 85, 3 fr. 90, 2 fr. 80 c.), thence in  $1\frac{1}{4}$  hr. to Cervetri, where a stay of 5 hrs. may be made, leaving time to regain Rome by the last train.

Caere, more anciently named Agryia (Phœnician, 'circular city'), a place of very remote origin, afterwards became subject to the Etruscans, and carried on an extensive commerce from its harbours Pyrgos (S. Severa) and Alston (Palo). At the same time it was closely allied with Rome. In B.C. 351 it was received into the confederation of Roman states. It was a prosperous place in the reign of Trajan, and continued to flourish down to the 13th century, but in 1250 it was abandoned by its inhabitants, who founded Cere Nuovo, 3 M. distant, the present Ceri (with not more than 50 inhab.). A number of them, it is uncertain when, afterwards returned to Caere Vetere, whence the name Cervetri. This village (200 inhab.) stands on the site of the ancient city, which was 5 M. in circumference. The interest of this locality was greatly increased by the discovery of numerous tombs in 1829, and the excavations are still prosecuted.

Some of the Tombs are clustered together and hewn in the rock, while others stand alone in conical mounds or tumuli. They are not nearly so well preserved as those of Corneto, and hardly a trace of painting remains. The more important may be visited in 3-4 hrs. Most of them lie on the hill opposite the village, and separated from it by a gorge. In order to form an accurate idea of their arrangements, the traveller should not confine his attention to the most interesting only.

1. GROTTA DELLA SEDIZIA E BORDI, so called from two seats and several shields hewn in the rocks, contains an ante-room and five chambers.
2. GROTTA DEL TRICLINIO, with almost obliterated paintings representing a banquet.
3. GROTTA DELLA BELLA ARCHITETTURA, with two chambers, supported by pillars.
4. GROTTA DELLA U---, with two chambers, supported by pillars, contains numerous inscriptions (Lat. Forquensis), thus apparently Roman kings were of Etruscan origin.
5. GROTTA DELLA ISCRIZIONE, or DE' T. excavated in 1850, contains two pillars bearing in the tufa-rock, decorated with various bas-reliefs of scenes from every-day life, and bearing traces of painting. — On the road to Palo lies 7. GROTTA REGOLINI GALANI, opened in 1838, a tomb of great antiquity. The roof is vaulted by means of the arch-principle. The yield of this tomb, now in the Gregorian Museum, was very considerable, consisting of a bed, a four-wheeled chariot, shields, tripods, vessels of bronze, an iron altar, figures of clay, silver pendants, and golden trinkets once worn by the deceased. — One mile from this is situated a tomb, opened in 1800, and still containing the vases, vessels, and other objects then discovered. — Besides these, there are many other tombs (e.g. Grotta Tarltonia, the first chamber of which is used as a place of access for the dead).

The Sea-coast of Latium.
Communication with the sea was of far greater importance than to modern Rome, and its former facility contrasted with the proud rank held by the mistress of the world. Various structures were accordingly founded at the estuary of the Tiber, and ruins are still visible. The coast stretching towards the south is a resort of the wealthy Romans, as the numerous villas and palaces are entirely desolate, and is skirted by a broad belt of forest. The malaria in summer is peculiarly pestilential. The various excursions which the coast affords are best made by carriages, and should be so arranged that Rome may be regained in time for the evening.

OSTIA.

14 M. from Rome. Two-horse carriage there and 2-4 fr. The drive to Castel Fusano must be expressly arranged. Ostia may also be reached by taking the Railway to Porto Cese, crossing the river. A supply of provisions should be made at Ostia is poor. The beautiful cella of the temple of Minerva is a picnic.

From the Porta S. Paolo to the Osteria del P. S. Paolo, Via Ardeatina Nuova diverges to the left, see p. 10. the road to Ostia, we reach (8 1/2 M. from Rome) the Ponte della Refolca, and 1 1/2 M. farther the Ponte della Refolca, a growth of underwood (Macchia di Ostia), beyond which of Ostia, 2 M. distant, is obtained. A short stage we cross by an embankment the Stazione di Ostia, yielded salt since the period of the kings.

Ostia, a poor village with scarcely 100 inhabitants, Gregory IV. in 830, several centuries after the founding of the ancient town. Under Leo IV. (847-56) the town was signal defeat here, which Raphael has represented in his fresco. Julius II. (1503-13), when Cardinal della Rovere was to be erected by Sangallo. The town lost its importance had hitherto enjoyed when Paul V. reopened the Tiber at Porto in 1612.

The pleasing church of S. Aurea, dedicated to the Virgin, was erected under Julius II. The adjacent St. Peter's contains many inscriptions and relics found during the excavations. These works, begun during last century, have been carried on by the Signori Visconti since 1850, under the supervision of Comm. Pietro Rosa. Two visits to the principal objects.

The Ostia of antiquity, founded by Ancus Marcius, of Rome, extended along the left arm of the Tiber to the present village, as far as Torre di Boaccetti, a commercial town, and maintained its position as the port of Portus. Among the numerous nations which traded here, various foreign religions were introduced, and Christianity also was introduced here at an early date.

of Ostia, according to some accounts, was founded by the apostles themselves, and is still regarded with great veneration by the Romish clergy. Monica, the mother of St. Augustine, died here.

At the entrance to the town (r.) is a very poor osteria. The custodian, who is to be found here, is recognised by his metal-badge (fee for the excursion 2-3 fr.). The Tombs which extend in a line beyond the Porta Romana of the ancient town, are reached in 5 min. from the gate. Most of the reliefs found here are now in the Lateran (p. 271). In 3 min. the gate of the old town is reached; on an eminence to the right, farther on, are seen the ruins of the Theatre, the stage of which faced the river. Then, after passing several streets, we arrive at a **Temple*, with a well-preserved cella, the threshold of which consists of a single block of African marble, 16 ft. in length. The vaulted substructions contain the receptacles for the sacred vessels (favissae). The road in a straight direction from the cella leads in 5 min. to the shrine of the Magna Mater, excavated in 1869, an irregular quadrangular structure with a colonnade on each side, where the statue of Atthis in the 16th room of the Lateran (p. 273) was found. — About 7 min. walk hence, towards the river, is a house with a new façade containing the antiquities, near which several private dwelling-houses have been brought to light. The fragments of reliefs and inscriptions are interesting to the antiquarian only. The path diverging to the left from that along the Tiber leads in 10 min. more to the **Baths*, discovered in 1867, which are of moderate size; the positions of the furnace, swimming-basin, hot-bath (calidarium), etc., are traceable.

Proceeding towards the road on the bank of Tiber, we arrive in 5 min. at a Store Chamber, with thirty earthen jars imbedded in the floor, for keeping wine, oil, and grain. Then, 2 min. farther are much more extensive Baths with a palæstra, etc., probably erected by Antoninus Pius; a large mosaic pavement in the principal hall, represents the intricacies of the labyrinth. Adjacent is a small Mithræum, with an inscription on the mosaic-pavement. — On the road-side, immediately beyond the baths, are remains of arches of tuffstone and travertine of the republican era, supposed to have belonged to a harbour. We now follow the street skirting the E. side of the town and reach ( $\frac{3}{4}$  M.) Laurentum, where a number of graves and columbaria have been discovered.

A carriage-road leads from Ostia to (2 M.) \**Castel Fusano* (to which the driver should be expressly desired to convey the traveller), situated in the midst of a beautiful forest of pines. It was erected by the Marchese Sacchetti in the 16th cent., and fortified against pirates, and is now the property of the Chigi family. A modern road, with an ancient pavement of basalt, leads hence to the sea,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant, the view of which however is shut out by a lofty sandbank: a very pleasant walk. Similar sand-hills, extending to the S. beyond the Pontine Marshes, bound the whole coast.

From Ostia we may cross the river near Torre di Boacciano to the Isola Sacra (p. 384), across which we walk to the right arm of the Tiber ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  M.). Beyond the latter lies Fiumicino (p. 384), whence we proceed to Porto.

From Castel Fusano to Tor Paterno, a farm near the ancient Laurentum,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  M. Thence with guide to ( $4\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Pratica, an insignificant village on the site of the ancient Lavinium. From Pratica to Albano  $7\frac{1}{4}$  M., to Rome 14 M. — Ardea, with remains of the ancient town, is  $6\frac{1}{2}$  M. from Pratica.

PORTO.

An excursion to Porto is far less attractive than to Ostia, and is chiefly interesting to the archæologist. Railway to (18 M.) Porto in 1 hr. (fares 3 fr. 55, 2 fr. 50, 1 fr. 75 c.), and thence on to (20 M.) Fiumicino (fares 3 fr. 85, 2 fr. 75, 1 fr. 95 c.) in 7 min. more. The stations between the terminus at Rome and Porto are S. Paolo (Rome), Magliana, and ( $7\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Ponte Galera, where the line diverges to the left from the Civita Vecchia railway (p. 7).

Owing to the extensive alluvial deposits of the Tiber, the delta of which advances on an average  $12\frac{1}{2}$  ft. annually, the harbour at Ostia was gradually filled with sand, and the lower quarters of the capital itself were frequently exposed to danger from inundations owing to the diminished fall of the channel. The Emp. Claudius accordingly constructed a new harbour on the coast, enclosed it by moles, and conducted into it a canal from the Tiber; but the remedy did not long remain effectual. In 103 Trajan constructed a new harbour and town, which were called after him Portus Trajani, and soon absorbed the whole traffic with Rome. At the same time he dug a new canal (Fossa Trajani), which at present forms the principal arm of the Tiber. This harbour is now 2 M. distant from the sea.

Porto now consists of a Cathedral, dedicated to S. Rufina, an episcopal Palace, with inscriptions and antiquities, and a Villa of Prince Torlonia, who has caused excavations to be made here. We first reach the walls of the town, then, beyond the farm buildings, the harbour of Trajan, a large octagonal basin, surrounded by magazines, now a shallow lake only. In the meadows to the N. of this, the extent of the harbour of Claudius is still traceable. Towards the river are situated the episcopal palace, and the church of St. Rufina, of the 10th cent., now modernised.

Fiumicino (Locanda), a modern place which derives some importance from the river-navigation, is 2 M. from Ostia. The castle, erected in 1773 close to the sea, is now nearly  $\frac{1}{2}$  M. distant from it. The tower commands a fine view.

The Isola Sacra, situated between the two arms of the river, was so named at a very early period, either from having been the site of a heathen temple, or from having been presented by Constantine to the Church. Numerous herds of cattle are pastured here, against which travellers must be on their guard, especially in spring. A guide is therefore desirable.

PORTO D'ANZIO.

Porto d'Anzio, 34 M. from Rome, is much frequented during the bathing-season in May and June, when through-tickets are issued for the journey at No. 171 Piazza di S. Ignazio (where enquiry should be made, as changes frequently occur). The journey occupies 5 hrs., and the whole excursion takes two days.

RAILWAY to Albano, see p. 359. — Thence to Porto d'Anzio, 17 M., diligence twice daily in summer, starting from the railway-station; during the rest of the year every alternate day only. A Vetturino also generally runs to Porto d'Anzio from No. 86 Via Bocca di Leone, on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 5.30 a.m. (fare 6 fr.).

Porto d'Anzio (Trattoria di Ambrogio Pollastrini; private apartments procurable) is a very pleasant place in the early summer, but fever begins in July, often with great suddenness.

Antium, the capital of the Volsci, and a prosperous seaport at an early period, the place where Coriolanus sought refuge when banished from Rome in B.C. 490, was compelled in 468 to succumb to the Romans. In 338, when all the Latins were conquered, Antium received a Roman colony, and was thus permanently united with Rome. Extensive villas were afterwards erected here. Cicero possessed an estate at Antium, the tranquillity and charms of which he highly extols (Att. iv, 8). Horace (Carm. i, 35) mentions the temple of Fortune at the 'lovely Antium', where oracular responses were given, and which was consulted as late as the time of Theodosius the Great (about 390). Claudius and Nero were born at Antium, where the latter erected magnificent edifices. Domitian, Hadrian, Antoninus Pius, and Lucius Verus resided at Antium in summer. The Goths and Saracens afterwards took up their quarters here. In the 14th cent. the place was entirely deserted, but in the 16th the popes began to restore the harbour.

Since 1831 Porto d'Anzio and Nettuno have been the property of Prince Borghese, whose handsome villa here is said to occupy the site of the ancient Arx. Extensive substructures, broken columns, etc. have been discovered. Under Julius II. the Apollo Belvedere (and probably the Diana of Versailles also) was extricated from the ruins near the so-called Arco Muto, and at a later period the Borghese Gladiator also (now in Paris). The town possesses beautiful villas of the Corsini (now Mencacci) and Doria families, and a Bagno for convicts.

We now follow a picturesque road, passing villas and country-houses, or walk along the beach, though somewhat rough, to the small town of ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Nettuno, which is said to have been originally a settlement of the Saracens, situated on a fortified height with a single entrance only. The costume of the women is picturesque. A road skirting the coast leads from Nettuno to ( $6\frac{1}{2}$  M.) Astura, where there are numerous remains of Roman villas, and where Cicero also once possessed a villa. A tower, connected with the mainland by a bridge, formerly belonged to a castle in which prince Conradin of Swabia sought refuge with Jacopo Frangipani after the Battle of Tagliacozzo. The latter, however, delivered him up to Charles of Anjou, who caused him to be beheaded at Naples.

CONTENTS.

1. List of the principal streets, public buildings, etc., of Rome.
2. General Plan of Rome, showing the main portions of the city.
3. Omnibus Map of Rome.
4. Large Plan of Rome, in three sections.

---

This cover may be detached from the rest of the book by severing the yellow thread which will be found between pp. 4 and 5 of the list of streets.

List of Streets in the Plan of Rome.

The plan is divided into three sections, the upper, with green margin, numbered I, the central, white, II, the lower, with red margin, III. The three columns of figures in the subjoined list correspond to these sections; the numbers indicate the square of the section in which the place in question is to be found (thus Accademia di S. Luca is in the 14th square of the 1st section). Where space has been too limited to admit of the names being inserted in the plan, they have been replaced by numbers, which in the following list are annexed to each name so omitted (thus Banco di S. Spirito 15 is No. 15 in the 10th square of the 2nd section). The key to these numbers in their order is also inserted in the plan itself, an arrangement which will often be found useful.

Abbreviations: V. = Via, Vic. = Vicolo, Vg. = Vigna, Pal. = Palazzo.
